(Filed January 22, 1946.)

(Order No. 2604-A.)

In the District Court of the United States, Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor,	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (hereinafter called the "Commission") certified to this Court the Plan of Reorganization, as embodied in the Commission's Third Supplemental Order dated October 9, 1944, of the Debtor and subsidiary debtors, parties to these proceedings (excepting the subsidiary debtor Missouri Illinois Railroad Company), together with a transcript of the proceedings before the Commission. All parties in interest have been given due opportunity to file their objections in writing to said plan and their claims for equitable treatment, and have been heard or given an opportunity to be heard thereon at a hearing duly noticed pursuant to an Order of this Court, No. 2604 (R. 21031). Among others, Andrew W. Comstock (hereinafter called "Comstock"), a holder of $10,000 face value of 5¼% Secured Serial Bonds of Missouri Pacific (hereinafter called the "Secured Serial Bonds"), filed his objections numbered 1 to 27, inclusive, to said plan and his claims for equitable treatment (R. 21649). At the hearing on said plan, to wit: from January 9, 1945, to January 17, 1945. Comstock's objection numbered 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent on said objection 19 and his claim for equitable treatment based thereon (said related objections being Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13 and 26) were heard. On the New Orleans acquired all of the capital stock, except directors' qualifying shares, and indebtedness (excepting an unimportant amount of obligations owing to general creditors) of seven other railroad corporations which are subsidiary debtors in these proceedings. From and after the acquisition of the capital stock and indebtedness of said seven other railroad corporations and until June 22, 1933, the New Orleans continued to own said capital stock and all of the indebtedness (excepting an unimportant amount of obligations owing to general creditors) of said seven other railroad corporations (Gr. Ex. 40). Included among said seven other railroad corporations were the San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, the Sugar Land Railway Company and the San Antonio Southern Railway Company (Gr. Ex. 40; Tr. 370). The New Orleans and its fourteen subsidiaries (not including the I-GN) are herein sometimes referred to as the "Gulf Coast Lines".

(b) There is pledged under the New Orleans First Mortgage of date April 1, 1924, all of the stock and all of the Bonds of the various other companies, which, with the New Orleans, are referred to as "Gulf Coast Lines". Notwithstanding the separate corporate entity of each of the constituent companies, the Gulf Coast Lines were at all times herein mentioned considered as a unit in the financing of said companies.

4. The record contains no evidence tending to show that the acquisition by the New Orleans during the years 1925, 1926 and 1927 of the capital stock and indebtedness of the seven other railroad corporations referred to in Paragraph 3 hereof was in any way disadvantageous to the New Orleans or any of its security holders.

5. In the year 1923 the Missouri Pacific inaugurated an improvement and expansion program which was continued until the end of the year 1930. Over $200,000,000 was spent in carrying out this program. It included acquisition of a controlling interest in the capital stock of the New Orleans and a fifty percent. (50%) interest in The Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Company. In 1923 the Missouri Pacific System handled approximately 22% of the railroad traffic originating and terminating in the Southwestern area. By 1930 the Missouri Pacific System was handling approximately 27% of this traffic. During the period 1923-1930 average annual expenditures by the Missouri Pacific for additions and betterments amounted to $23,755,000. This compares with average annual expenditures of $7,118,000 for the period 1917-1922, $5,988,000 for the period 1931-1939, and $10,293,000 for the period 1940-1943 (Tr. 1024-32; Gr. Ex. 25).

6. In or about April 1924 the Missouri Pacific entered into an agreement providing for the purchase by the Missouri Pacific on June 2, 1924 of 37,500 shares of the capital stock of the New Orleans at a price of $120 per share, payable in the 7% Notes of Missouri Pacific maturing September 1, 1925, and secured by the pledge of the stock so purchased (Ck. Ex. 91). Said agreement was consummated and by the end of the year 1924 the Missouri Pacific had acquired 86,766 shares of the capital stock of the New Orleans, being approximately 58% of said capital stock (Ck. Ex. 110). Thereafter the Missouri Pacific continued to acquire additional shares of the capital stock of the New Orleans until April 1932, when its holdings of said capital stock amounted to 139,731 shares, or 93.15% of the entire issue. On January 7, 1925 officers and directors of the New Orleans and its subsidiaries, nominated by the Missouri Pacific, were duly elected (Tr. 1015). From and after said date and until June 22, 1933 the Missouri Pacific caused its nominees to be elected as officers and directors of the Gulf Coast Lines Company. During said period more than a majority of the directors and officers of the Gulf Coast Lines companies were also directors and/or officers of the Missouri Pacific (Ck. Ex. 9-21-E).

7. In the year 1926 the Missouri Pacific issued $13,156,000 principal amount of its Secured Serial Bonds and pledged to secure payment of said bonds 131,560 shares of the capital stock of the New Orleans (Ck. Ex. 93, 110; Tr. 407-9). The prospectus under which the Secured Serial Bonds were offered to the public stated that dividends were being paid on said capital stock at the rate of 7% per annum. The Secured Serial Indenture contains the following provisions:

"Unless and until (1) default shall have been made and be continuing in the payment of the interest on or of the principal of the Bonds or some one or more of them, or (2) one or more of the events of default specified in subdivisions (c), (d), (e) and (f) of Section 2 of Article Seven shall have happened and shall be continuing, the Railroad Company shall be entitled to receive the dividends payable on the Pledged Stock (other than stock dividends), and the Trustee, on the written request of the Railroad Company shall deliver to the Railroad Company proper orders in its favor for such dividends on any of the Pledged Stock standing in the name of the Trustee, in order that the Railroad Company may receive payment thereof for its own use, and the Trustee shall on demand pay to the Railroad Company any such dividends which may be collected or received by the Trustee". (ICC Ex. 170, p. 23)

"Nothing herein contained shall prevent:

* * * * * * *

"(e) the creation of any mortgage or other lien on the properties of the New Orleans Company, or of any subsidiary company, or any thereof, or the issue of bonds or obligations secured by such mortgage or other lien, or by any mortgage or other lien now existing thereon." (ICC Ex. 170, pp. 24-25)

Said Indenture also contains the following provision:

"The Railroad Company will not do or perform, or voluntarily permit to be done or performed, any act or thing by which the validity or priority of this indenture and pledge hereunder of the Pledged Stock, as herein provided, can or may be in any way or manner impaired or impeached."

8. The fifteen companies of the Gulf Coast Lines System operated approximately 1,736 miles of railroad, the principal lines of which extended from the lower Rio Grande Valley (hereinafter called the "Valley") in Texas around the Gulf Coast to Anchorage and New Orleans, Louisiana. This mileage included a considerable number or branch or feeder lines. The New Orleans operated only about 11% of the total mileage. The Brownsville, which operated the line from Houston to Brownsville, Texas, is the most important railroad company in the group. Although the Brownsville operated about one-third of the Gulf Coast Lines mileage, it contributed from 63.6% to 84% of the income of the Gulf Coast Lines companies available for interest during the period 1925-1931 (Gr. Ex. 23, 24; Tr. 1014, 1105-6).

9. In the spring of 1924 when the arrangements for the purchase by the Missouri Pacific of the capital stock of the New Orleans were made, the railroad properties of the Gulf Coast Lines System were not in first class condition. Due to the war conditions which had prevailed during the period of Federal control, which was terminated in the year 1920, the railroad properties of the Gulf Coast Lines companies had not been adequately maintained. Although considerable sums had been expended for maintenance following the period of Federal control, and prior to June 2, 1924, there still remained on the last mentioned date a substantial accumulation of deferred maintenance (Tr. 909-911, 919-926, 933-945; Gr. Ex. 16, 17). With the acquisition of the capital stock of the New Orleans by the Missouri Pacific a substantial increase in the expenditures made by the Gulf Coast Lines for maintenance of roadway and equipment occurred (Gr. Ex. 16, 17). At the same time these companies also inaugurated an extensive improvement program. Of the $32,000,000 expended by the Gulf Coast Lines for additions and betterments during the fifteen-year period 1916-1931, approximately $22,000,000 was expended during the six years 1925-1930 (Tr. 1077; Gr. Ex. 18, 37). As a result of these maintenance and improvement programs, road and equipment of the Gulf Coast Lines were very substantially improved over the condition of said road and equipment at the beginning of the year 1925.

10. In the year 1909, the Brownsville or its predecessor extended its line of railroad into the lower Rio Grande Valley in Texas, at about which time it began to be developed as an important citrus and vegetable region (Tr.

958). During the period 1909-1931 the citrus and vegetable traffic of the Gulf Coast Lines became of increasing importance. Citrus and vegetables, which will hereinafter be referred to as "perishables", must be shipped in refrigerator cars (Tr. 963). The perishable traffic moves during the period from September to June in each year (Tr. 963). The greater portion of the perishables are shipped to St. Louis and the East (Tr. 960). Another and important part is shipped to Kansas City and points north and west of that city (Tr. 960). Prior to the year 1921 the Gulf Coast Lines had made various arrangements with connecting carriers for the handling of the perishable traffic from the Valley beyond the lines of the Gulf Coast Lines. None of these arrangements was satisfactory. Either the division allowed to the Gulf Coast Lines was too low or there was an inability to obtain the necessary supply of refrigerator cars (Tr. 961-969). In 1921 the Gulf Coast Lines entered into an arrangement with the Illinois Central Railroad Company for the handling of the perishable traffic which moved from the Valley to St. Louis and the East. This arrangement was considered by the independent management of the Gulf Coast Lines to be entirely satisfactory (Tr. 969). The schedules for the trains handling the perishable traffic between the Valley and St. Louis via Baton Rouge and the Illinois Central were 102 hours in 1924. The route by Baton Rouge involved ferrying of the trains across the Mississippi River at Anchorage, Louisiana. When control of the Gulf Coast Lines was acquired by the Missouri Pacific, the perishable traffic from the Valley began to move via Kinder, Louisiana, to St. Louis and the East (Tr. 977). During the period 1925-1932 the schedules for the trains handling the perishable traffic via Kinder were reduced on the dates shown below to the number of hours set opposite such dates, respectively:

January 1, 1925	97 hours
October 21, 1927	72 hours
October 30, 1929	64-½ hours
October 22, 1932	61-½ hours

There have been no reductions in these schedules since that date (Tr. 986-987).

11. In 1927 the Southern Pacific Company extended its line of railroad into the Valley. The Southern Pacific Company initially obtained about 20% of the perishable traffic moving out of the Valley by railroad. The Gulf Coast Lines have held the Southern Pacific Company to this ratio since that time. Without the aid of the Missouri Pacific, the Gulf Coast Lines could not have maintained their position against this competition (Tr. 933-934).

12. After the year 1927 a considerable amount of perishable traffic from the Valley began to move to Kansas City and beyond. The Southern Pacific Company and its connections have a shorter route to Kansas City than the Missouri Pacific System lines. The Missouri Pacific and its affiliates, the I-GN and The Texas & Pacific Railway Company, established schedules from Houston to Kansas City which enabled the Gulf Coast Lines to maintain their share of the perishable traffic moving to Kansas City and beyond. Without the aid of the Missouri Pacific, the Gulf Coast Lines would not have been able to meet this competition (Tr. 974-976).

13. The arrangements made between the Gulf Coast Lines and the Illinois Central allowed to the Gulf Coast Lines approximately 74% of the revenue derived from the vegetable traffic. When this traffic began to be delivered to the Missouri Pacific at Kinder, Louisiana, Mr. Baldwin, the President of the Missouri Pacific, directed Mr. J. A. Brown, the General Freight Agent and Traffic Manager of the Gulf Coast Lines, and Mr. Perkins, the Chief Traffic Officer of the Missouri Pacific, to work out the divisions of the revenue from the perishable traffic between the Gulf Coast Lines and the Missouri Pacific. They were instructed by Mr. Baldwin to make sure that the new arrangements would be liberal in favor of the Gulf Coast Lines (Tr. 977-978). These negotiations resulted in an arrangement which gave to the Gulf Coast Lines an advantage of about $5. per car of vegetables over the division which had theretofore been allowed to the Gulf Coast Lines under the arrangement with the Illinois Central (Tr. 979-980). In 1936, as a result of the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Southwestern Rate Divisions case, the savings to the Gulf Coast Lines as a result of delivering the perishable traffic to the Missouri Pacific at Kinder amounted to $32.63 per car on citrus and $7.82 per car on vegetables (Tr. 981-982).

14. American Refrigerator Transit Company (hereinafter called "ART") is controlled jointly by the Missouri Pacific and the Wabash Railroad Company. The ART owns and services refrigerator cars which are leased to railroad carriers (Tr. 989). Shortly after the Missouri Pacific acquired a controlling interest in the New Orleans, the ART made arrangements with the Gulf Coast Lines to supply the Gulf Coast Lines with refrigerator cars for the handling of the perishable traffic from the Valley. Although prior to that time the Gulf Coast Lines had experienced refrigerator car shortages, there were no such shortages after the aforesaid arrangements with the ART (Tr. 963-965, 968-969, 989). The ART also made a special arrangement with the Gulf Coast Lines whereby the stated refrigeration charged to the shipper accrued to the Gulf Coast Lines, the latter being obligated to pay the actual costs of icing of refrigerator cars and incidental charges. This resulted in a profit to the Gulf Coast Lines during the period 1924-1932 of $6,171,876 (Tr. 989-990).

15. A comparison of the interchange of freight traffic at Kinder and at Baton Rouge for the years 1922 to 1931 indicates that the delivery of the perishable traffic to the Missouri Pacific at Kinder in 1924 and thereafter did not result in any substantial reduction of the freight delivered to the Gulf Coast Lines at Baton Rouge. A comparison for the years 1922-1931 of the total carloadings for all United States Class I railroads with (1) total carloadings received by the Gulf Coast Lines from all railroads, (2) total carloadings received by the Gulf Coast Lines from the Missouri Pacific and the I-GN, and (3) total carloadings received by the Gulf Coast Lines from all roads other than Missouri Pacific and the I-GN, shows that in each of the years after 1924 the Gulf Coast Lines were in a relatively better position from a traffic stand point than the railroads of the United States generally. This comparison also shows that, although the Gulf Coast Lines received somewhat less traffic from non-System lines after 1924, it was more than made up by the receipts from the Missouri Pacific and the I-GN (Ex. 21 and 22).

16. During the period 1925-1932 the Missouri Pacific advertised the products of the Valley in various publications and sent exhibit cars throughout the United States for the purpose of exhibiting the products of the Valley (Tr. 998).

17. The improvement and expansion program referred to in Paragraph 3 hereof was financed by borrowing and by reinvestment of earnings. During the period 1917-1927 the Missouri Pacific paid no dividends (Tr. 1034, 1214). During that period approximately $49,000,000 available for dividends was put into the improvement program. The remainder of the cost of this program was financed through borrowing (Tr. 1034). As funds were needed by the Missouri Pacific for improvements, they were obtained by short term borrowings. It was not feasible to issue a few bonds each time that funds were needed. Instead the short term borrowings were permitted to accumulate to a point where they could be refunded by a bond issue large enough to be saleable (Tr. 1034-1035, 1035-1050; Gr. Ex. 26, 27 and 28). The same pattern was followed by the Gulf Coast Lines (Tr. 1034-1035). A typical Gulf Coast Lines' financing cycle ended in February 1928 (Tr. 1045). During that cycle $6,683,739 was spent by the Gulf Coast Lines for additions and betterments (Gr. Ex. 29, Tr. 1045). From time to time as funds were needed for these additions and betterments, the New Orleans obtained them by means of short term borrowings. After the short term borrowings had accumulated to approximately $4,500,000, an issue of first mortgage bonds of the New Orleans was sold to underwriters and the short term loans were refunded (Tr. 1040-42, 1045-50). The new cycle, which began in 1928, was interrupted by the depression. The advances which the Missouri Pacific had made to the New Orleans in this new cycle could not be refunded due to the fact that market conditions rendered it impossible to sell new securities (Tr. 1050, 1062-8).

18. During the period from March 1929 to February 1933, both inclusive, the Missouri Pacific advanced to the New Orleans the net sum, after deducting principal repayments, of $10,565,226.78 (Ck. Ex. 1, Gr. Ex. 2). All but $210,000 principal sum of these advances are represented by three promissory notes as follows: one dated April 15, 1932 in the sum of $400,000, the second dated January 27, 1933 in the sum of $2,498,500, and the third dated February 28, 1933 in the sum of $7,456,726.78 (ICC Ex. 227). The second and third of said notes are held by RFC as pledgee. The third of said notes was authorized by an order of the Commission made on or about February 25, 1933 pursuant to Section 20(a) of the Transportation Act (ICC Tr. 536). The decision of the Commission with respect to such authorization is reported in volume 189 of the Interstate Commerce Commission reports at page 600 (Abstract of Evidence before ICC Vol. 1, p. 224). Said advances fall into two categories: (1) those made during the period when dividends were being paid on the capital stock of the New Orleans (November 30, 1928-November 27-31), and (2) those made after that time and prior to the date of bankruptcy (December 28, 1931-March 31, 1933) (Tr. 1058-1060). The basic and underlying purpose of the advances made during the first of these two periods was to enable the Gulf Coast Lines to make additions and betterments to their properties (Tr. 1042-1064; ICC Tr. 531-534; ICC Ex. 227). The immediate purpose of the advances mentioned in the preceding sentence was to reimburse the treasury of the New Orleans for expenditures for additions and betterments. During this period the net cumulative amount of advances was $7,416,544. This compares with the cumulative net increase in the investment of the Gulf Coast Lines in road and equipment during the same period of $7,417,593 (Tr. 1059; Gr. Ex. 32). The second period, December 28, 1931-March 31, 1933, was one of deepening depression during which the Gulf Coast Lines sustained operating deficits. The advances made during this period were made for operating expenses and interest and sinking fund installments on first mortgage and equipment trust obligations of the New Orleans, all of which were charges prior to the collateral securing the Secured Serial Bonds. The net amount of advances made during this second period was $3,148,683 (Tr. 1060; Gr. Ex. 32).

19. Included among the advances made by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans during the period November 30, 1928 to November 27, 1931 were the advances shown in the table below. During the same period the New Orleans disbursed certain dividend payments in the amounts and on the dates shown in said table (Gr. Ex. 32).

20. In December 1932 the Missouri Pacific applied to the Commission for authority to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "RFC") and to pledge to the RFC, among other collateral, advances of $9,955,226.78 made by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans and advances of $2,486,000 made by the Missouri Pacific to the I-GN (189 ICC 286; ICC Ex. 800). With respect to these advances to the New Orleans and the I-GN, the Commission made the following findings:

indebtedness to the applicant by two of its controlled companies accumulated over a period of five years. All of these advances were used to pay for additions and betterments to the properties, except that during the last two years certain of the advances to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company were made to overcome operating deficits. In the case of both of the controlled companies the obligations to repay the advances lie between their first-mortgage bonds and their capital stock. In the case of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company they are senior as to the payment of interest on $17,000,000 of adjustment-mortgage bonds, but junior to that bond issue as to security." (189 ICC 286, 291; ICC Ex. 800)

The Commission authorized a further loan from the RFC to the Missouri Pacific of $2,500,000 and the pledge of collateral to secure the loans made by the RFC to the Missouri Pacific, which collateral included said $9,955,226.78 in principal sum of advances from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans. The New Orleans Notes so pledged with the RFC are in turn secured by $1,900,000 of First Mortgage Treasury bonds of the New Orleans.

21. Said further loan of $2,500,00 was made by the RFC to the Missouri Pacific and the latter pledged said $9,995,-226.78 principal sum of advances together with other collateral to secure its loans from the RFC. The aggregate amount of the loans now due and owing by the Missouri Pacific to the RFC and secured by said advances and other collateral is $23,134,800 together with interest thereon.

22. The Missouri Pacific was indebted to the Railroad Credit Corporation (hereinafter called the "RCC") in the principal sum of $2,072,317 as of December 31, 1942. The unpaid portion of this obligation, together with accrued interest thereon, is secured, subject to the prior lien of the RFC, by the pledge, among other collateral, of the collateral pledged to secure the loans made by the RFC to the Missouri Pacific.

23. With respect to the collateral pledged to secure the indebtedness owing by the Missouri Pacific to the RFC and the RCC, respectively, the Commission made the following findings (R. 20761-2):

> "It may be added that certain of the junior creditors also contend that the excess in value, if any, of collateral securing the Finance Corporation, Railroad Credit Corporation and bank loans also fall within the category of free assets. The value of this collateral is discussed hereinafter. The Railroad Credit Corporation has a second lien upon all collateral securing the Finance Corporation loans. Such of the collateral as has a market value is subject to wide fluctuations in price. The record does not warrant a finding of any excess value of the collateral securing these loans over the amount of the loans."

Said findings are hereby affirmed.

24. The RFC and the RCC are bona fide pledges for value of the collateral pledged to secure the indebtedness owing by the Missouri Pacific to them respectively. The record contains no proof tending to show that at the times when the $9,995,226.78 principal sum of advances from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans was pledged to secure the indebtedness mentioned in paragraphs 21 and 22 hereof the RFC or the RCC had any knowledge or notice of any of the acts, matters and things complained of in Comstock's objection 19.

25. During the period November 30, 1928 to February 1, 1933 interest was charged on all but a minor portion of the advances at the rates of 5%, 5½% and 6%, respectively (ICC Ex. 226; Tr. 1300). The record contains no evidence which tends to show that interest at the rates of 5%, 5½% and 6% during this period were other than the customary rates of interest usually charged for similar types of loans.

26. On August 29, 1933 the Missouri Pacific filed with A. T. Cole, as required by Order of this Court No. 19 (R. 131) a proof of claim (hereinafter referred to as the "Proof of Claim") in the sum of $10,565,226.78, being the net balance of the advances made by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans during the period March 1929 to February 1933, both inclusive (Ck. Ex. 1). This Proof of Claim was signed in the name of the Missouri Pacific by F. P. Johnson, its Vice President, although on August 29, 1933 the Trustees in Bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific had been duly appointed. Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Missouri Pacific, has duly adopted said Proof of Claim (Tr. 432-434).

27. The Proof of Claim is based only on advances made from March 1929 to February 1933, both inclusive. Advances from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans aggregating $800,000, made on November 30, 1928, December 30, 1928, January 31, 1929 and February 28, 1929, were repaid by the New Orleans prior to August 29, 1933 and were not included in the advances described in the Proof of Claim (Tr. 871-904; Gr. Ex. 2-15; ICC Ex. 226).

28. The Proof of Claim is based in part upon the following transaction:

Prior to October 31, 1932, the I-GN had advanced cash or delivered materials and supplies to the New Orleans and ten of its subsidiaries, for which as of that date the New Orleans and its subsidiaries were indebted in the sum of $1,261,009.84, including interest charged by the I-GN on such indebtedness. On the same date the I-GN was indebted to the Missouri Pacific in an amount in excess of $1,261,009.84. On October 31, 1932, the I-GN credited the New Orleans and said ten subsidiaries with payment of said sum of $1,261,009.84, the Missouri Pacific credited the I-GN with payment of a like amount of indebtedness owing by the I-GN to the Missouri Pacific, and the New Orleans obligated itself to the Missouri Pacific in a like amount. This transaction was accomplished by appropriate entries in the journals of the Gulf Coast Lines companies affected thereby, the I-GN and the Missouri Pacific (Tr. 874-882; Ck. Ex. 134).

Comstock has failed to show that the above described transaction adversely affected the New Orleans or any of its security holders.

29. The Proof of Claim is based in part upon the following transaction:

In or about March 1929 Missouri Improvement Company acquired in its name a tract of about 30 acres of land in Corpus Christi, Texas, at a cost of $109,179.60. The Missouri Improvement Company is a land title holding company and is a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific. On March 25, 1929 the Missouri Pacific advanced to the New Orleans the sum of $109,179.60 which was applied to the payment of the purchase price of said tract of land. The Missouri Improvement Company acquired said tract of land as trustee for the New Orleans and in February 1932 the Missouri Improvement Company executed an instrument declaring itself as such trustee. Prior to the date of said instrument Missouri Improvement Company had sold three parcels included in the aforesaid tract, one on February 15, 1930, another on February 12, 1931, and the third on November 18, 1931. $8,800 representing the purchase price of one of these parcels, was paid directly to the New Orleans and the New Orleans applied said payment to the reduction of its indebtedness with the Missouri Pacific. The promissory notes representing the purchase price of the other two tracts were made payable to the New Orleans and delivered to it (Tr. 882-885; Gr. Ex. 4).

The record contains no proof tending to show that the transaction described in this Paragraph 29 was in any way disadvantageous to the New Orleans or any of its security holders.

30. During the period June 2, 1924 to June 22, 1933 the Gulf Coast Lines made regular monthly and annual reports to the Commission. Said reports showed detailed information concerning the financial condition of the GCL. During said period the Bureau of Accounts of the Commission caused frequent and thorough audits of the books of the GCL to be made by the auditors of said Bureau.

31. During each of the years 1925 to 1931, inclusive the New Orleans declared dividends at the rate of 7% per annum upon its capital stock. All of said dividends were paid out of the earned surplus of the New Orleans or its net income after deducting all prior charges to income.

32. Consolidated earnings of the New Orleans and its Gulf Coast Lines subsidiaries for the period March 1, 1916 to December 31, 1931 amounted to $15,968,390 (Gr. Ex. 38, 40). All dividends declared by the New Orleans during the same period amounted to $13,649,941 (Gr. Ex. 40). The consolidated balance sheet of the Gulf Coast Lines as of August 31, 1931 showed total assets of $87,565,086.36, capital stock of $15,000,000, and a surplus of $7,978,780.60 (ICC Ex. 117).

33. The condition of road and equipment of the Gulf Coast Lines was substantially improved during the period 1925-1931 when compared with the condition of road and equipment of the Gulf Coast Lines prior to 1925. Similarly maintenance of railroad properties of the Gulf Coast Lines during the period 1925-1931 was substantially better than it had been during the period prior to 1925. During the period 1925-1931 the railroad of the Gulf Coast Lines was adequately maintained and was adequately supplied with equipment. Control of the Gulf Coast Lines by the Missouri Pacific resulted in substantially strengthening the competitive position of the Gulf Coast Lines and substantially improving and increasing the efficiency of the railroad properties of the Gulf Coast Lines. Upon all of the facts, the Court concludes that the control of the Gulf Coast Lines by the Missouri Pacific during the period January 1, 1925 to March 31, 1933 was beneficial to the Gulf Coast Lines and the security holders of the New Orleans and that the advantages derived by the Gulf Coast Lines and the security holders of the New Orleans from such control far outweigh the amount of the dividends paid by the New Orleans during said period. The advances in the amount of $10,565,227 made by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans from March 1929 to February 1933, both inclusive, were necessary and beneficial to the Gulf Coast Lines and the security holders of the New Orleans. The Missouri Pacific, its officers and directors acted in good faith in their dealings with the Gulf Coast Lines and with due regard to the rights of the New Orleans and its security holders.

34. These proceedings were commenced on March 31, 1933. Early in the year 1934 the trustees in bankruptcy of the debtors herein retained Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., a firm of auditors, to make an investigation of the financial affairs of the Missouri Pacific and its subsidiaries including the Gulf Coast Lines (Tr. 435-6; R. 1759-1764). Price, Waterhouse & Co. completed their audit and copies of it were filed with this Court and mailed to all parties who had appeared in the proceeding or their counsel (Tr. 434-6). This report included consolidated income statements and balance sheets and income statements and balance sheets for each of the Gulf Coast Lines Companies (Tr. 455-7). This report disclosed that as of the time of the commencement of these proceedings Missouri Pacific was the owner of approximately 93% of the capital stock of the New Orleans; the details of the capitalization of each of the Gulf Coast Lines Companies and the fact that the New Orleans had paid regular dividends at the rate of 7% per annum throughout the period 1925-1931 (Tr. 455-7; see also Price, Waterhouse report filed in these proceedings).

35. Pursuant to an order of this Court the Trustees retained special counsel for the purpose of studying the Price, Waterhouse reports and making an investigation to determine whether or not there were any irregularities in the administration of the affairs of the Missouri Pacific and its subsidiaries during the period prior to the commencement of these proceedings (R. 1759). During the course of the investigation of said special counsel, to wit, on July 8, 1935, a conference was held in St. Louis, Missouri, to consider the result of the investigation of said special counsel to that date. This conference had been called by Guy A. Thompson, one of the trustees in bankruptcy, and was attended by him and counsel for various mortgage trustees and protective committees interested in these proceedings. One of those present at said conference was one of the counsel who represented Comstock at the hearing before this Court on Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, although at the time of said conference said counsel did not represent any Secured Serial Bondholder. At the conclusion of said conference said Guy A. Thompson requested those present for any suggestions concerning any other matters which ought to be investigated. No suggestions having any bearing on the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections were ever received by the trustees in bankruptcy until said trustee received the letter referred to in paragraph 41 hereof (Tr. 445).

36. Subsequent to the date of said conference, and as a result of the investigation of special counsel to the trustee, an order was entered herein authorizing examinations under Section 21-a of the Bankruptcy Act (R. 2973). The trustee in bankruptcy received no suggestions from any interested party that said 21-a examinations should be directed toward any of the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections (Tr. 453-4).

37. In the year 1936 the trustee in bankruptcy filed a motion in these proceedings in which he reported that he had found no irregularities of the kind now complained of in the Comstock objection 19 and related objections (Tr. 448; R. 3383). Said motion suggested to this Court that the Commission be requested to furnish any information which it might have requiring further investigation. An order was entered upon said motion requesting the Commission's suggestions concerning any matters which might require further investigation (R. 3385). The Commission called attention to no matters requiring investigation (Tr. 449).

38. From time to time since the commencement of these proceedings at least seven representatives of various groups and individuals holding securities of the New Orleans have intervened in these proceedings before the Commission or before the Court. Of said representatives five have represented one or more Secured Serial bondholders or holders of Common Stock of the New Orleans.

39. The first Plan of Reorganization in these proceedings was the Missouri Pacific's original plan which was filed on October 21, 1935. The Commission's hearings on the Missouri Pacific's original plan and other plans of reorganization filed in these proceedings were commenced on February 4, 1936 and were conducted intermittently thereafter until September 30, 1937. During these hearings the Missouri Pacific and representatives of the New Orleans security holders put in evidence detailed information about the Gulf Coast lines and their financial affairs during the period prior to June 22, 1933. The Commission's report and order approving its first Plan of Reorganization was promulgated on or about January 10, 1940. Hearings on the Commission's first Plan were held before this Court in July and October, 1940. In July, 1941 this Court approved the first Plan (R. 14959). Appeals were taken from the order approving the Commission's first Plan. Said appeals were remanded and this Court returned the Plan to the Commission for further proceedings on July 29, 1943 (R. 1881). Further hearings were held before the Commission's Director of the Bureau of Finance and one of its examiners in October, 1943. Except as stated in paragraph 41 hereof, up to that time, no representative of any secured serial bondholder had asserted any claim having any connection with Comstock's objection 19 and related objections.

40. At said hearing in October, 1943 Comstock appeared by counsel. During the course of said hearing said counsel attempted to cross-examine a witness concerning certain matters related to Comstock's objection 19. Objections to such examination were sustained upon the ground that the examination had no relationship to the direct examination of the witness (R. 20841-2). Comstock made no attempt at said hearing to make said witness his own or to examine other witnesses concerning the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19.

41. On or about October 1, 1943 and a few days prior to the commencement of the hearing mentioned in paragraph 40 hereof Comstock's counsel wrote a letter to the trustee of the New Orleans demanding that said trustee object to the Proof of Claim. Comstock took no further action concerning the matters complained of in his objection 19 and related objections until November, 1944 at which time he filed a petition asking leave to object to the Proof of Claim. This Court denied said petition without prejudice on December 6, 1944. A similar petition had been filed by one Foley in July, 1944 and was denied (R. 20503). Comstock's objections to the Plan containing his objection 19 were filed in November, 1944.

42. The proponents of the Plan and other interested parties have been seriously prejudiced by failure to bring to the attention of the Court or of the Trustee of the New Orleans the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 in due time. Some of the transactions complained of in Comstock's objection 19 occurred more than twenty years ago. Many of the witnesses who had personal knowledge of and familiarity with some or all of the important facts involved in said objection 19 are now dead. Some of these witnesses are:

H. R. Safford, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the Gulf Coast Lines from December 1924 to the date of the institution of these proceedings, who died on April 10, 1943;

F. P. Johnson, Auditor of the Missouri Pacific and Vice President of the New Orleans and for a number of years during the period 1925-31 the Chief Financial Officer of the Missouri Pacific System, who died on April 11, 1938;

Frank Andrews, a member of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans and its general counsel, who died on December 8, 1936;

O. P. Van Sweringen, Chairman of the Board of the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans in the latter part of the period 1925-1933, who died on November 23, 1936;

L. A. David, General Superintendent of the Missouri Pacific and Assistant General Manager of the Gulf Coast Lines, who died on January 11, 1939;

E. J. White, Vice President and General Solicitor of the Missouri Pacific, who died on December 29, 1935. (Affidavit of Thos. T. Bailey filed herein on January 19, 1945.)

43. Much time and effort has been expended by the parties to these proceedings, the Commission and this Court in an effort to accomplish the reorganization of the debtors in these proceedings.

44. Guy A. Thompson, the trustee in bankruptcy, and his counsel have afforded to Comstock and his counsel every reasonable facility for obtaining any available information from the records, officers and employees of the trustee pertaining to the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19. The witness, Delaney, an accountant employed by Comstock, was permitted to go to the offices of the Missouri Pacific in St. Louis and the offices of the Gulf Coast Lines in Houston, Texas, and there to examine the available books of account and other records requested by said Delaney. During the course of the hearings before this Court in January and March, 1945 the trustee in bankruptcy, his counsel and his officers and employees made available to Comstock all such information as Comstock reasonably requested.

45. The record contains no evidence tending to show that Guy A. Thompson has or had any personal interest which would in any way conflict with his duties as trustee of any of the debtors in these proceedings. Said trustee has performed his duties as trustee of said debtors, in so far as they relate to the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, with fidelity, diligence and dispatch. The investigation of the Gulf Coast Lines and the Missouri Pacific made by the said trustee was reasonable and adequate.

46. Comstock is the holder and owner of ten thousand dollars face value of Secured Serial Bonds which he purchased in the latter part of 1942 at a price of about 10% of their face value (ICC Tr. 5515, 5520).

47. The foregoing findings shall be taken and deemed to be findings of fact, and in addition, to the extent appropriate, conclusions of law.

Conclusions of Law.

1. This Court has jurisdiction of the subject matter of these proceedings and of the debtors and their properties, their creditors and stockholders and of those having claims against or interests in the debtors or any of them or their respective properties.

2. On the merits, Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent on said objection 19 (said related objections being Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13 and 26) should be overruled and his claim for equitable treatment based thereon should be denied.

3. RFC is a bona fide pledgee for value of the two promissory notes of the New Orleans described in the Proof of Claim in the principal sums of $2,498,500 and $7,456,726.78, respectively, which notes represent an aggregate of $9,955,226.78 principal sum of the advances referred to in the Proof of Claim. Said notes in the hands of RFC as such pledgee, together with the interest thereon, are valid, binding and enforceable obligations of the New Orleans payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of the New Orleans after payment of all claims ranking in priority thereto.

4. RCC is a bona fide pledgee for value of the two promissory notes mentioned in paragraph 3 of these Conclusions of Law, subject however to the prior lien of RFC thereon. Subject to said prior lien said two notes in the hands of RCC as pledgee, together with the interest thereon, are valid, binding and enforceable obligations of the New Orleans payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of the New Orleans after payment of all claims ranking in priority thereto.

5. The trustee in bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific is a bona fide holder for value of the promissory note of the

New Orleans described in the Proof of Claim in the principal sum of $400,000, representing a like principal sum of advances referred to in the Proof of Claim. Said note is a valid, binding and enforceable obligation of the New Orleans in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy of Missouri Pacific payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of the New Orleans after payment of all claims ranking in priority thereto.

6. The trustee in bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific is a bona fide holder for value of the remaining $210,000 of advances referred to in the Proof of Claim. Said advances, together with interest thereon, are due and owing by the New Orleans and are payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of the New Orleans to the trustee in bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific after payment of all claims ranking in priority thereto.

7. The claims represented by the promissory notes and advances referred to in paragraphs 3, 4, 5 and 6 of these Conclusions of Law are senior to and take priority over all of the shares of Capital Stock of the New Orleans, including such shares of said stock as are pledged to secure the Secured Serial Bonds.

8. The trustee in bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific has duly and validly adopted as his own the Proof of Claim. The Proof of Claim should be allowed in the sum of $10,565,226.78, together with interest thereon as follows:

Upon the sum of $2,498,500 at the rate of 5½% per annum from January 27, 1933;

Upon the sum of $7,456,726.78 at the rate of 5½% per annum from February 28, 1933;

Upon the sum of $400,000 at the rate of 6% per annum from April 15, 1932; and

Upon the sum of $210,000 at the rate of 6% per annum from February 1, 1933.

9. In allocating new securities to the RFC and the RCC under the Plan the Commission properly based said allocations in part upon the two promissory notes mentioned in paragraph 3 of these Conclusions of Law. The Commission properly excluded the claim represented by said two promissory notes in determining its allocation of new securities under the Plan to all other holders of claims against or interests in the debtors.

10. In allocating new securities under the Plan to the holders of Capital Stock of the New Orleans and to the holders of Secured Serial Bonds as pledgees of Capital Stock of the New Orleans the Commission properly excluded the claim represented by the note mentioned in paragraph 5 of these Conclusions of Law and the claim represented by the advances mentioned in paragraph 6 of these Conclusions of Law. In allocating new securities under the Plan to the unsecured creditors of the Missouri Pacific, including the holders of Secured Serial Bonds, to the extent that their claims are not satisfied by the pledged Capital Stock of the New Orleans, the Commission properly based said allocation in part upon the claims represented by the note and advances mentioned in paragraphs 5 and 6 of these Conclusions of Law.

11. In its dealings with the New Orleans during the period from January 9, 1925 to June 22, 1933 the Missouri Pacific acted in good faith and with due regard to its obligations, legal and equitable, to the New Orleans and its security holders.

12. The claims and interests of the holders of the Capital Stock of the New Orleans, including the holders of Secured Serial Bonds to the extent that they are secured by the pledge of said Capital Stock, are junior to the claims represented by the $10,355,226.78 of promissory notes of the New Orleans and the $210,000 of advances to the New Orleans mentioned in paragraphs 3, 4, 5 and 6 of these Conclusions of Law and said holders are not entitled to have said notes and advances or any of them subordinated to their said claims and interests. Such subordination would unjustly enrich the holders of the Capital Stock of the New Orleans and the holders of the Secured Serial Bonds.

13. Upon all the evidence the Court concludes that the effect of control by the Missouri Pacific of the Gulf Coast Lines was beneficial and advantageous to the New Orleans and the holders and pledgees of its securities.

14. All dividends declared and paid by the New Orleans during the years 1925 to 1931, inclusive, were paid either out of the earned surplus of the New Orleans available for dividends or out of the net income of the New Orleans after payment of all prior charges against income.

15. Comstock's objection 19 and related objections to the extent that they are dependent upon said objection 19 are not timely. Comstock and all other holders of Secured Serial Bonds are barred by laches from asserting Comstock's objection 19 and related objections to the extent that they are dependent upon said objection 19 or any other objections similar thereto.

16. Because of his failure to afford the Commission in accordance with the rules of the Commission an opportunity to consider the matters set forth in his objection 19 Comstock is not entitled to have a determination of said matters by this Court.

17. The trustees in bankruptcy of the Gulf Coast Lines and of the Missouri Pacific have performed their obligations as such trustees with fidelity, diligence and dispatch and their investigation to determine whether or not there had been any irregularities, fraud or misconduct in the administration of the affairs of said debtors prior to June 22, 1933 was reasonable and adequate and in conformity with their duties as such trustees.

18. The Plan

(a) is fair and equitable,

(b) affords due recognition to the rights of each class of creditors and stockholders,

(c) does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders, and

(d) will conform to the requirements of the law of the land regarding the participation of the various classes of creditors and stockholders, in so far as it deals with the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent on said objection 19.

Wherefore, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that

I.

All findings of fact and conclusions of law hereinbefore set out shall be considered as incorporated in this order and decree.

II.

Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent on said objection 19 (said related objections being Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13 and 26), are overruled and his claims for equitable treatment based thereon are denied.

III.

The Clerk of this Court shall send forthwith to the Interstate Commerce Commission a certified copy of the opinion of this Court, dated December 21, 1945, as modified by the orders of this Court entered herein on December 28, 1945 and January 8, 1946, and a certified copy of this order and decree.

January 22nd, 1946.

GEO. H. MOORE,
Judge, United States District Court.

(Petition No. 2888 of Andrew W. Comstock for Leave to Appeal from Order No. 2604-A in the Name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company.)

(Filed February 13, 1946.)

In the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the District Court of the United States, for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri:

The petition of Andrew W. Comstock, residing at Evanston, Illinois, on his own behalf and on behalf of fourteen other holders of at least $900,000.00 principal amount of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds, for whom petitioner is duly authorized to file this petition, and on behalf of all other owners and holders of said Bonds, respectfully represents on information and belief:

1. This petition is submitted upon the proceedings heretofore had in the above entitled proceedings with respect to the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and the estate thereof (hereinafter referred to as the "MOP claim") and upon all the documents filed in this Court pertaining to said claim.

2. Petitions were heretofore addressed to this Court respectively requesting, among other things, orders (1) disallowing and expunging the MOP claim, and (2) granting leave to file objections, either in the name of petitioner or in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, to the MOP claim. Both petitions were denied by orders of the Court, the latter petition having been denied "without prejudice".

3. Petitioner heretofore filed objections to the MOP claim which were included among his objections to the Plan of Reorganization certified to this Court by the Interstate Commerce Commission on or about October 9, 1944. Thereafter, petitioner applied to this Court for an order continuing the hearings on said plan so as to permit the separate trial of the issues relating to the said MOP claim, but this Court denied the application.

4. Petitioner appealed from the orders of the Court denying leave to file objections, as aforesaid, to the MOP claim, and denying the application for a separate trial of the MOP claim. On January 6, 1945, petitioner applied to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit for an order staying the hearings on the Plan pending the determination of the aforementioned appeals. During the course of colloquy between said Court and counsel, one or more of the judges orally stated that the District Court had ample authority to regulate the course of proceedings so as to permit the fullest possible hearing on the merits of the MOP claim. By an order of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, dated January 6, 1945, the said application for a stay was denied. Subsequently, after the commencement of hearings on the MOP claim, petitioner discontinued the aforementioned appeals.

5. After the presentation of evidence on behalf of petitioner in opposition to the MOP claim, this Court entered an order numbered 2707 separating the hearings with regard to the MOP claim from the hearings with regard to the Plan and separate orders were recently entered approving the Plan and overruling petitioner's objections to the MOP claim. Petitioner intends to file notices of appeal from each of said orders.

6. Petitioner is informed by counsel that he is entitled to appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit from each of said orders, and from each and every part thereof, as a matter of right. Petitioner is further advised by counsel, however, that it may be advisable at this stage of the proceedings to seek to obviate any possible technical objections to the procedure pursued by petitioner in seeking a full review on appeal of the merits of the issues presented by said appeals. Should this Court consider that petitioner's right to appeal from said order No. 2604-A is in any doubt whatsoever, it is respectfully submitted that this Court grant an order permitting petitioner, in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, to appeal from said order. It is respectfully submitted that review by the Circuit Court of Appeals was contemplated by Congress in the enactment of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as essential to the protection of all persons interested in the reorganization of railroads.

7. At no time during the course of these reorganization proceedings has there been a trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company who independently or otherwise investigated the validity of the MOP claim. On the contrary, as this Court has found in its order No. 2604-A, which, among other things, allowed the MOP claim, the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company stated that he approved the MOP claim. At no time during these proceedings has the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company had the protection and supervision of an independent trustee. The Trustee, Guy A. Thompson, by virtue of his position as Trustee of the claimant and defendant estates finds himself necessarily in a position of conflicting trusts. There is, therefore, no person other than petitioner who is protecting the interests of the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and the holders of the said 5¼% Secured Bonds.

Wherefore, this application is made for leave to appeal, in the name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, from the order, judgment and decree of this Court No. 2604-A, which, among other things, overruled petitioner's objections with regard to said claim; to take any and all action necessary or proper in the successful prosecution of said appeal; and for such other and different relief as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Petitioner.

(Statement of Points to be relied upon on appeals of Andrew W. Comstock, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company by Andrew W. Comstock, and Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company by Andrew W. Comstock from Order No. 2604-A.)

(Filed May 13, 1946.)

In the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Debtor	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935

The appellant, Andrew W. Comstock; the appellant New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, by Andrew W. Comstock; and the Appellant, Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, by Andrew W. Comstock, serve a statement of the points on which they intend to rely on their separate, but related, appeals from Order No. 2604-A, dated and filed herein on the 22nd day of January, 1946, and entitled "Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Order Overruling Comstock's Objection 19 and Related Objections," to-wit:

1. The Court erred in making the said order.

2. The Court erred in holding that, insofar as it deals with the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections to the extent dependent upon said objection 19, the Plan is

(a) fair and equitable, or

(b) affords due recognition to the rights of each class of creditors and stockholders, or

(c) does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders, or

(d) will conform to the requirements of the law of the land regarding the participation of the various classes of creditors and stockholders.

3. The Court erred in overruling Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, and in denying his claim for equitable treatment based thereon.

4. The Court erred in holding that the RFC and RCC are bona fide pledgees for value of the promissory notes of NOTM described in the proof of claim in the principal sums of $2,498,500 and $7,456,726.78 and in holding that such notes in the hands of RFC, as pledgee, or subject to the prior lien of the RFC in the hands of RCC, as pledgee, together with the interest thereon, are valid, binding and enforceable obligations of NOTM payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of NOTM.

5. The Court erred in holding that the trustee in bankruptcy of MOP is a bona fide holder for value of a promissory note of NOTM described in the proof of claim in the principal sum of $400,000, and in holding that said note is a valid, binding or enforceable obligation of NOTM in the hands of the trustee of MOP, payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of NOTM.

6. The Court erred in holding that the trustee in bankruptcy of MOP is a bona fide holder for value "of the remaining $210,000 of advances referred to in the proof of claim."

7. The Court erred in holding that "said advances, together with interest thereon, are due and owing by NOTM, and are payable out of the assets of the trustee in bankruptcy of NOTM to the trustee in bankruptcy of MOP.

8. The Court erred in holding that the promissory notes and other advances mentioned in the proof of claim "are senior to and take priority over all the shares of capital stock of the New Orleans, including such shares of said stock as are pledged to secure the Secured Serial Bonds."

9. The Court erred in holding that the trustee in bankruptcy of MOP has duly and validly adopted as his own the proof of claim.

10. The Court erred in holding that the proof of claim should be allowed in the sum of $10,565,226.78, together with interest thereon.

11. The Court erred in holding that the proof of claim should be allowed in any amount.

12. The Court ered in holding that in allocating new securities to the RFC and the RCC under the Plan, the Commission properly based said allocation in part upon the notes from NOTM to MOP for $2,498,500, and $7,456,726.78 included in said proof of claim.

13. The Court erred in holding that in allocating new securities to the unsecured MOP creditors, including the holders of Secured Serial Bonds to the extent their claims are not satisfied by the pledged NOTM stock, the Commission properly based said allocation in part upon the $400,000. note from NOTM to MOP and the $210,000. "advances" from MOP to NOTM, included in said proof of claim.

14. The Court erred in holding that MOP acted in good faith or with due regard to its obligations, legal or equitable, to NOTM and its security holders with respect to its dealings with NOTM from January 9, 1925 to June 22, 1933.

15. The Court erred in failing to hold that MOP did not act in good faith and that MOP acted in breach of its fiduciary relationships to NOTM and to NOTM security holders and to MOP security holders, whose holdings were secured by NOTM stock with respect to its dealings with NOTM from January 9, 1925 to June 22, 1933.

16. The Court erred in holding that the claims and interests of the holders of NOTM stock, including the holders of Secured Serial Bonds to the extent that they are secured by NOTM stock, are junior to the notes and "advances" included in the proof of claim, and that such holders are not entitled to have said notes and "advances" subordinated to their claims, and in further holding that such subordination would unjustly enrich the holders of NOTM stock and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

17. The Court erred in failing to hold that the claims of the holders of NOTM and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds to the extent secured by NOTM stock are senior to the said notes and "advances".

18. The Court erred in holding that the MOP control of GCL was benficial and advantageous to NOTM.

19. The Court erred in failing to hold that MOP control of GCL was a great detriment and highly disadvantageous to NOTM, and that such control was exercised by MOP in a manner in breach of MOP's fiduciary relationships to GCL and NOTM.

20. The Court erred in holding that all NOTM dividends from 1925 to 1931 were paid either out of earned surplus of NOTM available for dividends, or out of net income of NOTM after payment of all prior charges.

21. The Court erred in failing to hold that each and every dividend declared and paid by NOTM during 1925 to 1931 was illegally paid out of capital of NOTM.

22. The Court erred in holding that Comstock's objection 19 and related objections to the extent dependent upon said objection 19 are not timely, and that Comstock and all other holders of Secured Serial Bonds are barred by laches.

23. The Court erred in failing to hold that Comstock's objection 19 and related objections to the extent dependent upon said objection 19 are timely, and that neither Comstock nor Secured Serial Bond holders are barred from asserting them.

24. The Court erred in holding that Comstock is not entitled to have a determination of the matters set forth in objection 19 because of his alleged failure to afford the Commission an opportunity to consider the matters set forth in objection 19.

25. The Court erred in failing to hold that Comstock is entitled to have a determination by the Court of the matters set forth in objection 19, and that Comstock did afford the Commission an opportunity to consider the matters set forth in objection 19.

26. The Court erred in holding that the trustees in bankruptcy of GCL and MOP have performed their obligations as such trustees with fidelity or diligence or dispatch, and that their investigation to determine the existence of irregularities or fraud or misconduct in the administration of GCL and MOP prior to June 22, 1933 was reasonable or adequate or in conformity with their duties as trustees.

27. The Court erred in failing to hold that none of the trustees in bankruptcy of GCL and MOP have performed their obligations as such trustees with fidelity or diligence or dispatch, and in failing to hold that their investigation to determine the existence of irregularities or fraud or misconduct in the administration of GCL and MOP prior to June 22, 1933 was not reasonable or adequate or in conformity with their duties as trustees.

28. The Court erred in finding that NOTM and its subsidiaries (referred to as the "Gulf Coast Lines" in the Findings of the Court) were at all times mentioned in the findings considered as a unit in the financing of said companies.

29. The Court erred in finding that the record contains no evidence tending to show that the acquisition by NOTM during 1925-1927 of seven railroads (including the San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad, Sugar Land Railway Company, San Antonio Southern Railway Company) was disadvantageous to NOTM and its security holders.

30. The Court erred in failing to find that the acquisition by NOTM during 1925-1927 of said seven railroads was disadvantageous to NOTM, NOTM security holders, and to the holders of securities supported by NOTM stock or assets.

31. The Court erred in failing to find that MOP, as part of the transaction whereby it acquired control of NOTM in 1924, authorized and consented to the payment of dividends by NOTM out of capital in that year.

32. The Court erred in failing to find that under the terms of the indenture, pursuant to which the Secured Serial Bonds were issued, MOP undertook to observe the duties of a fiduciary with respect to the Secured Serial Bonds.

33. The Court erred in failing to find that the acquisition of branch or feeder lines by NOTM during 1925-1927 was made for the benefit of MOP and IGN and not for the benefit of NOTM.

34. The Court erred in failing to find that NOTM acquired stock of IGN for the benefit of MOP and not of NOTM.

35. The Court erred in failing to find that one of the principal reasons for the acquisition of control of NOTM by MOP was the desire of MOP to obtain control of IGN.

36. The Court erred in finding that without the aid of MOP, NOTM and its subsidiaries could neither have maintained their competitive position with respect to other railroads, nor have been able to meet the competition of other railroads in the Rio Grande Valley region in Texas.

37. The Court erred in finding that the loss of traffic by NOTM and its subsidiaries in consequence of MOP control was more than offset by traffic received from MOP and IGN as a result of MOP control.

38. The Court erred in failing to find that between 1925 and 1933 MOP wrongfully diverted or caused to be diverted from the lines of NOTM and its subsidiaries to the lines of MOP substantial amounts of profitable traffic originating on the lines of NOTM and its subsidiaries, which traffic should have moved over the lines of the latter.

39. The Court erred in finding that improvements and expansion of NOTM and its subsidiaries was financed by the reinvestment of earnings.

40. The Court erred in failing to find that the bonded indebtedness of NOTM increased by $13,600,000. from 1924 to 1933, and that such increase was largely due in the expansion program of NOTM dictated by MOP for the acquisition of properties to obtain traffic for MOP rather than NOTM.

41. The Court erred in failing to find that the financing of NOTM and subsidiaries, improvements and expansion, solely through borrowing by NOTM, was improper and illegal and a fraud upon the rights of the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

42. The Court erred in finding that NOTM borrowings from MOP were made for the purpose of improvements, expansion or additions and betterments on the part of NOTM or its subsidiaries.

43. The Court erred in finding that as of February, 1933, the net advances by MOP to NOTM aggregated $10,565,226.78.

44. The Court erred in finding that "the basic and underlying purpose of the advances" from November 1928 to November 1931 was to enable NOTM and subsidiaries to make additions and betterments, and that "the immediate purpose of the advances * * * was to reimburse the treasury of the New Orleans for expenditures for additions and betterments."

45. The Court erred in finding that the net aggregate advances by MOP to NOTM from November 30, 1928, to November 27, 1931, was $7,416,544.

46. The Court erred in finding that advances by MOP to NOTM from December 28, 1931, to March 31, 1933, were made to meet NOTM operating expenses, mortgage interest and sinking fund obligations and equipment trust obligations.

47. The Court erred in finding that the net aggregate advances by MOP to NOTM from December 28, 1931 to March 31, 1933 was $3,148,683.

48. The Court erred in failing to find that advances by MOP to NOTM from November 30, 1928 to November 27, 1931, were made for the purpose of furnishing NOTM with cash for the payment of dividends by NOTM to MOP.

49. The Court erred in failing to find at the time of dividend payments from NOTM to MOP from November 30, 1928 to November 27, 1931, that NOTM did not have funds available for such payments.

50. The Court erred in failing to find that the "dividends" from NOTM to MOP from 1928 to 1931 were mere book entries as a result of simultaneous "advances" by MOP to NOTM in substantially the same amounts as the "dividends" from NOTM to MOP, and that both the "dividends" and the "advances" should be disregarded.

51. The Court erred in failing to find that the Commission finding that the advances from MOP to NOTM and IGN "were used to pay for additions and betterments" and to overcome NOTM "operating deficits" was erroneous.

52. The Court erred in its finding which affirmed the finding of the Commission that the record before the Commission did not warrant a finding of any excess value with respect to the collateral securing the loans to MOP from RFC and RCC.

53. The Court erred in finding that RFC and the RCC are bona fide pledgees for value of NOTM notes or bonds delivered by MOP to RFC and RCC.

54. The Court erred in making any finding with respect to whether RFC and RCC are bona fide pledgees of NOTM notes or bonds delivered by MOP to RFC and RCC for value.

55. The Court erred in finding that MOP charged NOTM "customary rates of interest" during the period November 30, 1928 to February 1, 1933.

56. The Court erred in failing to find that at various times during the aforesaid period MOP charged no interest upon loans to subsidiaries other than NOTM.

57. The Court erred in failing to find that interest rates charged by MOP to NOTM were made by MOP without any regard to the interests or needs of NOTM, its security holders or the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

58. The Court erred in finding that the MOP proof of claim against NOTM was filed on August 29, 1933, "as required by order of this Court No. 19."

59. The Court erred in finding that said proof of claim in the sum of $10,565,226.78 was for the net balance of advances made by MOP to NOTM.

60. The Court erred in failing to find that the wrongful waste of the assets of NOTM by MOP for the benefit of MOP have caused financial loss to NOTM and its subsidfaries in excess of any claim filed against it by MOP, including any interest thereon.

61. The Court erred in failing to find that repayments by NOTM to MOP in the amount of $2,289,000. were arbitrarily allocated by MOP as it chose between principal and interest, and that MOP should not be permitted as a result of its wrongful domination of NOTM to fail to apply repayments of over $1,000,000. in reduction of principal, instead of interest.

62. The Court erred in finding that said proof of claim has been duly adopted by Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of Missouri Pacific.

63. The Court erred in failing to find that Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of NOTM should have filed objections to the said proof of claim.

64. The Court erred in finding that said proof of claim is based only on advances made from March 1929 to February 1933.

65. The Court erred in finding that prior to October 31, 1932, both NOTM, and its several subsidiaries were indebted to IGN in the sum of $1,261,009.84, or were indebted to IGN in any sum.

66. The Court erred in failing to find the respective debts purportedly owed to IGN by several subsidiaries of NOTM, as appears upon the books of said subsidiaries and of IGN.

67. The Court erred in finding that NOTM obligated itself to pay to MOP the indebtedness of IGN to MOP, or that NOTM received any consideration whatever for its assumption of IGN's indebtedness to MOP.

68. The Court erred in finding that Comstock failed to show that NOTM's assumption of IGN's indebtedness to MOP adversely affected NOTM, or its security holders.

69. The Court erred in failing to find that NOTM's assumption of IGN's indebtedness to MOP adversely affected the holders of Secured Serial Bonds and that it was part of a fraudulent scheme on the part of MOP to the detriment of the holders of the Secured Serial Bonds.

70. The Court erred in finding that Missouri Improvement Co. acquired land in Corpus Christi, Texas, in 1929 for the benefit of or as trustee of NOTM.

71. The Court erred in failing to find that the loss of Missouri Improvement Co. in connection with the aforesaid purchase was improperly and illegally transferred to NOTM.

72. The Court erred in finding that the record contains no proof tending to show that the said purchase and consequent transfer of loss to NOTM was disadvantageous to NOTM, its security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

73. The Court erred in finding that the monthly and annual reports by NOTM, and its subsidiaries, to the Commission disclosed the financial condition of NOTM and its subsidiaries.

74. The Court erred in failing to find that the Commission criticized MOP and NOTM for engaging in improper accounting practices and making incorrect financial reports to the Commission.

75. The Court erred in failing to find that full information on the transactions between MOP, NOTM, and NOTM subsidiaries was not before the Commission whenever it may have acted with respect to those transactions, as a result of the wrongful acts of the officers of MOP.

76. The Court erred in finding that all of the dividends paid by NOTM during the years 1925 to 1931, inclusive, were paid out of earned surplus or net income of NOTM.

77. The Court erred in failing to find that from 1924 to 1933, inclusive, NOTM at all times had a capital deficit.

78. The Court erred in failing to find that the surplus of NOTM was illegally written up by almost $3,000,000.

during 1924, and that such illegal write-up was larger than the largest sum carried as NOTM's surplus in any year from 1924 to 1932.

79. The Court erred in failing to find that even on the accounts maintained by NOTM which were improperly stated to show as high an income as possible, NOTM's net income during 1926-1931 was only $90,000, while dividends declared and paid during the same period aggregated $6,200,000, of which MOP received $5,500,000.

80. The Court erred in failing to find that "family line" bills due to NOTM from its subsidiaries were wrongfully carried on the NOTM balance sheet at full face value although such bills had not been paid for years, and the aggregate was steadily increasing.

81. The Court erred in failing to find that the financial condition of NOTM, including its capital and operating deficits, did not warrant the payment of dividends by NOTM.

82. The Court erred in considering the earnings of NOTM, and its subsidiaries, on a consolidated basis in relation to the dividends paid to NOTM for the period March 1, 1916 to December 31, 1931.

83. The Court erred in failing to find that the officers and counsel of NOTM, nominees of MOP, recognized that NOTM dividends should be justified by the earnings of NOTM alone, apart from the earnings of NOTM subsidiaries.

84. The Court erred in finding that NOTM, and its subsidiaries, had, on a consolidated basis, as of August 31, 1931, assets of $87,565,086.36 and surplus of $7,978,780.60.

85. The Court erred in failing to find that the dividends declared by Brownsville, 1926 to 1931 inclusive, were improperly and illegally declared and paid.

86. The Court erred in failing to find that the directors of MOP caused the Brownsville in 1931 illegally to declare dividends of about 840%, of which only one-quarter were actually paid to NOTM and the remainder of which has not yet been paid, and that such extraordinary dividends were declared to permit a dividend by NOTM to MOP.

87. The Court erred in failing to find that during 1925-1932, Brownsville was forced to pay dividends to NOTM so that NOTM would be better able to pay dividends to MOP, and that Brownsville was able to pay dividends to NOTM during 1925-1932, only by failing to pay its indebtedness to NOTM for necessary operating expenses which increased by over $7,500,000. in that period.

88. The Court erred in finding that during 1925-1931, the railroad of NOTM and its subsidiaries was adequately maintained and equipped.

89. The Court erred in failing to find that the maintenance and operations of NOTM, and its subsidiaries, were subordinated to the insistent demands of MOP for the payment of dividends by NOTM.

90. The Court erred in finding that control of NOTM and its subsidiaries by MOP strengthened the competitive position of NOTM and its subsidiaries and improved the efficiency of their properties.

91. The Court erred in finding that control of NOTM and its subsidiaries by MOP, during the period January 1, 1925 to March 31, 1933, was beneficial to NOTM, its subsidiaries and security holders, and that the advantages derived by NOTM, its subsidiaries and security holders, from such control exceed the amount of dividends paid by NOTM during that period.

92. The Court erred in failing to find that the notes and "advances" included in the proof of claim would not have been made if NOTM had had the benefit of independent management.

93. The Court erred in failing to find that control of NOTM and its subsidiaries by MOP from 1924 to 1933, inclusive, were to the serious detriment of NOTM, its subsidiaries, security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

94. The Court erred in failing to find that NOTM after the acquisition of control by MOP had been exploited by MOP solely for the purpose of MOP without regard to the needs of NOTM or of the holders of securities supported by NOTM stock or assets.

95. The Court erred in failing to find that to present an appearance of having earned profits, MOP required NOTM and its subsidiaries to adopt policies detrimental to the interests of NOTM, including gross neglect of road-beds and equipment; discharge of employees essential to maintenance; non-accrual of necessary sums representing depreciation and obsolescence; understatement of operating expenses; overstatement of income; neglect of repairs; deference of maintenance; and postponement of improvements.

96. The Court erred in failing to find that MOP charged rentals to NOTM which were excessive of an average of $235,000. annually, dictated an allocation of joint traffic expenses which was unfair to NOTM at an average of $125,000. annually; and required the purchase by NOTM of equipment for the use of MOP.

97. The Court erred in failing to find that to overstate the income of NOTM and its surplus in order to permit the payment of dividends, MOP caused NOTM to keep improper records and books of account so as to conceal the true condition of the finances and affairs of NOTM; and further caused NOTM to violate Commission regulations on accounting.

98. The Court erred in failing to find that MOP caused NOTM to bear an unfair and disproportionate amount of the expenses of MOP.

99. The Court erred in finding that the "advances" by MOP to NOTM from March, 1929, to February, 1933, were necessary or beneficial to NOTM, its subsidiaries or security holders.

100. The Court erred in failing to find that the so-called advances by MOP to NOTM from March, 1929, to February, 1933, were to the detriment of and in fraud of the rights of NOTM, its subsidiaries, its security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds, and were made for the purpose of MOP's interest in conflict with those of NOTM, its subsidiaries, security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds, and in breach of MOP's fiduciary obligations to NOTM, its subsidiaries, security holders and holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

101. The Court erred in finding that MOP, its officers and directors, acted in good faith in their dealings with NOTM and its subsidiaries, and with regard to the rights of NOTM and its security holders.

102. The Court erred in failing to find that MOP, its officers and directors, in their dealings with NOTM and its subsidiaries acted without regard to NOTM, its security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds.

103. The Court erred in finding that the Price, Waterhouse & Co. report disclosed the details of the capitalization of NOTM and each of its subsidiaries.

104. The Court erred in failing to find that NOTM, its security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds, have not received the protection of an actively functioning and independent trustee to which they are entitled under the National Bankruptcy Act as amended.

105. The Court erred in failing to find that the abuses occurring during the period of domination of NOTM by MOP were brought to the attention of the trustee in bankruptcy of NOTM, and were set forth in 1937 in the petition seeking the removal of Guy A. Thompson, as trustee of NOTM, filed by the Irving Trust Company, as trustee of NOTM, First Mortgage and Income Bonds and by the NOTM Committee.

106. The Court erred in finding that no suggestions having any bearing on the matters complained of in Com-stock's objection 19 and related objections were ever received by the trustees in bankruptcy before October 1, 1942.

107. The Court erred in finding that Comstock did not attempt at a hearing before the Commission in October, 1943, to introduce proper evidence of the mismanagement of NOTM by MOP.

108. The Court erred in finding that the proponents of the Plan, or any other interested parties, have been prejudiced by the purported failure to bring to the attention of the Court, or of the trustee of NOTM, the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, prior to the date upon which such matters were called to the attention of the Court, the Commission, and the trustee of NOTM.

109. The Court erred in failing to find that sufficient witnesses with personal knowledge of and familiarity with some or all of the important facts involved in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections, for a determination of the matters raised in said objections are both alive and available.

110. The Court erred in finding that Guy A. Thompson, as trustee of NOTM, has performed his duties as such trustee in respect of the matters complained of in Comstock's objection 19 and related objections with fidelity or diligence or dispatch.

111. The Court erred in failing to find that Guy A. Thompson, as trustee of NOTM, notwithstanding appropriate requests, failed to take any independent action for the protection of the interests of NOTM, its security holders and the holders of Secured Serial Bonds in connection with the MOP claim against NOTM.

112. The Court erred in finding that the investigation of NOTM, and its subsidiaries, and MOP, made by Guy A. Thompson was reasonable or adequate.

113. The Court erred in finding that Comstock is the holder and owner of only $10,000. face value of Secured Serial Bonds.

114. The Court erred in failing to find that Comstock is the holder and owner of $80,000. face value of Secured Serial Bonds, and that he filed his objection on behalf of himself and fourteen specified owners of at least $900,000. additional of said Bonds and also in behalf of all other owners and holders of said Bonds; and further, that his objections were joined in and adopted by the Committee for the Secured Serial Bonds.

115. The Court erred in failing to place the burden of the validity of the claim represented by the inter-company "advances" upon MOP, as the claimant, and erred in placing the burden on NOTM.

(Statement of Points to be relied upon on Appeal of Andrew W. Comstock from Order denying Petition for Leave to Appeal in the name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company from Order No. 2604-A)

In addition to points also appearing in the Statement of Points to be Relied Upon on Appeal duly served by the appellant, Andrew W. Comstock; the appellant, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company by Andrew W. Comstock; the appellant, Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, by Andrew W. Comstock in their separate but related appeals from Order 2604-A, the Statement of Points to be Relied Upon on Appeal duly served by the appellant, Andrew W. Comstock, in his appeal from the order of the District Court entered on February 15, 1946, denying the petition of Andrew W. Comstock for an order granting Andrew W. Comstock leave to appeal in the name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico

Railway Company from Order No. 2604-A included the following points, numbered as below:

1. The Court erred in making the said order denying said petition.

2. The Court erred in failing to grant the said petition on behalf of appellant for leave to appeal in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, from order number 2604-A, dated and filed herein January 22, 1946, and entitled "Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Order Overruling Comstock's Objection 19 and Related Objections."

3. The Court erred in denying said motion made on behalf of appellant because the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, its estate and the security holders interested therein, including the holders of 5¼% Secured Bonds of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, have not had the protection of an independent trustee of said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and the estate thereof with regard to the claim against said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and the estate thereof filed in the name of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company in the above entitled proceedings.

4. The Court erred in making Order No. 2604-A dated and filed herein January 22, 1946, and entitled "Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and Order Overruling Comstock's Objection 19 and Related Objections", and further erred in holding, in finding, in considering, in failing to hold and in failing to find the matters set forth hereinafter. (Points 5 to 118 of said Statement of Points are identical with and are stated in the same order as Points 2 to 115 of the Statement of Points Printed as Item No. 8 of this Designation. Said Item No. 8 is the Statement of Points to be relied upon on appeals of Andrew W. Comstock, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company by Andrew W. Comstock, and Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company by Andrew W. Comstock from Order No. 2604-A.)

Statement of Errors and of Points on Appeal by Andrew W. Comstock From Order No. 2604-B Approving Plan of Reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

(Filed May 13, 1946.)

In the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

Comes now Andrew W. Comstock, pursuant to Rule 75 (d) of the Rules of Civil Procedure for the District Courts of the United States, and states the following errors and points upon which he intends to rely on his appeal from Order No. 2604-B approving Plan of Reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company:

1. The Court erred in making the said order.

2. The Court erred in finding that the plan of reorganization as contained in the Third Supplemental Order of The Interstate Commerce Commission, dated October 9, 1944, (hereinafter called the "Plan"), provides adequate means for the execution of the Plan.

3. The Court erred in finding that the Plan in all other respects complies with sub-section (b) of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as amended.

4. The Court erred in finding that the Plan is predicated upon findings by the said Commission which are supported by material evidence and are in accordance with legal standards.

5. The Court erred in finding that the Plan is fair and equitable.

6. The Court erred in finding that the Plan affords due recognition to the rights of each class of creditors and stockholders.

7. The Court erred in finding that the Plan does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders.

8. The Court erred in finding that the Plan will conform to the requirements of the law of the land regarding the participation of the various classes of creditors and stockholders.

9. The Court erred in ordering, adjudging and decreeing that all objections to the Plan, and all claims theretofore filed herein for equitable treatment by these appellants, be severally overruled and denied.

10. The Court erred in ordering, adjudging and decreeing that said Plan be in all respects approved.

11. The Court erred in approving the Plan.

12. The Court erred in approving the determination of the Commission in regard to valuation and new capitalization which is not supported by the evidence and is not made in accordance with legal standards.

13. The Court erred in being satisfied that there has been no departure from legal standards or any disregard of proper evidence by the Commission.

14. The Court erred in approving the Commission's action in refusing to provide for the payment in cash of the principal of the entire claim of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a secured creditor, with interest at 4% or less.

15. The Court erred in approving the Commission's action in refusing to provide for the payment in case of the principal of the entire claim of J. P. Morgan & Co., and others, collectively called "the banks", secured creditors, with interest at 4% or less.

16. The Court erred in approving the Commission's action in refusing to provide for the payment in cash of the entire claim of the Railroad Credit Corporation, a secured creditor, against the estate of the debtor, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, with interest at 1%.

17. The Court erred in finding that the question of whether various securities should be retired for cash is left to the Court, and that the wisdom of such retirements can now be presented, and will be disposed of by the Court.

18. The Court erred in refusing to rule that the alternative offer of cash or securities to certain senior creditors is not feasible.

19. The Court erred in refusing to rule that the alternative offer of cash or securities to certain senior creditors will result in a higher capitalization than the Commission has held permissible.

20. The Court erred in refusing to rule that the alternative offer of cash or securities to certain creditors will result in a higher capitalization than the aggregate findings of value made by the Commission.

21. The Court erred in ruling that assurances have been given by certain representatives of large holders of securities, under the Plan for general mortgage bonds, Series B, that these representatives would not, subject to the approval of their boards of directors, permit the development of a corner but would recommend to their respective boards that sufficient of these bonds be placed upon the market within the required price limit to meet any need of the reorganization managers; and that the Court has no fear that these parties will fail to assist the reorganization managers in this regard.

22. The Court erred in affirming the findings of the Commission that as to the general-mortgage bonds, an agreement has been secured by the proponents of the Plan from certain of the parties to this proceeding, entitled to receive such bonds under the Plan, to sell to the reorganization managers, if necessary, a sufficient amount of the bonds at the maximum price.

23. The Court erred in refusing to find that the record contains no material evidence tending to show that an agreement has been secured by the proponents of the Plan from certain of the parties to this proceeding who will be entitled to receive general-mortgage bonds to sell to the reorganization managers, if necessary, a sufficient amount of the bonds at the maximum price of $620.

24. The Court erred in refusing to find that the Plan makes allocations, to divers creditors of the three groups of railroads which are debtors herein and are to comprise the system, of new general-mortgage bonds, Series B, materially in excess of the approximately $38,499,000 of said bonds authorized by the Plan, and constituting a part of the new capitalization in said amount, and thereby exceeding the permissible capitalization by approximately $5,817,627, consisting of at least 5,817 of said bonds of the face value of $1,000. each.

25. The Court erred in approving the Plan in that the same makes allocations of general-mortgage bonds, Series B, which are about $5,817,627 over and above, and in excess of the authorized amount, number and face value of said bonds.

26. The Court erred in refusing to find that the Plan makes allocations to various creditors of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, of new common stock, Class A, materially in excess of the 911,840 of said shares authorized by the Plan, and constituting a part of the new capitalization authorized by the Commission in the amount of $91,184,000, and thereby exceeding the permissible capitalization by approximately $75,000,000 over and above and in excess of the authorized number, amount and stated value of said shares of stock.

27. The Court erred in approving the Plan in that it allocates the new common stock, Class A, in the aggregated stated value of about $75,000,000 over and above the authorized number, amount and stated value of said shares.

28. The Court erred in refusing to find that if a greater number of shares are issued than are authorized by Section D of the Plan, the capitalization would thereby be increased.

29. The Court erred in finding as a fact, and in concluding as a matter of law, that any further issue of no-par common stock, with a stated value of $100 per share beyond the number of shares stated in Section D of the Plan, would not actually increase the total capitalization.

30. The Court erred in refusing to rule that any further issue of no-par common stock with a stated value of $100 per share, beyond the number of shares stated in Section D of the Plan, would be unlawful.

31. The Court erred in refusing to rule that any further issue of no-par common stock with a stated value of $100 per share, beyond the number of shares stated in Section D of the Plan, would proportionately reduce the value of each share of the common stock issued pursuant to Section D of the Plan, and would proportionately diminish the participation in the new system corporation of the holders of new common stock lawfully entitled thereto.

32. The Court erred in approving the scheme embodied in the alternative cash offer device, and erred in refusing to disapprove the same.

33. The Court erred in approving the Plan in that the same purports to make allotments and allocations to participating parties which are materially in excess of the permissible capitalization of the new system as determined by the Commission.

34. The Court erred in refusing to find that the Plan does not comply with clause (5) of sub-section (b) of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as amended, in that the Plan does not provide adequate means for the execution thereof, because the Plan purports to make allocations of bonds, stock and other securities to participating parties in amounts, exceeding permissible capitalization by about $82,000,000, which cannot lawfully be issued.

35. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission did not determine and certify to the Court the value of the property used in railroad operation.

36. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission did not determine and certify to the Court the value of certain property of divers debtors herein not used in railroad operation.

37. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission did not determine and certify to the Court the value of the property of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company to be acquired by the new system.

38. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the same provides that reorganization managers may fix any later January 1 as the effective date, and the law does not empower the Commission to grant such authority to reorganization managers.

39. The Court erred in approving the Plan because of the absence of findings by the Commission of the value of the 121,460 shares of the capital stock of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company constituting the collateral securing the $12,140,000 principal amount of the 5¼% secured bonds outstanding.

40. The Court erred in approving the Plan because of its failure to allocate reorganization securities to the 5¼% secured bonds having a value and a moneys worth fully equivalent to the value of the 121,460 shares of capital stock of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company securing said 5¼% secured bonds.

41. The Court erred in approving the Plan because of the failure of the Commission to comply with the requirement imposed on it of allocating to the 5¼% Secured Bonds the equitable equivalent of the rights surrendered.

42. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the new securities allotted to the 5¼% Secured Bonds are not the equitable equivalent of the collateral required to be surrendered.

43. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it deprives the 5¼% Secured Bonds of their collateral, without their consent, and without compensating them with the full equivalent thereof.

44. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it fails to give recognition to the fact that the 5¼% Secured Bonds are secured by collateral, and that said collateral has large value.

45. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it assumes that the position of the 5¼% Secured Bonds is junior to MOP's general mortgage bonds and to those ranking ahead of the general mortgage bonds.

46. The Court erred in failing to find that the 5¼% Secured Bonds are in a position like that of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and various bank creditors.

47. The Court erred in failing to find that the 5¼% Secured Bondholders are a separate class of creditors without any lien relationship to the mortgage debt of MOP and their treatment under any plan must be based upon the value of their separate security.

48. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it permits other classes of creditors having no lien or claim whatsoever thereon to participate to the exclusion of, or prior to the 5¼% Secured Bonds, in the assets and earnings.

49. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the findings of the commission that

"Regarding the treatment of the junior claims of the system, namely, the Missouri Pacific general-mortgage bonds, serial 5¼-percent bonds, and convertible bonds, the New Orleans capital stock, and the International adjustment bonds, the following formulas were used by the negotiators of the compromise plan."

50. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

"We also find that the treatment accorded the Missouri Pacific serial 5¼-percent bonds and that accorded the unsecured creditors of the Missouri Pacific and unsecured creditors and stockholders of the New Orleans (aside from the allocations of stock-purchase warrants) is justified by the total value and earning power of these properties and the value of the free assets of these debtors and, in view of the rights of prior creditors and within the new capitalization which we have found justified, represents the full extent of participation in the plan of reorganization to which they are entitled."

51. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

"They would take the stock at $100 per share, if computed on the total amount of their claim, and the serial bondholders, who are secured collaterally by New Orleans capital stock, would receive only such amount of the new class-A common stock as the New Orleans stockholders are found in the plan to be entitled to receive, plus an additional amount in recognition of the control element of the pledged 80 percent of New Orleans stock, the remainder of the claim of the serial 5¼-percent bondholders not so satisfied being treated in the same manner as the claims of other unsecured creditors of the Missouri Pacific."

52. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it does not adequately recognize the value of the assets of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company (hereinafter referred to as NOTM), and does not give adequate consideration to the earnings, the assets, and the cash position of the properties.

53. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable by reason of the failure to give adequate consideration to the amount of cash and its equivalent in the hands of the Trustee of NOTM and to the net current assets of NOTM.

54. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable because it fails to give consideration to the earnings of NOTM to date.

55. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission relied on figures only up to July, 1943, and failed to use figures for the year 1943 and part of 1944, even though such figures were available.

56. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "No system statements for 1943 of income available for payment of interest and net income are of record for any period subsequent to the first 7 months January-July, inclusive, the system amount at the end of that period being $32,514,678 and net income $17,581,670."

57. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in providing for consolidation of NOTM with MOP when such consolidation is to the detriment of the 5¼% Secured Bonds by not observing the legal requirements of affording the 5¼% Secured Bonds the exact equivalent of their collateral.

58. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of said Commission without due observance of the statutory standards prescribed by S 77(e) of the National

Bankruptcy Act, as amended, that, upon a basis of separate reorganization, the total permissible capitalization of NOTM is $67,000,000.

59. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as the Commission made no finding with respect to the character and the amount of the assets of NOTM which are not productive of earnings.

60. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the assumption, without any evidence therefor, that "greater future earning will (not) result from the net increase in investment accounts."

61. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission failed to give effect to the amount and character of investments in road and equipment during the trusteeship and particularly since December 31, 1939.

62. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "From December 31, 1939, the day prior to the effective date of the Commission plan, to July 31, 1943, gross additions and betterments to road and to equipment of the Missouri Pacific (exclusive of two subsidiaries, Natchez & Louisiana Railway Transfer Company and Kansas-Missouri Elevator Company) have increased by $14,206,756 and $20,009,683, respectively, New Orleans $2,411,465 and $2,087,513, respectively, International $1,145,973 and $1,346,810, respectively, and system $17,837,648 and $23,443,906, respectively.
> "In the same period investment of the Missouri Pacific in road and equipment increased $22,322,770, New Orleans by $2,501,098, International by $1,175,822, and the system by $25,999,689. During this period, the system also acquired and entered in its balance sheet accounts as 'investment in affiliated companies—unpledged', the St. Joseph terminal properties, the

quately recognize the value of the assets of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company (hereinafter referred to as NOTM), and does not give adequate consideration to the earnings, the assets, and the cash position of the properties.

53. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable by reason of the failure to give adequate consideration to the amount of cash and its equivalent in the hands of the Trustee of NOTM and to the net current assets of NOTM.

54. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable because it fails to give consideration to the earnings of NOTM to date.

55. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission relied on figures only up to July, 1943, and failed to use figures for the year 1943 and part of 1944, even though such figures were available.

56. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "No system statements for 1943 of income available for payment of interest and net income are of record for any period subsequent to the first 7 months January-July, inclusive, the system amount at the end of that period being $32,514,678 and net income $17,581,670."

57. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in providing for consolidation of NOTM with MOP when such consolidation is to the detriment of the 5¼% Secured Bonds by not observing the legal requirements of affording the 5¼% Secured Bonds the exact equivalent of their collateral.

58. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of said Commission without due observance of the statutory standards prescribed by S 77(e) of the National

Bankruptcy Act, as amended, that, upon a basis of separate reorganization, the total permissible capitalization of NOTM is $67,000,000.

59. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as the Commission made no finding with respect to the character and the amount of the assets of NOTM which are not productive of earnings.

60. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the assumption, without any evidence therefor, that "greater future earning will (not) result from the net increase in investment accounts."

61. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission failed to give effect to the amount and character of investments in road and equipment during the trusteeship and particularly since December 31, 1939.

62. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "From December 31, 1939, the day prior to the effective date of the Commission plan, to July 31, 1943, gross additions and betterments to road and to equipment of the Missouri Pacific (exclusive of two subsidiaries, Natchez & Louisiana Railway Transfer Company and Kansas-Missouri Elevator Company) have increased by $14,206,756 and $20,009,683, respectively, New Orleans $2,411,465 and $2,087,513, respectively, International $1,145,973 and $1,346,810, respectively, and system $17,837,648 and $23,443,906, respectively.
> "In the same period investment of the Missouri Pacific in road and equipment increased $22,322,770, New Orleans by $2,501,098, International by $1,175,822, and the system by $25,999,689. During this period, the system also acquired and entered in its balance sheet accounts as 'investment in affiliated companies—unpledged', the St. Joseph terminal properties, the purchase price being $3,600,000 plus $999,186 advances to affiliated companies".

63. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "In our former report we determined a permissible maximum system capitalization of about $560,000,000 as of January 1, 1940. Since that date, according to exhibits filed at the further hearing, there has been an increase in the system investment in road and equipment of nearly $26,000,000 and an increase in accrued depreciation of about $15,000,000, indicating a net increase in investment in road and equipment of about $11,000,000. The investment of the system in affiliated companies as stated by the debtors has, during the same period, increased by about $4,600,000. Adding these sums of $11,000,000 and $4,600,000 to the total given above of $558,326,178 produces $573,926,178. It does not necessarily follow, however, and the record does not show, that greater future earnings will result from this net increase in investment accounts."

64. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable by reason of the fact that it "assumed" the validity of an alleged claim of MOP against NOTM for inter-company advances.

65. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in permitting the reorganization managers to fix the compensation of those whose services they employ in the execution of their powers.

66. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in that it discriminates unfairly in favor of other classes of creditors as against the 5¼% Secured Bondholders.

67. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in that it requires a voting trust of the new stock of the new company.

68. The Court erred in holding that the Commission did not fail to exercise its independent judgment in the promulgation of the Plan, and in holding that the Commission was not unduly influenced by the fact that the Plan was initiated and presented as a compromise, and in holding that the Commission was not unduly influenced by the fact that a deal was made by private negotiators, i. e., the proponents of the Plan.

69. The Court erred in approving the Plan because of the failure of the Commission to perform its statutory duties independently of private agreements made by the proponents of the Plan.

70. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in that it contains "escape clauses" which permit future reorganizations out of court, and which are contrary to public policy.

71. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it requires large scale bearish stock market operations by the reorganization managers.

72. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it reposes control of the reorganization process and of the reorganized company in the hands of persons representing only a very minor fraction of interested security holders.

73. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it delegates "full and plenary discretionary power" to the reorganization managers.

74. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it provides for reorganization managers.

75. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it fails to provide that reorganization managers are to be selected by interested security holders.

76. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it provides that the compensation of voting trustees is to be fixed by the reorganization managers.

77. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable in that it provides for the nominations of directors of the new company by persons who are not representative of interested security holders and in that it fails to provide for the nomination of directors of the new company by interested security holders.

78. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it reposes control of the reorganization and of the new company in persons not qualified to exercise such control.

79. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it fails to provide for the selection of reorganization managers or of directors of the new company by vote of interested security holders.

80. The Court erred in ignoring the capitalization as fixed by the Commission.

81. The Court erred in ignoring the stated values ascribed to the securities by the Commission for the purpose of the capitalization of the new company as fixed by the Commission.

82. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission failed to find the value of the new securities allocated to the 5¼% secured bondholders.

[82.] The Court erred in approving the Plan because it was based upon the Commission's finding that proponents of the Plan had entered into a binding agreement to make available to the reorganization managers, within the limits of the Plan, sufficient securities to render the Plan feasible, which finding is contrary to all the evidence both before the Commission and before the Court.

84. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it requires the reorganization managers, in order to attempt to carry out the provisions of the Plan, to depress the market prices of millions of dollars worth of railroad securities.

85. The Court erred in approving the Plan because there was no sufficient evidence submitted to the Commission or to the Court that the execution of the Plan is feasible.

86. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it deprives the 5¼% Secured Bondholders of property without due process of law.

87. The Court erred in approving the Plan because the Commission had failed to take into account the enhanced values of the properties owned by Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway as of the time the Plan was considered by the Commission.

88. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it failed to take into account the enhanced values of the properties owned by Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway as of the time the Plan was considered by the Court.

89. The Court erred in approving the Plan because it is unfair and inequitable and contrary to public policy in that it fails to provide for the most effective use of cash on hand held by the Debtor companies, which was in excess of all reasonable cash requirements as found by the Commission.

90. The Court erred in holding that it is entitled to authorize the issuance of securities different in character and in amount from that authorized by the Plan as approved by the Commission.

(Order No. 19.)

Upon due consideration of the oral motion of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and all the other Debtors herein, appearing by their counsel, that the Court enter an order determining a reasonable time within which claims and interests of certain classes of creditors of the Debtors, respectively, may be filed or evidenced, and after which no such claims or interest may participate in any plan of reorganization except upon order for cause shown, and determining the manner in which such claims and interests may be filed or evidenced, and it appearing that said motion should be granted, it is Ordered:

(5) That objections by the respective Debtors, or other persons having an interest therein, to the allowance of any claims shall be filed within such time and with such particularity as the Master in his discretion may prescribe.

(6) That hearings on claims against such of the Debtors as are operating lines in the State of Texas shall be held at Houston, Texas, and on claims against the other Debtors shall be held at St. Louis, Missouri, unless otherwise agreed to by the parties or ordered by the Court or by the Master in the interest of economy and justice.

(7) That the period herein provided for the filing of claims to which this order is applicable is hereby determined to be a reasonable time for such purpose, and any such claims not filed within the time fixed by this order shall not participate in any plan of reorganization except upon further order of this Court for cause shown.

(8) That a copy of this order shall be promptly published by the Debtors, once during each week for two consecutive weeks, in some publication in which bankruptcy notices are customarily published, in the cities of: St. Louis and Kansas City, Missouri; Omaha, Nebraska; Little Rock, Arkansas; New Orleans, Louisiana; and Houston, Dallas, and San Antonio, Texas. No. 6935

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad.

Upon consideration of the Motion of Trustees for an order respecting manner in which protested claims may be evidenced and allowed, the Court being fully advised in the premises, and it appearing that such an order is within the contemplation of Subdivision C-5 of Section 77 of the Act relating to Bankruptcy, It Is by the Court Ordered:

Excerpts from Transcript of Testimony Taken at the Hearing Before the Interstate Commerce Commission on February 7, 1936, in Proceedings Entitled "In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor".

Q. (By Mr. Ballard) Now, the Missouri Pacific debt.
A. I have—

Director Sweet: By Missouri Pacific debt, you mean debt from the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?
A. Yes.

Mr. Ballard: The next item on exhibit A of the plan.
A. I have exhibit, company No. 74-A, Commission No. 226, which details the amounts shown on line 73 of exhibit A of the plan, covering the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico debt to the Missouri Pacific, and also detailing the interest due as of December 31, 1935.

(Debtors' Exhibit No. 226, Witness Wyer, was received in evidence.)

The Witness: This exhibit shows the date that each advance was made and the amount, shows the dates of repayment and shows the interest charged over the entire period from the date of the first advance, which was November 30, 1928.

Director Sweet: Can you state generally what these advances were made for?
A. Yes. One of these exhibits which I will come on, our No. 74-F, shows just exactly what they were made for, and I can bring that in right now if you would like to know. I might bring that in out of order, if you wish.

Director Sweet: We can wait until you get to it.

The Witness: All right. The next set of exhibits is all bound together and includes company No. 74-B to 74-F, inclusive.

Mr. Ballard: And those are the notes and resolutions with respect to interest rate, are they not?
A. Together with the analysis of the advances which I just mentioned. That would be Commission No. 227.

Mr. Ballard: 74-A to 74-F, inclusive?

A. That is B to F, inclusive.

Q. B to F, that is right.

(Debtors exhibits Nos. 227, Witness Wyer, was received in evidence.)

The Witness: This exhibit comprises seven pages, and in the set I am handing to the reporter there is a certified copy of this resolution. There are three notes evidencing this indebtedness:

$400,000 note dated April 15, 1932. That is the notes under which the $1,900,000 of first mortgage bonds are pledged, and it was in accordance with authority given in this note that they were repledged with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the short term loans from the R. F. C. to the Missouri Pacific.

The second note was dated January 27, 1933, for $2,498,500, and the third note was dated February 28, 1933, for $7,456,726.78, and those two latter notes were also pledged with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by the Missouri Pacific.

Director Sweet: This exhibit 226 appears to indicate a total in advances of $10,565,000.

A. Yes, that is correct.

Director Sweet: Remaining due on the 31st of March, 1933? A. Yes.

Director Sweet: How much of that amount, if any, is evidenced now by notes? A. All of it.

Q. All of it? A. Yes, sir; these three notes.

Q. Covering the whole thing?

A. Covering the whole thing, yes.

Q. Now, did those notes require 20-A authority?

A. Yes; the third note required 20-A authority. The second note was issued in the exact amount that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico could issue a note without 20-A authority, and at the same time application was made for 20-A authority to issue the note for the balance. That was granted, and the third note, dated February 28, 1933, was the note which was issued under 20-A authority.

Q. Was that in connection with a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan, or was it an independent application under 20-A?

A. We made an independent application under 20-A for that note and for another note of the International-Great Northern.

Petition of

George H. Walker, Alex Berger, Willard V. King, B. A. Tompkins and George E. Warren, as a Committee Representing Holders of First Mortgage Bonds and Income Mortgage Bonds of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company for the Appointment of a Separate Trustee for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and Its Subsidiaries The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company.

(Filed March 23, 1937.)

([Peition] No. 756a.)

To the Honorable the Judges of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division:

The Petition of George H. Walker, Alex Berger, Willard V. King, B. A. Tompkins and George E. Warren, as a committee representing holders of First Mortgage Bonds and Income Mortgage Bonds of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, respectfully shows as follows:

1. Petitioners George H. Walker, Alex Berger, Willard V. King, B. A. Tompkins and George E. Warren were constituted as a committee to represent holders of First Mortgage Bonds, Series A, B, C and D, and of 5% Non-Cumulative Income Mortgage Bonds, Series A, of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company under and pursuant to the terms of a Deposit Agreement dated April 25, 1933. A copy of said Deposit Agreement was annexed as Schedule A to Petitioners' Petition, verified October 28, 1936, for Leave to Intervene in the Proceedings Herein. George H. Walker and George E. Warren are the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of said Committee, respectively. Of the individuals constituting said committee (hereinafter collectively referred to as the Committee) George H. Walker is a resident of the City of Kennebunkport, State and District, Southern Division of Maine; Willard V. King and B. A. Tompkins are residents of the City, State and Southern District of New York; Alex Berger is a resident of the City of Howison, State and Eastern District of Virginia; and George E. Warren is a resident of the City of Stamford, State and District of Connecticut. Said Committee represents $9,579,100 principal amount out of $40,615,900 of said First Mortgage Bonds outstanding in the hands of the public (excluding $1,900,000 of said First Mortgage Bonds alleged to be pledged with Missouri Pacific Railroad Company) and $374,400 principal amount of Non-Cumulative Income Mortgage Bonds out of $2,354,100 of said Income Mortgage Bonds outstanding in the hands of the public.

2. New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Louisiana. On information and belief approximately ninety-four per cent. (94%) of the capital stock of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company is owned by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

3. The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company are, and at all times hereinafter mentioned were, railroad corporations duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas. The entire capital stock together with all of the bonded indebtedness of each such company is owned by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and is deposited with Irving Trust Company, as Trustee under the First Mortgage of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company.

4. Missouri Pacific Railroad Company is, and at all the times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri.

5. International-Great Northern Railroad Company is, and at all the times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas. The entire capital stock of said International-Great Northern Railroad Company is owned by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company.

6. Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company each filed herein on or about March 31, 1933, a petition seeking to reorganize under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, as amended. The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company each filed herein on or about May 1, 1933, a petition seeking to reorganize under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, as amended. Said Railroad Companies were continued as debtors in possession of their respective properties until June 22, 1933.

7. Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin were, by order of the Court herein, appointed Co-Trustees of the properties of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company and Houston North Shore Railway Company on June 22, 1933; and were appointed permanent Co-Trustees thereof on July 25, 1933. L. W. Baldwin resigned as such Co-Trustee on December 26, 1935; and Guy A. Thompson was thereupon appointed sole Trustee of the properties of each of said Railroad Companies and is at the present time such Trustee.

8. Missouri Pacific Railroad Company acquired control of the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, with the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, by the acquisition of a majority of the outstanding capital stock of said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company on or about January 1, 1925. After the acquisition of such control, the properties of International-Great Northern Railroad Company and of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries*, the majority stock of which it then owned or thereafter acquired, were operated by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. After such acquisition of control the majority of the Directors and chief operating officers of said Missouri Pacific Railroad Company were also Directors and chief operating officers of International-Great Northern Railroad Company and of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its principal subsidiaries.

9. On information and belief the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries have been operated by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for the benefit of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company and to the detriment and loss of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries and its security holders.

10. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, beginning about September 1, 1929 and continuing until March 31, 1933, the date of the filing herein of said petitions under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, established and maintained a so-called frozen per diem plan or arrangement for the allocation as between itself, International-Great Northern Railroad Company and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries of rentals for the use of freight cars; and, pursuant to said frozen pier diem plan, wrongfully required New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries to pay to it and to International-Great Northern Railway Company amounts of rentals for use of freight cars of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company exceeding by an amount averaging not less than $235,000 per annum the amount which New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries should have been required to pay. On information and belief said overcharges were paid to Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and to International-Great Northern Railroad Company by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries.

11. Upon demand of Petitioner Committee, and in recognition of the unfairness and inequity of the frozen per diem plan, a study of freight car rentals as between the estates of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries was caused to be made by Guy A. Thompson, as sole Trustee aforesaid, for the year ended June 30, 1936, and said overcharges for rentals of freight cars were thereafter reduced by approximately $130,000 per year, effective July 1, 1936. On information and belief, said charges for rentals of freight cars are still excessive and the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries are still being required to pay charges exceeding by at least $100,000 per year the amount which such estates should be required to pay. Although demand has been made by Petitioner Committee upon Guy A. Thompson, as sole Trustee, to put into effect a fair car rental arrangement and to pay to the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries the amount of the overcharges collected since March 31, 1933, he has wrongfully refused and continues to refuse both to put into effect a fair arrangement for payment of car rentals and has wrongfully refused and continues to refuse to make whole the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries in respect of overcharges collected from it since March 31, 1933.

12. On information and belief, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, beginning in 1925 and continuing to March 31, 1933, wrongfully diverted or caused to be diverted from the lines of railroad of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries to the lines of railroad of International-Great Northern Railroad Company and/or Missouri Pacific Railroad Company substantial amounts of traffic originating on lines of railroad of said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries. Said traffic so diverted could and should have been moved over the lines of railroad of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries. On information and belief such wrongful diversions of traffic resulted in losses to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries exceeding in amount on the average one hundred thousand dollars per year.

13. On information and belief such wrongful diversions of traffic were continued and losses in excess of such amount were continued to be incurred by the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries during the period after the filing on March 31, 1933, as aforesaid, of said petitions under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, as amended, to the date of the appointment of Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin as Co-Trustees on June 22, 1933, as aforesaid; and thereafter to the date of the appointment on December 26, 1935 of Guy A. Thompson, as sole Trustee, as aforesaid; and thereafter until the present time, except that, upon demand of the Petitioner Committee, certain of the traffic originating on the lines of railroad of Houston & Brazos Valley Railway Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, was restored on or about August 1, 1936, to the lines of railroad of the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiary The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company. There is now pending in these proceedings a petition, verified January 5, 1937, of The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as Trustee under the First Mortgage of International-Great Northern Railroad Company, for an order directing that Guy A.

Thompson, as Trustee of International-Great Northern Railroad Company, cause said Houston & Brazos Valley traffic again to be diverted from the lines of railroad of the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiary The St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company to the lines of railroad of the estate of International-Great Northern Railroad Company.

14. On information and belief Guy A. Thompson, as such sole Trustee, continues wrongfully to divert or cause to be diverted other valuable and profitable traffic properly belonging to the lines of railroad of the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries to the lines of railroad of the estates of International-Great Northern Railroad Company and Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to the great loss of the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries and to the security holders of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company.

15. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, beginning on or about the year 1926 and continuing until March 31, 1933, for the benefit of International-Great Northern Railroad Company wrongfully caused to be charged against, and wrongfully required to be paid by, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries, in respect of joint general expenses, joint traffic expenses, and other joint expenses, amounts in excess of the amounts properly chargeable against, and payable by, said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries. On information and belief such overcharges so required to be paid, and which were paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries to Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and to International-Great Northern Railroad Company, exceeded an average of $125,000 per year.

16. On information and belief the payment of overcharges in respect of joint general, traffic and other expenses to the estates of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company were wrongfully continued to be exacted from, and to be paid by the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries between March 31, 1933, the date of the filing of said petitions under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, as amended, and June 22, 1933, the date of the appointment of Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin, as Co-Trustees as aforesaid, and thereafter by said Co-Trustees to December 26, 1935; and thereafter by Guy A. Thompson as sole Trustee as aforesaid, to the date hereof. All demands of Petitioner Committee that said wrongful practice of exacting such or any excessive amounts from the estates of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries be discontinued and that reimbursement for overcharges exacted since March 31, 1933, be made to said estate have been refused by Guy A. Thompson as said sole Trustee.

17. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company caused New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its wholly owned subsidiary, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, to acquire at various times and from time to time certain new equipment consisting of new locomotives, for the benefit of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, and has caused New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its said subsidiary to pay, when and as due, the instalments of principal and dividends of equipment trust certificates issued in respect thereof. On information and belief said equipment, although acquired by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its said subsidiary, was not suitable for use, and was never intended to be used, on the lines of railroad of said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its said subsidiary, but was acquired for use, and since acquisition has been used, on the lines of railroad of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company delivered or caused to be delivered to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its said subsidiary, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company in exchange for said new locomotives certain old locomotives (being locomotives of an average age in excess of twenty years) of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company which said old locomotives have since been used on the lines of railroad of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its said subsidiary or subsidiaries. On information and belief the cost of operating such old locomotives greatly exceeded the cost which would have been incurred by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its said subsidiaries had it been allowed and permitted to acquire and use new locomotives of the type which could have been used by it and its said subsidiaries. On information and belief such excess cost of operating said old locomotives has aggregated at least an average of $150,000 per year.

18. On information and belief the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company or its subsidiary The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, were required to continue to pay the instalments of principal and dividends on the Equipment Trust Certificates issued in respect of said locomotives, and to continue to use said old locomotives and to incur said excess cost after the filing of said petitions under said Section 77 to the date of the appointment on June 22, 1933, of Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin, as Co-Trustees as aforesaid, and thereafter to the date of the appointment on December 26, 1935, of Guy A. Thompson, as sole Trustee as aforesaid; and thereafter to the date hereof, all to the detriment of the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its security holders.

19. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and its Trustees or Trustee by divers other means and methods, including improper accounting methods, have deprived and taken from New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company substantial amounts of moneys, to the detriment of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, its estate, and security holders.

20. On information and belief Missouri Pacific Railroad Company has asserted a claim against the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company in an amount, together with interest, exceeding $12,000,000 for moneys alleged to have been advanced by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company. Said alleged advances are claimed to be secured by the pledge with Missouri Pacific Railroad Company of $1,900,000, principal amount, of First Mortgage Bonds of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company. On information and belief said advances, if made, would not have been required, had the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company been operated, as they should have been, in the interest of said New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its security holders instead of being operated, as they were, in the interest of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, and had the accounts of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries been accurately and properly kept.

21. On information and belief, by reason of the foregoing wrongful acts, deeds and accounting, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company are indebted to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company in an amount greatly in excess of any amount or amounts owing to said Railroad Companies or either of them by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company.

22. On information and belief, by reason of the foregoing wrongful acts, deeds and accounting, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, as Debtor in possession of its properties between March 31, 1933 and June 22, 1933, International-Great Northern Railroad Company, as Debtor in possession of its properties between March 31, 1933 and June 22, 1933, Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin, as Co-Trustees of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company between June 22, 1933 and December 26, 1935, and Guy A. Thompson, as sole Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company since December 26, 1935, are indebted to the estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company in an amount in excess of $2,000,000.

23. On information and belief the properties of the Railroad Companies, which are parties to the proceedings herein, have been operated as if there were a union of the rights and interests of the creditors thereof. It is the duty of the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railroad Company, to operate the properties of said Companies primarily in the interests of the creditors of said Companies. Similarly it is the duty of the Trustee of International-Great Northern Railroad Company to operate the properties of that Company primarily in the interests of the creditors thereof. Similarly it is the duty of the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to operate the properties of that Company primarily in the interests of its creditors. The rights and interests of the creditors, security holders and estates of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, respectively, are adverse to and in conflict with the rights and interests of the creditors, security holders and estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railroad Company, such rights and interests of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its said subsidiaries being identical. The proper protection of the rights and interests of the creditors, security holders and estates of said Railroad Companies requires that the Trustees of the properties thereof deal with each other at arms length. The nature of said adverse and conflicting rights and interests between the creditors, security holders and estates of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company on the one hand and creditors, security holders and estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company on the other hand make it impossible for the same man to serve as Trustee of the properties of all of said Companies with justice and fairness to himself and to said conflicting interests. The performance of the duties of Trustee of all of said Companies may involve a proceeding for an accounting by him in one capacity against himself in another capacity. The situation involved in the proceedings herein imposes an unfair burden on Guy A. Thompson as sole Trustee of the Railroad Companies which are parties to the proceedings herein and make it necessary that a separate trustee be appointed for the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its said subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company. Petitioners believe that Mr. Thompson has attempted to be fair and just to all interests in the performance of his services as sole Trustee. However, the adverse and conflicting rights and interests inherent in the presently existing situation make it impossible for Mr. Thompson or any other man to perform the duties required of a trustee under Section 77 with justice to himself and to all the interests involved. The unfairness of the presently existing situation to Mr. Thompson and to the creditors and security holders of the Railroad Companies which are parties to these proceedings and particularly of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries aforesaid can be removed only by the appointment of a separate trustee for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its said subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company. The appointment of such separate trustee will not only relieve Mr. Thompson of the unfair burden now imposed upon him but will permit the operation of the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its said subsidiaries in the interest of the creditors thereof and to the better advantage of said creditors.

Wherefore petitioners pray

(a) that the Court appoint a separate trustee for the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company, with full power, subject to the control of this Court and to the lawful regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to operate said properties in the interest of the creditors of said companies, and independent of the Trustee or Trustees of the properties of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company; and

(b) for such other and further relief and different relief as to the Court shall seem just and proper.

Dated March 6, 1937.

Petition of Irving Trust Company, as Trustee Under First Mortgage of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, for the Appointment of a Separate Trustee for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and Certain Subsidiaries.

(Filed March 23, 1937.)

(Petition No. 757.)

To the Honorable the Judges of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division:

The petition of Irving Trust Company, as Trustee under First Mortgage of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company dated April 1, 1924, respectfully shows as follows:

1. Petitioner is the duly qualified and acting Trustee under the First Mortgage of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company to Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, as Trustee, dated April 1, 1924. For a statement of the organization and powers of petitioner and its predecessors, the changes in corporate name by which Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company became Irving Trust Company, the authorization of the First Mortgage Bonds of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company (hereinafter sometimes termed the "Railway Company"), the authorization, execution and recording of the said First Mortgage, the delivery of the First Mortgage Bonds secured thereby, the fact that according to petitioner's records $42,645,900 in principal amount of said First Mortgage Bonds are now outstanding, the fact that according to petitioner's information upwards of $2,354,000 in principal amount of Income Bonds of the Railway Company are now outstanding and entitled to the security of the First Mortgage to the extent conferred by the First Mortgage, the securities held by petitioner, the defaults in payment of the interest which became due on April 1, 1933 and subsequently on said First Mortgage Bonds, the provisions of said First Mortgage as to remedies of petitioner in the event of default in the payment of said interest, and similar matters, petitioner prays reference to and makes a part hereof its petition, verified January 31, 1934 and filed herein on February 19, 1934 (Printed Record, Vol. III, pp. 1129-1163). Petitioner further prays reference to and makes a part hereof a true copy of said First Mortgage (filed with said last-mentioned petition as Exhibit "A" thereto) and also the order, made and filed herein on April 5, 1934 (Printed Record, Vol. III, pp. 1185-1186), permitting the intervention of this petitioner herein.

2. On information and belief, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Louisiana, approximately ninety-four per cent. (94%) of its capital stock being owned by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

3. On information and belief, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company are, and at all times hereinafter mentioned were, railroad corporations duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas, the entire capital stock of each such company being owned by the Railway Company.

4. On information and belief, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri.

5. On information and belief, International-Great Northern Railroad Company is, and at all the times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas, its entire capital stock being owned by the Railway Company, (although said International-Great Northern Railroad Company is not herein included in the term "Railway Company" or in the term "New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company" or in the term "subsidiaries" of the Railway Company).

6. On information and belief: Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company each filed herein on or about March 31, 1933, a petition seeking to reorganize under Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act; and The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company each filed herein on or about May 1, 1933, a petition seeking to reorganize under said Section 77; and said companies were continued as debtors in possession of their respective properties until June 22, 1933.

7. On information and belief: Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin were, by order of the Court herein, appointed Co-Trustees of the properties of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company and Houston North Shore Railway Company on June 22, 1933; they were appointed permanent Co-Trustees thereof on July 25, 1933; L. W. Baldwin resigned as such Co-Trustee on December 26, 1935; and Guy A. Thompson was thereupon appointed sole Trustee of the properties of each of said Railroad Companies and is at the present time acting as such Trustee.

8. There are pledged with, and held by, petitioner stocks and other securities of the following companies (all of which are included in the term "Railway Company" and in the term "New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company", unless otherwise appearing): The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company, and Houston North Shore Railway Company—all of which are debtors in this proceeding; also the following which (while subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and hereinafter included in the term "Railway Company" and in the term "New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company", unless otherwise appearing) are not debtors in this proceeding: The Orange & Northwestern Railroad Company, Houston & Brazos Valley Railway Company, New Iberia & Northern Railroad Company, Iberia, St. Mary & Eastern Railroad Company, Asphalt Belt Railway Company, Sugar Land Railway Company, Asherton & Gulf Railway Company, Rio Grande City Railway Company, San Antonio, Southern Railway Company, and San Benito & Rio Grande Valley Railway Company. On information and belief, the said stocks and securities constitute all of the outstanding stocks and securities of said companies, other than some directors' qualifying shares.

9. On information and belief, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company acquired control of the properties of the Railway Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company by the acquisition of a majority of the outstanding capital stock of the Railway Company on or about January 1, 1925; and from a date shortly after the acquisition of such control the properties of the Railway Company have been operated continuously by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company with its properties and the properties of International-Great Northern Railroad Company as one railroad system.

10. On information and belief, the said railroad system has been so operated without regard to the particular rights and interests of the Railway Company, its security holders and creditors, and its records and accounts have not been so kept as properly to show the said particular rights and interests including especially the true income of the properties of the Railway Company.

11. On information and belief, the situation mentioned in paragraphs 9 and 10 hereof has continued down to the date hereof, except that during the year 1936 Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee as aforesaid, has made certain adjustments in favor of the Railway Company, in that effective on or about July 1, 1936 he changed the future basis of per diem charges against the Railway Company for use of cars so that the said charges against the Railway Company will be reduced in part, and effective on or about

August 1, 1936 he restored to the lines of the Railway Company certain sulphur traffic originating on the lines of Houston & Brazos Valley Railway Company (a wholly owned subsidiary of the Railway Company) which traffic theretofore had been routed over the lines of International-Great Northern Railroad Company.

12. On information and belief, the present practices of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee as aforesaid, are inequitable and improper as against the Railway Company, its security holders and creditors including petitioner, as Trustee as aforesaid, and the holders of the bonds secured by the aforesaid First Mortgage under which petitioner is Trustee, and the said Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee as aforesaid, has refused or failed to rectify said practices although, in respect of most of said practices, due demands have been made upon him for a long time past to correct the said practices, to-wit: (a) the Railway Company has been, and is being overcharged for use of cars upon the basis of a so-called frozen per diem plan erroneously imposed by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company some years ago and since continued as between the Railway Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company and Missouri Pacific Railroad Company—which charge has been corrected in part as aforesaid, but not as to a large balance of said overcharges; (b) substantial traffic originating on the lines of the Railway Company and which properly should move over its lines has been and is being diverted to the lines of International-Great Northern Railroad Company—such situation having been corrected as aforesaid only with respect to certain sulphur traffic originating on the lines of Houston & Brazos Valley Railway Company but not as to the balance of the diverted traffic; (c) the Railway Company has been, and is being, overcharged in large amounts as its proportion of the joint general expenses, joint traffic expenses, and other joint expenses, of the railroad system of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company; (d) Missouri Pacific Railroad Company—in violation of the particular rights and interests of the Railway Company, its security holders and creditors, including this petitioner and the holders of the bonds secured by the aforesaid First Mortgage—caused the Railway Company from time to time to purchase new locomotives and to pay installments of principal and dividends on equipment trust certificates issued in respect thereof, which locomotives were unsuitable for use on the lines of the Railway Company, and have not been and are not being used upon said lines but have been and are being used on the lines of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company, while old locomotives were assigned to, and have been and are being used, on the lines of the Railway Company, and no proper allowance has been or is being made to the Railway Company in respect of its ownership of said new locomotives or in respect of excess repair and other charges which the Railway Company has been and is being required to bear through the use of the old locomotives assigned to it; (e) The records and accounts of Guy A. Thompson, as said Trustee, and his predecessors in the operation of the properties of the Railway Company as a part of the Missouri Pacific system, have not been adjusted so as to show the true income of the Railway Company in respect either of current or prior periods.

13. On information and belief: it is the duty of the Trustee of the Railway Company in this proceeding to operate its properties and properly to adjust and keep its records and accounts in the interests of the Railway Company, its security holders and creditors, including this petitioner and the holders of the bonds secured by the aforesaid First Mortgage; similarly, it is the duty of the Trustee of International-Great Northern Railroad Company to operate its properties and properly to keep its accounts in its interests, and the duty of the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to operate its properties and properly to keep its accounts in its interests; it is the duty of the Trustee of the Railway Company to recover, by accounting proceedings or otherwise, for the estate of the Railway Company such amounts as are properly due to it from the estates of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company; Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, International-Great Northern Railroad Company and the Railway Company are distinct corporate entities, each with its own properties, security holders and creditors; the rights and interests of the estate, security holders and creditors of the Railway Company are in direct, important and immediate conflict with the rights and interests of the estates, security holders and creditors of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and of International-Great Northern Railroad Company; although petitioner believes that Mr. Thompson has desired to be fair and just to all interests in the performance of his services as sole Trustee of said Companies, the said conflicts of interest make it impossible for the same person properly to serve as Trustee of the properties and interests of all of said estates; it is of paramount and urgent importance to the Railway Company and its estate, security holders and creditors—whatever may be the form of ultimate reorganization of the Railway Company—that, by correction of present improper and inequitable practices and by proper adjustment of past accounts, the true income of the Railway Company during the continuance of this reorganization proceeding and for such periods in the past as shall prove material should be correctly and properly ascertained and such accountings and recoveries had, for the estate of the Railway Company, as shall be proper and equitable; and only through the immediate appointment for the Railway Company of a separate, independent trustee having no adverse interests can proper, prompt and vigorous action be taken and prosecuted for the protection and enforcement of the rights and interests of the Railway Company, its estate, security holders and creditors.

Wherefore, petitioner prays

(a) that the Court appoint a separate trustee for the properties of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and its subsidiaries, The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company, San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf Railroad Company and Houston North Shore Railway Company, with full power, subject to the control of this Court and to the lawful regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to operate said properties in the interest of said Companies, their estates, security holders and creditors, and independent of the Trustee or Trustees of the properties of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company; and

(b) for such other and further relief as shall be just and equitable.

Third Supplemental Report of the Commission.

Division 4, Commissioners Meyer, Eastman, Brainerd and Mahaffie.

By Division 4:

The original application in this proceeding was filed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company on January 29, 1932. The amount of the loan then sought from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, hereinafter called the Finance Corporation, was $23,250,000 for certain specified purposes. The application was supplemented March 10, 1932, and March 17, 1932, to meet the requirements of Circular No. 2 of the Finance Corporation and to increase the total loans applied for in the original application by $1,400,000. The aggregate loans sought by the applicant thus became $24,650,000. Under dates of February 10, February 23 and March 23, 1932, we certified our approval of loans of $1,500,000, $2,800,000 and $12,800,000, respectively, without prejudice in each instance to consideration of further loans upon the application. The circumstances are fully set forth in our reports, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Reconstruction Loan, 180 ICC 463; 180 ICC 509, and 184 ICC 3. These loans aggregating $17,100,000 have been made by the Finance Corporation and are secured by the pledge of collateral consisting of:

$22,250,000	Missouri Pacific First & Refunding, Series I, 5% bonds of 1981,
1,900,000	New Orleans, Texas & Mexico First 4½% bonds of 1956,
1,000,000	Denver & Rio Grande Western Refunding & Improvement 6% bonds of 1974,
11,475,000	Common stock of The Texas & Pacific Railway Company and
160,000	Common stock of Ft. Worth Belt Railway Company.

In addition to loans by the Finance Corporation, the applicant has borrowed from the Railroad Credit Corporation a total of $3,800,000 for interest requirements, and that corporation has loaned to the International-Great Northern Railroad Company $750,000 and has approved a further loan of $400,000 to that carrier. The total of advances by the Railroad Credit Corporation to the applicant and its subsidiary is thus $4,950,000.

On December 17, 1932, the applicant filed an amendment to the original application requesting a further loan under the provisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, approved January 22, 1932, as amended.* By the terms of that act our approval is a condition precedent to the granting of loans to railroad companies. We have made the required investigation.

*The power of the Finance Corporation to make loans under the Act was extended to January 21, 1934, by a proclamation of the President of the United States, dated December 8, 1932.

The Amended Application.

The applicant seeks a further loan of $4,300,000 for a period of three years for the purpose of paying taxes and of assisting the applicant in meeting interest and principal payments on equipment trust obligations and certain mortgage bonds due in the near future. The requirements of the additional loan as set forth in the amended application are as follows:

	Amount of Loan Requested.
On or before December 30, 1932.
To pay taxes amounting to $1,908,000 due not later than December 31, 1932	$1,900,000
On or before January 13, 1933.
To meet principal payment on applicant's Equipment Trust, Series 41, of $693,400, due January 15, 1933	600,000
On or before January 31, 1933.
To pay the following obligations due February 1, 1933:

	Principal	Interest
Pacific R. R. of Mo. 1st Mtg. Bonds		$ 139,920
Mo. Pac. 1st & Ref. Mtg. Bonds, Series A		446,013
Mo. Pac. 1st & Ref. Mtg. Bonds, Series I		1,530,000
Plaza-Olive Bldg. 1st Mtg. Bonds	$ 1,875	4,045
Equipment Trust Cts., Series A	153,000	19,890
	$154,875	2,139,868
Total		2,294,743

In its original application and in its supplemental application of March 17, 1932, the applicant represented that it was unable to obtain the necessary funds requested in whole or in part from any other source. In the present amendment to the application it asserts that this situation remains the same as previously stated.

The applicant states that no agreement has been made or will be made by it to pay any person, association, firm or corporation, either directly or indirectly, any commission or fee for the loan applied for, and that no such payments have been or will be made by the applicant.

Necessities of the Applicant.

In addition to the above-stated amount of $4,300,000 to meet requirements to and including February 1, 1933, the applicant will be faced with the necessity of providing cash to meet normal requirements to and including December 31, 1933, of $11,200,000, including similar requirements of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and the International-Great Northern Railroad Company. On May 1, 1933, there will mature $34,548,000, principal amount, of St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, River & Gulf, 50-year, First Mortgage, 4 per cent bonds. These bonds are a first lien upon 781.47 miles of the applicant's system, including its principal low-grade freight line from Valley Junction to Thebes, Illinois, its White River Division from Carthage, Missouri, to a point near Batesville, Arkansas and other mileage along the west bank of the Mississippi River from a point near Helena, Arkansas, to a point near Ferriday, Louisiana. They are also a first lien upon certain equipment and upon the first mortgage bonds of the Union Railway Company (of Memphis) and of the Western Coal and Mining Company. Under the applicant's First & Refunding Mortgage there is reserved a like principal amount of bonds available for refunding the River & Gulf 4s.

The applicant has filed with its amended application a statement of its cash position by months on an actual basis from January to October, 1932, inclusive, and on basis of carefully prepared estimates for the period November 1, 1932, to June, 1933, inclusive. At our request the applicant has also filed an additional monthly cash forecast for the last half of 1933. The estimates for the months of November, 1932, to July, 1933, inclusive, were prepared upon the assumption that traffic and earnings would continue, with seasonal variations, at about the present levels which are substantially lower than those experienced in the first half of 1932. Beginning with August, 1933, a continuing moderate increase in these levels has been anticipated. The estimates also anticipate continuance of the emergency increases in freight rates authorized in our decisions in Fifteen Per Cent Case, 1931, 178 ICC 539, 179 ICC 215, and the retention by the applicant subsequent to March 31, 1933, of the revenue derived from such increases. In the matter of non-operating income the estimates contemplate practically no receipts from dividends or interest, except such interest on advances to subsidiary companies as is being currently paid. Borrowings for applicant's requirements, including those covered by the present amendment to the application, are included in the total estimated receipts. No estimated cash requirement is shown in respect of the maturity of May 1st.

As to disbursements the forecast is made upon the assumption that payrolls will continue to reflect wages at current levels. Taxes are estimated to require slightly less cash outlay than during 1932. Estimated interest requirements include payments on all present and prospective borrowings, including loans from banks, the Railroad Credit Corporation and the Finance Corporation. Vouchers have been estimated to require cash expenditures at approximately the same rate as in 1932 and include payments due under contracts for purchase of stocks of certain terminal and land companies entered into in 1930. Payrolls and vouchers include estimated expenditures for a minimum program of additions and betterments at a rate slightly less than the experience of 1932. Intercompany transactions required to maintain minimum cash working balances with the several operating units of the system are forecast at approximately the same rate as in 1932.

The cash balance at the end of October, 1932, the latest month for which the actual figures are available, was $1,309,000. November with estimated borrowings of $200,- 000 ends with an estimated cash balance of $1,421,000. In December the estimate includes the item of $1,900,000 as the proceeds of the loan from the Finance Corporation covered by the present application and, per contra, a corresponding increase in tax vouchers. The cash balance at the end of 1932 is estimated to be $800,000. Similarly, through the months of 1933 estimated borrowings are so distributed in relation to cash requirements that the monthly balance of cash on hand is maintained at an average of approximately $1,000,000. At the end of 1933 the cash balance is estimated at $787,000.

As previously shown, the total loans from the Railroad Credit Corporation and the Finance Corporation, including the item of $1,900,000 for December 31 covered by the present application, amount to $23,950,000. Included in this sum is the item of $5,850,000 advanced by the Finance Corporation, with our approval, to meet 50 per cent of bank loans due April 1, 1932. The remainder, $18,100,000 represents the applicant's total borrowings of new money in 1932. Its cash forecast for 1933 includes estimates of new borrowings aggregating $13,600,000, including the two items totalling $2,400,000 covered by the present application. Thus the borrowings of new money in 1932 exceeded by $4,500,000 the estimated borrowings of new money in 1933, exclusive, of course, of the May 1st maturity of the River & Gulf bonds.

The maturity of the River & Gulf bonds represents not only the largest financial requirement in 1933, but by far the applicant's largest maturity until 1949. In addition, the other 1933 requirements, except those for which we may provide in this proceeding, place upon the applicant in the near future the necessity of providing substantial financial resources in some form.

In connection with any loan which we may approve upon the present application we shall expect the applicant within a reasonable time to formulate and present for our consideration a plan to meet the May 1st maturity.

Security.

For the additional loan now sought and for the existing loans, as well as for any further loans which we may approve upon the application, the applicant offers as security:

(a) Assignment to the Finance Corporation of advances by the applicant to its controlled companies, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, in the approximate amounts of $9,955,000 and $2,486,000, respectively, a total of $12,441,000;

(b) $10,000,000 (or such greater principal amount as we may approve) of the applicant's First & Refunding Mortgage, 5%, Series I bonds of 1981 which we may authorize upon proper application under section 20 (a) of the Interstate Commerce Act.

The collateral securing existing loans of $17,100,000 by the Finance Corporation has been hereinbefore described. This consists principally of 5%, Series I, bonds of 1981 issued under the applicant's first & Refunding Mortgage which is a direct first lien upon 5,575 miles of the applicant's system and, subject to $52,599,500 of divisional mortgages, is a first lien upon the remaining 1208 miles. Moreover, it is a first lien upon $23,703,000, par value, of the preferred capital stock of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company—one of the few Class I carriers which will earn their fixed charges in 1932. These bonds are currently quoted on the New York Stock Exchange at around 19. Within two years these bonds have sold on the same exchange at par. A block of $61,200,000 of these bonds was distributed in March, 1931, at 95. During the period since 1925 to date the price has ranged as high as 104, and the average market price over that period has been in excess of 85. In 1932 the applicant earned approximately 71% of the interest requirements on its First & Refunding bonds outstanding in the hands of the public.

The next important item of the collateral securing existing loans consists of $11,475,000, par value of the common capital stock of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company.

This stock is also listed on the New York Stock Exchange where it is currently quoted 15 bid, 20 asked. This is the stock which in 1928 sold at 194⅝ and has had an average price on that exchange in the last eight years of 84½.

The $1,900,000 of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico First 4½s of 1956 are currently quoted on the New Orleans Stock Exchange at around 20. These bonds sold on the same exchange as high as 100⅞ from date of issue in 1927. The average price to date has been 76. Until 1930 these bonds were legal investments for savings banks in the State of New York.

The 5%, Series B, bonds of 1978, issued under Denver & Rio Grande Western Refunding & Improvement mortgage are listed on the New York Stock Exchange where they are currently selling at around 17. Since their issue in 1928 they have sold on the same exchange as high as 95, and the average price since listing has been 68¾. The bonds under this mortgage which are pledged as security for the loans carry a 6% coupon which justifies a higher market rating than that of the 5s.

In our previous reports we have shown our valuations of the applicant's property and have referred to subsequent changes therein. The long-range market prices of the securities resting on that property and which are pledged to secure the reconstruction loans to the applicant we have here shown.

The advances aggregating approximately $12,441,000, upon which interest is being currently paid at the rate of 6% per annum, represent open account indebtedness to the applicant by two of its controlled companies accumulated over a period of five years. All of these advances were used to pay for additions and betterments to the properties, except that during the last two years certain of the advances to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company were made to overcome operating deficits. In the case of both of the controlled companies the obligations to repay the advances lie between their first mortgage bonds and their capital stock. In the case of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company they are senior as to the payment of interest on $17,000,000 of adjustment mortgage bonds, but junior to that bond issue as to security.

We have shown the current and long-term market quotations of the First Mortgage, 4½% bonds of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company. The capital stock of that carrier, of which there is but one issue, is currently quoted at around 16, with a price range for 8 years to a high of 159⅞ and an average price over that period of 114⅝. On basis of the current market quotations for the stock and bonds of the carrier the advances to it by the applicant bearing 6% interest would appear to have a comparable market value of about 24 per cent at which the total advances to that carrier would have a value of approximately $2,400,000.

Because its entire outstanding issues of capital stock is owned by the New Orleans, Texas & Pacific Railway Company it is impossible to make a similar computation of value for the advances to the International-Great Northern Railroad Company.

The assignment of advances by the applicant to its controlled companies and the pledge of additional bonds which we may authorize to be issued for the purpose under the applicant's First & Refunding Mortgage will improve the security for the total reconstruction loans to the applicant.

Conclusions.

We conclude:

1. That we should approve a further loan of not to exceed $2,500,000 to the applicant by the Finance Corporation, for a period not exceeding three years from the making of the advances thereon, for the purpose of paying taxes and the principal of equipment trust obligations, due December 31, 1932, and January 15, 1933, respectively, as hereinabove more fully described;

2. That the applicant should deposit with the Finance Corporation as security for the loan:

(a) Pledge of $10,000,000, principal amount, of the applicant's First & Refunding Mortgage, Series I, 5% bonds of 1981, or such other principal amount of such bonds as we may authorize to be issued for the purpose;

(b) Pledge of $93,200, par value, of the capital stock of the American Refrigerator Transit Company, excepting therefrom such shares thereof as may be required to qualify directors;

(c) Pledge of $75,000, principal amount, of the first mortgage, 6 per cent bonds of the Prescott & Northwestern Railroad Company of October 1, 1934, and

(d) Assignment of advances by the applicant to its controlled companies, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company and International-Great Northern Railroad Company, in the approximate amounts of $9,955,000 and $2,486,000, respectively, a total of $12,441,000, which assignment should be in form satisfactory to the Finance Corporation;

3. That the applicant should agree with the Finance Corporation that all of the security for this and any other loan by that corporation to the applicant shall apply equally and ratably as security for all of such loans;

4. That the Finance Corporation will be adequately secured under these conditions, and

5. That the applicant should be required to report to the Finance Corporation and to us, in writing, within 30 days from the making of the advances upon the loan, the expenditure of the proceeds thereof for the purposes for which the loan is authorized.

An appropriate certificate of approval will be issued.

(Memorandum as to Order No. 2303 of the District Court directing hearing to determine whether the plan of reorganization should be confirmed, etc.)

On May 10, 1943 the District Court entered Order No. 2303. This Order directed that there would be a hearing before the Court on the 17th day of June, 1943 to determine whether the plan of reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, principal debtor, and of the other intervening debtors in the above entitled proceeding, should be confirmed, and to determine any and all other matters relevant thereto.

(Opinion of District Court on remanding the plan of reorganization dated April 9, 1940, to the Interstate Commerce Commission.)

(Filed July 29, 1943.)

[Memorandum No. 2356]

In the
District Court of the United States
For the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

The plan for the reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and its subsidiaries is before this Court for the second time. On July 12, 1941, we entered an order approving the plan which had been certified by the Interstate Commerce Commission and overruling objections to the plan which had been duly presented here. The dissatisfied interests thereupon took appeals to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

On October 9th, 1941, the Commission ordered the plan submitted to a vote, as is contemplated by subsection (e) of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, which governs these proceedings. Votes were cast by creditors on November 19, 1941, and on March 28, 1942, the Commission certified the results of the balloting, showing that not every class of creditors approved the plan by a favorable vote of at least two-thirds in amount of allowed claims of each class. In fact, in each of six of the total of sixteen classes voting, a majority voted against the plan.

Appeals were argued and briefs submitted to the Circuit Court of Appeals, but no ruling on the merits of the objections was made by that Court. The Supreme Court had granted certiorari in the matters of the reorganization of the Western Pacific Railroad Company, ... U. S. ..., and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company, ... U. S. ... While the Missouri Pacific matter was pending in the Circuit Court of Appeals, the two above mentioned cases were argued and submitted to the Supreme Court, which handed down its decisions on March 15, 1943, Group of Institutional Investors, et al. v. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Co., et al., 63 Sup. Ct. 727, ... U. S. ...; Frederick H. Ecker, et al. v. Western Pacific Railroad Corp., et al., 63 Sup. Ct. 692, ... U. S. ... It was then deemed expedient to have the Missouri Pacific matter reconsidered here, and the Circuit Court of Appeals, by its order of May 8, 1943, remanded the appeals to this Court. Further specific objections were then filed in this Court and a hearing on those objections was had on July 16, 1943.

Our opinion on our first disposition of the plan, reported at 39 Fed. Sup. 436, contains a brief historical survey of this matter from the time debtor's petition was filed, March 31, 1933, to the date of the opinion, June 20, 1941, as well as a discussion of the debtor's affairs and features of the plan, none of which need be repeated here; nor do we find it necessary to retract any of our former views in order to conform to the opinions of the Supreme Court in the Western Pacific and Milwaukee decisions, supra. The matters now before the Court result from intelligence gained since our first disposition of the matter and were not before us at that time.

Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U. S. C. 205), subsection (e), provides:

> "Upon the certification of a plan by the Commission to the court, the court shall give due notice to all parties in interest of the time within which such parties may file with the court their objections to such plan, and such parties shall file, within such time as may be fixed in said notice, detailed and specific objections in writing to the plan and their claims for equitable treatment. The judge shall, after notice in such manner as he may determine to the debtor, as trustee or trustees, stockholders, creditors, and the Commission, hear all parties in interest in support of, and in opposition to, such objections to the plan and such claims for equitable treatment. After such hearing, and without any hearing if no objections are filed, the judge shall approve the plan if satisfied that: (1) it complies with the provisions of subsection (b) of this section, is fair and equitable, affords due recognition to the rights of each class of creditors and stockholders, does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders, and will conform to the requirements of the law of the land regarding the participation of the various classes of creditors and stockholders; (2) the approximate amounts to be paid by the debtor, or by any corporation or corporations acquiring the debtor's assets, for expenses and fees incident to the reorganization, have been fully disclosed so far as they can be ascertained at the date of such hearing, are reasonable, are within such maximum limits as are fixed by the Commission, and are within such maximum limits to be subject to the approval of the judge; (3) the plan provides for the payment of all costs of administration and all other allowances made or to be made by the judge, except that allowances provided for in subsection (c), paragraph (12) of this section, may be paid in securities provided for in the plan if those entitled thereto will accept such payment, and the judge is hereby given power to approve the same."

The first objection is based on the rule announced by Mr. Justice Douglas in the Milwaukee case, supra, that where a senior lienor receives securities in reorganization, including junior securities, of the face amount of his former lien, and junior lienors likewise participate in the reorganization plan, then the senior lienor must be given something additional to fully compensate him for his loss of seniority. And it was further held that it is the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the District Court to weigh the value of the new securities given the senior lienor and determine whether in the matter of increased participation in earnings, assets or control, they yield valuable new rights which are sufficient to compensate the senior lienor for his loss of seniority. Under the old equity practice which antedates Section 77, the "full priority" rule was announced in the case of Northern Pacific Ry. Co. v. Boyd, 228 U. S. 482. This rule was incorporated in Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act, Consolidated Rock Products Co. v. DuBois, 312 U. S. 510; Case v. Los Angeles Lumber Products Co., 308 U. S. 106. In the Milwaukee opinion, supra, Mr. Justice Douglas stated, l. c. . . .:

"The rule of the Boyd case 'protects the rights of senior creditors against dilution either by junior creditors or by equity interests.' Marine Harbor Properties, Inc. v. Manufacturers Trust Co., supra. That view has not been contested here. Hence, as we indicated in the Consolidated Rock Products case, where junior interests participate in a plan and where the senior creditors are allotted only a face amount of inferior securities equal to the face amount of their claims, they 'must receive, in addition, compensation for the senior rights which they are to surrender.' 312 U. S. 529. And we stated that whether they should 'be made whole for the change in or loss of their seniority by an increased participation in assets, in earnings or in control, or in any combination thereof, will be dependent on the facts and requirements of each case.' Id., p. 529. We felt that result was made necessary by the ruling in the Boyd case that, 'If the value of the road justified the issuance of stock in exchange for old shares, the creditors were entitled to the benefit of that value, whether it was present or prospective, for dividends or only for purposes of control.' 228 U. S. p. 508. We adhere to that view. Unless that principle is respected, there will be serious invasions of the rights of senior claimants to the benefit of junior interests. The property of one group will be subtly appropriated to pay the claims of another group while lip service is rendered the principles of priority."

"Some argument is advanced that under this plan the General Mortgage bondholders do receive as against the junior interests compensatory treatment which is adequate to make up for the seniority rights which they are to surrender . . ."

"But neither the Commission nor the District Court considered the problem. As we have indicated, the question whether senior creditors have received 'full compensatory treatment' rests in the informed judgment of the Commission and the Court. A decision on that issue involves a consideration of the numerous investment features of the old and new securities and a financial analysis of many factors . . . Our conclusion on the point is that, since junior interests are participating in the plan, the Commission and the District Court should determine what the General Mortgage bonds should receive in addition to a face amount of inferior securities equal to the face amount of their old ones, as equitable compensation, qualitative or quantitative, for the loss of their senior rights."

In behalf of holders of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds and holders of Frst Mortgage Bonds and Income Bonds of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, it is contended that each of them has lost seniority rights under the plan formulated by the Commission, and that the question as to whether there has been full compensation for such loss has not been considered. We think this is true.

In the "Commission's Report", Finance Docket No. 9918, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Reorganization, the Commission described the lien of the Missouri Pacific First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds (p. 12027 et seq. of the permanent record of the reorganization proceedings):

"The bonds are secured by a first lien on about 5,400 miles of railroad of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and have also a lien on some 1,200 miles subject to the prior liens of about $50,000,000 of bonds secured by the various underlying mortgages. They are also secured by a first lien upon practically all the equipment owned by the Missouri Pacific, and are secured by the debtor's equity in all equipment now subject to equipment trust. They are further secured by various collateral, the most important of which consist of 2,851 shares of the capital stock of the American Refrigerator Transit Company, about 57 percent of the outstanding stock of that company, and 237,030 shares, being the entire issue, of the 5-percent non-cumulative preferred stock of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company, the dividend on which has been earned since 1935, and is being currently paid."

Discussing the allocation of securities in the new company, the Commission stated in its report (p. 12194 of the permanent record):

"The claim of holders of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company first and refunding mortgage 5 percent bonds of 1965-81 constitutes by far the largest class in total amount of creditors in this proceeding. As of January 1, 1940, the total of the claim was $295,134,-203. The lien of the mortgage securing these bonds has been hereinbefore described. Within the limitations of the permissible capitalization of the new company and total issuable amounts of the several kinds of new securities as determined herein and in view of the permissible capitalization found by us for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and the requirements for satisfaction of other claims having prior or equal liens against the property, it is necessary that the first and refunding bondholders, in order that they may receive the full recognition of their claim to which they are entitled, receive some new securities of each class provided for under our plan (excepting the 10-year notes and series-A first-mortgage bonds, which are to be used exclusively in satisfaction of prior claims or claims entitled to special treatment as heretofore described)."

"The amount of each new class of security which should be allocated to the first and refunding mortgage bondholders has been developed on the record as a matter for the exercise of judgment based principally upon a consideration of the relative treatment that should be accorded the first and refunding mortgage bondholders, the New Orleans first mortgage and income mortgage bondholders, and the International first mortgage bondholders."

According to the plan of reorganization, holders of the Missouri Pacific first and refunding bonds are to get approximately 30% of first mortgage bonds in the new company and the remainder in various classes of inferior securities, including preferred and common stocks, and junior lienors likewise participate in the reorganization. It does not appear from the Commission's report that it has considered the question of full priority treatment from the viewpoint decreed by the Supreme Court in the Milwaukee case, supra. Since treatment of the reorganization plan lies in the first instance with the Commission, it is therefore necessary in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of Section 77 to refer the matter back to the Commission for further consideration.

A detailed examination of the objection of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico bondholders will not be necessary here, but it is sufficient to say that their situation is in all respects similar to that of the Missouri Pacific first and refunding group, and consideration must likewise be given to their plea for full priority treatment.

In behalf of other bondholders, junior to those mentioned above, but senior to other claimants participating in the reorganization, it is contended that the rule of full priority treatment applies to them, in turn, after full compensation has been made to underlying liens. These objectors are the first-mortgage bondholders of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company. We think the sense of the Boyd, Consolidated Rock Products, Western Pacific and Milwaukee cases, supra, is that a correct application of the rule of full priority treatment requires a recognition of the right these bondholders contend for. In other words, a lienor having prime seniority must receive full compensation including compensation for lost seniority before anything can be given to lienors having secondary seniority. Then, if any assets remain, the liens of secondary seniority must be fully compensated for, including compensation for lost seniority, before anything can be given to lienors having tertiary seniority. And so on down the line.

It might be well to point out, however, that nothing in the Milwaukee case indicates that new securities in face amount greater than the face amount of the retired lien need be allocated in order to give full compensation. The Milwaukee opinion states, l. c. . . ., that compensation for lost seniority may consist of "increased participation in assets, in earnings or in control". Thus a senior lienor, having been deprived of his full seniority in a reorganization plan, may receive a mixture of senior and junior securities in the new company, equal to the bare face value of his claim, and yet have been fully compensated for his loss of seniority by increased participation in earnings or control.

All interested parties in this matter seem to be in agreement on the second objection, that changed conditions since the plan was formulated now make it inequitable. The revenues and earnings of this road, like others, has increased tremendously during the past few years, resulting in a sizable increment of cash. As of June 30, 1943, the system's balance sheet showed cash items of $125,195,562.64. On December 31, 1939, just a short time prior to the effective date of the plan under consideration, the amount was $16,326,749.37; that was considered by the Commission to represent the bare minimum of working capital needed by the system. Thus there has been an increase of $108,868,813.27 during the period noted. Even after setting aside a working fund and reserves for taxes and other deferred charges, $57,822,419 of the amount on hand remains, clear and unencumbered, and in excess of debtor's business needs. In other words, a surplus of over 10% of the proposed capitalization of $560,000,000 would accrue to the new stockholders if the plan of reorganization were consummated now. Debtor's assets, according to its balance sheet, have increased from $796,522,113 on December 31, 1939, to $932,171,782 on April 30, 1943, an increase of $135,649,569 for approximately the same period as noted above. At the same time, there have been substantial additions to the railroad plant in the way of Additions and Betterments, representing an investment of over $48,000,000 since 1938.

Greatly increased earnings were realized by both the Western Pacific and Milwaukee roads pending final hearings on their respective plans of reorganization, and in each case objections were raised because of that circumstance. Nevertheless, the respective District Courts having jurisdiction of those reorganizations refused to send the plans back to the Interstate Commerce Commission and these rulings were upheld on review. In the case before us, however, we are viewing the situation at a later date and the record presents a much stronger case in favor of the objectors than was true in either the Western Pacific or Milwaukee cases.

Evidence in the Milwaukee case brought the record on cash and earnings down through the year 1941, and while the most recent years showed earnings far in excess of what the Commission had determined to be a "normal" year, these earnings did not equal the best year in the company's history, nor does it appear from the facts stated in the opinion that the cash items, at the time of the hearing, bulked as large in proportion to the proposed capitalization as is the case with the Missouri Pacific.

The record in the Western Pacific case was brought down through November, 1942. It was shown that earnings sufficient to pay all charges and allow a $3 dividend on the new common stock had been realized in 1942 by only seven months operations, but on the other hand had been attained in only three other years of the road's entire history.

In the Missouri Pacific matter, we are able to view affairs from the perspective of 1943, and we find that cash has continued to accumulate at an unusual rate. With due respect to the Interstate Commerce Commission and its meticulous study of this railroad system, we believe that operations on the present scale were not envisioned in its picture of this system's affairs. The Commission's study of earnings available for fixed charges in past years covered the years 1925 to 1936, inclusive. The largest earnings during that period were realized in the year 1929, amounting to slightly over 34 million dollars. (To present the full picture, we will note that earnings sank below 6 million dollars in 1935, and that from 1931 to 1940, earnings were insufficient to meet all fixed charges.) Comparable figures for recent years show earnings in excess of 30 million for the year 1941, over 66 million for the year 1942 and slightly more than 24 million for the first five months of 1943 (yielding a rough estimate of some 57 million for the entire year of 1943). The Commission's estimated "normal" year is a little over 22 million dollars. Looking at the figures for total railway operating revenue, which would be some 129 million in a "normal" year according to the Commission's estimate, we find that 1941 yielded 144 million dollars; 1942, 231 million dollars; an estimated 271 millions in 1943 and about the same in 1944. (The estimates issued from the debtor's Trustee.) At the same time, the railway operating ratio, which is the ratio of total railway operating expense to the above figure, stood at 68.99 in 1941, 56.74 in 1942 and 52.16 for the first five months of 1943, indicating more profitable operations in each successive period.

While it was held in the Western Pacific case, supra, that the Commission need not indulge the presumption that the road will ever enjoy traffic in such volume as to use the full extent of its facilities, nevertheless when we are faced with the established fact that something closely approaching this situation has been attained, and has resulted in a large accumulation of surplus cash, we believe that that circumstance should be taken into account in determining whether a reorganization plan should not be revised in view of changed conditions arising since the formulation of the plan, in order to be fair and equitable as those terms are understood in law.

The Commission's own report indicates that its judgment would have been different had it been in a position to make use of cash in the amount now available. Referring to five underlying bond issues which had matured in 1938 and on which current interest was being paid at the time of the hearing before the Commission, it said (Permanent Record, p. 12163):

> ". . . there appears to be no doubt that these obligations, matured in 1938, are entitled to cash payment, or as near to its equivalent as is practicable."

The issues referred to are the Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri first-mortgage 3-percent bonds in the amount of $6,996,000; Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri Carondelet branch first-mortgage 4½-percent bonds in the amount of $238,000; Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri second-mortgage 5-percent bonds in the amount of $2,573,000; Missouri Pacific Railway Company third-mortgage 4-percent bonds in the amount of $3,828,000; and Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri real-estate mortgage 5-percent bonds in the amount of $799,000. An issue of collateral-trust 10-year notes, bearing 3½ percent, in the amount of $14,434,000 was provided to liquidate these five underlying bond issues. The language quoted above suggests that these issues would have been paid off in cash if it had been available in sufficient amount at the time the plan was formulated.

Likewise, provision was made for the issuance of securities to reimburse the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and J. P. Morgan and Company for money loaned, but it was contemplated that these claims should be diminished as much as possible pending consummation of a plan of reorganization. There is a strong likelihood that here too, cash, if available, would have been used to liquidate claims.

It appears, therefore, that if the Commission is still of the same opinion, the accumulated cash might well be used to liquidate some or all of these especially preferred claims. Since full priority treatment of senior lienors may involve the allocation of additional securities to those groups, that may then be accomplished without disturbing the proposed financial structure to the extent that might have been necessary had this cash not been available.

We think the Commission might also consider the record of the past few years, if its best judgment so dictates, as bearing on a possible revision of the system's valuation. Recent earnings, together with the present enhanced value of the road, might justify a higher valuation of the property, and at the same time be compatible with the public interest. Valuation is, of course, a matter entirely within the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, provided only that proper legal criteria are used.

Another objection urged, this in behalf of the debtor, is that the dissent of a majority of each of six out of sixteen groups of creditors voting on the plan requires this Court as a matter of law to refer the matter back to the Commission. The theory of this argument is that the provisions of Section 77, subsection (e), relative to approval of a reorganization plan when two-thirds of each group of creditors is in accord, contemplate a means for effecting a reorganization over the obstructing tactics of a dissenting minority. But it is said that the section also contemplates that "arbitrary compulsion of plans over the dissents of the interested classes is not intended, nor is it believed that the courts will override dissents by any large number of such classes, or by a single large class, excepting where it is established that they have no interest in the property . . .". The quotation is from a statement by the then Federal Co-Ordinator of Railroads filed with the House and Senate referring to the bill drafted under his supervision and which later emerged as Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act. This is cited as part of the legislative history of the act, said to have great persuasive force in its interpretation. Such interpretation should be resorted to, however, only where a statute is ambiguous. U. S. v. Standard Brewery, Inc., 251 U. S. 310; Helvering v. N. Y. Trust Co., 292 U. S. 455. And in view of the great stress on the public interest in railroad reorganizations, expressed in the Western Pacific and Milwaukee cases, supra, we do not feel constrained at this time to rule that a plan of reorganization may not be confirmed over the objections of a majority of one or more classes of creditors. We can conceive of a situation where one or more classes of creditors would vote against a plan even though it had met all legal requirements including those of fairness and equity. According to the contention here made, the Court cannot override the creditor's veto and the reorganization process might then be continued indefinitely and perhaps forever. This is not to be countenanced. Against the public interest, even a large group of creditors may be considered to be but a dissident and obstructive minority. Of course, in the event of such an impasse, the Court might dismiss the proceedings, but this is discretionary and need not be resorted to where a fair plan is produced.

However, it is readily conceded that if substantial agreement can be had, a more desirable end will have been reached. For other reasons, stated above, we must refer this matter back to the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is alleged by certain of the parties appearing here that a compromise plan has now been contrived which will meet the approval of substantially all the parties. Other interests have taken exception to this statement. Nevertheless, if a close approach to unanimity among the groups can be had on the compromise plan, and if the Commission finds that the public interest will be served by such a plan, unquestionably that would offer the best solution to the problem.

There is one small point remaining, which perhaps requires comment. The Western Pacific and Milwaukee cases, supra, have held that the Commission may fix a date, other than the date of debtor's petition, as the effective date of a plan. In view of the lapse of time since the present plan was certified to this Court by the Commission, it would be well, we think, to fix another effective date when a plan is again certified, regardless of what other changes are made by the Commission.

For the reason that no consideration has been given by the Commission to compensation for loss of seniority rights, and for the further reason that the changed conditions arising since the formulation of the Plan make it desirable that the Commission should have further opportunity to consider whether the Plan as formulated can be improved upon at this time, the Plan of Reorganization certified to this Court on April 9th, 1940, is referred back to the Interstate Commerce Commission, together with the record and all of the papers forwarded by the Commission to this Court with the Plan, to be further considered.

GEO. H. MOORE,

Order

That the Plan of Reorganization Be Not Confirmed and That the Case Be Referred Back to the Interstate Commerce Commission for Further Proceedings.

(Filed July 29, 1943.)

[Order No. 2356]

In the
District Court of the United States
For the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

The Interstate Commerce Commission having certified to this Court, by certificate dated March 28, 1942 and filed herein, that six of the sixteen classes of creditors and stockholders to whom the same was submitted have rejected, by the votes stated in said certificate, the plan of reorganization which was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its Order and Supplemental Order dated January 10, 1940 and April 9, 1940, respectively, and by this Court in its Order dated July 12, 1941; and the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit having, by its order dated May 8, 1943, ordered that the appeals taken to it from this Court's approval of the plan of reorganization be remanded to this Court for the purpose of holding a hearing on confirmation of the plan, and if this Court be so advised, for the purpose of referring the matter of the plan back to the Interstate Commerce Commission for further consideration, said order of the Circuit Court of Appeals reciting that all or substantially all creditors and stockholders, including the Debtor, parties to such appeals, were in agreement that the matter of a plan should be referred back to the Commission; and this Court having, by its Order of May 10, 1943, as supplemented by its Order of June 17, 1943, fixed July 16, 1943, for a hearing to determine whether said plan of reorganization shall be confirmed and to determine any and all matters relevant thereto, and notice of this hearing having been given to all parties in interest in the manner provided by this Court's order; and the Protective Committee for Holders of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company First & Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, the Committee for Holders of First Mortgage Bonds and Income Bonds of New Orleans Texas & Mexico Railway Company, and Savings Banks Trust Company Representing Mutual Savings Banks in New York holding said Bonds, the Protective Committee for Holders of St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company River & Gulf Divisions 4% First Mortgage Bonds, the Protective Committee for the General Mortgage Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Alleghany Corporation and the Debtor, having filed herein their motion, made July 16, 1943, reciting, among other things, that the plan of reorganization was rejected by six of the sixteen classes of creditors and stockholders as aforesaid and that it does not appear that the Commission considered the problem of compensation to creditors as it must under the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in Group of Institutional Investors, et al. v. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Co., et al., 87 L. Ed. 687, and that there has been a substantial change in conditions, particularly the increase in cash items, since the time when the Commission approved the plan, which raises a serious question as to whether the Plan is fair and equitable; and it appearing to the Court that the Debtor and representatives of the major classes of creditors and stockholders, including the moving parties aforesaid, are in agreement that the plan of reorganization should not be confirmed by this Court and are further in agreement that the case should be referred back to the Commission; and it appearing to this Court that the Debtor and such representatives, including the moving parties, have reached an agreement on modifications of the plan of reorganization; and the Court at the hearing to determine whether the plan shall be confirmed and any and all matters relevant thereto having heard the parties in interest in support of, and no one appearing in opposition to, said motion that this Court not confirm the plan and that it enter an order referring the case back to the Interstate Commerce Commission for further proceedings in accordance with the provisions of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended, and in respect of other relevant matters, and the parties having presented additional evidence at said hearing and the Court having heard arguments of counsel thereon, and the Judge of this Court having filed herein on July 29, 1943, his opinion stating his conclusions with respect to the confirmation of the plan and his reasons therefor and his conclusions in view of the changed conditions; it is thereupon

Ordered:

That the case be and hereby is referred back to the Interstate Commerce Commission, pursuant to subsection (e) of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended, for further proceedings in accordance with the applicable provisions of said Section 77, including the consideration of modifications of the plan or the proposal of new plans.

The Clerk of this Court shall forthwith transmit to said Commission (a) a copy of all evidence received by this Court at said hearing on confirmation; (b) a copy of the opinion of this Court stating his conclusions with respect to the confirmation of the plan and the reasons therefor, and (c) a certified copy of this order.

Dated July 29, 1943.

Finance Docket No. 9918

Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Reorganization

The above-entitled proceeding is assigned for further public hearing under the provisions of section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended, on October 19, 1943, at 9:30 A. M., at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, N. Y., before Director Oliver E. Sweet and Examiner R. H. Jewell, of the Bureau of Finance of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The hearing is to be held for the purpose of receiving further evidence with respect to the matters requiring further consideration by the Commission pursuant to the opinion and order of the District Court of the United States, Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri, entered July 29, 1943, referring the proceedings back to the Commission, including evidence in support of and in opposition to a compromise plan filed with the Commission on September 28, 1943.

The parties who intend to introduce evidence are requested to transmit copies of any exhibits which they expect to present to the Commission's, Bureau of Finance and the parties to the proceedings on or before October 11, 1943.

Afternoon Session 2:00 P. M.

(Whereupon, the hearing was resumed, pursuant to recess.)

Director Sweet: Come to order, gentlemen.

Mr. Biggs: I have a petition to intervene on behalf of Helen J. Comstock, as the owner of common stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad.

Director Sweet: Will you distribute copies and then call it to our attention again during the afternoon, when there is an opportunity for anybody to make any objection they want to make. Just distribute them to the parties who are here.

Will you continue with your testimony, Mr. Wyer?

The Witness: Before lunch I was describing the alternative offers of securities, on the one hand, against cash, on the other.

Now, of course, the calculations which bring the total captalization of this proposed plan down to the total capitalization of the Commission Plan are based upon the assumption that all security holders will accept the cash offer. There may, of course, be some security holders who will not accept the cash offer, and if any of them do not, then unless there were some way to correct it, you would have the possibility of a higher capitalization than provided in the Commission Plan.

For example, if you look at Schedule A in Exhibit 883, you will notice that if a First & Refunding, Series A Bondholder accepts the security offer instead of the cash offer, he gets $274. of Class A Common instead of $71.10 in cash, so that to the extent of the difference between those two figures, or approximately $203, the outstanding capitalization of the new company would be increased over and above the assets that were there to support it.

Now, in order to provide a mechanism for correcting that, this Plan provides that in the event any security

(Whereupon, the hearing was resumed, pursuant to recess.)

Director Sweet: Come to order, gentlemen.

Mr. Biggs: I have a petition to intervene on behalf of Helen J. Comstock, as the owner of common stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad.

Director Sweet: Will you distribute copies and then call it to our attention again during the afternoon, when there is an opportunity for anybody to make any objection they want to make. Just distribute them to the parties who are here.

Will you continue with your testimony, Mr. Wyer?

The Witness: Before lunch I was describing the alternative offers of securities, on the one hand, against cash, on the other.

Now, of course, the calculations which bring the total captalization of this proposed plan down to the total capitalization of the Commission Plan are based upon the assumption that all security holders will accept the cash offer. There may, of course, be some security holders who will not accept the cash offer, and if any of them do not, then unless there were some way to correct it, you would have the possibility of a higher capitalization than provided in the Commission Plan.

For example, if you look at Schedule A in Exhibit 883, you will notice that if a First & Refunding, Series A Bondholder accepts the security offer instead of the cash offer, he gets $274. of Class A Common instead of $71.10 in cash, so that to the extent of the difference between those two figures, or approximately $203, the outstanding capitalization of the new company would be increased over and above the assets that were there to support it.

Now, in order to provide a mechanism for correcting that, this Plan provides that in the event any security holder prefers the security option, the cash which he turns down and which he otherwise would have gotten if he had taken the cash option, is turned over to the Reorganization Managers and they are authorized to buy the necessary securities to keep the capitalization within the total approved; that is, the total provided in the Plan on the basis of all security holders accepting the cash options.

That means, for example, that if a First & Refunding Bondholder takes the security option instead of the cash option, the Reorganization Managers are given that cash and they must be able to buy common stock at approximately 26 or better in order to counteract the effect of that security holder taking the security option instead of the cash option.

If the security holder who takes the security option is a New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Bondholder, then they must buy Series B General Mortgage Bonds at 62 or better in order to keep the capitalization within the total provided in the Plan.

Now, in connection with the purchases of Income Bonds, several of the large holders of Missouri Pacific securities who will receive Series B Income Bonds in connection with the Plan have indicated to Mr. Sturgis and me that they will provide enough Income Mortgage Bonds at 62 to permit this to be done if those bonds are not available in the open market, so that that insures that part of the Plan being carried out. They have enough securities so that they will be able to provide all the Income Bonds, Series B, at 62 necessary to carry out that part of the work of the Reorganization Managers in case any of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico First Mortgage Bondholders take the security option instead of the cash option, so that assures that the debt ratio—the ratio of debt to total capitalization—will not be disturbed by anybody taking the security option instead of the cash option.

Now, when you come down to the common stock, the Plan provides that the Reorganization Managers may purchase either the "A" Common or the "B" Common. Of course, whichever they purchase, it doesn't disturb the ratio between debt and stock. Either one accomplishes the same result of keeping the capitalization within the desired limit. As I said, they must purchase this at 26 or less in case anybody takes the security alternative.

As an example of what this may mean, the General Mortgage Bonds are now selling at approximately 21½, and they receive in this Plan nearly 14 shares of the new Class A Common, so that that is a price, at the present market, of approximately 15½ for the Class A Common. The Convertible Bonds are selling at present at about 10½, and they receive ten shares of the Class B Common in this Plan, so that is a market price at present of about 10½ for the new Class B Common.

Inasmuch as the Reorganization Managers can, if they have to, pay up to 26 for either the Class A or the Class B Common, there would appear to be plenty of margin between 26 and the present indicated prices of 15½ and 10½ for that stock so that they can make the necessary purchases if anybody should prefer the security alternative.

The Plan further provides that if the money not taken by security holders who take the security alternative is more than sufficient to buy the necessary stock or income bonds, so that there is some left over, that goes to retire other debt at market, so that this provision of the Plan has within it the possibility of improving the debt ratio further and reducing the capitalization below the $560,000,000. in case the securities can be bought at less than 62 for the Income Bonds and less than 26 for the Common Stock.

Mr. Sturgis and I think that this feature of the Plan is entirely feasible and that it will not result in increasing the total capitalization above that provided in the Plan, but that, on the contrary, it will result in decreasing the total capitalization if anybody takes the security alternative.

Exam. Jewell: Is the exercise of the option dependent upon the Reorganization Managers being able to buy the Income Bonds and the stock at the appropriate prices?

The Witness: No, the exercise of the option is absolute; that is, the security holder has the choice, and then if he takes the choice, the cash is turned over to the Reorganization Managers and they buy whatever they can buy.

As I have said, in case of the Income Bonds, they know they can buy that at 62 because that commitment has been given. They do not know whether they can buy the stock, of course, at 26.

It simply looks, on the part of the current market, as if there was plenty of margin so that they could be sure that the stock was not selling above 26. There is no condition attached to the alternative. The security holder has that absolutely.

Director Sweet: And then there is no limitation on the price the Reorganization Managers may pay for other securities?

The Witness: No, there is not as to the stock. They would have to pay the current market, and I imagine that if they had to pay more than 26, they would spend all their money and buy as much as they could, and you would have a slight increase in the capitalization which would be represented in common stock.

As I say, however, we think that the danger of that is very remote.

Exam. Jewell: Could a creditor who is entitled to General Mortgage Bonds and who exercised the option to take the General Mortgage Bonds—could his cash be used to purchase stock?

The Witness: No, his cash would have to be used to purchase the bonds. Those we know can be purchased at the necessary price.

Director Sweet: Mr. Biggs, you offered this petition for leave to intervene on behalf of Helen J. Comstock awhile ago?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct.

Director Sweet: Have you distributed copies?

Mr. Biggs: I have.

Director Sweet: Is there any objection to receiving this?

(No response.)

Director Sweet: The petition is granted. You may proceed, Mr. Biggs.

Cross-Examination.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Mr. Wyer, who employed you to prepare this Plan of Reorganization and prepare these exhibits and appear here today?

A. I was asked to do this by several of the representatives of security holders of the Missouri Pacific, and Mr. Young, Chairman of the Board of the Alleghany Corporation, agreed that if I would do it, he would pay my charges for that.

However, it was understood that I was to act as a mediator. I was not to be employed by Alleghany Corporation alone; I was acting as a mediator for all representatives interested in the Plan.

Q. If I understand you correctly, all compensation you receive for your efforts in regard to this Plan will come from the Alleghany Corporation; is that correct?

A. Yes. I understood that that was Alleghany's contribution to the efforts to get an agreement.

Mr. Teitelbaum: May I say, Mr. Director, that at the time that commitment on the part of the Alleghany Corporation was made, it was with the reservation that it would be an appropriate expense in the proceeding. I take it that Alleghany would probably make an application for the reimbursement of Mr. Wyer's compensation.

Director Sweet: We will not settle that today.

Mr. Teitelbaum: I don't expect you to.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) There was no reservation as far as you were concerned, though? As far as you are concerned, you are looking to Alleghany; is that correct?

A. For my money, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have stated that you have negotiated with several parties in promulgating this Plan. Now, who were the parties that actually negotiated?

A. Well, Mr. Sturgis and I were the mediators, so to speak, and we would negotiate with various people. Some of them Mr. Sturgis would negotiate with; some of them I would. Sometimes we would both negotiate with them.

For the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Mr. Sturgis handled all of those negotiations, or all of the discussions with them. I understand he handled them with Mr. Frank C. Wright and Mr. James Homire. There may have been some others; I know that he talked with those two gentlemen.

As to the holders of the bank debt, Mr. Sturgis also handled that, and his conversations were with Mr. George Whitney, and I think Mr. Bovenizer of Kuhn-Loeb. He also had some discussions with some of the officers of the Guaranty Trust Company, but I don't know who those gentlemen were.

As to the First & Refunding Committee, the discussions were with Mr. Stedman, the Chairman; Mr. Conroy, the Secretary; Mr. Kitchel and Mr. McConanghy, of counsel; and there were also some meetings—two, I think—with the full committee at which Mr. Sturgis and I appeared.

The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Committee—the negotiations were almost entirely with Mr. Adkins, counsel for the Committee.

Q. Who did the negotiating with them, you or Mr. Sturgis?

A. Both of us.

As to the International-Great Northern First Mortgage Trustee, I think I handled most of those myself, although Mr. Sturgis handled some of them. There were Conversations with Mr. Lindsay Bradford of the City Bank, and Mr. Cole of counsel, and several of the other officers of the City Bank.

As to the General Mortgage Committee, the negotiations were handled by both of us with Mr. Delafield, the Chairman, and Mr. Freund, counsel.

Regarding the Trustee of the Serial 5¼s, those were handled, I think, entirely by Mr. Sturgis, and I believe he discussed those matters with Mr. Ottiwell of the Chemical Bank. He may have discussed it with others, but I know of Mr. Ottiwell as one with whom he discussed it.

The International-Great Northern Adjustments were handled by Mr. Sturgis, with Mr, Downing of the New York Trust Company and, I believe, others, although I do not know any other names.

The negotiations with the Iron Mountain Protective Committee were handled by both of us with Mr. Paige, the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Bachman, the Secretary; Mr. Bourne, counsel.

Q. With whom?

A. Mr. Bourne—B-o-u-r-n-e.

The Alleghany Corporation negotiations were handled by both of us with Mr. Young, Chairman of the Board; Mr. Bateman, one of his advisers, and counsel, Mr. Teitelbaum. I think that at one meeting Mr. Carl Newton appeared before he became President of the Chesapeake & Ohio.

The negotiations with the debtor were conducted by both of us, and the principal representative was Mr. T. C. Davis, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the debtor. Judge Pierce was also in on some of those negotiations as counsel.

There were some other negotiations early in the proceeding with some of the smaller issues. We had a Plan at one time that had been largely agreed upon, but that fell through. We did have some adherents among the smaller issues to this first Plan which we did not have time to get on this later Plan, so they are not involved in the final agreement and I will not mention them, unless you are particularly interested.

I think that covers everybody that I can think of. Probably there are some more who were involved in an occasional way, but those were the principal negotiators.

Q. Do I understand you correctly, then, that you haven't negotiated with the Cairo & Thebes, the Boonville and St. Louis Southern, the Central Branch Union Pacific, the Little Rock—

A. Not in connection with this latest Plan; we had some negotiations with the Cairo & Thebes, Central Branch Union Pacific early in the proceedings, but when that Plan fell through, we had to start over again and arrive at this Plan. The time element became so pressing that we did not go on and try to complete negotiations with the smaller issues.

Q. So you don't know whether any of those issues consent or not to this Plan, do you?

A. No, I don't know what the position of those smaller issues is.

Q. And did you confer with the independent stockholders of the NOT&M? By that I mean that portion of the stock that is owned by the general public?

A. No, we did not confer with anybody representing that.

Q. What about the NOT&M Income Bonds?

A. They are represented by the same committee that represents the First Mortgage Bonds. They have a number of the Incomes deposited with them, and when we were conferring with Mr. Adkins, we also were conferring with representatives of the Income Bonds as well as the Firsts.

Q. As I understand your testimony in regard to the NOT&M First Mortgage Bonds and also the Income Bonds, all of your conferences have been solely with Mr. Adkins; in that correct?

A. They have been principally with Mr. Adkins. I think there were some conversations with Mr. Walker, the Chairman of the Committee, but very limited. Mr. Adkins has been practically their sole representative, and I would say a very able one.

Q. There is no question about that. Have you personally conferred with Mr. Walker or any member of the Committee? A. No, I have not.

Q. As far as the First & Refunding Bonds are concerned, I understand that you conferred with the Stedman Committee, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And their counsel? A. Yes.

Q. Did you confer with any other holders or owners of bonds not deposited with the Stedman Committee?

A. Not as such. Of course, I believe Mr. Sturgis said this morning that his bank holds about $2,000,000. of the First & Refunding Bonds, but we did not try to find other holders than those deposited with the First & Refunding Committee.

There is one other group that I neglected to mention. There is an independent committee with whom we had one meeting after the Plan was pretty well along. I can't tell you the names of the members of that committee because I just met them once. However, I can get them for you. I understand that they represent independent holdings of First & Refunding Bonds, Convertibles, Serial 5¼s, General Mortgage 4s and possibly some other issues. I think perhaps I ought to get the names of that committee and the issues that were represented on that committee; but Mr. Sturgis and I did appear before that committee and got the concurrence of that committee to the Plan, although they are not a party to this case and are not represented by counsel. However, I can find out their names and the issues that they held and be glad to put that in the record.

Q. Are they going to appear here and announce their position, do you know?

A. I don't know; they have never intervened in this case, so far as I know. However, I will say this: That they were one of the parties who fought the Commission Plan very hard and urged people to vote against the Commission Plan.

We conferred with them because of the fact that they had originally opposed the Commission Plan. I understand that they all voted their bonds against the Commission Plan at the time of the voting.

Q. In regard to the Stedman Committee, do you know how many bonds they represent, Mr. Wyer?

A. I don't know exactly; I am sure they will be glad to tell you. I think it is somewhere around $65,000,000. or $70,000,000.

Q. Do you know what percentage of that is insurance company bonds? A. No.

Q. Do you know how many bonds the Walker Committee for the NOT&M represents?

A. No, I don't know; I think that is all in the record in this case as of earlier dates. As I say, I am sure that the representatives of these committees would be glad to tell you how many they do represent. I think they file reports with the New York Stock Exchange at intervals, showing what certificates of deposit they have outstanding and I think there is an arrangement in the First & Refunding Committee, where they have other bonds for which they do not issue certificates of deposit, to act with the Committee.

Q. Do you know whether they represent a majority or a minority of the bonds?

A. I think both those committees probably represent a minority of the bonds.

Mr. Kitchel: Mr. Director, at the hearing on confirmation of the Plan, a paper was filed showing the holdings of the various committees that were at that time opposing the Plan. It is already in the record.

Mr. Biggs: Isn't it true, Mr. Kitchel, that there has been a substantial decrease in the holdings of the Stedman Committee, for example, since that time?

Mr. Conroy: I would not say substantial, no.

Mr. Biggs: 5 per cent?

Mr. Conroy: Not as much as that; maybe it was one or two per cent. If you wish to know, I can get the exact amount for you and have it for you tomorrow morning.

Mr. Biggs: Haven't you filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission statements showing a reduction of more than 5 per cent. on several occasions?

Mr. Conroy: Yes, but not since the statement that Mr. Kitchel referred to.

Mr. Biggs: What was the date of that statement?

Mr. Kitchel: The date of the hearing on the confirmation of the Plan, whatever date that might have been.

Mr. Biggs: Was that July, 1940?

Mr. Kitchel: July, 1943, I think; it was the 17th or the 16th of July, 1943.

Mr. Biggs: You are talking about the hearing before Judge Moore?

Mr. Kitchel: On confirmation, yes; that is what I said in the first place.

Mr. Conroy: If the approximate figure will do, I think our committee now represents about $66,000,000. I can get the exact figure for you tomorrow if you wish.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to have it.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) You negotiated with the Delafield Committee. Do you know whether they represent a majority of the bonds? A. I don't believe so.

Q. They haven't even got deposit of the bonds in that committee, have they? A. I don't believe they have.

Q. Do you know under what right or authority they represent anybody?

A. No, I am not familiar with their arrangements with the bondholders. I know they have been represented in this proceedings for the last ten years.

Mr. Kirshbaum: The petition shows that this gentleman or his client owns only 43 shares of the common stock of the NOT&M Railroad—

Director Sweet: If he owns one share, he is entitled to proceed.

Mr. Kirshbaum: But there are more important interests, I think, Mr. Director.

Mr. Biggs: We represent other interests besides that.

Director Sweet: You may proceed, Mr. Biggs.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Now, in regard to the treatment of the General 4s, the General Mortgage 4% Bonds, as I understand from your Plan, they receive common stock for their General Mortgage Bonds; is that correct?

A. Yes, Class A Common.

Q. Class A Common Stock, and they receive, on the basis of $100. per share, that Class A Common Stock for the amount of their principal and interest?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do they receive anything else besides that under the terms of your Plan?

A. No, they receive the rights that go along with that; they join in the appointment of one of the Reorganization Managers.

Q. The Committee does that; the bondholders themselves do not, do they?

A. That is correct, the committee representing—

Q. But John Smith, bondholder, or Fred Wilson, whom I happen to represent—all he receives under the terms of your Plan is Class A Stock on a hundred dollar per share basis for his mortgage claim?

A. Yes, I think that is correct.

Q. The General Mortgage Bond—under the terms of his General Mortgage Bond he was a creditor of the Missouri Pacific? A. That is right.

Q. And he is changed from a creditor to a stockholder?

A. That is right.

Q. Your Plan also provides for the participation of the Convertible 5½s, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. They receive securities under the Plan? A. Yes.

[Q. They receive securities under the Plan? A. Yes.]

Q. And they, in the priority of lien, rank below the General 4s as creditors in the Missouri Pacific System?

A. Yes. Of course, you understand that in my testimony I made quite a number of explanations as to why they were ranked that way and the considerations that led their representatives to agree to accept that ranking.

Q. But the point I make, so that there will not be any question about it, is that they rank below the General 4s in the priority of lien, the Convertibles do?

A. Do you mean in the Plan or absolutely?

Q. Well, forgetting about the Plan, in the Missouri Pacific System as it is today.

A. As to all of the assets which secure the General Mortgage, the Convertibles rank junior in lien. Now, there is this highly controversial question as to whether there are free assets, what they are and how much they amount to and what claim the Convertibles have on them; but as to the bulk of the assets of the system, they do rank junior to the General 4s.

Q. And they do participate in the Plan? A. Yes.

Q. Passing from that to the 5¼s; that is, these Missouri Pacific secured Serial 5¼% Bonds. As I understand from your testimony, the allocation of securities to that particular class of creditors followed the same basis as in the old Plan of Reorganization?

A. We tried to make the relative treatment of the 5¼s, with respect to the other classes of securities, particularly the Generals and the I-GN Adjustments, adhere to the relative treatment provided in the Commission's Plan.

The absolute treatment was not the same because, of course, they got only common stock in the Commission's Plan and we offer them partly Class A Common and partly Class B Common, which are different securities than provided in the Commission's Plan. However, their relativity of treatment was, we think, maintained as set up in the Commission's Plan.

Q. The secured 5¼s have as collateral ten shares of the Common Stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad for each thousand dollar bond, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the total amount of stock deposited to secure this issue is 80 per cent. of the Common Stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad?

A. Approximately so, yes.

Q. In considering the treatment of the Serial 5¼s and the NOT&M Common Stock in the old Plan; that is, the original I. C. C. Plan, a claim in the Missouri Pacific in principal amount of approximately $10,000,000, in which, according to the statements, were accrued interest amounts to about $16,000,000, was taken ahead of and considered ahead of the treatment of those two classes of securities; is that correct?

A. I would think that was correct; I think a reading of the Commission's Plan would lead to that conclusion, yes.

Q. In allocating those securities to those two classes in your proposed Plan, did you take that claim into consideration or not?

A. I would say we did. That is one of the things that I meant when I said we maintained the same relativity of treatment between the 5¼s and the other classes of securities. I think that we took that claim into account just to the same extent that the Commission took it into account in its Plan.

Q. I understand by that that you did.

A. Yes, I would say that we did. You can't answer that categorically because I don't recall that the Commission states categorically that they did in their Plan, and we followed the Commission's Plan as to relativity of treatment. However, as I say, I think, in reading the Commission's Plan, you would be correct in arriving at the conclusion that they did take it into account and I think, therefore, that we took it into account to the same extent. With that qualification, I would say that we did take it into account.

Q. Let us assume that that claim is invalid and cannot be considered—

Mr. Homire: I would like to register an objection to this line of [questionng] because the validity of this claim has already been passed upon by the Commission under Section 20-A of the Interstate Commerce Act.

It was passed on by the Commission in its first Plan. No question was raised with respect to it in the District Court, and the matter went clear to the Circuit Court of Appeals without any question ever being raised challenging the validity of these notes as they were originally approved by the Comission under Section 20-A.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, this particular claim in question has never been allowed by the District Court in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, the Court of Bankruptcy with jurisdiction to allow or deny claims, and if it had not been for the press of time between the notice of this hearing and—why, a proceeding would have been filed by my clients to set aside and reject that claim.

I will take this particular moment to notify all parties present that as soon as possible such an action will be taken.

Mr. Homire: That strengthens my objection, if your Honor please, because until his action is brought and maintained and allowed, I think the Commission must proceed on the assumption that the notes are valid.

Director Sweet: I don't think you should question him any farther in this proceeding on that, Mr. Biggs.

Mr. Biggs: They have never been allowed.

Director Sweet: We cannot allow them or disallow them; that is the Court's business.

Mr. Biggs: This witness has taken that claim into consideration—

Director Sweet: He stated how he had treated it. If there is something wrong with the claim, you go to court about it. Don't bother us any more with it here.

Mr. Biggs: Is the objection to my question sustained?

Director Sweet: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to offer to prove, then, by this witness that if he was allowed to testify, that if this claim in question, to wit: the claim of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, is disallowed, then the treatment and consideration of the secured Serial 5¼s under the proposed Plan and the treatment of the Common Capital Stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company is inequitable and unfair.

Mr. Homire: I renew my objection to this offer of proof.

Director Sweet: It is not necessary; your objection is sustained and the offer of proof is noted as overruled. Will you proceed, Mr. Biggs?

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) In regard to your Exhibit 895, why did you omit from this exhibit the Missouri Pacific Serial 5¼% Bonds and the collateral deposited to secure same?

A. Because this is simply an exhibit of the collateral securing this short term debt which was created shortly prior to the bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific and did not purport to cover all of the collateral security of the Missouri Pacific, but just the items included on that exhibit.

Q. The Serial 5¼s is the same class of debt as these; is that correct?

A. No, we haven't so considered it throughout this proceeding. It is true that it is secured by certain collateral, but it is in existence for quite a long time prior to the bankruptcy and was not in the nature of short term financing such as these items were.

Q. In treatment of these obligations and in treatment of the Serial 5¼ obligations, it is a matter of valuing the collateral. The obligation itself is of the same character, is that not correct?

A. I think you have to value the collateral in connection with any collaterally-secured obligation.

Q. Does the maturity make any difference in determining treatment?

A. Not in a Plan of Reorganization, I don't see that it does.

Q. So far as any Plan of Reorganization is concerned, these are on the same basis? The only difference between the Serial 5¼s and those securities shown in your Exhibit 895 is the difference in the type of collateral, is that correct?

A. No, I don't think that was what I said. I said the difference was that these Serial 5¼s were relatively long-term financing when they were issued. These other three classes of debt covered in Exhibit 895 were short-term financing entered into in 1932, none of them earlier than 1932, at a time when the Missouri Pacific was in financial difficulties and in an attempt to keep the Missouri Pacific out of bankruptcy. They were a different type of financing; they were not issued to the public or distributed to the public. They were not underwritten by any banking house. They were definitely short-term current financing, and an entirely different type of security than the Serial 5¼s.

Q. What securities does the Alleghany Corporation own?

A. I don't know exactly; I understand they own about $11,000,000. of the Convertible Bonds, or a little less than 25 per cent. of the issue, and I think they have a very small amount of Preferred Stock—just a few shares, and quite a large block of Common, not a majority of the Common, but I think possibly 40 per cent. of the Common.

However, I think the Alleghany Corporation will be glad to give you the exact figures on those if you want them, but that is my understanding of what they own in this picture.

Q. How do they participate in this Plan?

A. Well, their Convertible Bonds get, as I said this morning—the Convertible Bonds as a whole get about 20 per cent. of the voting stock, which would give the Alleghany Corporation less than 5 per cent. of the voting stock. Then they get warrants for whatever their holdings of Preferred and Common Stock are.

Q. Do they participate in any other way?

A. Well, they get the joint naming of one of the Reorganization Managers and I think they have the right of nominating two directors on the original Board.

Q. So they participate as a creditor for all of the securities they own, and in addition thereto they join in the naming of the Reorganization Managers, and they also name two of the first Board of Directors?

A. I think they nominate them, but I think there is a right of veto to those nominations. I don't think they can name them absolutely.

Q. They have the right to nominate them?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, we were discussing earlier this question of what you do with these funds when options are exercised on these warrants. You stated that the junior creditors were the ones that were demanding that this money be used to purchase the present outstanding Class B Stock.

A. Presently to be outstanding Class B Stock.

Q. Was the Alleghany Corporation the one that was making that demand?

A. They were one of them. I think, as a matter of fact, Mr. Sturgis was anxious to have that in connection with the Convertible Bonds which his bank owns. I think he first suggested it. The Alleghany Corporation also felt that that was the way it ought to be. They went along with it.

I would like to point out that Mr. Sturgis was in a very good position to be a mediator here because his bank owned First & Refunding and Convertibles, and, therefore, they were the two ends of the major dispute in this case, so he had interests on both ends which put him in a good position to appreciate both sides of the controversy.

Q. Prior to the bankruptcy the Missouri Pacific System was controlled by Alleghany Corporation, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. For how many years prior to bankruptcy was that true? A. Three years.

Q. Are you familiar with the line of cases headed by Taylor v. Standard Gas, of the United States Supreme Court, which holds that where a parent company is guilty of—the parent company owns and controls a subsidiary and is guilty of wrongdoings, that it cannot participate in a Plan of Reorganization?

Mr. Teitelbaum: I object to the form of the question.

Director Sweet: We will ask the legal questions of counsel in our briefs or in our arguments. Let us confine our questions of this witness to technical matters, engineering and accounting.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Did you consider whether Alleghany should be allowed to participate in this Plan or not on account of past history?

Director Sweet: I don't think that this is a fair question. I will overrule it. Have you got any proof? We will let you submit that, but I don't think we are interested in this witness' opinion on that question.

Mr. Biggs: This is the man who negotiated the Plan, your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) You participated as a witness, did you not, Mr. Wyer, in the investigation by the Committee of Interstate Commerce of the Missouri Pacific System?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the report of the Senate Committee in regard to the [Missuri] Pacific System intercompany dividends and advances prepared by Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Truman of the Senate?

A. I don't know that I am.

Q. You were treasurer of the Missouri Pacific up to the time of the bankruptcy?

A. Yes, I had been treasurer for about three and one-half years prior to the bankruptcy.

Q. And you became treasurer in 1929? A. Yes.

Q. Were you connected with the Missouri Pacific before then? A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity?

A. Assistant to the Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Q. The Missouri Pacific System, at the time of bankruptcy, consisted of 79 subsidiaries, did it not?

A. I think it did.

Q. The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and the I-GN were the principal subsidiaries?

A. Yes, I don't know that those were all subsidiaries; I think a good many of them were ranked as affiliated companies. I don't believe it had 79 subsidiaries. Perhaps it did.

Q. There is no question about the I-GN and the NOT&M being subsidiaries, is there? A. No question about that.

Q. In the years 1926 through 1931, the Missouri Pacific, the NOT&M declared dividends of $1,038,000. per year—

Mr. Kitchel: I object to this line of testimony as being entirely irrelevant.

The Witness: If I may make a comment about this line of testimony, it has all been very fully covered in this record by myself in the first hearings before the Commission, in which I submitted exhibits giving the detail of these advances, the dates they were advanced and the purposes for which they were advanced, and discussed them in very great detail. That is all in the record, Mr. Director.

Director Sweet: I think that is true. I don't want counsel to be prevented from developing anything that he may have that is really material to our inquiry here, but I have difficulty in seeing that you are getting anywhere so far.

Mr. Biggs: The purpose of this whole line of inquiry is this: We are objecting to the Alleghany Corporation participating in this Plan of Reorganization. The witness has admitted that the Missouri Pacific System was a subsidiary of Alleghany.

The law of the land, in my humble opinion, is that if we prove that fact and acts that were detrimental to the creditors and other stockholders of the Missouri Pacific System, that it is the duty of this Commission to eliminate the claim of Alleghany from any participation.

Director Sweet: Haven't you got the basis for making that contention now? Don't you think you have laid the basis for that contention.

Mr. Biggs: I have not laid any facts.

Director Sweet: Well, the facts regarding the relation of the Alleghany Corporation and Missouri Pacific in the matter of earnings and dividends and what-not are in the record here, or they are available in public documents to which you can refer.

Mr. Biggs: Let me ask this question to shorten this thing. Can I introduce into evidence this report of the Senate Committee?

Mr. Kitchel: That, your Honor, we object to. The full Commission has already ruled on the admission of the reports of the Senate Committee in the past.

Director Sweet: When?

Mr. Kitchel: Mr. Brandwen tried to bring them in before the Commission. We had a dispute at great length. Perhaps I was wrong in saying the full Commission, but the members of the Commission who were sitting at that time is what I meant, Commission Meyer and Division 4.

Director Sweet: I think that that has been excluded.

Mr. Biggs: There was no claim at that time, from my knowledge of the record, which is not nearly as extensive as some of the other parties here, that it was offered for this purpose.

Director Sweet: I think it was. I think Mr. Brandwen represented some interests in the proceeding and I think his approach was very similar to yours. That was also his concern, that prior management should have nothing to do with the reorganization. I think we have been over that question in the earlier stages. It was so long ago that I had forgotten about it until reminded of it.

Mr. Kitchel: Mr. Director, the admission of that evidence before this Commission was not proved in facts here. That would have to be proved by witnesses. We object to this line of testimony.

Mr. Teitelbaum: I should like to add the further objection that, while this is not the place to indulge in legal argument, the concept of the law, as stated by Mr. Biggs, is in complete variance with my understanding of it.

Director Sweet: We will not argue that.

Mr. Biggs: The purpose of asking for the introduction was merely to shorten this examination. I will have to proceed, then.

Director Sweet: We will not go any farther with that line of inquiry. The Commission has had a chance to consider it heretofore and has ruled against it in this case.

Mr. Biggs: I will offer in evidence, if you want, because I happen to have Mr. Brandwen's memoranda on this point—

Director Sweet: We can't receive that, either.

Mr. Biggs: The point I want to make is this: While the claim of Alleghany was attacked in the original hearing before the Commission, it is true, it was never attacked on the theory that I am attacking it. That is the so-called "Instrumentality Rule," or the rule of law in regard to a parent and a subsidiary corporation.

Director Sweet: That is a legal argument you can make at the proper time. We will get to that later. We will have some briefs and oral argument in this case and I think you have a sufficient basis now on which to make those contentions as fully as you desire to do it.

Mr. Biggs: This is a hearing upon a new Plan of Reorganization.

Director Sweet: No, I do not consider it as such.

Mr. Biggs: I certainly should have the opportunity to develop any evidence and substantiate any theory that I wish to advocate before the Commission.

Director Sweet: Have you any other line of inquiry? We will not spend any more time on this particular line of inquiry. If you have anything else you want to develop, go ahead.

Mr. Biggs: Do I understand that you are ruling against my proving by this witness, or attempting to prove by this witness, that the Alleghany Corporation, while it was the parent as far as the Missouri Pacific system was concerned, was guilty of many fraudulent and wrongful acts? Do I understand that you are precluding me from proving by this witness those facts?

Director Sweet: Yes, I think so, if for no other reason than it is not proper cross-examination. I think we will just preclude your examination of this witness any further along those lines.

Mr. Biggs: Then I will have to make an offer of proof.

I will offer to prove by this witness, if allowed to testify, that for the years 1926 through 1931 the Alleghany Corporation, through its subsidiary, the Missouri Pacific, forced the Missouri Pacific subsidiary, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, to pay dividends of $1,038,000. for each of those years; that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company itself never earned sufficient to pay, in any one of these years, said dividends.

In fact, in three of the six years, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad showed a deficit after fixed charges. For the six-year period considered as a whole, this stated net income totaled a bare $90,000. as against dividend declarations totaling $6,300,000; that even this $90,000. net income was overstated in the records of the NOT&M; that during that six-year period the NOT&M did not properly charge the proper amount for depreciation and that if the proper depreciation had been charged over that six-year period, it would have amounted to an additional sum of $411,000.

Therefore, for the six-year period, the NOT&M operated at a deficit of $321,000. However, during the period, as I have previously stated, the evidence will show that they paid dividends of $6,300,000.

I will show by this witness that these dividends were paid as a result of advances by the Missouri Pacific, which was directed to make these advances by the Alleghany Corporation, and that these advances are a substantial part, totaling over $4,000,000, of the present claim of the Missouri Pacific against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company.

I will prove by this witness that the Alleghany Corporation, during this period of time, was in need of income to pay off on its obligations and that it secured that income by forcing its subsidiary, the Missouri Pacific, to pay dividends right up to the time of bankruptcy.

Mr. Adkins: How does Mr. Biggs know he can prove any of these things by Mr. Wyer?

Director Sweet: Let him complete his offer. Can you expedite this offer a little, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: I might expedite it by making an additional offer tomorrow morning, at the beginning of the day.

Director Sweet: Have you completed your offer, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: I have not.

[Dirfector] Sweet: Can you type your offer and let the reporter have it?

Mr. Biggs: I am from St. Louis and do not have any secretary with me, and I have no ability myself on the typewriter.

Director Sweet: Well, we cannot spend time here on this method of proceeding. You have got to get it in shape or else finish up your offer very quickly. We must get along on something else.

Mr. Biggs: I will also offer to prove by this witness that the Alleghany Corporation forced and directed the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to purchase certain terminal railway properties from another subsidiary of the Alleghany Corporation; that while the contract of the railroad company with the other subsidiary of Alleghany had a provision in it that it was subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, notwithstanding that provision, the Missouri Pacific made a number of payments on the purchase price in advance of such approval and, further, that under the contract it was liable either on the purchase price or as a guarantor against damages, in the event of the disapproval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the sum of $16,000,000.

Director Sweet: How much longer time do you intend to take for this kind of an offer?

Mr. Biggs: I have one other subject to cover after this.

Director Sweet: How long will it take you?

Mr. Biggs: Until about six o'clock.

Director Sweet: Then we will not hear any further offer at this time. We will let you complete your offer before we adjourn, but we are not going to spend any more time on that offer right now. Have you any other cross-examination?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Is there any provision in your Plan of [Rerganization] for a sale of the collateral securing the Secured 5¼% Bonds?

A. I think there is a provision in here in connection with sale. I don't know whether it applies to the collateral behind the 5¼s or not. I think Paragraph 30 of the Plan, appearing on page 73, covers the question of execution of the Plan by sales. I will let that provision speak for itself; I will not attempt to interpret it, to say whether it applies to the collateral of the 5¼ or not.

Q. And if it is not in that paragraph, then there is no provision?

A. I don't know of any other place in the Plan where it would be if it isn't in that paragraph.

Q. Now, in regard to the first Board of Directors, the stockholders, under your proposed Plan, have nothing to say about that; is that correct?

A. That is correct, the old stockholders have nothing to say.

Q. And the new stockholders have nothing to say?

A. Not as such, except that a good many of the people who have the right of nominating these directors will be new stockholders in substantial amount.

Q. Well,—

A. In fact, they represent the largest new stockholders whom we know anything about.

Q. But they do not in any event represent a majority of any particular class, ou side of Alleghany?

A. I don't think even Alleghany represents a majority of any particular class.

Q. But the Preferred Stock, the Class A Stock and the Class B Stock, who are supposed to have the voting rights under your Plan, as stockholders—whoever receives this new stock will have no right of voting on the first Board of Directors? A. No, they will not, not as stockholders.

Q. As long as this voting trust continues, that same thing holds true? A. Yes.

Q. And this Board of Directors, during that period of time, can issue new and additional series of mortgages on the property?

A. It has the power of the Board of Directors and, subject to the limitations placed upon it in this Plan, it can do those things.

Q. And under the provisions of the Plan, it would have the right to issue new mortgage bonds?

A. Yes, with certain restrictions.

Q. And the voting stockholders would have nothing to say about it?

A. I think that is right, unless they had some legal case which they could prosecute.

Q. Unless there was some fraud or something of that kind? A. Something that gave them a case in law.

Director Sweet: Now, Mr. Biggs, we will have to suspend at this point.

(Memorandum relating to Supplemental Report of Interstate Commerce Commission, Third Supplemental Report of Interstate Commerce Commission and Third Supplemental Order of Interstate Commerce Commission.)

There is printed in a separate volume heretofore published by the Trustee, the Interstate Commerce Commission Supplemental Report, dated July 4, 1944; Third Supplemental Report of Interstate Commerce Commission, dated October 9, 1944; and Third Supplemental Order of October 9, 1944, constituting modified plan of reorganization.

(Petition of Ernest Lee Foley for Leave to Intervene and for Show Cause Order.)

(Filed July 6, 1944.)

To the Honorable the Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri:

The petition of Ernest Lee Foley respectfully shows as follows:

1. Petitioner, Ernest Lee Foley, is the holder and owner of $25,000, par value, of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds of various maturities. He is a resident of Alpena, in the State of Michigan.

2. This petition is submitted in support of a motion for an order of this Court directing the parties in the above-entitled proceeding to show cause why an order should not be made granting petitioner leave to intervene and to file a certain petition, a copy of which is annexed hereto, marked Exhibit A, and made a part hereof, with the same force and effect as if fully set forth herein.

On Information and Belief,

3. Missouri Pacific Railroad Company (hereinafter referred to as "MOP") is and, at all times hereinafter mentioned, was a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri.

4. New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company (hereinafter referred to as "NOTM") is and, at all times hereinafter mentioned, was a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Louisiana. Approximately 94% of the capital stock of NOTM has been owned of record by MOP since 1925.

5. On or about March 31, 1933, MOP filed a petition herein seeking a reorganization under Section 77 of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended. At the same time, MOP directed and caused NOTM to file a similar petition herein under the aforesaid section and for the same purpose.

6. At the present time and since about January, 1936, Guy A. Thompson, by order of this Court, has served as sole trustee of the respective properties of MOP, of NOTM, and of their respective subsidiaries.

7. MOP has heretofore filed a claim in these proceedings against NOTM for $10,565,226.78 for moneys which MOP alleges it advanced to NOTM from 1928 to 1932 inclusive.

8. Secured Serial 5¼% Bonds of MOP are now outstanding in the principal amount of $12,140,000 and are secured by MOP's pledge of 121,460 shares of the capital stock of NOTM. Said bonds were issued on December 1, 1926, in order to enable MOP to pay the cost of acquiring said capital stock of NOTM. MOP has defaulted in the payment of interest and principal of said bonds and in consequence, pursuant to the terms of the indenture under which said bonds were issued, the owners and holders of said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds have become and continue to be the equitable owners of said capital stock of NOTM.

9. In violation of its obligations under said pledge MOP from time to time withdrew large sums of money from NOTM and its subsidiaries and operated the business and affairs of NOTM solely for the benefit of MOP and those in control of MOP and to the great disadvantage of NOTM, its subsidiaries and its security holders, all of which more fully appears in said petition marked Exhibit A and annexed hereto.

10. The aforesaid claim filed by MOP against NOTM is invalid; and further, MOP is required to account to NOTM, its subsidiaries, and its security holders, for large sums of money due to NOTM in consequence of its illegal management by MOP, all of which more fully appears in said petition marked Exhibit A and annexed hereto.

11. The time in which to file objections to claims filed in the above entitled proceeding, as fixed by order of this Court, has not yet expired.

12. Protection in these reorganization proceedings of the rights of the holders of the said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds, including their rights as equitable owners of the said capital stock of NOTM, requires the payment by MOP of the large sums in which it is indebted to NOTM and the rejection of the said claim of MOP against NOTM. The judicial determination of the matters presented in the annexed petition is an indispensable prerequisite to the exercise of an informed judgment as is required by the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, with respect to the fairness or equity of any treatment proposed to be given to said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds in any proposed plan of reorganization or any other settlement of the rights of said bondholders. The neglect or failure of other holders of the said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds, or their representative or representatives prior hereto to petition for the adjudication of the matters set forth herein cannot deprive petitioner of his right to have said matters determined since even waiver, acquiescence or approval by other holders of said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds cannot so operate, and there has been no waiver, acquiescence or approval in these proceedings.

13. No application has heretofore been filed in the above entitled proceedings for similar relief.

Wherefore, petitioner respectfully prays

(a) That an order be granted directing persons interested in the above entitled proceeding to show cause why an order should not be made granting leave to petitioner to intervene specially in the above entitled proceeding in order to assert and protect his rights, and granting leave to file the annexed petition, marked Exhibit A, or one substantially similar thereto.

(b) Such further and different relief as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Petitioner.

Ernest Lee Foley, being duly sworn, deposes and says: that he is the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding; that he has read the foregoing petition, and knows the contents thereof; that the same are true as stated, except as to matter and things expressly stated to be on information and belief, and that as to those matters and things, he believes them to be true.

ERNEST LEE FOLEY.

(Answer of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor, to Petition of Ernest Lee Foley for Show Cause Order.)

(Filed July 21, 1944.)

Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor, in the above entitled proceeding, in answer to the petition of Ernest Lee Foley stated to be submitted in support of a contemplated motion for a show cause order, respectfully shows:

I.

1. It denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief with respect to the allegations contained in paragraph numbered 1 of said petition.

2. Upon information and belief it denies the allegations contained in paragraphs numbered 9, 10 and 12 of said petition.

II.

3. For a further and affirmative answer to the petition, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor, respectfully shows:

Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company have been before this Court and before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the reorganization proceeding under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, as amended, for more than eleven years in the course of which proceeding the matters here sought to be brought in issue again have twice been considered and decided by the Interstate Commerce Commission adversely to petitioner's claim. Such determination by said Commission had the approval of this Court the only time it has been before the Court. A plan of reorganization of said railroads promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission and approved by this Court July 11th, 1941 later because of changed [contitions] the proceeding was, on July 29th, 1943, referred back to the Interstate Commerce Commission which held a hearing thereon at Brooklyn, N. Y. October 19th-21st, 1943, inclusive, and has this afternoon issued its supplemental report.

4. Whether or not this intervention should be allowed is entirely within the discretion of the Court, (See Section 77, Section 13 (c) of the Bankruptcy Act.) A main purpose of Section 77 is to bring about "* * * a reasonably expeditious reorganization of the debtor" (Section 13 (g).

To grant this petition for a re-consideration of an issue based upon a question twice decided against the claim of petitioner would be contrary to the purpose of the statute. This proceeding has now been pending for more than eleven years and the inaction of the petitioner over a long period of years during which death has removed some of Debtor's officials whose evidence is necessary adequately to inform this Court of facts heretofore presented to and considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission in reaching its decisions above referred to.

Such laches alone should convince the Court that the proper exercise of its discretion should be the denial of the petition.

If any other course were taken thereby setting a precedent there would be no end to railroad reorganization. A purchaser of any security entitled to participate in the Trust Estate, at any time prior to the confirmation of a reorganization plan could by such a petition present questions even though theretofore passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission and so delay the proceedings indefinitely.

Wherefore Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor, prays that the petition for the show cause order be denied.

Respectfully submitted,

MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY,

By MARION B. PIERCE,
General Counsel.

Answer of Reconstruction Finance Corporation to Petition of Ernest Lee Foley.

(Filed July 21, 1944.)

To the Honorable the Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri:

Comes now Reconstruction Finance Corporation (hereinafter referred to as RFC), an intervener herein, and showing cause why Ernest Lee Foley should not be granted leave to intervene specially in these proceedings as prayed in his petition herein and to file the petition annexed as Exhibit A thereto, verified June 24, 1944, and answering said first mentioned petition, respectfully shows:

I.

1. RFC denies knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations contained in paragraph 1 of said petition.

2. RFC admits the allegations contained in paragraphs 2 and 3 and in the first sentence of paragraph 4 of said petition.

3. RFC denies knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegation contained in the second sentence of paragraph 4 of said petition.

4. RFC admits the allegations contained in paragraphs 5, 6, and 7 of said petition.

5. RFC admits the allegations contained in the first sentence of paragraph 8 of said petition; denies knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations contained in the second sentence of said paragraph 8; and admits that the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company (hereinafter referred to as the Missouri Pacific) has defaulted in the payment of interest and part of the principal of the bonds in said petition referred to, but alleges that the consequences of such default are a matter of law and that such consequences are not correctly stated in paragraph 8.

6. RFC denies the allegations contained in paragraphs 9, 10, 11 and 12 of said petition.

7. As to the allegations contained in paragraph 13 of said petition, RFC admits that no separate application as stated in said paragraph has been filed in these proceedings, but alleges that, as hereinafter set out in more detail, the matters and things referred to in said petition have been the subject of protracted and careful investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission and by this Court in connection with the preparation and approval of a plan of reorganization and otherwise in connection with these proceedings.

II.

And further showing cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and as and for a further answer to said petition, RFC respectfully shows:

8. These reorganization proceedings were instituted on March 31, 1933, over eleven years ago. During this lengthy period, orders have been made by this Court requiring the filing of claims within periods specified therein, which periods and the time for filing objections to all of such claims have long since expired. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, investigations have been made by the Bankruptcy Trustee herein as to any facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct or mismanagement as a consequence of which any of the debtors herein might have a cause of action arising therefrom against any person or corporation, and such investigations have long since been concluded and reports based thereon made to this Court. In connection with the formulation of plans of reorganization herein, the Interstate Commerce Commission and this Court have gone fully into all matters and things which would or might be claimed to be involved in the formulation of a plan, including the matters and things referred to in said petition, and all interested parties have had full and complete opportunity to be heard thereon. Upon the basis of such full consideration, the Interstate Commerce Commission and this Court have approved a plan of reorganization, and after such plan had ultimately failed of effectuation on other grounds, the Interstate Commerce Commission again held a full hearing, and under date of July 4, 1944, has handed down a supplemental report and order approving a revised plan of reorganization herein and reaffirming its conclusion that the contentions made by the petitioner in said petition are without merit. Petitioner is now seeking to reopen the record and litigate de novo issues which have heretofore been fully explored. The reopening of the record and the relitigation of said issues at this time as prayed by said petition would be without justification, wholly inequitable, and would serve no useful purpose but on the contrary would be subversive of the purpose of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act to provide a means for the prompt and economical reorganization of railroads subject to said Section 77.

9. By Order No. 19, dated May 13, 1933, entered herein, this Court directed that creditors of the Missouri Pacific, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company (hereinafter referred to as the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico) and other debtors in these proceedings, with certain specified exceptions, should file claims prior to August 31, 1933. By Order No. 451 herein, filed February 27, 1936, provision was made for the filing within sixty days of certain additional claims, including those of RFC. In accordance with these respective orders, proofs of claim were filed by Missouri Pacific covering the advances referred to in said petition and by RFC showing $9,955,226.78 of such advances as part of its collateral. No objection has ever been filed to either of said proofs of claim, although such proof of claim of Missouri Pacific has been on file herein for over ten years and the claim of RFC for over eight years, and the appropriate time for filing such exceptions has long since elapsed.

10. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77c (9) of the Bankruptcy Act the Trustee herein reported to this Court, after investigation, regarding facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct or mismanagement as a consequence of which any of the debtors herein might have a cause of action arising therefrom against any person or corporation. Following such report, by Order No. 453, filed herein on March 2, 1936, the Court requested the Interstate Commerce Commission to advise the Court of any such facts known to it. Neither the reports of the Bankruptcy Trustee nor the advices received from the Commission pursuant to such request purport to set out any cause of action based upon the matters and things set out in said petition above mentioned, although the Trustee and said Commission were fully familiar with such matters and things. Said reports and advices have been on file with this Court for many years and have never been challenged by any parties to the proceedings.

11. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, hearings with respect to the reorganization of the Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and the other debtors herein were held before the Interstate Commerce Commission on February 4-7, 1936, February 10-13, 1936, April 14-24, 1936, March 9-10, 1937, May 4-6, 1937, June 21-23, 1937, July 26-27, 1937, and September 27-30, 1937. At these hearings full opportunity was afforded and used for the presentation of all evidence relevant to the formulation of a plan, including detailed testimony pertinent to the relations from time to time existing between Alleghany Corporation, Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and the other matters and things referred to in the first above mentioned petition. Following briefs and argument before the Commission, a report and order dated January 10, 1940 and an amended report and order dated April 9, 1940 were issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission approving a Plan of Reorganization for the debtors herein and in connection therewith passing upon the matters and things referred to in said petition and upon the same contentions as those now sought to be made by the petitioner therein. After full hearings and argument before this Court, on June 9, 1940 and October 7-10, 1940, said Plan of Reorganization and the determination of said questions by the Commission were fully approved by this Court. The Plan so approved having later failed of effectuation for other reasons, a further hearing with respect to reorganization of the debtors herein was held before the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 19-21, 1944 at which full opportunity was again afforded for the presentation of all evidence relevant to the formulation of a Plan of Reorganization herein, including some evidence relating to the matters and things referred to in said petition, other alleged evidence relating to such matters and things being properly rejected for reasons set forth in the transcript of said hearing. The Interstate Commerce Commission has now, by said supplemental report and order dated July 4, 1944, approved a revised plan of reorganization reaffirming it conclusions that the contentions sought to be relitigated by the petitioner in said petition are without merit.

III.

And further showing cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and as and for a further answer to said petition, RFC respectfully shows:

12. Any control of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico by the Missouri Pacific, and any mismanagement of the former by the latter, if such mismanagement existed, was necessarily made possible by and carried out through and by means of ownership of the common stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. The rights asserted by the petitioner in the petition above mentioned are asserted as, and only as, the alleged equitable owner of such common stock. Accordingly, said petitioner, claiming through and as the alleged owner of the very common stock by which the claimed mismanagement is alleged to have been carried out, does not come into this Court with clean hands and is in no position to contend that other interests should be held invalid or subordinated to his own by reason of such claimed mismanagement.

IV.

And further showing cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and as and for a further answer to said petition, RFC respectfully shows:

13. In accordance with the provisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended, and with appropriate approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, RFC made various loans to Missouri Pacific which are now in default. Said loans are outstanding in the principal amount of $23,134,800, plus substantial interest, and are secured by the pledge of important collateral. Included among said collateral are notes of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in the principal amount of $9,955,226.78 originally given in payment of the same principal amount of the advances by Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico referred to in said above mentioned petition.

RFC became the pledgee holder of said notes, and the assignee of the advances in payment of which the same were given, bona fide and for value, and without knowledge of any of the matters and things referred to in said petition. Under these circumstances, whether or not any effect might be given to the matters and things referred to in the above mentioned petition as against the Missouri Pacific or as against any of the other parties to this proceeding, said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC and said notes in the hands of RFC or its assigns constitute the valid, legal and binding obligations of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans as aforesaid.

V.

And further showing cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and as and for a further answer to said petition, RFC respectfully shows:

14. By its report and order dated February 25, 1933 in Finance Docket No. 9817, the Interstate Commerce Commission found that the issuance by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico of a note or notes in an aggregate amount not exceeding $7,456,726.78 (a) was for a lawful object within its corporate purposes, and compatible with the public interest, which was necessary and appropriate for and consistent with the proper performance by it of service to the public as a common carrier and which did not impair its ability to perform that service, and (b) was reasonably necessary and appropriate for such purpose. In accordance with such determination the Interstate Commerce Commission, by its said order, authorized the issuance of said note in the principal amount of $7,456,726.78 by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Said note was thereafter duly issued and pledged with RFC and constitutes part of the $9,955,226.78 principal amount of such notes held by RFC as set out in paragraph 13 hereof. Approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the issuance of the additional note in the principal amount of $2,498,500 held by RFC was not required under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act.

VI.

And further showing cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and as and for a further answer to said petition, RFC respectfully shows:

15. In failing to assert the alleged equitable rights claimed in said above mentioned petition at any time during the eleven year course of the proceedings herein, and until after long years of effort on the part of all interested parties, a plan of reorganization is on the verge of approval and consummation herein, the petitioner has been guilty of inexcusable laches, and is equitably estopped to assert such contentions at this time. The allowance of such assertion, particularly in a court applying principles of equity, would be unfair and inequitable to the court, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and all other parties interested in these reorganization proceedings.

Wherefore, having fully shown cause and answered as aforesaid, RFC respectfully prays that the prayer of said petition be denied and that RFC may have such other and further relief as to this court may seem just and proper.

(Filed January 5, 1945.)

In the District Court of the United States in and for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

Be It Remembered: That on the 21st day of July, 1944, at 10:00 A. M., this matter of petition of Ernest Lee Foley for leave to intervene was called for hearing in the United States District Court in above District and Division, in New Federal Building, St. Louis, Missouri, before Honorable George H. Moore, Judge Court Number One. Whereupon, the following proceedings were had:

Appearances:

For Petitioner William H. Biggs, Esq. Max Brandwen, Esq.

For Debtor Russell L. Dearmont, Esq. Marion B. Pierce, Esq.

For Reconstruction Finance Corporation James S. Homire, Esq.

For First and Refunding Bondholders' Committee W. Lloyd Kitchel, Esq.

For Chemical Bank and Trust Company Richard S. Bull, Esq.

Mr. Kitchel: May I state this, first? I do today and heretofore represent the Protective Committee for the First and Refunding Mortgage bonds. That Committee, however, expires at the close of business today. In view of that situation, twelve of the largest institutional holders of First and Refunding bonds, all of whom had deposits with this company, have formed a group, pursuant to the provision of Clause P of Section 77, to act in this matter for their own interest. The group represents 44,551,000 bonds. The group acts through an Executive Committee, all of whom were members of the former company. The Chairman of the group is Mr. John W. Stedman, as he was of the Committee; and the secretary is Eugene J. Conroy, who was secretary of the Committee. In view of the fact that upon the transfer of the life of the committee there is no proper representative of the First and Refunding bonds, we now ask leave to intervene for this group, which is called the Institutional Group of Holders of Missouri Pacific First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. I have served a copy of the petition and notice of motion on all the parties who have intervened in this case. And I call your attention to the fact the Committee was allowed to intervene generally, and we ask that the same [privelege] be extended to this group. There is no opposition. I have a formal order which I will hand up to you now. This order provides for general intervention but also provides that the Court reserves the right to enter orders without notice, that do not affect us. (A paper is handed to the Court.)

Thank you, sir.

Mr. Biggs: If it please the Court: Your Honor, I represent Mr. Ernest Lee Foley. Mr. Foley has filed a petition for leave to intervene specially for the purpose of filing a petition. This petition for leave to intervene and notice of hearing of that petition have been served on all parties in interest; and affidavit of mailing of this notice has been filed. As far as the petition for leave to intervene, it is merely formal and merely asks leave to file a petition, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A. This petition which we are now asking leave of this Court to file on behalf of said Ernest Lee Foley, very briefly is as follows: It sets out that Mr. Foley is owner of 25,000 Serial 5¼ bonds, Missouri Pacific Serial 5¼ bonds. It then sets out that Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico are in bankruptcy, and Mr. Thompson is Trustee. It then sets out that as collateral securing each thousand dollar Missouri Pacific 5¼% bond are ten shares of Common Stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company; and sets out that the Missouri Pacific owns a majority; in fact, it owns about 95 per cent. of the Common Stock of the N. O. T. & M., of which about 80 per cent. is pledged as security for these bonds. The petition then sets out that under the secured 5¼% indenture to secure the 5¼% bonds, the following provision that the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company will not do or perform, or voluntarily permit to be done or performed, any act or thing by which the validity or priority of this indenture and the pledge hereunder of the pledged stock, as hereinbefore provided, can in any way or manner be impaired or impeached. The petition then sets forth a number of acts which we considered are fraudulent or a misfeasance. Among those—I am not going into all of them but one of them. As an illustration, we allege that the books of the Missouri Pacific show that there would be a payment to the N. O. T. & M. of a million dollars, or five hundred thousand dollars, and that the books would show no way for the N. O. T. & M. to pay a dividend, and that the books of the N. O. T. & M. show that as soon as this money was received from the Missouri Pacific that a dividend was declared and that in effect 95 per cent. of the money came right back to the Missouri Pacific. We allege a number of other acts of similar character and other character, all of which were for the benefit of the Missouri Pacific and to the detriment of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company. We then pray in our prayer for relief; that the claim of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, which was originally in amount of a little over $10,000,000., which together with interest to date amounts to approximately $16,000,000., be denied and expunged from the record. This claim has been filed against Mr. Thompson as Trustee of the N. O. T. & M., but there has been no hearing on same. It was filed before the Special Master and the Special Master died, and there has been no action taken on this particular claim. We then also ask that certain bonds of the N. O. T. & M., which were owned by the N. O. T. & M. and were turned over by the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific as collateral security for this advance by the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M., be returned to the N. O. T. & M. And we also ask for an accounting. The fundamental theory behind this petition is, of course, that there has been a fraud and that vitiates all of these acts; and second, is what is known as instrumentality rule as laid down by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Taylor v. Standard Gas case. And in that case, very briefly, the United States Supreme Court held, comparatively recently, that where the relationship of parent and subsidiary existed, and unequivocally existed in this case as we allege in our petition, and there were acts of misfeasance, malfeasance or fraud, or any other wrongful acts committed by the parent corporation against its subsidiary and for the benefit of the parent company, that this, what is known as instrumentality rule, should be invoked. And the effect of that is—and that was a bankruptcy reorganization case such as this is—that any claim of the parent corporation against the subsidiary corporation must fall to the bottom of the step ladder, so to speak, and be considered only after all other claims of all other creditors have been taken in full. And we state that this is a perfect example of why that rule should be invoked.

I do not want to argue the case here because this is merely a formal petition making leave to file it, but I do want merely to give Your Honor our theory behind the fundamental case.

Several answers have just been delivered to me by various parties opposing this petition. I frankly have not had time to examine them, but the parties are all present and I presume they will be heard in opposition, and I would like opportunity to answer.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, Mr. Mayner Wallace, who is Counsel for the N. O. T. & M. Committee, is unable to be here today. He is in Chicago. Nor was Mr. Adkins, the New York Counsel. They have requested me to say that that committee takes no position in this proceeding.

Mr. Homire: If the Court please, I represent the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. May I be heard in opposition to this motion?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Homire: I have filed on behalf of the R. F. C. an answer which opposes certain of the allegations of the preliminary petition which Mr. Biggs has filed on behalf of Mr. Foley, and before I take up that answer I assume that it would be in order for him to produce proof of the controverted allegations. I do not know whether I am in order or not; but I suggest that.

Mr. Bull: Your Honor please, we represent the New York Chemical Bank & Trust Company, which is trustee for the 5¼ bonds. I would like to state for the record and tell Your Honor that that Trustee neither opposes or prefers the application or motion of the intervener.

The Court: Whom do you represent?

Mr. Bull: Chemical Bank & Trust Company as Trustees for the accrued Serial 5¼% bonds.

The Court: What have you to say, Mr. Biggs, about the suggestion of Mr. Homire?

Mr. Biggs: Mr. Brandwen, who is associated with me in this case, I would like to have answer that.

Mr. Brandwen: If I understand Counsel for the R. F. C., it is that he wants us to offer proof on the allegations contained in the petition on the counter-allegations. Well, the answer has just been served and we certainly under ordinary procedure should have time to find out what the answer is and if Your Honor sets some time for the trial of the issue, then we will undertake to prove the truth of all the allegations. But, Your Honor please, this is simply an application for leave to file this petition. We do not know whether this petition will be filed until there is a decision of Your Honor, and until such time we do not see how there is any occasion for the proof being offered this morning on the allegations in the petition. So that certainly I would say that any such suggestion as that made by counsel for the RFC this morning is certainly premature. If, for example, Your Honor please, if Counsel for the R. F. C. has any reason why Your Honor should not grant this application for leave to intervene to file this petition—

The Court: There are a great many reasons set out in his answer.

Mr. Brandwen: If I should argue those reasons now, I will be pleased to if Your Honor would like me to. I thought perhaps Counsel for the R. F. C. wanted to state the reasons orally, so I might answer; but I will do whatever Your Honor wishes with respect to that.

Mr. Homire: I think it would be proper for the plaintiff or the intervening petitioner to defer until some later time the proof of some of the allegations contained in his papers. However, we are interested particularly at this time in having the record show matters which only the intervening petitioner can tell us; namely, when he acquired these bonds and what consideration was paid for them. I think that is very important. And if Counsel will stipulate as to the facts concerning that, I will not press the point. I may add, however, that the failure to allege when the petitioner acquired these bonds may be—the failure of the petitioner to say in his petition when he acquired these bonds makes the petition defective legally.

Mr. Brandwen: I can not see where there is any doctrine of law that would say that the mere failure on the part of a plaintiff to say when he acquired the bonds makes the petition defective, when he states categorically that he owns the bonds.

The Court: You come in here at a very late time with these proceedings.

Mr. Brandwen: May I review that, but before that may I answer the points made by counsel for the R. F. C., so that there will be no question that his points are answered? One is, that we do not think it is at all material as to when the petitioner acquired the bonds or what he paid for them. However, so that there will not be any question about that, we are perfectly willing to let the Court have all the information bearing on that point. We think the only question, so far as the status of the petitioner is, in a matter of this kind, is whether he is in fact a bondholder. If he is in fact a bondholder and satisfied the Court that he is a bondholder, whether he paid X dollars or Y dollars, or Z dollars, his rights are not diminished thereby, because there is no doctrine in law which says because a man has bought bonds at one price rather than another that he is out in a Court of Bankruptcy.

Mr. Kitchel: We claim, as does the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that the petition which he proposes to file is insufficient in law, in that it does not state that the Petitioner Foley was the owner of the bonds which he now owns, at the time the transaction complained of took place. Rule 23 of the Rules of Civil Procedure before the District Courts of the United States, in Paragraph B of Rule 23, provides: "In an action brought to enforce the secondary right on the part of one or more shareholders in an association, incorporated or unincorporated, because the association refused to enforce all rights which may properly be brought by it, the complaint should be verified by oath and shall aver, first, that the plaintiff was a shareholder at the time of the transactions of which he complains". Now it is not a formal complaint, it is equivalent to an institution of an ancillary suit starting out in the form of a petition. We claim that this Rule 23 applies to this. He says that he brings it as a shareholder in the Gulf Coast Lines, but the Trustee does not enforce the rights which might properly be brought by the Trustee. In that case he must show, to make his petition valid, that he was a shareholder at the time the transactions took place.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I have the utmost respect for Mr. Kitchel, and if I say that I think Mr. Kitchel entirely misconceives the nature of this petition, I am not saying this with any offense at all. This is an action that is taken by a bondholder on behalf of himself and other bondholders not being shareholders. The only [signigicance], true a very important significance, is that the right of these bondholders must necessarily be determined by the value of the collateral which these bonds have. There is an extraordinary distinction that must not be lost sight of between that question, which is simply the value of the collateral which the bondholders have and the capacity of the bondholder. The mere fact that he says in determining my rights, in the Plan of Reorganization that may be passed on by this Honorable Court, one must determine the value of the collateral, that process itself can not by any stretch of the imagination result in a transmutation of the rights and character of a bondholder into those of a stockholder. So that I respectfully suggest that the application of the particular provision of the rules, that Mr. Kitchel called to Your Honor's attention, is without any force in this matter whatsoever. We are dealing here solely with the rights of bondholders and how they shall be treated in a plan of reorganization. Now so that we might lay certain ghosts aside at once, since they have been alluded to by the R. F. C., I would like to make one point very clear. I am a little concerned and I do not quite understand why the R. F. C. here is concerned about this application. The R. F. C. under the Plan of Reorganization which was announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission the other day, the R. F. C. is going to receive bonds for the principal amount of its claim in value, or presumably for a value that will represent par. They are going to get in cash or accrued interest on a basis that the R. F. C. finds satisfactory. Nobody wants to take anything away from the R. F. C. We believe the R. F. C. should be treated that way, and as far as we are concerned, we would have been more delighted if the R. F. C. had been paid in cash the principal amount of its claim, plus interest. We do not want to take anything away from them at all. So this petition is not designed by the remotest stretch of the imagination to impair their rights in any fashion whatsoever. This is an internal dispute. It is a dispute between the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, which is a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific, and the Missouri Pacific. The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico says to the Missouri Pacific Road, "You filed a claim against us; we say that claim is invalid". The R. F. C. says, "We hold a note of the N. O. T. & M. given to the Missouri Pacific". Well, let's see for a moment, and we do not think it is material for the moment, but let's assume for the moment that the point made by the R. F. C. is that it is a holder in good faith, without notice, of that note. Certainly there is no doctrine and no principle in negotiation in the whole field of negotiable instruments that will say a holder in good faith, even without notice, has any concern at all with the rights as between the maker and the payee. After all, we are not saying to the R. F. C. that the note which they hold is not properly held by them, although I say we are not saying the other thing either. We think the matter is [umimportant] because the R. F. C. we want to be paid, and a plan has been announced which I assume is perfectly satisfactory to them; but certainly they can not by any means deprive us from raising the point that as between the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M., if the advances of the Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M. is in fact invalid, they can not deprive us of the right of showing that it is invalid. And furthermore, there is an old doctrine that certainly is honored by centuries of practice, back as far as Lord Eldon which says, if you have two creditors and one creditor has collateral—certainly the R. F. C. which has all this marketable collateral could be protected under the old law by marshalling an equitable distribution of the assets to go against the other collateral, and only if the other collateral is not sufficient to make the R. F. C. whole does the question arise; but I have not heard that it is necessary to establish the validity of this note and to collect on this note in order to enable the R. F. C. to be made whole because of the valuation of the collateral. And certainly from the information that I have at the proceedings, no one contends that these things are necessary to enable the R. F. C. to be made whole. At all events, I say until there is presented to this Court in proper form a full determination of the question as to the value of all other collateral, and whether recourse to this collateral is at all necessary, does the R. F. C. have any standing with respect to it. And even then, our rights as between the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M. can never be questioned. So far as the R. F. C. is concerned, that is an internal question between the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M., internal question between the maker and payee. And no doctrine of the law permits a third person, no matter how bona fide he may be, to step in and stop the assertion of your claim. Now we have also here, reference to the passage of time. Sometimes the ominous term of laches is used. Well, laches is a term of very broad scope. I have always understood that the doctrine of laches can never be invoked unless, first, the matter is not properly to be considered at the time it is being presented, or because there has been delay that the Court regards as prejudicial. If Your Honor please, in the very near future you undoubtedly will be asked to pass upon a plan of reorganization which the Interstate Commerce Commission has recently promulgated, as Your Honor well knows. And I want Your Honor to exercise indulgence with me if I say under these provisions of the Act Your Honor must be satisfied the Plan is fair and equitable and does not discriminate unfairly against any class of creditors. And the only thing that Your Honor will undoubtedly have to pass on is whether, for example, the classified 5¼% bondholders are being treated fairly under the Plan. Your Honor must, therefore, when it is called to Your Honor's attention, pass upon whether the collateral behind the 5¼% bonds is of such value so that

Your Honor can find whether the provisions for the 5¼% bonds is fair or not. Your Honor may be aided somewhat by reference in the Plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission which expressly shows the Interstate Commerce Commission assumes that this claim of the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. is valid. If it is not valid, then of course the disposition made by the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to the five and a quarter's can not stand that way. So that Your Honor is squarely faced by the Plan of Reorganization, which will be submitted to you by the appropriate parties in due course, to determine the question as to whether the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. is valid, because they themselves say to the Interstate Commerce Commission, we assume the invalidity But one thing is perfectly clear, the question of the validity of the claims is not for the Interstate Commerce Commission. This is clear in the decision of the Supreme Court in the two famous cases of the Milwaukee and the Western Pacific. That makes it clear that the question passed on by the Court and not by the Commission was that anything that has happened before the Interstate Commerce Commission can not for any purpose be regarded as dealing with the question of the validity of this claim. The validity of this claim will come shortly before Your Honor for consideration, and since Your Honor has to determine that question, I do not see how anybody can argue the question of laches. After all, this is really as appropriate a time, or will be very soon, as any time for the purpose of raising this question, because any time prior thereto—it should have been raised, I am satisfied, at the time of the 1940 Plan, but since that is sent back, it is sent back as though an original proceeding, but it can be raised just as it could have been raised at that time. So that there can be no problem of laches when this particular matter must receive the attention, as I am confident it will, by this Court; because this Court can not under the terms of the Bankruptcy Act, make any finding with respect to the treatment accorded the 5¼% bondholders unless this Court must as an indispensable part in the process of determining that question decide whether in fact the claim of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the N. O. T. & M. is or is not valid, because if it is not valid the I. C. C. itself says this Plan is based on that assumption and if it is not valid there will have to be other disposition made of the 5¼% bondholders. And that is particularly true because the value of the collateral behind the 5¼% bondholders is one thing when preceded by $16,000,000. of debt, and it is quite another thing when that $16,000,000. debt is out of the way entirely.

Now, secondly, with respect to laches, all I have to do is point out some facts that certainly are known in legal history. Not that I think this is at all likely. I think we are here at proper time, as timely as anybody could be. Now in relation to the case against Boyd. They allowed Boyd to come in ten years after the reorganization. There has been no reorganization here. There has been no plan that has been approved. In the Boyd case they allowed him to come in ten years after the plan had been concluded. And in the Southern Pacific case against Bogard they allowed the rights of the man to be determined twenty-three years later. We are asking that the question be determined when this question is to be considered by Your Honor. We can not see for a single moment how the problem of laches even is appropriate.

Mr. Kitchel: May it please the Court: Adverting again to the sufficiency of the petition by reason of Rule 23, which I read to you. To be sure, Mr. Foley, the petitioner, is a bondholder, but in making this claim against the Missouri Pacific, whose bonds he holds, he makes it not as a bondholder but as a stockholder, and he specifically says so in his petition. In Paragraph 7, beginning at the foot of the page, page 2 of the Petition which he wishes to file, in that paragraph he first describes the bonds and states they are secured by the capital stock of the N. O. T. & M., Your Honor. "The Missouri Pacific has defaulted in the payment of interest and principal of these bonds, and in consequence pursuant to the terms of the indenture pursuant to which said bonds are issued, the owner and holder of such 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds has become and continues to be the equitable owner of the aforesaid capital stock of the N. O. T. & M." In asserting a right against the Missouri Pacific, he is doing so as the equitable owner of the stock and not as a bondholder of the Missouri Pacific. It would be absurd to say as a bondholder of the Missouri Pacific he would be attacking the Missouri Pacific solely to expunge a claim. So much for that.

And I move now that the request, to be allowed to file this proposed petition, be denied on account of the insufficiency of the petition in failing to state that the petitioner was the owner of the bonds at the time of the transaction complained of.

Now I propose to argue the question of laches, but before I do that I would like to place a witness on the stand. Mr. Railey, will you take the stand?

THOMAS T. RAILEY,

of lawful age, produced, sworn and examined, testified on behalf of Exceptor as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Kitchel:

Q. Mr. Railey, you are connected with the Missouri Pacific? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state what your capacity is?

A. My present capacity is Assistant to the Counsel for Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and subsidiaries.

Q. Will you state how long you have been connected with the road? Perhaps not in that capacity but in some other capacity?

A. I came into the General Office as Assistant to Mr. White, under the title of Assistant Attorney, in 1915. Sometime after that I was made Assistant General Solicitor, which title I held up to the time of the appointment of the Trustee. Since then I have been Assistant to Counsel for Trustee.

Q. You are familiar, are you not, with the various officers and persons who had control of different parts of the system during the period 1926 to 1932?

A. I am with the principal officers; yes, sir.

Q. You have read the proposed petition which is now—they ask leave to file? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are familiar with the fact that they complain not only of the invalidity of the advances made by the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific, but also in regard to some locomotive questions, freight car hire and diversion of traffic? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell me who during that period, 1926 to 1932, was the Executive Vice-President of the Gulf Coast Lines of the N. O. T. & M.? A. Mr. H. R. Safford.

Q. In that capacity would he have any authority or executive control of the matters which are discussed in this petition?

A. Yes, sir; he would have direct supervision of any matters of that kind arising on the Texas Lines. Mr. Safford was the Chief Operating Officer next to Mr. Baldwin, as far as the Texas Lines were concerned, from about 1925 on.

Q. Is Mr. Safford still alive?

A. Mr. Safford died April 10, 1943.

Q. Who was in charge of the accounts of the Missouri Pacific and its subsidiary lines? A. Mr. F. P. Johnson.

Q. You are familiar with this claim, or the proof of claim that has been filed in this matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom was that prepared?

A. That was prepared and filed by Mr. F. P. Johnson after the institution of the reorganization proceedings but prior to the appointment of a Trustee.

Q. Mr. Johnson, in charge of the accounts of the Missouri Pacific and subsidiary lines, would have had charge of the accounts dealing with these various questions, of the various points charged in the questions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is Mr. Johnson still living?

A. Mr. Johnson died April 11, 1938.

Q. In connection with the charge that there has been diversion of traffic from the N. O. T. & M. Lines, who was Vice-President and General Manager of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company during this period?

A. Mr. John Cannon.

Q. Would he have had knowledge and supervision of traffic generally to a certain extent?

A. He had supervision over operating and mechanical matters as far as the Missouri Pacific Railroad was concerned.

Q. How about the locomotives? Does that come under his jurisdiction?

A. As far as the Missouri Pacific is concerned.

Q. Is Mr. Cannon still alive?

A. Mr. Cannon died September 14, 1941.

Q. Who was the Vice-President and General Solicitor of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company?

A. Mr. E. J. White.

Q. As General Solicitor, would he have anything to do with the various matters which have been complained of, or in the preparation of this claim which has been filed?

A. In so far as any legal matters were concerned, he had supervision.

Q. Mr. White, is he still alive?

A. Mr. White died December 29, 1935.

Q. There was a General Freight Traffic Manager of the Texas Lines, which included the N. O. T. & M., did it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who was he? A. Mr. Horace Booth.

Q. And he would have had supervision and control of the traffic that moved over that line, and other matters which are complained of? A. Over the Texas Lines, yes, sir.

Q. And he would be a witness, if he were alive, that we would like to rely on?

A. He would probably know more about this than anyone connected with the Traffic Department, in so far as Texas Lines are concerned.

Q. Is Mr. Booth alive? A. He died May 18, 1944.

Q. Mr. Railey, do you recall the date when this claim was filed?

A. It was filed August 29, 1933, under Special Master Number 1553.

Q. That was about eleven years ago. Are you familiar with the rules and regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission in regard to the destruction of records of railway companies? A. Yes, sir; in a general way.

Q. Have you a copy of the rule made in 1937 in that particular? A. I have.

Q. May I have it?

(A paper is handed to counsel.)

Q. This was received directly from the Interstate Commerce Commission as one of their regular publications and notices?

A. The Commission mailed that to me in January, 1938, at my request. This is my office copy.

Q. And this order of the Commission was dated December 28, 1937? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Kitchel: I offer this in evidence, Your Honor.

(The paper is marked "Institutional Court's Exhibit 1".)

Q. This order itemizes a number of accounts and records and tariffs, material and supplies, records of a number of matters, car reports and any amount of records of the road which are only to be retained for specified periods, for periods specified in the order. What has been the practice of the company in connection with the preservation or destruction of those records?

A. The orders of the Commission require you to name someone who is in charge of the destruction of records which we have obtained, such as orders during the reorganization proceeding, Mr. F. P. Johnson being named during his life; and by a court order Mr. Eckert being named at the present. When the records become voluminuous and the time within which they may be destroyed has expired, it is customary for the man in charge of the records to fill out a form, which is then approved by Mr. Eckert at the present time to the officer authorized to handle the destruction of the records, who then forwards it to the Interstate Commerce Commission, I believe, for their information. I am not sure whether their approval is necessary. And the records are then destroyed.

Q. You could not state, could you, that any particular record had been destroyed; you are simply specifying the general policy in connection with that matter?

A. It would be necessary to look at the records to see whether any particular records were destroyed. They are usually destroyed when we need additional filing space and the time has expired within which we must keep them.

Mr. Kitchel: That is all I have with this witness, Your Honor.

Questions by Mr. Brandwen.

Q. Mr. Railey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you acquainted with the contents of the proof of claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M.? A. Yes, sir; I have the original here.

Q. Do you know what was the basis of the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M.?

A. I know what it purports to be on its face.

Q. Do you know about it other than what it purports to be on its face?

A. I have no personal information as to the transaction out of which the claim arose. I do have information as to what has taken place in the Interstate Commerce Commission in subsequent proceedings.

Q. Were you apprised, prior to the filing of the claim of the Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M., that such a claim was going to be filed, as was filed?

A. I think Mr. F. P. Johnson discussed the claim with me the day he filed it.

Q. And what did he say to you at that time?

A. He said nothing other than that there was such a claim in existence, and asked if we should not as a matter of precaution file it, so there would not be any danger of any such a claim being barred by the court order which required claims to be filed at a specified time.

Q. Did he state to you the occasion or the basis of the claim?

A. No, sir; other than what it purported to be on its face.

Q. And it purported to be on its face advances made prior to the filing of the petition under 77?

Mr. Kitchel: The document speaks for itself.

Q. Do you know when the advances were made?

A. Not personally. I know what the records show, but not of my personal knowledge.

Q. The records are available at the present time?

A. The records were offered before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Wier's Exhibit 26.

Q. And the records on which the claim was filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. are available at the present time, are they not?

A. You mean the original records?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I have no personal knowledge. I assume that probably, the chances are that the financial records are available.

Q. Well, it is your best recollection, is it not? That the records on which the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M. in these proceedings are available at the present time? Is that a fair statement?

A. If you mean by that the books of accounts, showing the dates on which these advances were made, I should think that would be true. I have not seen them.

Q. We have a right to ask you that while these proceedings are pending those records will be kept intact?

A. I do not think that class of financial records are destroyed.

Q. So that the provision in the Institutional Investors Exhibit 1 was not applied to financial records such as we are discussing here?

A. The Commission exhibit sets out certain financial records which are not to be destroyed, and I assume those are the records to which you refer, and would disclose this? I have not looked at them.

Q. So that it should not be difficult at the present time to ascertain from the books of account of the Missouri Pacific, and the records retained by the Missouri Pacific, the basis of the claim filed by Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M.? Isn't that correct?

A. Yes, sir; I think the records would show at the present time clearly the date of the advancements, the date of any credits on these advancements. Of course, if you go back of those records and say they were not properly kept, or that there was a diversion of traffic, then you would get into records that were destroyed.

Q. You are aware, are you not, that in the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M., all that the claim asserts is a claim based on advances made by Missouri Pacific—allegedly made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M.? Isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Therefore, any suggestion that you made, included in your preceding answer with respect to diversion of traffic and categories of that kind, would not at all be applicable to the claim in question?

A. Not as far as the Missouri Pacific claim formally filed; no, sir.

Q. So that we can feel satisfied all the records and books of account giving rise to this alleged claim are available at the present time?

A. I have not seen those records, but I assume that is correct, if you do not go back of the records and attempt to say that they are incorrect, or anything of that kind; but on the face of the records, I think that they are correct and they correctly reflect this account that is set forth here, and that they are in existence today.

Q. Does the Missouri Pacific have a large accounting office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many people are employed in the Missouri Pacific accounting office at the present time?

A. More than a thousand.

Q. How many people were employed between 1933, the date of the filing of this claim, and the death of Mr. Johnson, in the accounting department?

A. You mean an average, or how many people?

Q. Yes, sir. A. I would say over a thousand.

Q. Mr. Johnson had assistants, did he not, during his life-time as Chief Accounting Officer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was his chief assistant?

A. Mr. Niven was what you would term his chief assistant prior to bankruptcy. He had the title "General Auditor".

Q. And from 1933 until the date of Mr. Johnson's death, who was?

A. Mr. Niven continued to fill that position until he retired about 1935. And after 1935 Mr. Nevin is dead and Mr. Don Pete is now filling his position.

Q. And Mr. Pete is available? A. He is available.

Q. Your books of account and records will show, will they not, the dates when the alleged advances were made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M.? A. I think so.

Q. Your books of account will also show, will they not, the purpose for which these advances alleged to be made by the Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M. were made?

A. They will show they were made, the records will show that they were for advances. I don't know whether they will show the information back of the advances. I never examined them to testify one way or the other on that.

Q. But you wouldn't say at the moment that the books of account now in existence of the Missouri Pacific will not show the purposes for which each one of the alleged advances from the Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M. were made?

A. I would not attempt to say what those books show in detail, because I have never examined them.

Q. Are you familiar with the fact, Mr. Railey, that detail evidence showing the purpose of each one of those advances was submitted to a Senatorial Committee in 1937 and 1938?

A. I don't know. I have never seen that exhibit, if there was one.

Q. You knew that examinations with respect to the alleged advances by the Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M. were made by a Senatorial Committee?

A. I know the Wheeler Committee investigated many facts, but frankly I have not gone into the investigation in this particular feature, and do not know whether they did or not.

Q. You are not aware of that? A. No, sir.

Q. Would it surprise you if I told you that that examination revealed testimony in the files of the Missouri Pacific indicating that the record showed the specific purposes for which advances were made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M.?

A. If they so testified, I have no doubt that is correct.

Q. Of your own knowledge, do you know whether it is not a fact that some advances were made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M. to enable N. O. T. & M. at once to repay these sums as dividends to Missouri Pacific when N. O. T. & M. didn't have cash funds available for the purpose of paying those dividends?

Mr. Kitchel: Object to that on the ground he is now going into the merits of the petition that he has not yet had leave to file.

Mr. Brandwen: May I argue that?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: The point of Mr. Kitchel calling this witness is an attempt to show that things have happened which should bar the Court's consideration of this petition. On that point I say if any of these officers have died, that is an unfortunate act of God. The fact is that this matter of a claim of Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M. has to be—I say this with all due respect, Your Honor please—has to be determined by Your Honor before Your Honor can make that indispensable finding as to whether or not rights of any particular group are being discriminated against. Now, if the suggestion is made that because Mr. Johnson is dead, or Mr. Cannon is dead, or Mr. Booth is dead, we can show to Your Honor's satisfaction with the staff of the Trustee that is available as to the fact that these alleged advances were made, and the purpose of them, or that we can show, for example, that Missouri Pacific dominated the N. O. T. & M. The Missouri Pacific owned over 94 per cent. of this stock since 1926, that practically every director of N. O. T. & M. was a nominee of Missouri Pacific, the majority directors of N. O. T. & M. were directors of Missouri Pacific—all those facts can be shown with crystal clarity. The documents are available and copies of them are with the Senatorial Investigating Committee; but I am quite satisfied if Your Honor will permit us to get the co-operation of employees and officials of the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M., we can get in documentary form everything that will be necessary for the purpose of establishing this case—not substantially, but to the hilt.

Mr. Kitchel: You have referred to the Senate investigation. Would you mind stipulating that took place in 1938, was it?

Mr. Brandwen: Oh, yes, sir; that is right. I will stipulate to that. But the important thing is whether the records are available, and I am satisfied that fact can be demonstrated to Your Honor's satisfaction completely. I would also like to have the record show, subject to agreement of the various parties and Your Honor's approval, that in 1937 a petition was filed on behalf of a committee representing the First Mortgage bonds and Mortgage bonds of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, pointing out—

The Court: Filed by whom?

Mr. Brandwen: Filed by the Committee representing holders of the First Mortgage bonds and Income bonds of N. O. T. & M. The Committee, incidentally, to which Mr. Kitchel alluded in a remark this morning saying they took no position in this matter. That petition was filed in these proceedings. That petition was filed here. That petition alleged, if I may comment on it, although it is on file, it is for the purpose of bringing the parts up to date, the various wrongs that are complained of in Mr. Foley's petition. It does not allege one important series of facts, that the advances in very large measure were made to enable N. O. T. & M. to pay dividends right back to the Missouri Pacific, and the petition of Mr. Foley goes into that in more detail. There is no reference to that in this petition. So that there was before this Court in 1937 a series of allegations made by this very responsible committee. And there are responsible allegations at that time that nothing was done about this petition at that time by the various parties. It might have been unfortunate, but it certainly can be used to deprive the 5¼% bondholders today of the right to have their day in court. With respect to these matters, I want to point out that the Trustee—

The Court: You say suit and petition was filed by the company some seven years ago?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, sir.

The Court: What was the history of that?

Mr. Brandwen: Answers were filed, answers and affidavits were filed. So far as I know, no action has been taken thereon. At least, there might have been some action. I have not seen anything in the record. But the record does not indicate, if Your Honor please, that anything was done with respect to that. It may well be—I do want to say this: I will tell Your Honor the full story with respect to it. Although the petition itself shows that the claim, the question of the claim of the Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M., and although the petition itself says that instead of N. O. T. & M. being a debtor—that the petition says, first, it alleges these wrongs were committed by Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M., by reason of the domination by Missouri Pacific of N. O. T. & M. It says the claim filed by Missouri Pacific against N. O. T. & M. is not valid. It also says that, as a matter of fact, N. O. T. & M. is a creditor of Missouri Pacific to the extent of several million dollars; but in contrast with the petition which we are filing, it does not say in the prayer clause, "Wherefore, we respectfully request this Court to expunge the claim or to have an accounting" as appears in the petition of Mr. Foley. It simply says that "By reason of all these facts and circumstances the rights of the creditors and security holders of Missouri Pacific were so different from the rights of the creditors and security holders of the N. O. T. & M. that, paying all due homage to the Trustee, that purely as a human matter it is impossible for one and the same person to determine this question", and therefore they ask—and that was the one thing they asked for—that there be separate trustees. Now, so far as I know, nothing was done after the answering petitions were filed with respect thereto.

The Court: I think it was withdrawn.

Mr. Brandwen: Perhaps it was withdrawn, but one thing is clear—

Mr. Dearmont: I can tell your Honor. Answers were filed and the matter was set for hearing here on one Monday morning, and on Friday I had a telephone call from Mr. Johnson stating he did not desire to prosecute the petition. And that is all that has been done.

The Court: I remember it now.

Mr. Brandwen: I can understand the basis for it; but, after all, if the parties cannot arrive at some kind of an adjustment of their various rights, they are not going to go ahead with it, that does not dispose of the fact if you had one petition by a responsible committee setting forth certain allegations, and if as a matter of convenience between the parties they withdrew it, they can not by their conduct deprive other bondholders or other security holders of their rights just because they, as a matter of accommodation—and I am not making any further comment with respect thereto—as a matter of accommodation to say it is for their committee to go forward, but the fact the charges were made in a sworn petition, the fact they were verified by a responsible committee, the fact they were brought to the attention of the Court and the parties and the Trustee, is a fact. Nothing was lost thereby because nothing was done at the time, because there still is time to do it at the present time.

Well, Mr. Biggs just advised me, Senator Dearmont, that the petition of the Walker Committee is still pending.

Mr. Dearmont: As far as I know, it was never dismissed. I was notified they did not desire to prosecute their petition, that is all; I was not authorized to dismiss it. You will find in the records, I believe, there never was a formal dismissal.

Mr. Brandwen: If we have a right to assume that the petition is still pending, the facts certainly bearing on that petition and all the material throwing light on that is of importance, and certainly that could be raised at any time. Anyone could step in and join in that petition as long as it is pending. I might say that in looking over the Answer filed by the Debtor with respect to the petition, for example, on the question of use of the locomotives purchased by the N. O. T. & M. and the locomotives were turned over to the Missouri Pacific, the Answer of Debtor itself does not deny that allegation. I looked at that very carefully.

The Witness: It is the Answer of the Trustee, isn't it; instead of the Debtor?

Mr. Brandwen: I think it is the Debtor. I am quite sure the Debtor filed an Answer, and the Debtor did not deny the fact that Missouri Pacific caused N. O. T. & M. to buy locomotives and equipment, not for N. O. T. & M. but to buy them for Missouri Pacific and turn over that equipment to Missouri Pacific. And then the Missouri Pacific advanced money to N. O. T. & M. for the purpose of paying for the equipment, and that forms part of the basis for this claim. Now all that was set forth in that petition. And as I say, as I read the Answer, that was not denied in any way at all. Now, then, in view of the first; first, the records of these matters are available—I will not argue this point for the moment.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. You say Mr. Safford was the Chief Operating Officer of N. O. T. & M. up to 1943?

A. During the existence of the corporation prior to bankruptcy, his title was Executive Vice-President of the Gulf Coast Lines. He was the Chief Operating Officer under Mr. Baldwin, and he performed the same function since bankruptcy up to the time of his death.

Q. And he had quite a large staff? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were his chief assistants?

A. Mr. Joe Anderson was his chief office assistant, and, of course, there are heads of various departments in Texas.

Q. Are they at present functioning?

A. Some of them are living; some are not. I have not followed the Texas lines as closely as I have the lines in St. Louis.

Q. And the books of account of the N. O. T. & M. showing the receipt of advances from Missouri Pacific and showing the payments by N. O. T. & M. to Missouri Pacific, are also retained, are they not?

A. Yes, sir; they are under Mr. Edrington's jurisdiction, I believe.

Q. So that those records showing what N. O. T. & M.

did with those advances, and what they repaid and what was distributed to the Missouri Pacific as dividends are available?

A. The records, whatever they show, are available. I do not know what detail they go into.

Q. Now, you, yourself, are not aware of who handled the matter involving the purchase of locomotives and equipment by N. O. T. & M., that is referred to in the allegation of the petition filed by Mr. Foley and the allegation in the petition filed by the Walker Committee in 1937?

A. Not from any personal information at the time; no, sir.

Q. Do you have any information at the present time as to who handled these transactions?

A. Well, at the time of the filing by the Walker Committee of their petition, Mr. Baldwin called a conference of all of the officers that might have any knowledge or information respecting the allegations, for the purpose of developing the facts. And I sat in on that conference, but I have not carried the facts sufficiently in my mind to attempt to testify regarding any of those details; nor did I know anything about that prior to the conference.

Q. Would you say Mr. Baldwin is acquainted with the facts underlying those allegations?

A. He sat in the conference and would remember better than I. I don't know that he had personal knowledge of all of them, he might have of some of them.

Q. Mr. Baldwin is still acting as Chief Executive Officer of the Missouri Pacific and I assume of the N. O. T. & M.? A. That is correct.

Q. And he is present and available in St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

(Short discussion off the record.)

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor please, I can assure you that if Your Honor suggests to the Trustee that we get the co-operation of the officials and employees of the Trustee of both roads, this material could be presented in documentary form, so that there can be question about the facts.

Mr. Kitchel: Undoubtedly it could be shown what the books show. As I understand it, they are trying to prove the books are false.

Mr. Brandwen: Beg your pardon, Mr. Kitchel.

Mr. Kitchel: You are talking about fraud.

Mr. Brandwen: I didn't use the term fraud in anything I said. I can only be held responsible for what I say. Sometimes that may be too great a responsibility, but certainly it is as big responsibility as I assume. I am not questioning at the moment, not questioning at the moment what the books show. I think the books will reveal the nature of these transactions, will certainly reveal the purpose for which the money was used, and will certainly reveal that you had Missouri Pacific transfer to N. O. T. & M. money and had N. O. T. & M. repay that to the Missouri Pacific in the form of dividends. The books will show that. Now the legal effect of that transaction is something I am at liberty to argue; but I am not questioning the books will show that. This is quite another matter.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Now, you are aware, are you not, that there was some discussion during the period of trusteeship about the problem of fair rental rates for equipment as between Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M.?

A. Yes, sir; that matter came up in connection with the petition.

Q. Of the Walker petition? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there were adjustments made thereafter, were there not, by the Trustee?

A. I do not recall. That is too long ago, and I did not handle that personally.

Q. Do you think Mr. Baldwin is aware of those negotiations dealing with the question of fair rentals for freight cars and other equipment as between Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M.?

A. Mr. Baldwin went into that very fully back in 1936, but whether he has carried that in his mind, I couldn't answer. That is expecting a good deal for him to do that, in detail, I mean.

Mr. Brandwen: I do not know whether he can recall it all in detail, but there may be memorandum and records of conferences, and there may be certain records and books which might refresh his recollection. You would not say that material is not available?

A. At the time of this conference, and my opinion that I have expressed here today as to the importance of these men that are dead, in determining this, is based purely on what developed at that conference that Mr. Baldwin had called. These men I have enumerated here were the principal men in that conference, in charge of the different departments that were interested.

Q. You would expect, would you not, in a conference of that kind, Mr. Baldwin would call in the heads of the various departments that might be interested?

A. Each had certain subordinates that handled details, but I can not recall who they are, nor do I know whether they are in existence today—men who handled repairs and engines, and knew especially about the engines or the traffic.

Q. So it would be appropriate to ascertain, would it not, who in the staff of the Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M. are acquainted with the various matters alleged in the petition of Mr. Foley, and ascertain from them what they know about these matters. And until such information is obtained, no one can say that such information is not available and can not be available? Is that correct?

A. I think that is correct, but I want to qualify that by saying at the time of this conference dealing primarily with the question of diversion of traffic and failure to operate the Gulf Coast Lines for their own advantage rather than for the System advantage, there are many men who handled those matters, and whose testimony would be of great importance, that are now dead. And I enumerated particularly some of those that came to my mind, such as Mr. F. P. Johnson, and Mr. Safford and Mr. Cannon.

Q. Well, the problem is with respect to certain matters that may be germane to the problems alleged and the factual matter alleged in the petition. If that information can not be developed there may be with respect to some of these matters an absence of some of the proof we would like to submit.

A. I am not expressing any opinion. I was called here as a witness to explain the death of gentlemen. I am not attempting to go into the merits of that controversy.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor please, I have a little more proof to offer, but enlarging I may remark that although the books of account might show, the transaction attempted here is to discredit those books, and I mentioned the fact that the charge of fraud has been made. Mr. Brandwen did not make that charge perhaps, but his proposed petition states, "Attempted by fraudulent and unlawful means to create an alleged debt designed to be a claim against the assets of the N. O. T. & M." Furthermore, in Paragraph 14, "The foregoing wrongful acts and diversions, as well as improper accounting methods, has caused large financial losses". This is only by way to show what they are really trying to do is to upset the accounts.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, dealing with that point Mr. Kitchel made, one of the points made in the petition and one of the points developed before the Senate Committee was the fact that some of the dividends paid by N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific were made out of capital. Now, how do they ascertain that? They take the books as they were, but they do not give full effect to depreciation. Now one may argue that, after all, you had a road here that was being depreciated necessarily; and if depreciation is not taken into account—and necessarily it is admitted depreciation should be taken into account, that appears from the books themselves—they failed to do something that should have been done. The time will come when if, for example, these books are examined, we say that most of the material will come from these books, we can take the books as they stand. The argument from the books is another matter as to whether a dividend is paid out of capital. It may be derived from a series of records, but so far as we are concerned at the moment, we are not going behind the books. If it becomes necessary as a matter of argument as a [signigicance] of what appears in the books, we are going to reserve the right to argue the significance of the entries made on books. After all, there is not going to be anything said on the books that a dividend has been paid out of capital, but that does not deprive one after analyzing the figures of the opportunity of coming to a legal conclusion that the dividends were paid out of capital.

Mr. Kitchel: Further, on the point of laches, Your Honor, I wish to have made as part of the record in this proceeding a transcript of the testimony taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission, certified to this Court, from which it will appear that all these questions were thoroughly threshed out before the Commission.

I would also like to have made part of the record a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, dated January 10, 1940.

Supplemental Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, dated April 9, 1940.

Supplemental Order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, dated April 29, 1940—all of which are certified to this Court and are part of the record in this main proceeding.

The Opinion of this Court approving the Plan, dated June 20, 1941; and Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, and Order and Decree of Court approving the Plan of Reorganization, dated July 12, 1941. I ask that these matters be made part of the record in this hearing. (See Court File.)

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, I find myself in a delicate position with respect to that. If, for example, it is not to be presumed Mr. Kitchel consulted these portions of the records of the Interstate Commerce Commission, I think it would be simplifying the record, because there is a good deal in the record that can have no possible connection with this hearing. And I do not want to be a party to anything that would deprive Mr. Kitchel of anything that has any connection or any relevancy to the matter before Your Honor on this hearing.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I would like to make such parts of that transcript of testimony part of this record as deals with these questions. Now Mr. Brandwen is quite right, a whole lot of that dealt with other questions. I have made an analysis which is not complete, but I would like to have these certain pages and exhibits mentioned on these pages made part of this record, together with any portions dealing with these questions that we might have omitted in going over this very hastily one afternoon. The record is very voluminous, as Your Honor knows; but what I particularly wish to have made a portion of this record is the testimony of Mr. Safford, on pages 925 to 928 of the transcript, and [pages] 2251 to page 2252. Testimony of Mr. Ballentine, pages 2787 to 2817; 3054 to 3079; 3119 to 3152; 3602 to 3636; 3640 to 3668. The testimony of Mr. Trobaugh, page 3185 to page 3212. Testimony of Mr. Scruggs, pages 3771 to 3813. Testimony of Mr. Wyer, pages 529 to 538; 1026 to 1030; 3165 to 3166; 3213 to 3377; 3577 to 3583; 3592 to 3601, and all the exhibits mentioned on those pages. Also such part of the transcript as shows testimony brought out either on direct or cross examination by my friend, Mr. Brandwen. I have not enumerated the pages on that because there are too many of them.

Now that is all I have except the matter of argument, Your Honor.

Mr. Brandwen: I haven't any objection to the offer that Mr. Kitchel made. And I assume it is so that this material he refers to is germane to this issue. I do not know what it is and I do not want to hold this up in any way. I assume if there is any other material or matters on this that Mr. Kitchel had inadvertently omitted, if you call that to his attention I presume it will be all right to have that in the record.

Mr. Kitchel: Yes, sir.

(Matters offered are in the Court File.)

Argument:

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I have made my motion in regard to the insufficiency of this petition which they propose to file, and I now move that the motion for request that this petition be filed be denied on the ground of laches.

Now this proceeding under Section 77 has been pending over eleven years. This particular claim which is now being disputed was filed on August 29, 1933, pretty nearly eleven years ago. This petition for the appointment of a separate trustee, referred to by Mr. Brandwen, was filed in March, 1937. The portions of the transcript before the Interstate Commerce Commission covering these transactions now complained of, the testimony was given in the years 1936 and 1937. During all this time this bondholder has failed to raise any objections, has failed to raise any of the points which he now raises. Now unreasonable delay has frequently been held to be sufficient to constitute laches, but in this case we have several additional features that render it unjust and inequitable to permit the starting of a new proceeding which would be initiated by the filing of this petition. In the first place, it is a well settled rule of law, and I think Mr. Brandwen himself referred to it, that if during the period of delay in presenting a claim such as this the position of the party, against whom the claim is directed, has changed to its detriment, laches will be established. Now we have proof today that many of the head men who handled the transactions complained of, and who necessarily would be witnesses in behalf of the Missouri Pacific in disputing this claim, have passed away. Perhaps the books are there, but the details of the transactions, the reasons why the various steps were taken and the fairness of everything, what really happened, was under the direct superivision of these men. To be sure, they might have had assistants, but the Missouri Pacific is now deprived of the aid which these men could have given in contesting this claim, had they been alive. Now the position of the Missouri Pacific has changed to its detriment, and that is sufficient to warrant Your Honor in refusing to permit this petition to be filed. Also, although the books of account may have been preserved, apparently the number of supporting records, detail records and waybills and things like that, have been destroyed.

Now, in the second place, on the point of laches, it will appear from these pages of the transcript before the Interstate Commerce Commission that I have put in evidence, that all of those matters that are now complained of, the advances and question of whether they were used to pay dividends, these locomotive exchanges, these car hire rates and diversion of traffic, have all been testified to, cross-examined and gone into detail before the Commission. Why go into it again? The record is there. It isn't going to be necessary to file that stuff all over again. Back in October when we were having the hearing on this new Plan before the Interstate Commerce Commission, counsel who now represent petitioner at that time represented certain other parties, and he made an offer of proof attacking this very claim on various grounds, and the Commission, the examiner in control, refused to allow the offer of proof for the reasons stated; but in his brief Mr. Biggs stated, which he filed under December 1, 1943, "We believe that all this evidence is already in the record of this proceeding". If it is in the record of this proceeding, why reopen the subject? The argument can be made before the Court when the proper time comes. There is no use to take further testimony on this petition.

Now in its report on the Plan which was approved by the Commission in 1940, the validity of this claim was adjudicated by the Commission, not by the Court; and the allocations of securities were made by the Commission on the basis of the validity of that claim. The Court in its opinion approved the Plan of the Commission in all its details except to cure some little defects, which we claim is an adjudication of this claim already had before the Court.

Now, in the third place, again on the question of laches. During the interval of eleven years during which this petitioner has taken no action whatsoever, the position in regard to the Missouri Pacific, so far as reorganization is concerned, the position of this proceeding has changed and developed to such an extent that it would be a detriment if anything now were brought up at this late day to inject a new subject, to encumber the record with a new proceeding. As was stated in the Continental Illinois Trust case against the Rock Island, the object of Section 77 is to develop a speedy reorganization. Section 77 has not quite lived up to that program, but we should endeavor to encourage and do what we can do to get it through.

Now this proceeding has reached a state where the Commission has now approved a new plan. To permit this particular proceeding to be started now would only result in further delay. It is well settled that intervention will not be granted when it is not made in due time, and would merely serve to encumber the record and cause delay.

I refer Your Honor to a case that perhaps you may be familiar with, Blumgart against St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company, 94 Federal (2), 712. In that case a small bondholder made the contention that he had the right to intervene. The case was decided by Your Honor and was sustained on appeal. Your Honor stated then that intervention is not a matter of right but is addressed to the judicial discretion of the Court. In a later case in the Eighth Circuit, Carpenter against Wabash Railway Company, 103 Federal, 996, reference is made to the Blumgart case. It says:

"Granting of leave to file upon the basic ground urged by the applicant would serve merely to encumber and delay the orderly process before a reorganization of the properties of the Railway Company." And that case also contains the following conclusion:

"In cases involving the complexity of the consolidated cause, large discretion is lodged in the District Court. In exercising its discretion the Court should consider whether the intervention will unduly delay or prejudice the adjudication of the rights of the original parties."

Now if this petition should be permitted to be filed, it would be a precedent which would enable anybody, even a striker, to come in at a late date and further delay the Plan. Your Honor has had enough of these railroad reorganizations to know there is enough trouble with them without seeking any additional trouble. And the impact on the railroad reorganizations in general, if this petition be granted and it becomes a precedent, Your Honor can well appreciate.

Now I have only one more thing to say in regard to this matter. I think that this whole proceeding is merely brought for the purpose of delay. At the hearing in October on the present Plan when this present counsel representing someone else made this lengthy offer of proof, that having been denied he asked the Examiner whether the offer would be written into the record, and the Examiner said, "Yes," it would be written into the record, "but you can not go ahead with your proof." And Mr. Biggs said, "I do not intend to go ahead with it."

Now I move, Your Honor, on the point I first mentioned, insufficiency of the Petition, and on the second point of laches, the motion for leave to file the petition be denied, and the motion to intervene be likewise denied. Further, I think a small individual, a bondholder of 25,000 bonds, should not be allowed to intervene; otherwise, the record would be encumbered by too many individuals.

The Court: The parties have shown no eagerness to enlighten the Court as to when their client secured the bonds and what he paid for them.

Mr. Brandwen: I do not know. Perhaps Mr. Biggs may know.

Mr. Biggs: I do not know, but I will ascertain that information and file it with you. Doctor Foley lives in Michigan, Your Honor.

The Court: Haven't you any knowledge at this time, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: No, sir.

The Court: Has your client informed you—

Mr. Biggs: I will say for the record I believe he purchased them after bankruptcy, but I do not know that definitely.

Mr. Homire: If the Court please, at the time of the hearing before the Examiner in October last, on the Plan which has now come out, Mr. Biggs was representing a party by the name of Comstock, I believe. And at that time the point was brought out that Mr. Comstock really had no standing himself to raise the question, and Mr. Biggs said at the hearing that he would institute a suit and raise the questions he was then attempting to prove up before the Commission. Now that was last October, and here we are now in July, and he has just brought this suit, and it seems to me that alone is an example of how dilatory the parties have been in proceeding with a claim of this character.

The Court: The Court doesn't want to lay new emphasis on the number of bonds owned, or how many have been sold, or what was paid; but in a court proceeding like this, a railroad reorganization, it has been twelve years, it could not help but have some weight showing something about what percentage of the parties were interested in having the reorganization, how many wanted to have it upset.

Mr. Biggs: Could I make a statement along that line?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor, if that is a matter of consequence to you, I can produce other parties holding probably ten per cent. and maybe less—that means over a million dollars in bonds—to join in this petition as plaintiffs. So if there is any question about the amount of bonds in this case as a crucial point, I will produce holders of over a million dollars.

The Court: The Court doesn't want to be understood as saying it is a crucial point.

Mr. Biggs: I will state in the record that I will produce—

The Court: No, sir; the matter is going to be disposed of now.

Mr. Biggs: I would also like to state there is pending now before the Interstate Commerce Commission an application for a committee to represent these bonds, and that application has not been acted on. I do not want to make any representations about what will happen, but I have been advised that committee will join in with this.

Mr. Homire: I would like to advert for a moment to the suggestion Mr. Brandwen made about the RFC not being an interested party in the outcome of this claim that he is attempting to relitigate. He was at great pains to show that the RFC was a holder in due course for value without notice, and then he goes on to say that "Well, it isn't material", he isn't willing to stipulate that. So you can see that he doesn't want to make a stipulation which would safeguard the rights and interests of the RFC., and at the same time he contends that we have no standing to object to the filing of the petition. It seems to me his position in that connection is inconsistent on its face. And furthermore, the RFC just as all other parties who have labored from the beginning in this proceeding to bring about a reorganization of the property, has an interest in common with them, and it is a very serious and a very important interest.

Now, Your Honor, I believe has read the RFC Answer to this petition. I do not want to read it again into the record. I do not think that is necessary, but I would like to call attention to the fact that creditors were required to file claim in these proceedings. The Missouri Pacific filed a claim on these N. O. T. & M. advances. Those advances were pledged to the RFC., in round numbers, ten million dollars. The RFC also filed a claim based on those advances in part, because that was an important part of our collateral. Many years have elapsed since the filing of these claims. This party who is now attempting to intervene did not challenge or protest or object in any way, and a reasonable time for filing any objection or protest to them has long since expired. And while Mr. Kitchel has very clearly and plainly pointed out the prejudice which the Missouri Pacific would be put to if this claim were now to be relitigated, and he referred to the death of important officers who had charge of the matters in question, the RFC as innocent holder of these advances is subject to the same prejudice which the debtor would be subject to, and a fortiori against the RFC., this intervener ought not to be permitted to proceed with this reopening of the record for the relitigation.

I would like to emphasize one point in particular, and that is that the wrongful acts complained of, and they are only allegations after all, were accomplished and could be accomplished only by reason of the ownership of the stock by the Missouri Pacific of its subsidiary, the N. O. T. & M. That stock is pledged to the securing noteholders or securing bondholders, and they claim and must claim through the very instrumentality by which the Missouri Pacific is alleged to have carried out these wrongful acts. And surely those wrongful acts can not be asserted against the RFC., who is entirely innocent of any participation in those acts. As far as the standing of the creditors is concerned, the RFC has just as good standing to complain of any wrongful acts, I suppose, as these parties whom Mr. Biggs represents. Or I should say "this party" because he has now limited it to this one.

I would like also to emphasize that before the RFC took these advances as security for the twenty-three million which it loaned on the Missouri Pacific, the Interstate Commerce Commission received an application from the Missouri Pacific asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve and authorize notes evidencing these advances. That is not true as to all, because as to a small part it was unnecessary to get the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval; but as to the very large part, over seven million or seven million and a half, roughly, the Commission gave its approval to those advances and said they were lawful and valid. In the exact language of the Interstate Commerce Commission act, Section 20a, which was applicable, the Commission found that these notes were for a lawful object within the corporate purpose of the N. O. T. & M. compatible with the public interest and necessary and appropriate for and consistent with the proper performance by it of service to the public as a common carrier, and which did not impair its ability to perform that service. And the Commission further found that the issuance of these notes was reasonable, necessary and appropriate for the purpose of which the Commission found to be lawful. So, in fact, this matter was passed on, this legality of these advances and this note was passed on before the reorganization proceedings ever commenced.

And, finally, I would like to emphasize a little further the question of laches, which Mr. Kitchel has dealt with. Mr. Kitchel referred to the decision of the Supreme Court in the Rock Island reorganization proceeding. That is 294 U. S. 648. On page 685 the Court in its Opinion said:

"The delay and expense incident to railroad receiverships and foreclosure sales constitute probably the chief reasons which induced the passage of Section 77. And to permit the perpetuation of either of these evils under this new legislation would be subversive of the spirit in which it was conceived and adopted. Not only those who institute the proceedings and those who carry it forward are bound to exercise the highest degree of diligence, but it is the duty of the Court and of the Commission to see that they do".

Any party who is in this proceeding is under a duty, is what the Court is saying. It is under a duty, and it is the further duty of the Court and the Commission to see that they carry this proceeding forward with the highest degree of diligence. The Court goes on to say:

"Proceedings of this character involving public and private interests of such magnitude should as far as practicable be given the right of way both by Court and Commission to the end that they may be speedily determined."

Now, in effect, what this intervener is attempting to do is to reopen the record which was closed before the Commission. Mr. Biggs said in his brief before the Commission that the record included this material, and the Commission in its report which was just handed down under date of July 4th and released only a day or two ago, comments on his statement in his brief, that these matters were adequately covered in the record before the Commission. And what I suppose Mr. Biggs and his client really want is an opportunity to raise certain questions of law in connection with the approval of the Plan. It is not necessary to reopen this record and go back into all those transactions now at a time when we have inadequate assistance and when many of the witnesses are dead. So far as the argument of his legal question is concerned, that is an appropriate matter to take up when this Plan comes before this Court for approval. And it is not necessary to go into all this material and encumber the record which now runs into many thousands of pages. And Your Honor has complete discretion in this matter. And we submit respectfully that a sound exercise of your discretion would be in the denial of this application.

Mr. Pierce: If Your Honor please, the Debtor has filed an answer which raises points which Mr. Kitchel so ably argued, and Debtor's argument could add nothing.

I do wish to call the Court's attention that the Answer challenges and denies what the Debtor's counsel deem material allegations of fact in the petition. And there is no proof whatever here offered in support of petitioner's allegations, which are so challenged as has just been stated, under the statutory issuance of this order. That is entirely discretionary with Your Honor. But the main witness whose testimony should develop facts which would enable you properly to exercise your discretion, is not present; and I ask that you take that into consideration in determining how to exercise your discretion.

Mr. Brandwen: Would it be too great an imposition on Your Honor? Your Honor please, I recognize that with respect to the limited proceeding that we have here today; namely, petition for leave to intervene and file petition. This is entirely in Your Honor's discretion, and Your Honor has to be guided by the various considerations which Your Honor thinks appropriate. I do want to point out that when the Plan of Reorganization comes up, the rights of any particular bondholder to have this question determined, because that affects necessarily his right to participate in the Plan of Reorganization, and the extent of his participation is not a matter of discretion, that is a matter of right that under the Bankruptcy Act is given to him. If Your Honor thinks that it is more appropriate to have it raised at that time instead of now, of course, that is entirely within Your Honor's discretion. We are doing it now so that if any time may be saved between now and the time the Plan of Reorganization comes up, we would like to save that. If, on the other hand, the parties and Your Honor feel that it should wait until the Plan of Reorganization comes on for hearing, well that may be Your Honor's ruling. But in the interest of moving along we want to have it raised at the present time.

Now with respect to the problem of laches, Mr. Homire read from the language of the Court in the Rock Island case stating the purpose of Section 77 is to speed up proceedings. This matter has been in court here for eleven years, and the quotation is—

The Court: It has been here twelve years; it has been under 77 for eleven years.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, sir. If Mr. Homire wishes to suggest by quoting from this Court that delays are subversive of the intent of the Legislature in passing that Act, then certainly the fact this has been here eleven years is, I think, a very interesting commentary with respect to the various actors in the situation. I make no point of it. I simply want that to be noted.

Now with respect to the alleged prejudice with respect to the death of the parties. Again I wish to say that I am satisfied and I think Your Honor can be satisfied very quickly that nobody need be prejudiced by reason of the fact of the death of some of the individuals. All material can be made available. Now, again, I wish to emphasize there has apparently been a misapprehension. The question of the validity of a claim is something that the Interstate Commerce Commission does not undertake to deal with. It says so expressly. The Supreme Court has ruled that expressly, that is something in the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court. You can have all the testimony in the world before the Interstate Commerce Commission, but that does not absolve the Court from dealing with that as a matter de novo as to what are the rights of the parties. So this testimony can not have any bearing on the question of validity of the claim. And that has not been dealt with.

Now I want to say this: Suppose, for example, there was a trial in an ordinary action before the Court, and that trial goes to judgment; it is appealed to the Circuit Court, and then it is sent back for a new trial. That is the case here. Certainly on new trial the plaintiff is not limited solely by the arguments of the petition he filed at the first trial. It is a new trial. He can raise all the points that appropriately can be raised. And this was sent back to the Interstate Commerce Commission as a new proceeding, and when Your Honor passes on it, he has to pass on all these rights. So while it is true the present proceeding is simply discretionary, the time will come in the near future when the matter will be a matter that will have to be determined by Your Honor and all appropriate material bearing on the validity of the claim and rights of the bondholders will have to be considered. And I think it will save time if it is done now, because it will have to be done sometime.

Now with respect to the allegations. If Your Honor finds that the statement in the petition that the bondholders by reason of default of the bonds have become equitable owners of the stock of N. O. T. & M., which is a legal conclusion; but if Your Honor feels that by any chance that makes them stockholders and therefore makes the petition defective, I ask at the present time to withdraw that reference in that petition so that what will be submitted to Your Honor will be the elimination of any reference to the fact that this bondholder and the 5¼% bondholders as a class have become the equitable owners of the stock, so that in the consideration that Your Honor may give to this matter I would like to have that amendment made so there can be no question about that. While I do not agree with the contention of Mr. Kitchel, if that contention should influence Your Honor I want to have the record clear that this is out, if I make this—

The Court: What is that that is changed?

Mr. Brandwen: Paragraph 7. I will say "default", so that the last sentence of Paragraph 7 should read, instead of the way it reads now, "default has occurred in the payment of the interest and principal of these bonds", striking out the rest of that paragraph. At the moment I do not think there is any other reference to equitable owners, but if there is, I would like to—

Mr. Homire: If the allegation were true, your striking it out would not make it untrue.

Mr. Brandwen: It is, Your Honor, between the factual allegation and a legal conclusion.

Mr. Homire: If it is a legal conclusion, that is for the Court.

Mr. Brandwen: May I state, so far as the record is concerned, while I do not agree with Mr. Kitchel as to his analysis of the law on that point, let the petition be amended so it will read as follows, whatever the consequences are, legal consequences that flow.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen: Now the Interstate Commerce Commission couldn't have passed on the validity of things at that time. It doesn't undertake, when it passes on collateral, to pass on the legality. If it did, it would have to be a judicial body, such as it is not at the moment; and passing on that I think is contrary to the functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Interstate Commerce Commission never presumed to undertake that function.

The Court: That is all on laches? I will take the matter as submitted now? Anyone want to be heard further?

Mr. Kitchel: Yes, sir.

Mr. Kitchel: I want to say one thing, Your Honor, and that is exactly as already stated. Everything he needs is in the record already. To be sure, that record was before the Interstate Commerce Commission, but it has been certified to you. He says all in there. Why go into it again? All that is necessary is to have the legal argument when the time comes for the Plan.

Mr. Brandwen: I do not recall having made such a statement. I do not make it with respect to this petition. There has been no statement made with respect to the petition before Your Honor this morning that all of the evidence that is pertinent to the determination of the fundamental issues presented by the petition—I say that evidence is not in the record. I want to make that perfectly clear so there will not be any question in anybody's mind about our position on that.

Mr. Homire: In connection with that, will it be understood that the Commission's Report of July 4, 1944, the one recently handed down, which is called a Supplemental Record of the Commission decided July 4, 1944, may it be understood that will be part of the record in this hearing?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: To the extent that is pertinent to this; I don't think the whole report.

Mr. Homire: I am pretty sure you have to go into the whole report to find out exactly what the Commission thought about the matter. I do not think it ought to be limited to that extent.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I have my objection on that point, Your Honor.

The Court: The matter is taken as submitted then, gentlemen. You may announce an indefinite recess.

Trustee of said Debtor Railroads.

Objections of Andrew W. Comstock, Holder of 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to Plan of Reorganization Approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

(Filed November 22, 1944.)

In the District Court of the United States.

Eastern Division—Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad No. 6935

Pursuant to order entered October 31, 1944 in the above entitled proceedings, Andrew W. Comstock, holder of $80,000 of 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds due 1931-56, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company (hereinafter called the 5¼% Secured Bonds), on behalf of himself and fourteen owners of at least $900,000 additional principal amount of said 5¼% Secured Bonds for whom he is duly authorized to file these objections, and on behalf of all other owners and holders of said 5¼% Secured Bonds, hereby makes and presents the following objections to the Plan of Reorganization of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company (hereinafter called MOP) including New Orleans, Texas & Mexico (hereinafter referred to as NOTM) approved by orders dated July 4 and October 9, 1944 of the Interstate Commerce Commission (hereinafter called the Plan), and submits the following claim for equitable treatment.

Objections to the Plan.

1. The Plan is unfair and inequitable by reason of the absence of findings by the Commission of the value of the 121,460 shares of the capital stock of NOTM constituting the collateral securing the $12,140,000 principal amount of the 5¼% Secured Bonds outstanding. This block of stock constitutes more than eighty per cent (80%) of the total outstanding stock of NOTM and carries control of this important and profitable railroad.

2. The Plan is unfair and inequitable by reason of its failure to allocate reorganization securities to said 5¼% Secured Bonds having a value and a money's worth fully equivalent to the value of the 121,460 shares of capital stock of NOTM securing said 5¼% Secured Bonds.

3. The Plan is unfair and inequitable by reason of the failure of the Commission to comply with the requirement imposed on it of allocating to the 5¼% Secured Bonds the equitable equivalent of the rights surrendered. The new securities allotted to the 5¼% Secured Bonds are not the equitable equivalent of the collateral required to be surrendered. The Plan deprives the 5¼% Secured Bonds of their collateral without their consent and without compensating them with the full equivalent thereof.

4. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it fails to give recognition to the fact that the 5¼% Secured Bonds are secured by collateral, and that said collateral has large value. It assumes that the position of the 5¼% Secured Bonds is junior to MOP's general mortgage bonds and to those ranking ahead of the general mortgage bonds. The 5¼% Secured Bonds, however, are in a position like that of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and various bank creditors. They, like the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the various bank creditors, have no lien on any fixed property of MOP Railroad Company. They are a separate class of creditors without any lien relationship to the mortgage debt of MOP and their treatment under any plan must be based upon the value of their separate security.

5. The Plan is unfair and inequitable because it permits other classes of creditors having no lien or claim whatsoever thereon to participate to the exclusion of, or prior to the 5¼% Secured Bonds, in the assets and earnings. The interest of the 5¼% Secured Bonds in the assets and earnings after fixed charges of NOTM are matters of great value which cannot be taken away without compensation in money or money's worth.

6. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "Regarding the treatment of the junior claims of the system, namely, the Missouri Pacific general-mortgage bonds, serial 5¼-percent bonds, and convertible bonds, the New Orleans capital stock, and the International adjustment bonds, the following formulas were used by the negotiators of the compromise plan" (p. 56).

7. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "We also find that the treatment accorded the Missouri Pacific serial 5¼-percent bonds and that accorded the unsecured creditors of the Missouri Pacific and unsecured creditors and stockholders of the New Orleans (aside from the allocations of stock-purchase warrants) is justified by the total value and earning power of these properties and the value of the free assets of these debtors and, in view of the rights of prior creditors and within the new capitalization which we have found justified, represents the full extent of participation in the plan of reorganization to which they are entitled" (p. 61).

8. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that > "They would take the stock at $100 per share, if computed on the total amount of their claim, and the serial bondholders, who are secured collaterally by New Orleans capital stock, would receive only such amount of the new class-A common stock as the New Orleans stockholders are found in the plan to be entitled to receive, plus an additional amount in recognition of the control element of the pledged 80 percent of New Orleans stock, the remainder of the claim of the serial 5¼-percent bondholders not so satisfied being treated in the same manner as the claims of other unsecured creditors of the Missouri Pacific" (p. 52).

9. The plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it does not adequately recognize the value of the assets of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company (hereinafter referred to as NOTM), and does not give adequate consideration to the earnings, the assets, and the cash position of the properties.

10. The Plan is unfair and inequitable by reason of its failure to give adequate consideration to the amount of cash and its equivalent in the hands of the Trustee of NOTM and to the net current assets of NOTM. The Plan also fails to provide for the advantageous and effective use of the excess cash now in the hands of the Trustee.

11. The Plan is unfair and inequitable because it fails to give consideration to the earnings of NOTM to date. The Commission relied on figures only up to July, 1943. The Commission erred also in relying on earnings from the period from 1938 to 1942, when figures for the year 1943 and part of 1944 were available.

12. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "No system statements for 1943 of income available for payment of interest and net income are of record for any period subsequent to the first 7 months January-July, inclusive, the system amount at the end of that period being $32,514,678 and net income $17,581,670" (p. 7).

13. The Plan is unfair and inequitable in providing for consolidation of NOTM with MOP when such consolidation is to the detriment of the 5¼% Secured Bonds by not observing the legal requirements of affording the 5¼% Secured Bonds the exact equivalent of their collateral.

14. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of said Commission without due observance of the statutory standards prescribed by §77 (e) of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, that, upon a basis of separate reorganization, the total permissible capitalization of NOTM is $67,000,000.

15. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as the Commission made no finding with respect to the character and the amount of the assets of NOTM which are not productive of earnings.

16. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the assumption, without any evidence therefor, that "greater future earning will (not) result from the net increase in investment accounts" (p. 42, July 4 Report). The amount and character of investments in road and equipment during the trusteeship and particularly since December 31, 1939, are important factors in calculating earnings present, past, and prospective of MOP and NOTM.

17. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

> "From December 31, 1939, the day prior to the effective date of the Commission plan, to July 31, 1943, gross additions and betterments to road and to equipment of the Missouri Pacific (exclusive of two subsidiaries, Natchez & Louisiana Railway Transfer Company and Kansas-Missouri Elevator Company) have increased by $14,206,756 and $20,009,683, respectively, New Orleans $2,411,465 and $2,087,513, respectively,

International $1,145,973 and $1,346,810, respectively, and system $17,837,648 and $23,443,906, respectively.

"In the same period investment of the Missouri Pacific in road and equipment increased $22,322,770, New Orleans by $2,501,098, International by $1,175,822, and the system by $25,999,689. During this period, the system also acquired and entered in its balance sheet accounts as 'investment in affiliated companies—unpledged', the St. Joseph terminal properties, the purchase price being $3,600,000 plus $999,186 advances to affiliated companies" (pp. 9-10).

18. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the finding of the Commission that

"In our former report we determined a permissible maximum system capitalization of about $560,000,000 as of January 1, 1940. Since that date, according to exhibits filed at the further hearing, there has been an increase in the system investment in road and equipment of nearly $26,000,000 and an increase in accrued depreciation of about $15,000,000, indicating a net increase in investment in road and equipment of about $11,000,000. The investment of the system in affiliated companies as stated by the debtors has, during the same period, increased by about $4,600,000. Adding these sums of $11,000,000 and $4,600,000 to the total given above of $558,326,178 produces $573,926,178. It does not necessarily follow, however, and the record does not show, that greater future earnings will result from this net increase in investment accounts" (p. 42).

19. The Plan is unfair and inequitable by reason of the fact that it "assumed" the validity of an alleged claim of MOP against NOTM for inter-company advances. The allocation of securities to the said 5¼% Secured Bonds is expressly stated by the Commission to be based on the assumption of the validity of said claim. Any allocation of securities based on the validity of said claim is unfair and inequitable. The National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, requires a full judicial determination on the merits of the validity of said claim. There has been no such determination. The claim is invalid in all respects. It is based on advances purportedly made by MOP to a dominated subsidiary NOTM. Said advances were made in the interests of MOP and not of NOTM. They would not have been made if NOTM had had the benefit of independent management. Detailed objections to the claim of MOP against NOTM are contained in Schedule A annexed hereto and made a part hereof.

20. The Plan is unfair and inequitable in permitting convertible 5½'s owned by or for the account of Alleghany Corporation, its officers, directors or stockholders to share in the allocation of securities of the reorganized company.

21. The Plan is unfair, inequitable and discriminatory in failing to provide that the claims of Alleghany, its officers, directors or stockholders be subordinated to the 5¼% Secured Bonds and to all other creditors and security holders of MOP.

22. Fairness and equity require this Court in connection with any plan of reorganization, to find that MOP, to its detriment and loss and that of its security holders, was utilized by Alleghany to expend more than $4,000,000 for the purchase of MOP stock and I. G. N. bonds and to declare and pay large sums in dividends on MOP stock; that these expenditures and payments were made solely in Alleghany's interest; and that these expenditures and payments were made at a time when MOP's current liabilities exceeded its current assets, its income was declining, it was required to borrow money for its ordinary operating purposes, and every consideration of the interests of MOP and of its security holders required the retention by MOP of all available cash for its ordinary operating and corporate purposes.

23. Fairness and equity require that this Court, in connection with any plan of reorganization, find that Alleghany converted to its own use more than $4,000,000 in cash belonging to MOP; that Alleghany, through the control it exercised over MOP, disbursed more than $4,000,000 in cash belonging to MOP without the authorization of the Board of Directors and without any other proper corporate authorization; that Alleghany, through the control it exercised over MOP, caused fraudulent records and entries to be made by MOP and its subsidiaries in order to conceal the conversion of MOP's cash by Alleghany; and that when Alleghany sustained disastrous stock market losses in dealings with cash belonging to MOP, Alleghany transferred to a subsidiary of MOP securities having a then market value of approximately $200,000 in order to make it appear that the loss sustained by Alleghany in market speculations had been sustained by MOP or its subsidiaries.

24. The Plan is unfair and inequitable in that it allocates to a small group with close interlocking interests the selection of the Board of Directors and the reorganization managers.

25. The Plan is unfair and inequitable in permitting the reorganization managers to fix the compensation of those whose services they employ in the execution of their powers.

26. The Plan is unfair and inequitable in that it discriminates unfairly in favor of other classes of creditors as against the 5¼% Secured Bondholders.

27. The Plan is unfair and inequitable inasmuch as it is based on the unsupported finding of the Commission that the Plan will meet with the requirements of subsections (b) and (e) of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as amended and will be compatible with public interest.

Claim for Equitable Treatment.

Objector claims:

(a) That a determination and finding be made of the value of the collateral securing said 5¼% Secured Bonds;

(b) That said 5¼% Secured Bonds be not required to accept securities in any reorganized company unless said securities are found to have a value and money's worth at least the equivalent of the value of the collateral now securing said 5¼% Secured Bonds, unless the collateral is found to have a value in excess of the entire claim of said 5¼% Secured Bonds, in which event the claim shall be limited to securities having a value and money's worth measured by the principal amount of said bonds and accrued interest;

(c) That should said collateral now securing the 5¼% Secured Bonds be found to have a value less than the principal amount of the 5¼% Secured Bonds and accrued interest, then and to the extent of the difference between the value of the collateral and the total amount of the claim of said 5¼% Secured Bonds, said Bonds shall share with other security holders of MOP;

(d) That the claim of MOP against NOTM be declared invalid or, in any event, be subordinated to the claim of the 5¼% Secured Bonds;

(e) That Alleghany be not permitted to participate in the reorganization;

(f) That there be no voting trust of the stock of the new company; and

(g) That the stock provisions shall provide for cumulative voting.

Wherefore, it is respectfully prayed:

(a) That the Court disapprove the Plan of Reorganization certified to the Court by the Interstate Commerce Commission as not fair and equitable to the 5¼% Secured Bonds;

(b) That the Court refer the proceeding back to the Interstate Commerce Commission for further action in accordance with the rights of said 5¼% Secured Bondholders, and as such rights shall be determined by this Court, and as set forth in the foregoing objections and claim for equitable treatment; and that

(c) Such other and further relief be granted in the premises as shall be just and equitable.

Schedule A.

Detailed Objections to Claim of MOP against NOTM (hereinafter referred to as the Debtor).

1. Debtor is not indebted to MOP in any sum. The claim filed by MOP against the Debtor is invalid and the advances and Notes referred to therein do not constitute the basis of any debt or obligation on the part of the Debtor. The advances by MOP to the Debtor were made solely for the benefit and purposes of MOP and not for the benefit of the Debtor and the Demand Notes were executed solely by virtue of the control which MOP exercised over the Debtor and were solely for the benefit and purposes of MOP and not of the Debtor. The advances by MOP to the Debtor were made in violation of MOP's fiduciary obligations to the 5¼% Secured Bondholders and are invalid.

2. The 5¼% Secured Bonds were issued by MOP on or about December 1, 1926, to enable MOP to obtain the funds to pay the cost of acquiring the Capital Stock of the Debtor and MOP was enabled to sell said Bonds by reason of and on the basis of the collateral pledged therefor, now consisting of 121,460 shares of Capital Stock of the Debtor. The Indenture pursuant to which said 5¼% Secured Bonds were issued provides in Article V thereof, in part, as follows:

> "(m) The railroad company (MOP) will not do or perform, or voluntarily permit to be done or performed, any act or thing by which the validity or priority of this indenture and pledge hereunder of the Pledged Stock, as herein provided, can or may be in any way or manner impeached."

MOP failed to perform and abide by the fiduciary obligations which it undertook in said Indenture and by reason of the sale of said 5¼% Secured Bonds as aforesaid and, instead, has managed and controlled the Debtor in the interests of MOP to the injury of and at the expense of the holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds, and has deliberately undermined the validity, the priority, and the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor pledged under said Indenture by a course of conduct and series of acts more particularly set forth hereinafter.

3. The facts with respect to the invalidity of the claim asserted by MOP against the Debtor, which require the disallowance and expunging of the claim as an obligation of the Debtor are, among others, as follows:

(a) Prior to the acquisition of control of the Debtor and its subsidiaries by MOP in 1925, the Debtor and its subsidiaries were prosperous railroads earning large profits after the payment of fixed charges, and accumulating substantial surpluses. Successful operation was made possible by an independent management functioning in the interest of the Debtor and its security holders.

(b) MOP acquired control of the Debtor and its subsidiaries in or about the year 1925, and from that date until the institution of these proceedings, MOP completely dominated and controlled the Debtor and its subsidiaries. During said period and until 1937, all the directors and officers of the Debtor were nominees of MOP, and were at all times subject to the direction and control of MOP.

(c) During the period from in or about 1926 to 1933, MOP managed the Debtor and its subsidiaries solely to serve its own purposes and without any regard for the interests of the Debtor, its subsidiaries, or its security holders, or the interests of the 5¼% Secured Bonds. During said period, the Debtor was never afforded the opportunity of protecting [tiself] and acting in its own interests and those of its security holders.

(d) During the aforesaid period MOP caused the Debtor and its subsidiaries to declare and pay improper and excessive dividends to MOP, the payment of which has substantially and materially impaired the value of the Debtor's Capital Stock. During the years 1926 to 1931, inclusive, MOP caused the Debtor to declare and pay annually $1,038,000 as dividends, of which more than $900,000 annually was paid to MOP, so that for the six-year period, the Debtor paid dividends on its Capital Stock aggregating $6,200,000, of which more than $5,500,000 was declared for the benefit of and paid to MOP. MOP caused the Debtor to declare and pay such dividends although the Debtor had neither the earnings nor the cash to justify such payments as hereinafter set forth.

(e) During the six-year period when the aforesaid dividends were being paid, the Debtor reported an aggregate net income (exclusive of income from subsidiaries) of only approximately $90,000. Such income figures were over-stated, because MOP caused the Debtor to under-state accruals for depreciation, to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment, to allow both road and equipment to deteriorate. If adjustment be made only for the under-statement of depreciation accruals, the Debtor sustained a loss during the six year period of at least $321,000 as compared with the aggregate net income, reported for the period, of $90,000. Since the reported income of the Debtor, even as over-stated did not warrant payment of the dividends referred to, the Debtor was caused to pay such dividends out of capital and its purported surplus, and in addition, MOP caused the subsidiaries of the Debtor similarly to pay improper and excessive dividends to the Debtor in order to enable the Debtor to make the payments to MOP as aforesaid. The subsidiaries of the Debtor were, as in the case of the Debtor, caused by MOP to over-state their income, to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment and to keep inaccurate records and books of account.

(f) During most of the period in which the aforesaid payments of dividends were made, the debtor did not have funds available for such payments, and such funds were advanced to it by MOP, in many instances for the express purpose of enabling the Debtor to make such dividend payments. During the years 1929, 1930 and 1931, the Debtor received advances from MOP aggregating $2,595,000 which advances were immediately used by the Debtor at the direction of MOP to declare and pay the aforesaid dividends. During such years, each time the Debtor was directed by MOP to pay a dividend, advances in identical amount were allegedly made by MOP to the Debtor within a day or two preceding the purported payment of the alleged dividend.

(g) The continued demands of MOP for dividend payments from the Debtor and its subsidiaries during the six years 1926 to 1931, inclusive, progressively impaired the financial condition and capital of the Debtor so that in the years 1930 and 1931, if not theretofore, the distribution of so-called dividends amounting to $2,076,000 of which about $1,800,000 were paid to MOP were illegally paid out of the capital of the Debtor at the direction of MOP. Such payments out of capital were caused to be made for the purposes and benefit of MOP in order to enable MOP to meet its own inordinately heavy and mounting financial requirements.

(h) In order to permit the payment of such dividends, MOP caused the Debtor to keep improper records and books of account so as to conceal the true state and condition of the properties, finances and affairs of the Debtor and its subsidiaries; and further caused the Debtor to violate the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission prescribing proper methods of accounting and reporting. All the foregoing acts were designed to and did conceal the true condition of the Debtor and were intended and calculated to over-state the income of the Debtor and its surplus and thus ostensibly place the Debtor in a position to declare and pay dividends to MOP in violation of law.

(i) Most of the facts hereinbefore set forth in this Paragraph 3 were first uncovered by the Sub-Committee of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the United States Senate, and were published on or about July 29, 1940 in Report No. 25, Part 9, entitled "Missouri Pacific System—Inter-Company Dividends and Advances—1926-1931". In said Report the Sub-Committee of the United States Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce stated with respect to the aforesaid transactions between MOP and the Debtor, the following:

> "* * * Some abuses were visible prior to 1930 in the relationship between Missouri Pacific and its subsidiaries; further and more intensive abuses appeared following acquisition of control by Alleghany Corporation.
> An independent railroad, prudently managed by directors and officials who have only the interests of the railroad itself in mind, will declare only such dividends as are justified by earnings. * * * When a railroad is controlled by a holding company, however, it may be forced to act in the interests of the holding company rather than of the railroad. It may declare dividends not justified by the condition of the railroad in order to supply income needed by the holding company. Instead of ploughing back some of its income into surplus, it may milk the surplus to pay dividends. It may juggle its accounts, lay off employees, cut payrolls to the bone, skimp on maintenance, postpone necessary improvements of road and equipment, borrow money to pay interest, defy the accounting regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and finally despoil its own security-holders by declaring dividends out of capital—all in a desperate effort to continue the flow of funds from the subsidiary to the parent company.
> Such were the abuses which occurred in the Missouri Pacific system between 1926 and 1931."
> (Report, pp. 1 and 2)

Under the heading "Milking the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico", the United States Senate Sub-Committee stated:

"* * * In theory, dividends on the N. O. T. & M. stock were payable only when justified by that railroad's financial condition. In fact, however, the parent company, through its power of control, was in a position to sacrifice its subsidiary's financial health to its own need for income.

In every year from 1926 through 1931, the Missouri Pacific caused the N. O. T. & M. to pay $1,038,000 in dividends. Each year more than $900,000 of this sum went directly to the Missouri Pacific.

The N. O. T. & M. itself never earned enough to pay these dividends. In none of the 7 years, 1926 through 1931, did the N. O. T. & M. earn more than $605,000 (exculsive of dividends from its subsidiaries, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico). In 3 of the 6 years, the road showed a deficit after fixed charges. For the 6 year period considered as a whole its stated net income totaled a bare $90,000 (as against dividend declarations totaling $6,300,000).

Even the $90,000 net income figure was a considerable overstatement. Each year the N. O. T. & M. regularly included in its operating expenses a certain sum for depreciation of its equipment. Consistently, year after year, the amount charged for depreciation was inadequate. A statement from the files of the railroad itself shows that for the period 1926 through 1930 the N. O. T. & M.'s net income was overstated (through understatement of depreciation) by more than $411,000. If the railroad's depreciation had been adequately charged, it would have shown a deficit for the 6 years 1926 to 1931, of $321,000 after fixed charges. Yet during this period the Missouri Pacific took $5,580,000 in dividends out of the N. O. T. & M.

* * * * * * *

The details of the process by which the Missouri Pacific milked the N. O. T. & M. and the N. O. T. & M. in turn milked the Brownsville are revealed in a series of letters introduced into the record of this sub-committee."

(Report, pp. 2 and 3)

The letters referred to are attached as an Appendix to part XII of the Hearings before the Sub-Committee of the Senate Committee headed "Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Purchase of System Securities through Subsidiaries, Inter-Company Dividends and Advances, Accounting Methods." Most of these letters were written to or by Mr. L. W. Baldwin, then President of both MOP and the Debtor, and now operating head of both railroads.

(j) Between 1925 and 1933, MOP caused the Debtor to embark upon and finance an expansion program and to make investments for the benefit of MOP, thereby heavily increasing the burden of the debt structure which the Debtor was required to service and sustain. As a result thereof, and of the other matters herein set forth, the financial structure of the Debtor became impaired and its working capital exhausted, thus, among other things, injuring and impairing the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor. In connection therewith and the other matters herein set forth, MOP purportedly made advances to the Debtor and caused the Debtor to pay large sums of money as interest thereon to MOP, thereby further depleting the working capital of the Debtor necessary to carry on its basic operations and further, among other things, impairing the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor. In addition, during said period, MOP caused the Debtor to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment, and to allow both road and equipment to deteriorate. During said period MOP caused the Debtor to pay to MOP excessive rentals for freight cars used by the Debtor and caused the Debtor to bear an unfair and disproportionate amount of the expenses of MOP. Similarly during said period, MOP wrongfully diverted or caused to be diverted from the Debtor's lines and those of its subsidiaries to the lines of MOP substantial amounts of valuable and profitable traffic originating on lines of and property belonging to the Debtor and its subsidiaries, which traffic so diverted could and should have been moved over the lines of the Debtor or its subsidiaries.

4. The foregoing wrongful acts of spoliation and waste of the assets of the Debtor have caused financial losses to the Debtor and its subsidiaries in excess of the claim heretofore filed herein by MOP in the amount of $10,565,226.78, including any claim for interest thereon. The alleged advances which form the basis of such claim filed by MOP herein are invalid and do not constitute an obligation of the Debtor. Such claim filed by MOP herein in the amount of $10,565,226.78, including any claim for interest thereon, should therefore be disallowed and expunged as a claim against the Debtor.

5. The purported advances by MOP to the Debtor were made as an integral part of a plan designed to further the interests of MOP at the expense of and in violation of MOP's fiduciary obligations to the holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds.

6. The claim filed by MOP against the Debtor has not been allowed by any order of this Court entered herein.

7. The time within which objections may be filed to the claim of MOP against the Debtor has not expired or lapsed.

8. An order made by Honorable C. B. Faris, District Judge then in charge of these proceedings, dated May 13, 1933 and filed May 15, 1933, provided among other things for the filing of claims herein, for the reference of such claims and objections thereto to a Special Master and further provided that objections to the allowance of any claim "shall be filed within such time and with such particularity as the Master in his discretion may prescribe." Neither this Court nor the Master designated by it has specified the particularity or the time whereby or within which objections to claims, including that of MOP, were to be filed. The Master previously designated by this Court to report with respect to claims has since died and no other Master has been designated to act in his place or stead. The records disclose that there are claims that have not yet been disposed of. As recently as March, 1941, the Trustee obtained authority to settle some of the many claims still remaining undetermined and undisposed of.

Further, by order of this Court, claims arising out of the disaffirmance by the Trustee of the Debtor's contracts or arrangements may be filed at any time within 30 days after such disaffirmance. By several orders of this Court, the time in which the Trustee may elect to affirm or to disaffirm contracts or arrangements of the Debtor has been extended upon applications of the Trustee from time to time and the latest of such extensions was to October 31, 1944. There has been no waiver of any objection to the MOP claim nor any acquiescence with respect to said claim. On the contrary, the validity of the claim has been questioned by petitions filed herein, none of which has been considered on the merits as hereinafter more fully appears.

9. Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor, has made no study or investigation of the MOP claim, has interposed no objections thereto, and has failed to take any action whatever to expunge the claim and to assert the rights which the Debtor has against MOP. No hearing was ever ordered nor has any hearing ever been held on said claim filed by MOP herein. Neither the facts set forth in paragraph 3 hereof, nor any other facts bearing on the validity or sufficiency of MOP's claim have ever been made the subject of an investigation by the Trustee or by the Interstate Commerce Commission. So far as is known to the undersigned, neither the Trustee nor the Debtor nor the Commission has taken any action on the findings of the Senate Sub-Committee referred to above; nor have such findings ever been reported to the Court by either the Trustee or the Commission.

10. Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee, has nominated and caused to be elected to the Board of Directors of the Debtor since the year 1937, persons in his employ as Trustee and subject to his supervision and control. At all times since the inception of these proceedings the Debtor has been without independent representation herein.

11. In 1937 and again in 1940, Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of MOP, and all parties in interest who have heretofore been permitted to intervene generally in these proceedings by the several orders of this Court were put on notice of the conflict of trust and interest existing between Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of MOP and as Trustee of the Debtor, and of some of the facts set forth herein respecting the invalidity of the claim of MOP against the Debtor. In 1937, the Irving Trust Company, as Trustee of the first mortgage bonds of the Debtor, and the Walker Committee, representing those bonds, filed petitions alleging in part some of the facts herein set forth, and asserting that the claim of MOP against the Debtor is invalid. Said petitions on file in these proceedings are made a part hereof as though fully set forth herein. Although answers to said petitions were filed, no hearings have ever been held upon the issues presented by such petitions and answers. In connection with said petitions, the Court entered an order which provided that:

> "Hearing(s) on petitions are continued indefinitely with right to any party in interest to have the petitions re-docketed for hearing on thirty days notice to all the other parties in interest" (pp. 7023 and 7024 of printed record of court proceedings).

No order of dismissal of said petitions has ever been sought by Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee, or by any of the parties. In 1940, as set forth hereinabove, the Sub-Committee of the United States Committee on Interstate Commerce published its report containing findings bearing on the invalidity of the MOP claim, after the Interstate Commerce Commission had promulgated its first Plan of Reorganization in these proceedings, and as heretofore appears herein, no action with respect thereto has been taken herein.

(Petition of Andrew W. Comstock in the Name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of Debtor, to file Objections to Claim of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, etc.)

(Filed November 17, 1944.)

To the Honorable, the Judges of the District Court of the United States, for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

The petition of Andrew W. Comstock residing at Evanston, Illinois, on his own behalf as the holder of $80,000. principal amount of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds of various maturities, and on behalf of fourteen owners and holders of at least $900,000. additional principal amount of said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds, for whom petitioner is duly authorized to file this petition, and on behalf of all other owners and holders of said 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds, respectfully represents:

On Information and Belief:

1. The Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, (hereinafter referred to as MOP), is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri.

2. New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, (hereinafter referred to as the Debtor), is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Louisiana. As more particularly set forth hereinafter, voting stock of the Debtor sufficient to assure effective control has been owned by MOP since in or about the year 1925.

3. At the same time that MOP filed herein a petition under Section 77 of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, MOP directed and caused the Debtor to file a similar petition herein under the aforesaid Section 77. Subsequently, the subsidiaries of the Debtor were directed and caused to file similar petitions herein under the said Section 77.

4. By order of this Court heretofore entered herein, Guy A. Thompson and L. W. Baldwin were originally appointed co-Trustees of MOP, of the Debtor, and of the Debtor's subsidiaries. Thereafter Baldwin resigned as such Co-Trustee, and Thompson was appointed and is now acting as sole Trustee of MOP, the Debtor, and its subsidiaries.

5. The Debtor now has outstanding the following securities: $40,615,900 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds (exclusive of $1,900,000 of said Bonds purportedly pledged with MOP); $2,354,100 principal amount of 5% non-Cumulative Income Mortgage Bonds; and 148,329 shares of Capital Stock, which Stock has sole voting power.

6. Of the aforesaid 148,329 shares of Capital Stock of the Debtor outstanding, 139,731 shares, or approximately 94% thereof, are owned of record by MOP.

7. The 5¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds of MOP (hereinafter referred to as the 5¼% Secured Bonds) are now outstanding in the principal amount of $12,140,000 and are secured by a pledge by MOP of 121,460 shares, or approximately 82%, of the Capital Stock of the Debtor. MOP has defaulted in the payment of interest on and principal of said 5¼% Secured Bonds. Accrued and unpaid interest on said Bonds to January 1, 1943 amounted to $6,426,613, making the aggregate claim of the holders of 5¼% Secured Bonds $18,566,613 as of said date.

8. By reason of the defaults in the payment of interest and principal on said 5¼% Secured Bonds, the owners and holders of said Bonds have, under the terms of the Indenture pursuant to which said Bonds were issued, the right to foreclose the lien on the 121,460 shares of the Capital Stock of the Debtor pledged to secure said Bonds. By order of this Court heretofore entered herein, the foreclosure of such lien has been stayed.

9. Petitioner and all owners and holders of 5¼% Secured Bonds have a direct and immediate interest in the estate of the Debtor, in its Capital Stock pledged as set forth hereinabove, in the right of said Capital Stock to share in the assets of the Debtor and in any claims filed against the estate of the Debtor herein.

10. MOP filed a claim in these proceedings against the Debtor in the amount of $10,565,226.78. In said claim, MOP alleges that such amount was advanced to the Debtor from March, 1929, to February, 1933, inclusive, and that $9,955,226.78 of such advances are represented by Demand Notes, dated January 27, 1933 and February 28, 1933. Accrued and unpaid interest claimed to be due on said advances and Notes amounted to $5,919,000 as of December 31, 1943.

11. Debtor is not indebted to MOP in any sum. The claim filed by MOP against the Debtor is invalid and the advances and Notes referred to therein do not constitute the basis of any debt or obligation on the part of the Debtor. The advances by MOP to the Debtor were made solely for the benefit and purposes of MOP and not for the benefit of the Debtor and the Demand Notes were executed solely by virtue of the control which MOP exercised over the Debtor and were solely for the benefit and purposes of MOP and not of the Debtor. The advances by MOP to the Debtor were made in violation of MOP's fiduciary obligations to the 5¼% Secured Bondholders and are invalid and, in any event, must be subordinated to the claims of said bondholders.

12. The 5¼% Secured Bonds were issued by MOP on or about December 1, 1926, to enable MOP to obtain the funds to pay the cost of acquiring the Capital Stock of the Debtor and MOP was enabled to sell said Bonds by reason of and on the basis of the collateral pledged therefor, consisting of said 121,460 shares of Capital Stock of the Debtor. The Indenture pursuant to which said 5¼% Secured Bonds were issued provides in Article V thereof, in part, as follows:

> "(m) The railroad company (MOP) will not do or perform, or voluntarily permit to be done or performed, any act or thing by which the validity or priority of this indenture and pledge hereunder of the Pledged Stock, as herein provided, can or may be in any way or manner impeached."

MOP failed to perform and abide by the fiduciary obligations which it undertook in said Indenture and by reason of the sale of said 5¼% Secured Bonds as aforesaid and, instead, has managed and controlled the Debtor in the interests of MOP to the injury of and at the expense of the holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds, and has deliberately undermined the validity, the priority, and the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor pledged under said Indenture by a course of conduct and series of acts more particularly set forth hereinafter.

13. The facts with respect to the validity of the claim asserted by MOP against the Debtor, which require the disallowance and expunging of the claim as an obligation of the Debtor and in any event, requiring its subordination to the claims of the holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds, are, among others, as follows:

(a) Prior to the acquisition of control of the Debtor and its subsidiaries by MOP in 1925, the Debtor and its subsidiaries were prosperous railroads earning large profits after the payment of fixed charges, and accumulating substantial surpluses. Successful operation was made possible by an independent management functioning in the interest of the Debtor and its security holders. A copy of the consolidated balance sheet of the Debtor as at December 31, 1925 is annexed hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

(b) MOP acquired control of the Debtor and its subsidiaries in or about the year 1925, and from that date until the institution of these proceedings, MOP completely dominated and controlled the Debtor and its subsidiaries. During said period and until 1937, all the directors and officers of the Debtor were nominees of MOP, and were at all times subject to the direction and control of MOP.

(c) During the period from in or about 1926 to 1933, MOP managed the Debtor and its subsidiaries solely to serve its own purposes and without any regard for the interests of the Debtor, its subsidiaries, or its security holders, or the interests of the 5¼% Secured Bonds. During said period, the Debtor was never afforded the opportunity of protecting itself and acting in its own interests and those of its security holders.

(d) During the aforesaid period MOP caused the Debtor and its subsidiaries to declare and pay improper and excessive dividends to MOP, the payment of which has substantially and materially impaired the value of the Debtor's Capital Stock. During the years 1926 to 1931, inclusive, MOP caused the Debtor to declare and pay annually $1,038,000 as dividends, of which more than $900,000 annually was paid to MOP, so that for the six-year period, the Debtor paid dividends on its Capital Stock aggregating $6,200,000, of which more than $5,500,000 was declared for the benefit of and paid to MOP. MOP caused the Debtor to declare and pay such dividends although the Debtor had neither the earnings nor the cash to justify such payments as hereinafter set forth.

(e) During the six-year period when the aforesaid dividends were being paid, the Debtor reported an aggregate net income (exclusive of income from subsidiaries) of only approximately $90,000. Such income figures were overstated, because MOP caused the Debtor to under-state accruals for depreciation, to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment, to allow both road and equipment to deteriorate. If adjustment be made only for the under-statement of depreciation accruals, the Debtor sustained a loss during the six-year period of at least $321,000 as compared with the aggregate net income, reported for the period, of $90,000. Since the reported income of the Debtor, even as over-stated, did not warrant payment of the dividends referred to, the Debtor was caused to pay such dividends out of capital and its purported surplus, and in addition, MOP caused the subsidiaries of the Debtor similarly to pay improper and excessive dividends to the Debtor in order to enable the Debtor to make the payments to MOP as aforesaid. The subsidiaries of the Debtor were, as in the case of the Debtor, caused by MOP to overstate their income, to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment, and to keep inaccurate records and books of account.

(f) During most of the period in which the aforesaid payments of dividends were made, the Debtor did not have funds available for such payments, and such funds were advanced to it by MOP, in many instances for the express purpose of enabling the Debtor to make such dividend payments. During the years 1929, 1930 and 1931, the Debtor received advances from MOP aggregating $2,595,000, which advances were immediately used by the Debtor at the direction of MOP to declare and pay the aforesaid dividends. During such years, each time the Debtor was directed by MOP to pay a dividend, advances in identical amount were allegedly made by MOP to the Debtor within a day or two preceding the purported payment of the alleged dividend.

(g) The continued demands of MOP for dividend payments from the Debtor and its subsidiaries during the six years 1926 to 1931, inclusive, progressively impaired the financial condition and capital of the Debtor so that in the years 1930 and 1931, if not theretofore, the distributions of so-called dividends amounting to $2,076,000 of which about $1,800,000 were paid to MOP were illegally paid out of the capital of the Debtor at the direction of MOP. Such payments out of capital were caused to be made for the purposes and benefit of MOP in order to enable MOP to meet its own inordinately heavy and mounting financial requirements.

(h) In order to permit the payment of such dividends, MOP caused the Debtor to keep improper records and books of account so as to conceal the true state and condition of the properties, finances and affairs of the Debtor and its subsidiaries; and further caused the Debtor to violate the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission prescribing proper methods of accounting and reporting. All the foregoing acts were designed to and did conceal the true condition of the Debtor and were intended and calculated to over-state the income of the Debtor and its surplus and thus ostensibly place the Debtor in a position to declare and pay dividends to MOP in violation of law.

(i) Most of the facts hereinbefore set forth in this Paragraph 13 were first uncovered by the Sub-Committee of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the United States Senate, and were published on or about July 25, 1940 in Report No. 25, Part 9, entitled "Missouri Pacific System—Inter-Company Dividends and Advances—1926-1931", a copy of which Report is annexed hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof. In said Report the Sub-Committee of the United States Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce stated with respect to the aforesaid transactions between MOP and the Debtor, the following:

> "* * * Some abuses were visible prior to 1930 in the relationship between Missouri Pacific and its subsidiaries; further and more intensive abuses appeared following acquisition of control by Alleghany Corporation.
> An independent railroad, prudently managed by directors and officials who have only the interests of the railroad itself in mind, will declare only such dividends as are justified by earnings. * * * When a railroad is controlled by a holding company, however, it may be forced to act in the interests of the holding company rather than of the railroad. It may declare dividends not justified by the condition of the railroad in order to supply income needed by the holding company. Instead of ploughing back some of its income into surplus, it may milk the surplus to pay dividends. It may juggle its accounts, lay off employees, cut payrolls to the bone, skimp on maintenance, postpone necessary improvements of road and equipment, borrow money to pay interest, defy the accounting regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and finally despoil its own securityholders by declaring dividends out of capital—all in a desperate effort to continue the flow of funds from the subsidiary to the parent company.

Such were the abuses which occurred in the Missouri Pacific system between 1926 and 1931."

(Report, pp. 1 and 2)

Under the heading "Milking the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico", the United States Senate Sub-Committee stated:

"• • • In theory, dividends on the N. O. T. & M. stock were payable only when justified by that railroad's financial condition. ' In fact, however, the parent company, through its power of control, was in a position to sacrifice its subsidiary's financial health to its own need for income.

In every year from 1926 through 1931, the Missouri Pacific caused the N. O. T. & M. to pay $1,038,000 in dividends. Each year more than $900,000 of this sum went directly to the Missouri Pacific.

The N. O. T. & M. itself never earned enough to pay these dividends. In none of the 7 years, 1926 through 1931, did the N. O. T. & M. earn more than $605,000 (exclusive of dividends from its subsidiaries, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico). In 3 of the 6 years, the road showed a deficit after fixed charges. For the 6 year period considered as a whole its stated net income totaled a bare $90,000 (as against dividend declarations totaling $6,300,000).

Even the $90,000 net income figure was a considerable overstatement. Each year the N. O. T. & M. regularly included in its operating expenses a certain sum for depreciation of its equipment. Consistently, year after year, the amount charged for depreciation was inadequate. A statement from the files of the railroad itself shows that for the period 1926 through 1930 the N. O. T. & M.'s net income was overstated (through understatement of depreciation) by more than $411,000. If the railroad's depreciation had been adequately charged, it would have shown a deficit for the 6 years 1926 to 1931, of $321,000 after fixed charges. Yet during this period the Missouri Pacific took $5,580,000 in dividends out of the N. O. T. & M.

* * * * * * *

The details of the process by which the Missouri Pacific milked the N. O. T. & M. and the N. O. T. & M. in turn milked the Brownsville are revealed in a series of letters introduced into the record of this sub-committee."

(Report, pp. 2 and 3.)

The letters referred to are attached as an Appendix to Part XII of the Hearings before the Sub-Committee of the Senate Committee headed "Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Purchase of System Securities through Subsidiaries, Inter-Company Dividends and Advances, Accounting Methods". They are annexed hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof. Most of these letters were written to or by Mr. L. W. Baldwin, then President of both MOP and the Debtor, and now operating head of both railroads.

(j) Between 1925 and 1933, MOP caused the Debtor to embark upon and finance an expansion program and to make investments for the benefit of MOP, thereby heavily increasing the burden of the debt structure which the Debtor was required to service and sustain. As a result thereof, and of the other matters herein set forth, the financial structure of the Debtor became impaired and its working capital exhausted, thus, among other things, injuring and impairing the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor. In connection therewith and the other matters herein set forth, MOP purportedly made advances to the Debtor and caused the Debtor to pay large sums of money as interest thereon to MOP, thereby further depleting the working capital of the Debtor necessary to carry on its basic operations and further, among other things, impairing the value of the Capital Stock of the Debtor. In addition, during said period, MOP caused the Debtor to neglect necessary repairs of road and equipment, to defer maintenance, to postpone needed improvements of road and equipment, and to allow both road and equipment to deteriorate. During said period MOP caused the Debtor to pay to MOP excessive rentals for freight cars used by the Debtor and caused the Debtor to bear an unfair and disproportionate amount of the expenses of MOP. Similarly during said period, MOP wrongfully diverted or caused to be diverted from the Debtor's lines and those of its subsidiaries to the lines of MOP substantial amounts of valuable and profitable traffic originating on lines of and properly belonging to the Debtor and its subsidiaries, which traffic so diverted could and should have been moved over the lines of the Debtor or its subsidiaries.

14. The foregoing wrongful acts of spoilation and waste of the assets of the Debtor have caused financial losses to the Debtor and its subsidiaries in excess of the claim heretofore filed herein by MOP in the amount of $10,565,226.78, including any claim for interest thereon. The alleged advances which form the basis of such claim filed by MOP herein are invalid and do not constitute an obligation of the Debtor. Such claim filed by MOP herein in the amount of $10,565,226.78, including any claim for interest thereon, should therefore be disallowed and expunged as a claim against the Debtor.

15. The purported advances by MOP to the Debtor were made as an integral part of a plan designed to further the interests of MOP at the expense of and in violation of MOP's fiduciary obligations to the holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds.

16. Petitioner sought to present the matters complained of herein to the Interstate Commerce Commission in connection with the Commission's hearings on plans of reorganization of MOP and of the Debtor. The Interstate Commerce Commission, however, has stated that it "assumed" that the claim filed by MOP against the Debtor was valid, and any objections thereto "should be left to litigation in the courts" (Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Reorganization, Supplemental Report, dated July 4, 1944, p. 60). At a hearing preceding the issuance of the aforesaid Supplemental Report, the Director of Finance of said Commission—before whom the hearing was conducted—denied an offer to introduce evidence bearing upon the invalidity of the claim stating that: "If there is something wrong with the claim, you go to court about it" (Record of testimony before Interstate Commerce Commission, October 19, 1943, p. 5158). The purpose of this petition is to take such steps as may be legally necessary to bring about a judicial determination on the merits of the claim filed by MOP against the Debtor.

17. The claim filed by MOP against the Debtor has not been allowed by any order of this Court entered herein.

18. The time within which objections may be filed to the claim of MOP against the Debtor has not expired or lapsed.

19. An order made by Honorable C. B. Faris, District Judge then in charge of these proceedings, dated May 13, 1933, and filed May 15, 1933, provided among other things for the filing of claims herein, for the reference of such claims and objections thereto to a Special Master and further provided that objections to the allowance of any claim "shall be filed within such time and with such particularity as the Master in his discretion may prescribe." Neither this Court nor the Master designated by it has specified the particularity or the time whereby or within which objections to claims, including that of MOP, were to be filed. The Master previously designated by this Court to report with respect to claims has since died and no other Master has been designated to act in his place or stead. The records disclose that there are claims that have not yet been disposed of. As recently as March 1941, the Trustee obtained authority to settle some of the many claims still remaining [undertermined] and undisposed of.

Further, by order of this Court, claims arising out of the disaffirmance by the Trustee of the Debtor's contracts or arrangements may be filed at any time within 30 days after such disaffirmance. By several orders of this Court, the time in which the Trustee may elect to affirm or to disaffirm contracts or arrangements of the Debtor has been extended upon applications of the Trustee from time to time and the latest of such extensions was to October 31, 1944. There has been no waiver of any objection to the MOP claim nor any acquiescence with respect to said claim. On the contrary, the validity of the claim has been questioned by petitions filed herein, none of which has been considered on the merits as hereinafter more fully appears.

20. Under the several provisions of law, including Section 48 (a) (8) of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor, is charged with the duty of examining all proofs of claims and objecting to the allowance of such claims as are improper. Such examination by the Trustee, and by this Court, is especially necessary and must be particularly rigorous and comprehensive in the case of a claim filed by a parent corporation against a dominated and controlled subsidiary in reorganization proceedings. Without such examination, no order may be entered allowing such claim.

21. Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor, has made no study or investigation of the MOP claim, has interposed no objections thereto, and has failed to take any action whatever to expunge the claim and to assert the rights which the Debtor has against MOP. No hearing was ever ordered nor has any hearing ever been held on said claim filed by MOP herein. Neither the facts set forth in paragraph 13 hereof, nor any other facts bearing on the validity or sufficiency of MOP's claim have ever been made the subject of an investigation by the Trustee or by the Interstate Commerce Commission. So far as is known to Petitioner, neither the Trustee of the Debtor nor the Commission has taken any action on the findings of the Senate Sub-Committee referred to above; nor have such findings ever been reported to the Court by either the Trustee or the Commission.

22. Guy A. Thompson as Trustee, has nominated and caused to be elected to the Board of Directors of the Debtor since the year 1937, persons in his employ as Trustee and subject to his supervision and control. At all times since the inception of these proceedings the Debtor has been without independent representation herein.

23. Petitioner has not requested Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor, to institute this proceeding or an investigation with regard to the claim filed by MOP against the Debtor because said Trustee, by virtue of the fact that he is also Trustee of MOP, is in a position of conflict of trust and is therefore disqualified to take any action which would be adverse to the interests of MOP. Said Guy A. Thompson has occupied such conflicting positions of trust since the inception of these proceedings, and, therefore, any request addressed to said Trustee would be futile.

24. In 1937 and again in 1940, Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of MOP, and all parties in interest who have heretofore been permitted to intervene generally in these proceedings by the several orders of this Court, were put on notice of the conflict of trust and interest existing between Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of MOP and as Trustee of the Debtor, and of some of the facts set forth herein respecting the invalidity of the claim of MOP against the Debtor. In 1937, the Irving Trust Company as Trustee of the first mortgage bonds of the Debtor and the Walker Committee, representing those bonds, filed petitions alleging in part some of the facts herein set forth, and asserting that the claim of MOP against the Debtor is invalid. Said petitions on file in these proceedings are made a part hereof as though fully set forth herein. Although answers to said petitions were filed, no hearings have ever been held upon the issues presented by such petitions and answers. An order was entered by this Court continuing the hearings on the petitions indefinitely, as more particularly hereinafter appears. No order of dismissal of said petitions has ever been sought by Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee, or by any of the parties. In 1940, as set forth hereinabove, the Sub-Committee of the United States Committee on Interstate Commerce published its report containing findings bearing on the invalidity of the MOP claim, after the Interstate Commerce Commission had promulgated its first Plan of Reorganization in these proceedings, and as heretofore appears herein, no action with respect thereto has been taken herein.

25. A Plan of Reorganization of MOP, the Debtor and other companies was promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission on April 9, 1940. Subsequently, hearings thereon were held by this Court and appeals were taken from the Court's decree to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Those appeals were pending until they were remanded to this Court in July, 1943, whereupon this Court referred the 1940 plan back to the Commission "for further proceedings" including "the proposal of new plans". At the hearings before the Commission on October 19, 1943, Petitioner raised the question of the validity of MOP's claim, but as appears hereinabove, Petitioner was directed to present the question to this Court.

26. This proceeding is necessary in the interests of the Estate of the Debtor, and in the interests of Petitioner and all other owners and holders of 5¼% Secured Bonds for, among others, the following reasons in addition to those set forth hereinabove:

(a) The Interstate Commerce Commission found that the Debtor was solvent in 1940. It ascribed the value of at least $67,000,000 to the Debtor for purposes of permissible capitalization under the plan propounded by the Commission in 1940. (Commission Report, p. 38) The position of the Debtor has improved most substantially in the subsequent years. After the claims of its first mortgage and income mortgage bondholders have been provided for, the remaining assets in the estate of the Debtor inure and will inure to the owners of claims and securities junior to the bondholders, including the claims of the Debtor's Capital Stock, on which petitioner, together with other holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds have as collateral security 121,460 shares out of 148,329 shares.

(b) In its Supplemental Report dated July 4, 1944, with respect to the modified Plan of Reorganization of MOP, the Debtor and other companies, the Interstate Commerce Commission stated that Petitioner and other holders of the 5¼% Secured Bonds are entitled to new Class A common stock of the reorganized Company "by virtue of collateral security consisting of New Orleans capital stock". In allocating the type of security and the amount to the 5¼% Secured Bonds, the Commission took into account "the amount of the indebtedness of the New Orleans, and the application of the surplus cash in the New Orleans treasury to the retirement of part of this indebtedness" (Supplemental Report, pp. 58-59). The Commission "assumed" that the MOP claim was a valid indebtedness of the Debtor stating:

> "The invalidity of any part of these advances has never been established and we will assume for the purposes of this proceeding that they are valid obligations of the New Orleans in determining the right of and the extent to which holders of Missouri Pacific 5-¼% and the New Orleans stockholders should participate in the plan of reorganization" (Supplemental Report, p. 60)".

(c) Since the Debtor is wholly solvent, the value of the shares of its Capital Stock which are pledged as collateral for the 5-¼% Secured Bonds, will be and is dependent upon the value of the assets remaining in the estate of the Debtor after its creditors have been provided for. That value is inescapably dependent, in turn, upon the size and magnitude of the claims that are allowed against the estate of the Debtor. If the claim of MOP, which, with interest purportedly accrued and unpaid, will amount to more than $16,000,000, be allowed as a claim against the assets of the Debtor, or be assumed, without determination, to be valid for the purposes of the Plan of Reorganization, said claim will substantially and materially decrease the assets to which Petitioner and all other owners and holders of 5-¼% Secured Bonds would be entitled. If said MOP claim is disallowed and expunged, the value of the stock of the Debtor will be greatly enhanced and, therefore, the treatment which Petitioner and all other owners and holders of 5-¼% Secured Bonds would be entitled to receive in any Plan of Reorganization, or otherwise, would be very substantially improved and radically different.

(d) The judicial determination on the merits of the matters presented in this Petition is an indispensable prerequisite to the exercise of an informed judgment as required by the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, with respect to the fairness or equity of any treatment proposed to be given to Petitioner and other holders of the 5-¼% Secured Bonds in any proposed plan of reorganization herein. Such determination is especially compelling in the circumstances herein revealed in the light of the opinion expressed by the Honorable C. B. Faris, District Judge, with respect to a related matter in these proceedings, to wit:

> "For to me it is plain that the Congress intended to stop a practice among railroads and their exploiters and manipulators which has had much to do with making the financial history of railroads the most indecent and sordid chapter ever written in this or any other nation" (Court Opinion No. 41, p. 2996).

(e) This action by Petitioner would not be necessary if Debtor had had the benefit of an independent Trustee free from conflicting interests. Petitioner is obliged to file this petition in order to avoid the harm to security-holders which will flow from the conflict of interest in which the Trustee finds himself and which he has done nothing to correct.

27. The proof with respect to most of the matters referred to in this petition consists largely of documentary evidence, including books, records, journals, ledgers, correspondence and papers in the possession or control of the Debtor, of MOP and of said Guy A. Thompson as Trustee of the estates of the Debtor and MOP.

28. No previous application for the relief prayed for herein has been made by petitioner. Reference however may be made to the following:

(a) As appears hereinabove, in 1937 the petitions of the Irving Trust Company, as Trustee, and the Walker Committee representing the First Mortgage Bonds of the Debtor were never considered on the merits. The relief requested in said petitions was not the filing of objections to, or the expunging of the claim of, MOP against the Debtor, but the removal of Guy A. Thompson as Trustee of the Debtor. In connection with said petitions, the Court entered an order which provided that:

> "Hearing(s) on petitions are continued indefinitely with right to any party in interest to have the petitions re-docketed for hearing on 30 days notice to all the other parties in interest". (pp. 7023 and 7024 of printed record of court proceedings)

(b) On July 21, 1944, a petition was presented by Ernest Lee Foley, a holder and owner of 5-¼% Secured Serial Gold Bonds for leave to intervene and for the purpose of filing a petition which prayed that a proceeding be instituted for an accounting by MOP to the Debtor, and the return of securities, and in connection therewith that the claim filed by MOP against the Debtor be expunged. This Court denied the motion for intervention without opinion on August 3, 1944, without any consideration of the claim of MOP against the Debtor on the merits.

29. Petitioner believes that he has a clear right to file objections to the claim filed by MOP against the Debtor. In order to avoid any procedural question with respect to such right and because of the disqualification of the Trustee in the premises, Petitioner prays for leave to act in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor, in order to file and prosecute objections to the claim of MOP against the Debtor and to have said claim expunged. Petitioner hereby offers and consents to indemnify said Guy R. Thompson, as such Trustee, against all damage, cost and expense.

30. This petition is presented pursuant to the several provisions of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended, including but not limited to Sections 77(c), (7, 13) and 57(d), 57(k) thereof, pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including but not limited to Rule 24 thereof, pursuant to Orders Nos. 19 and 235, of this Court entered in these proceedings, dated respectively May 13, 1933 and September 26, 1934, and pursuant to such other provisions of law, rules of Court, general orders in bankruptcy and orders of this Court as may be applicable in these premises.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays for an order granting leave to Petitioner in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the Debtor (a) to file objections to the claim of MOP against the Debtor heretofore filed herein; (b) to participate in any and all proceedings, whether before a Special Master to be designated by this Court, or before this Court, wherein the validity or sufficiency of the said claims of Mop against the Debtor is or may be involved; (c) to take any and all action, including any and all proceedings by way of review and appeal, necessary or proper to establish said objections, whether before a Special Master to be designated by this Court, before this Court, or before any appellate court; (d) granting leave to Petitioner to intervene specially in the above entitled proceeding for the foregoing purposes; and (e) for such other and different relief as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Mr. Wheeler (for himself and Mr. Truman), from the Committee on Interstate Commerce, submitted the following Report

(Pursuant to S. Res. 71 of the 74th Cong.)

The subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, pursuant to Senate Resolution 71, Seventy-Fourth Congress, submitted the following report:

Missouri Pacific System—Intercompany Dividends and Advances—1926-1931

Introduction

During the years 1923 through 1929, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., engaged in a far-reaching program of expansion.(1) Organized as both an operating company and a holding Company the Missouri Pacific bought controlling stock interests in one railroad after another, so that by 1929 it controlled 79 subsidiaries and subsidiaries (2). In 1930, control of the whole 80-company Missouri Pacific System was acquired by Alleghany Corporation, the Cleveland holding company formed by the Van Sweringens with the banking assistance of J. P. Morgan & Co.(3). This report traces the adverse effects of holding company control upon the dividend policies of the component companies. Some abuses were visible prior to 1930 in the relationships between the Missouri Pacific and its subsidiaries; further and more intensive abuses appeared following acquisition of control by Alleghany Corporation.

(1) See Report No. 25, Part 7 of this subcommittee, entitled "Missouri Pacific System: Reorganization Expansion and Financing 1915-1930."

(2) For a chart showing Missouri Pac. subsidiaries, see Ex. No. 5 Hearings, Part I, facing p. 216. Jointly controlled companies are included.

(3) See Report No. 25, Part 8 of this subcommittee, entitled "Alleghany Corporation: Acquisition of Mo. Pac. R. R. Co.—Devices used to secure consent of Missouri Public Service Commission."

An independent railroad, prudently managed by directors and officials who have only the interests of the railroad itself in mind, will declare only such dividends as are justified by earnings. A prudent management will plough back some of the earnings into surplus, to provide for a rainy day or for normal expansion of the business.(4) When a railroad is controlled by a holding company, however, it may be forced to act in the interests of the holding company rather than of the railroad. It may declare dividends not justified by the condition of the railroad, in order to supply income needed by the holding company. Instead of ploughing back some of its income into surplus, it may milk the surplus to pay dividends. It may juggle its accounts, lay off employees, cut pay rolls to the bone, skimp on maintenance, postpone necessary improvements of road and equipment, borrow money to pay interest, defy the accounting regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and finally despoil its own security holders by declaring dividends out of capital—all in a desperate effort to continue the flow of funds from the subsidiary to the parent company.

Such were the abuses which occurred in the Missouri Pacific system between 1926 and 1931. Testimony and exhibits will be found chiefly in Part XII of this subcommittee's hearings.

Milking the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico

The Missouri Pacific acquired control of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico (N. O. T. & M.) in 1925, through purchase of most of its common stock (5). In payment for this stock, it issued more than $13,000,000 of collateral notes, pledging the stock it purchased to secure the notes it issued. Thereafter, the Missouri Pacific was bound, under penalty of bankruptcy, to pay interest on those notes in good years and bad, whether earned or not. In theory, dividends on the N. O. T. & M. stock were payable only when justified by that railroad's financial condition. In fact, however, the parent company, through its power of control, was in a position to sacrifice its subsidiary's financial health to its own need for income.

In every year from 1926 through 1931, the Missouri Pacific caused the N. O. T. & M. to pay $1,038,000 in dividends. Each year more than $900,000 of this sum went directly to the Missouri Pacific.(6)

The N. O. T. & M. itself never earned enough to pay these dividends. In none of the 6 years, 1926 through 1931, did the N. O. T. & M. earn more than $605,000 (exclusive of dividends from its subsidiary, the St. Louis Brownsville & Mexico). In 3 of the 6 years, the road showed a deficit after fixed charges. For the 6-year period considered as a whole its stated net income totaled a bare $90,000 (as against dividend declarations totaling $6,300,000).(7)

Even the $90,000 net income figure was a considerable overstatement. Each year the N. O. T. & M. regularly included in its operating expenses a certain sum for depreciation of its equipment. Consistently, year after year, the amount charged for depreciation was inadequate. A statement from the files of the railroad itself shows that for the period 1926 through 1930 the N. O. T. & M.'s net income was overstated (through understatement of depreciation) by more than $411,000.(8) If the railroad's depreciation had been adequately charged, it would have shown a deficit for the 6 years 1926-1931 of $321,000 after fixed charges. Yet during this period the Missouri Pacific took $5,580,000 in dividends out of the N. O. T. & M.(9)

Fifteen months after the NOT&M's final 1931 dividend payment, that railroad, along with its parent the Missouri Pacific, entered bankruptcy.(10)

Milking the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico

How could the N. O. T. & M. pay out in dividends some $6,000,000 more than its own earnings between 1926 and 1931? One device it used was to milk its wholly owned subsidiary, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico (hereinafter referred to as the Brownsville).

The N. O. T. & M. management, prior to acquisition by the Missouri Pacific, had been prudent in one respect at least: it had used Brownsville earnings to build up that road's surplus.(11) Under Missouri Pacific control, this prudent policy was reversed.(12) During the 6 year period 1926-31, the Brownsville earned $6,500,000 and declared in dividends to the N. O. T. & M. $8,500,000.(13) This $8,500,000 enabled the N. O. T. & M. to declare dividends, chiefly to the Missouri Pacific, some $6,000,000 in excess of its own earnings.(14) For the years 1926 through 1929, the Brownsville dividends each year amounted to more than 100 percent on its common stock. In 1929, dividends totalled 200 [precent]. In 1931 the railroad outstripped itself; dividend declarations totalled more than 800 percent.(15)

The $2,000,000 which the Brownsville declared in dividends to the N. O. T. & M. in excess of what it earned came out of the surplus which the previous management had prudently accumulated.

The details of the process by which the Missouri Pacific milked the N. O. T. & M. and the N. O. T. & M. in turn milked the Brownsville are revealed in a series of letters introduced into the record of this subcommittee. The first of these letters was written shortly after the Missouri Pacific had assumed control. Mr. L. W. Baldwin and Mr. W. H. Williams, president and chairman, respectively, of the Missouri Pacific, had become president and chairman also of the N. O. T. & M. and of the Brownsville; seven directors of the Missouri Pacific had become directors of the N. O. T. & M. and two of these had become directors also of the Brownsville.(16)

(12) The Brownsville profit and loss balance declined from $4,007,059.42 at the close of 1926 to $821,391.76 at the close of 1931. (Exhibit No. 1598 hearings, Part XII, p. 5533).

Mr. H. R. Safford, executive vice president of the N. O. T. & M. and of the Brownsville, wrote on January 9, 1926, to Mr. Baldwin, explaining that the N. O. T. & M. had just declared and paid a quarterly dividend $87,500 in excess of its earnings for the quarter, and suggesting a way out of the difficulty. He wrote:

> * * * Meetings of the boards of directors of the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Company (another N. O. T. & M. subsidiary) and the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company should be held and dividend declared out of the earnings of those companies for the current year, or so much thereof as may be necessary to protect the dividend already declared and paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co.
> Will you kindly advise if you desire meeting * * * (17)

Mr. Baldwin approved the plan. "Under the circumstances," he replied, "there is nothing else to do * * *."(18) The Brownsville thereupon declared a $100,000 dividend in favor of the N. O. T. & M. thus "protecting" the N. O. T. & M.'s dividend to the Missouri Pacific.(19)

During the next quarter the N. O. T. & M.'s earnings fell to $37,000.(20) A prudent management might have considered cutting dividends to match the falling earnings; the Missouri Pacific-dominated N. O. T. & M. board however, again declared its regular dividend, $223,000 in excess of earnings for the quarter.(21) This time, however, the N. O. T. & M. could not make up its deficit through causing the Brownsville to declare a $223,000 dividend out of earnings, for the Brownsville earnings had fallen to $43,000.(22) Nor could it get help from the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, which showed a $47,000 deficit for the same period.(23) In this contingency the system's executives cut into the Brownsville surplus. A staff member wrote:

> The only solution I see is to declare dividends by the St. L. B. & M. (Brownsville) and the B. S. L. & W. (Sour Lake) from surplus in the past, also as large a dividend as possible by the Sugar Land and H. & B. V. (Houston & Brazos Valley) Railway Co.(24)

Another wrote to Mr. Safford, executive vice-president of the N. O. T. & M. and of the Brownsville:

> Would you kindly have this matter placed before Mr. Cole (assistant Secretary of the Brownsville), in order that he may have suitable resolution prepared and passed on at the next meeting of the Board of Directors of the St. L. B. & M. Co. (Brownsville). I will give him the amount which it will be necessary to provide from St. L. B. & M. funds.(25)

The precedents thus established were maintained. Every 3 months the N. O. T. & M. board declared its full dividend, and every 3 months the system's executives drew on the Brownsville to make up the deficit. Soon Mr. Baldwin had a form letter to send to Mr. Safford:

> It will be satisfactory to arrange meeting of board of directors of St. L. B. & M. Railway Company to declare dividend out of their earnings (or surplus) to protect the dividend on the N. O. T. & M. stock.(26)

When the Brownsville's earnings were sufficient, the dividend came out of earnings; when insufficient, it came out of surplus. Dividends were declared until July 1931, and in March 1933 the Brownsville, like its parent the N. O. T. & M. and its grandparent the Missouri Pacific, entered bankruptcy.

A device used to disguise the true state of affairs in 1927 is worthy of special mention. During 1925 and 1926, the N. O. T. & M. adjusted its income statements to allow for "Separately operated properties—Profit" and "Separately operated properties—Loss," presumably reflecting in this way the net incomes of various unconsolidated subsidiaries. In 1927, however, these subsidiaries showed a net income deficit of more than $600,000. If this item were included in the annual report to stockholders as had been done in previous years, the N. O. T. & M. system as a whole would have shown a net income deficit—hardly a proper basis for paying $1,038,000 in dividends. Accordingly, subsidiary losses were simply omitted from the 1927 report to stockholders, which thus showed, instead of a deficit, a $475,000 net income.

In 1928, conditions improved somewhat and the company belatedly published the figures which had been suppressed in 1927.(26a)

Alleghany Corporation Assumes Control

Alleghany Corporation secured control of the Missouri Pacific System in May 1930.(27) Alleghany's serious difficulties began shortly thereafter.

A memorandum from the files of the statistical department of Alleghany's bankers, J. P. Morgan & Co., dated October 24, 1930, indicates the nature of these difficulties. It shows that Alleghany's estimated income for the year would fall short of its requirements by almost $1,500,000.(28) The memorandum in the Morgan office suggested a way to make up most of this deficiency—namely, by taking it out of the Missouri Pacific.

> The deficiency of $1,472,304 from the full (Alleghany) requirements could be made up immediately by declaration of an extra $5 dividend on the Missouri Pacific Preferred * * *.(29)

The memorandum pointed out that—> * * * the $5 extra on Missouri Pacific Preferred is not really income, but realization of capital.(30)

Nevertheless, it stated that Alleghany, by reason of its control of the railroad, could force payment.

> * * * Alleghany Corporation, due to its representation in the management of the constituent companies, is in a position to avoid any default for at least a year on its Preferred Dividend payments.(31)

In 1931, Alleghany's position became even more perilous. It had to have about $4,500,000 to meet its interest charges plus $3,800,000 for preferred dividends.(32) Its stock trading account with Paine, Webber & Co., was seriously under-margined.(33) By the end of May, Alleghany's bankers were discussing the advisability that the holding company pass its August preferred dividend,(34) and hold in cash the money thus saved "until later on in the year when the earnings of the Missouri Pacific would be known".(35) Alleghany's income from other sources was declining. In short, Alleghany urgently needed income from the Missouri Pacific.

In addition, Alleghany faced the possibility of losing control over its subsidiaries, by reason of a decline in the market value of the securities it owned. A feature of its financial structure was a provision in the indentures securing its bond issues, providing that if the market value of securities owned by Alleghany and pledged to protect the bondholders fell below 150 percent of the face amount of bonds outstanding, then the right to vote the pledged securities would pass to Guaranty Trust Co. as trustee for Alleghany's bondholders. Thus a decline of the market value of securities owned by Alleghany would in effect result in a kind of receivership.(36)

The situation was especially acute with respect to the last of Alleghany's three bond issues, the so-called 5's of 1950. The proceeds of this issue had been used to purchase Missouri Pacific securities, and Missouri Pacific securities in turn were the chief collateral behind the bonds. If the Missouri Pacific passed its 1931 dividend, or if it made a poor income showing for the year, the resulting decline in the market value of Missouri Pacific securities might well depress the collateral of the 5's of 1950 below the 150-percent mark, and thus force Alleghany to relinquish control to the Guaranty Trust Co.(37) Moreover, as a result of further provisions of the bond indentures, Alleghany's income would be impounded by the trustee, and payment of dividends on Alleghany stocks stopped.(38) Alleghany, in short, had the most urgent need for causing the Missouri Pacific to show high earnings and to pay dividends in 1931.

(35) Exhibit No. 750, ibid., p. 2681. See also this subcommittee's general report on the Van Sweringens, in preparation.

(36) The Alleghany bond indentures and supplements are found in the record as Exhibits Nos. 43 through 48, inclusive, Hearings, Part I, pp. 265-357. See also this subcommittee's general report on the Van Sweringens, in preparation.

(37) The collateral actually fell below the 150 percent mark in August 1931; Guaranty Trust Co. took over voting rights of the securities, and impounded income, in September. (Exhibit No. 57, Hearings, Part I, p. 366).

(38) Idem.

In April 1930, when seeking the Missouri Public Service Commission's consent to Alleghany's acquisition of the Missouri Pacific, John P. Murphy, a Van Sweringen official, had assured the Commission:

> * * * The policy of the Van Sweringens in connection with all of their different corporations has not been to * * * take out more than they left in. * * * The rule of a dollar for the stockholders and a dollar for the road has been more liberally construed by them, for keeping money in the business. * * * They have declared dividends as they should be declared, but never to the extent of robbing the company of the portion of the earnings they should have for further development.(39)

Instead of following "the rule of a dollar for the stockholders and a dollar for the road" which Alleghany told the Missouri commission it obeyed, the Missouri Pacific under Alleghany control followed a very different rule; $2. for the stockholders and a deficit for the company. In 1931, the Missouri Pacific, the N. O. T. & M., the Brownsville, and the Texas & Pacific (another Missouri Pacific subsidiary) were all caused to declare dividends far in excess of earnings.

Devices Used to Inflate Income Statements for 1931

(a) Drastic curtailment of expenditures—The Missouri Pacific's net income for 1930, exclusive of dividends received, was less than the dividends it declared.(40) If the Missouri Pacific were to declare dividends in 1931, it would no doubt have to rely again, at least in part, on dividends received from its subsidiaries.

Mr. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M. ordered operating officials to take drastic steps to insure payment of dividends from the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific, and thus to swell the latter's 1931 income statement. On April 16, 1931, reinforcing previous orders, he wrote to the executive vice president of the N. O. T. & M.:

> Mr. Safford: I want to impress upon you again the fact that although it may necessitate a much more drastic curtailment of expense than you have ever had or anticipated, the N. O. T. & M. must earn and pay its dividend this year and have $100,000 left in addition.
> In this connection I want further to impress you with the necessity of curtailing expenditures chargeable to Additions and Betterments and only submit or authorize such items that cannot possibly be deferred.(41)

Mr. Safford knew what was expected of him. In reply he wrote to Mr. Baldwin:

> Our Maintenance of Way and Structures expenses are now programmed at $1,801,507, a reduction of $591,622, or approximately 25% under last year. We have reduced our operating expenses in connection with improvements from $382,600, as originally budgeted, to $55,100; this involves deferring all rail and ballast work. We plan on using 150,000 cross ties as compared with 212,000 last year.
> Our present program for Maintenance of Equipment means * * * a reduction of $621,756 or 22.8% under last year. This will be the lowest expenditure for M(aintenance) of E(quipment) since 1924 and provides running repair money only for locomotives and cars, except that we will be able to turn out about 15 Class 1, 2 and 3 repairs as compared with 49 last year. At the end of 1931, there will be about 30 engines which will have run out their assigned mileage. * * * This estimate gives effect to the reduction in passenger service on the Kingsville division in January, amounting to approximately 242,000 train miles per annum. * * * (42)

Mr. Safford's letter clearly indicates the effects upon the railroad of the demand for dividends in the face of declining revenues. Maintenance of physical property is skimped, improvements are postponed, equipment is allowed to deteriorate, necessary repairs are neglected, and service to the public is curtailed, all in a desperate effort toward "the realization of the goal indicated" by the president of the parent company. Mr. Safford's letter concludes with a plaintive revelation of the plight of an operating railroad official forced to sacrifice the maintenance of his road to the dividend requirements of the parent company:

> The net result (even after the drastic curtailment listed above) falls far short of what you want to accomplish and I realize this is disappointing and am still hopeful we can improve it and we shall make every possible effort to do so. Our present program for Maintenance of W(ay) and M(aintenance) of E(quipment) is materially under last year, and we have felt that we have gone as deeply into these expenditures as we could without impairing the standard of service, but we will continue to check this further to see what more can be done, in recognition of your request.(43)

The curtailment of expenditures which Mr. Baldwin demanded of the N. O. T. & M. was also instituted in another major Missouri Pacific subsidiary—the Texas & Pacific. Additions and betterments on this road declined from a high of $13,500,000 net in 1928 to a low of $1,870,000 net in 1931.(44) Maintenance of [raod] and equipment was curtailed from $16,200,000 in 1928 to $8,600,000 in 1931.(45) Dividends, however, were not curtailed; the Texas & Pacific paid more into the coffers of its parent in 1931 than in 1928.(46)

(b) Laying-off of workers and curtailment of pay rolls.—Mr. Baldwin's demand that the N. O. T. & M. "must earn and pay its dividend this year (1931)"(47) seriously and adversely affected the employees of this road. Workers were laid off and pay rolls were drastically reduced "to reach the goal of $1,120,000 net set by Mr. Baldwin."(48)

The Texas & Pacific, another Missouri Pacific subsidiary, employed 13,463 men in 1929. This number declined to 10,753 in 1930, and to 8,369 in 1931—a total decrease of 5,094 jobs.(49) Salaries and wages declined from $19,700,000 in 1929 to $16,200,000 in 1930, and declined further to $12,400,000 in 1931—a 2-year pay roll cut of $10,800,000.(50) Yet 1931 dividends declined not at all from the 1928 level, and remained more than double the 1925-27 average.(51)

Among the devices used to reduce employment during 1930 was the reduction of switching service in Texas & Pacific yards, a reduction accomplished by causing the road crews to perform yard switching as well as road duties. Texas & Pacific employees discharged as a result of this practice protested and filed claims with the National Railroad Adjustment Board. Following hearings before Floyd K. Garrison as referee, the Board found that the Texas & Pacific had violated the yard agreement which it had signed with its employees, and that "the carrier first reduced and then eliminated yard service * * * over the protest of the employees, and without any attempt to arrive at an understanding."(52) In an award dated Oct. 29, 1936, the Board ordered payment of compensation to the yardmen thus deprived of work.(53)

The president of the Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M. evplained how such employment and pay-roll cuts were made:

Mr. Kaplan (associate counsel to the Senate subcommittee). A general labor saving problem.

Mr. Baldwin. Yes, sir. There is not much saving left on a railroad nowadays except labor saving.(54)

There was of course at least one other possible retrenchment—suspension of dividends.

(c) Juggling intercompany books.—Railroads within the Missouri Pacific system lent money to one another by means of cash advances on open account. The Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. itself, for example, made cash advances to its subsidiaries, the N. O. T. & M., the International-Great Northern, and various others. The International-Great Northern in turn made cash advances to the N. O. T. & M. and to N. O. T. & M. subsidiaries.(55) On these inter-company loans, the borrower showed on its books that it was obligated to pay interest, and the lender showed on its books that it was entitled to receive interest. The N. O. T. & M. accrued interest on its debt to the International-Great Northern but did not pay it; the latter, however, set up interest on this account, not merely as money due it, but as income,(56) thus swelling its apparent earnings.

In 1931 an N. O. T. & M. official evolved a still more ingenious plan for increasing the apparent net income of the N. O. T. & M. He proposed to cease accruing interest on this debt on the books of the N. O. T. & M. Thus the funds properly chargeable as interest payable by the N. O. T. & M. were not deducted from the N. O. T. & M.'s gross income; the amount which should have been deducted for interest payable was instead made available for declaration of an N. O. T. & M. dividend.(57)

Ceasing to account for the interest due it reduced the net income of the International-Great Northern by the same amount as the income of the N. O. T. & M. was increased. But the International-Great Northern was not going to pay dividends anyway,(58) and hence its apparent net income was not a source of concern to its parent and grandparent companies.

Since the International-Great Northern stock was wholly owned by the N. O. T. & M. the transaction was in effect taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another; or, more accurately (for no cash was involved), taking a bookkeeping credit out of one book and putting it into another. The net effect of this jugglery was to turn an interest payment due from the N. O. T. & M. to the International-Great Northern into an item on the basis of which the N. O. T. & M. could declare a dividend to the Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Safford pointed out to President Baldwin an obstacle to the jugglery:

> I appreciate that this action (accruing of interest) was authorized by the Board of Directors, and we probably cannot therefore change or discontinue it. * * *(59)

But Mr. Baldwin was not deterred. He replied:

> In view of present conditions, it will be satisfactory to discontinue accruing interest * * *(60) still show a debit profit-and-loss balance for the year 1931. It began the year with a profit-and-loss balance of only $700,000.(61) It operated at a loss of $606,000.(62) In addition, it had to charge off $875,000 to correct its former inadequate depreciation accruals.(63) Thus at the end of 1931, the N. O. T. & M. would show a debit profit and loss balance (excluding dividends received) of $772,000 or more. In spite of this, Mr. Baldwin, as noted above, was demanding that the N. O. T. & M. pay its usual $1,038,000 dividend for the year.

The problem was solved as it had been solved in previous years—by milking the Brownsville. But this time the milking would have to be thorough. From 1926 through 1930, the Brownsville had paid an average of $900,000 a year to the N. O. T. & M.(64) A similar payment in 1931 would barely fill the hole in the N. O. T. & M.'s profit-and-loss balance, without enabling it to pay the dividends demanded by the parent company.

The solution found was to cause the Brownsville to declare an extraordinary dividend of $3,500,000 (65)—a dividend seven times the par value of the stock upon which it was declared.(66) Other Brownsville dividends to the N. O. T. & M. brought the total for the year to $4,155,000,(67) enough to fill up the N. O. T. & M.'s profit-and-loss deficit and to enable the latter to declare a $1,038,000 dividend in favor chiefly of the Missouri Pacific.

(66) The Brownsville was peculiarly capitalized in that its debt was 30 times as large as its comparatively small stock issue, and hence the ratio of dividends to stock is especially striking. Other comparisons not dependent upon the peculiar capitalization, however, are equally striking. For example, the Brownsville's gross revenues from all sources for the year 1931 totalled $6,119,506. (Poor's Steam RR's 1932 p. 651) Thus the $4,155,000 of 1931 dividends amounted to 2/3rds of the total revenues. Dividends declared amounted to more than three times the Brownsville's net railway operating income ($1,238,118), and more than 10 times its net income after fixed charges ($397,879). (Idem.)

Mr. Andrews, general solicitor for the Brownsville, thought that the executive committee of the railroad, even without action by the board of directors, had the power to declare the $3,500,000 dividend.(68) A quorum of the Brownsville executive committee consisted of Mr. Baldwin, President of the Missouri Pacific, Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen, president of Alleghany Corporation.(69) Mr. Andrews, however, "in view of the amount involved," thought it "highly desirable" that the whole board of directors declare the dividend instead of Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Van Sweringen.(70) "I quite appreciate the desirability of board action in this instance," Mr. Van Sweringen wrote.(71) The Brownsville board met in due course and declared the dividend.(72) As a result, the Brownsville profit and loss balance was reduced from $5,100,000 at the end of 1930 to $822,000 at the end of 1931;(73) in May of 1933 the railroad was bankrupt.

(e) Falsifying the Missouri Pacific's books—As a result of receiving $3,022,000 in dividends from its subsidiaries the Texas & Pacific and the N. O. T. & M., the Missouri Pacific was able, in 1931, to show a net income of $1,395,000.(74) Even this showing, however, was false, and based upon a falsification of the Missouri Pacific's own books.(75)

In 1930, Alleghany Corporation had caused the Missouri Pacific to buy certain terminal properties in Missouri from another Alleghany subsidiary, Terminal Shares, Inc. The sale was dictated by Alleghany, which controlled both buyer and seller.(76) The bankruptcy court later found this Terminal Shares transaction to be "improvident, unfair, and overreaching," as well as "grossly unfair and inequitable" and to involve Clayton Act violations and "ultra vires conduct" on the part of the Missouri Pacific.(77) The court further found that the purchase price which the Missouri Pacific was forced to pay "was exorbitant, and had the effect to saddle upon the debtor (Missouri Pacific) an immense loss already sustained by Alleghany Corporation".(78)

The aggregate purchase price for these properties was about $20,000,000. The Missouri Pacific did not pay the full sum, but instead agreed to pay $400,000 every three months, partly as interest and partly for reduction of principal.

Interest paid by the Missouri Pacific under the Terminal Shares contract in 1931 amounted to $858,000.(79) But the Missouri Pacific did not set this $858,000 up on its books as an interest payment or as a payment of any kind. Instead, it entered both the interest and the payment on principal as a current asset under "special deposits".(80)

The Missouri Pacific's actual net income for 1931 cannot have been more (even including dividend income) than $537,000. By falsifying the books to conceal the $858,000 interest payment, this $537,000 net income was inflated to $1,395,000; in the same year $2,659,000 dividends were declared.(81)

fication of the Missouri Pacific's books, both by reason of the dividends which it was thus enabled to receive from the Missouri Pacific, and by reason of the effect of the inflated earnings statement on the market value of Missouri Pacific securities which it owned. But Alleghany did not stop there. It took an extra benefit by maintaining an inconsistency in accounting between the Missouri Pacific and Terminal Shares, Inc.

Although Missouri Pacific was treating its $858,000 interest payment to Terminal Shares, Inc., as a current asset under "special deposits", both Terminal Shares, Inc., and Alleghany Corporation, the recipients, were properly treating this same $858,000 payment as income.(82) Thus Alleghany got the benefit both ways—through Missouri Pacific's false accounting and through Terminal Shares, Inc.'s correct accounting.

The amount involved was not limited to the $858,000 falsification in 1931. During the years 1930-34, the Missouri Pacific failed to accrue some $3,375,000 of interest payments to Terminal Shares, Inc. inflating its net-income showing and corporate surplus by that amount.(83)

Summary of System Earnings and Dividend Declarations for 1931.

1. In the year 1931, the Brownsville earned $398,000 and declared $4,155,000 in dividends to the N. O. T. & M.

2. The N. O. T. & M. showed an operating deficit (before receipt of the Brownsville dividends) of $606,000. It showed a profit and loss deficit (exclusive of the Brownsville dividends) of at least $772,000. Nevertheless, it declared a $1,038,000 dividend, made possible by the $4,155,000 dividends declared in its favor by the Brownsville.(83a)

(82) Idem.

(83) Exhibit No. 219, ibid., p. 1078.

(83a) The $1,038,000 N. O. T. & M. 1931 dividend was declared in spite of the fact that the consolidated income statement of that railroad and its 14 subsidiaries showed a $1,122,000 net income deficit. (N. O. T. & M. Annual Report for 1932, p. 3.)

3. The Texas & Pacific net income was $2,041,000. It declared dividends of $2,639,000—$598,000 in excess of income.

4. The Missouri Pacific had a deficit (excluding dividend income and properly accounting for Terminal Shares interest payments) of $2,486,000. Nevertheless, it declared dividends totaling $2,659,000. It was enabled to do this chiefly by the declaration in its favor of dividends totaling $3,023,000 from its subsidiaries, the N. O. T. & M. and Texas & Pacific, and by concealing an $858,000 interest payment as a "special deposit."

Borrowing Money to Pay Dividends: The Brownsville.

Every dividend payment involves at least two problems. The first is a legal problem. There must be a profit and loss balance from which the law permits the declaration of a dividend. The devices used to solve this legal problem have been described above. The second is a financial problem. There must be cash with which to pay the dividend. This problem the devices described above did not solve.

Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Van Sweringen alone, as a quorum of the Brownsville executive committee, could, in the opinion of counsel, declare a dividend of $3,500,000 in favor of the N. O. T. & M. probably without violation of law.(84) But they could not cause the Brownsville to pay such a dividend, because the Brownsville didn't have the money.(85) The Brownsville's dividend declaration gave the N. O. T. & M. a profit and loss balance on paper, but it did not give the N. O. T. & M. any cash to pay a dividend. Some of the Brownsville dividend was never paid, and some was "paid" with money borrowed from the N. O. T. & M.

In 1931, the Brownsville did in fact "pay" the N. O. T. & M. $1,000,000 of the special $3,500,000 dividend declared.(86) But even this $1,000,000 "payment" was more than offset by the $1,500,000 advanced to the Brownsville by the N. O. T. & M.(87) The Brownsville did not even give the N. O. T. & M. a voucher for the remaining $2,500,000; it was simply carried over to the next year.(88) An additional $655,000 was transferred only on paper; a voucher was issued but not paid in cash.(89) In short, while the Brownsville purported to declare $4,155,000 in dividends, it was actually borrowing from the N. O. T. & M. more than it paid out to the N. O. T. & M.

Borrowing Money to Pay Dividends: The N. O. T. & M.

The N. O. T. & M. solved its legal problem by entering, as income, dividends declared by the Brownsville but not paid. It solved its financial problem by borrowing money from the Missouri Pacific to pay dividends to the Missouri Pacific.

A memorandum from the files of the Guaranty Co. of New York, the investment subsidiary of the Guaranty Trust Co., prepared for Mr. Harold Stanley, then of J. P. Morgan & Co., concisely describes the process.

The accounting regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission required that any borrowings for the purpose of paying dividends should be revealed in the railroad's annual report. The Commission's instructions on this point were specific:

> * * * If an obligation of any character has been incurred for the purpose of procuring funds for the payment of any dividend, or for the purpose of replenishing the treasury of respondent after paying dividends, give particulars in a footnote. If none has been incurred for such purpose state that fact.(93)

than $2,000,000 from the Missouri Pacific between 1929 and 1931 "for payment of dividends on Capital Stock", the N. O. T. & M. informed the Interstate Commerce Commission:

> No obligation has been incurred for the purpose of [procurring] funds for payment of dividends or for replenishing treasury of respondent after payment of dividends.(94)

In testimony before this subcommittee, Mr. William Wyer, Secretary-treasurer of the Missouri Pacific and of the N. O. T. & M. argued that, in spite of the evidence introduced into the record, the Missouri Pacific system lines did not borrow money to pay dividends. "You cannot earmark dollars"(95) he said, and introduced a prepared statement (96) defending that thesis. Mr. Wyer's statement and testimony are treated in an appendix, below.(97)

Borrowing Money to Pay Dividends: The Missouri Pacific.

The N. O. T. & M. could borrow from the Missouri Pacific to pay dividends to the Missouri Pacific; but the Missouri Pacific's cash position was in nowise improved by such accounting practices. True the N. O. T. & M. dividend gave the Missouri Pacific a paper profit and loss balance out of which to declare a dividend, but, like the extraordinary Brownsville dividend to the N. O. T. & M. it provided no cash. And so the Missouri Pacific, like the N. O. T. & M. and the Brownsville, borrowed money.

In 1931, the Missouri Pacific borrowed $80,000,000.(98) It used $69,500,000 for refunding of debt and for sinking fund requirements (99) leaving more than $10,000,000 excess of borrowing over refunding. It spent approximately $7,250,000 (gross) for additions and betterments.(1) The rest of the money borrowed, some $2,750,000, went to increase the Missouri Pacific's cash available for the payment of dividends. Dividends actually declared and paid (of which Alleghany Corporation received about 33 percent) totalled $2,659,000.(2)

Summary of Missouri Pacific System Borrowings to Pay Dividends During 1931

1. The Brownsville borrowed $1,500,000 from the N. O. T. & M. and in turn "paid" $1,000,000 in dividends to the N. O. T. & M. (out of $4,155,000 declared).

2. The N. O. T. & M. borrowed about $1,000,000 from the Missouri Pacific—"for the payment of dividends on Capital Stock", as the N. O. T. & M. auditor declared—and in turn paid almost $1,000,000 in dividends to the Missouri Pacific.

3. The Missouri Pacific borrowed $80,000,000, some $2,750,000 of which was added to its free cash available for the payment of dividends. The Missouri Pacific paid out some $2,659,000 in dividends (about 33 percent of which went to Alleghany Corporation).(3)

Payment of New Orleans, Texas, & Mexico Dividends Out of Capital in 1930

The intricate accounting devices evolved by railroad and holding company officials in an attempt to legalize dividend payments unjustified by earnings resulted, both in 1930 and 1931, in the payment of N. O. T. & M. dividends out of capital, a procedure disguised in 1930 behind faulty bookkeeping and in 1931 behind an out-and-out violation of Interstate Commerce Commission accounting regulations.

When holding company interests took control of the Missouri Pacific in May 1930, they soon discovered that the railroads in the system had been consistently overstating their income by underdepreciation of equipment.(4) This underdepreciation for the system as a whole amounted to more than $30,000,000; of which $26,000,000 occurred on the Missouri Pacific itself, and $875,000 on the N. O. T. & M.(5)

Mr. William Wyer, Secretary-treasurer of these roads, testified that to adjust this depreciation bookkeeping was "one of the first things he (Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen) wanted done".(6) The president of the Missouri Pacific testified that the railroad planned to adjust the cumulative error at least as early as October 1930.(7) Nevertheless, the error was not promptly adjusted. Instead, a dividend was declared; and the Interstate Commerce Commission's consent to charge off past depreciations was not asked until January 10, 1931, after the dividend had already been declared.(8)

If the N. O. T. & M. had made adequate depreciation provisions from the beginning, or had made adjustments when the Van Sweringen interests first found the true state of affairs, the N. O. T. & M. would have shown a $165,000 debit profit and loss balance after payment of 1930 dividends.(9) The $165,000 profit and loss deficit which adequate accounting would have revealed represented a dissipation of capital through dividends.

Payment of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Dividends Out of Capital in 1931

The Interstate Commerce Commission's uniform accounting rules specifically provide that:

> Dividends declared shall not be credited (as income on the books of the company receiving them) prior to actual collection unless their payment is reasonably assured by past experience, guaranty, anticipated provision, or otherwise.(10)

Payment of the $4,155,000 dividends declared by the Brownsville in 1931 was not "reasonably assured." Only $1,000,000 was paid in 1931, and even this sum was more than offset by the $1,500,000 lent the Brownsville by the N. O. T. & M.(11) Nevertheless, the N. O. T. & M. entered the full $4,155,000 of Brownsville dividends as "income."(12)

The Bureau of Accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission, after it learned the facts, informed the railroad:

> When this dividend was declared, your company was aware that the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway was without funds to pay it and even on the basis of past experience the earnings of the company, had business continued good, would not have been adequate to make the payment until some future date. The recording of the dividend in account "513" (dividend income) when declared was clearly in violation of the Commission's accounting rule.(13) * * *

The unpaid portion of the $3,500,000 extraordinary Brownsville dividend at the end of 1931 was $2,500,000. If the N. O. T. & M. had kept its books properly in this respect, it would have shown a debit profit and loss balance of $175,000.(14) In short, as Mr. William Wyer, Secretary-treasurer of the Missouri Pacific and of the N. O. T. & M.,

(14) The N. O. T. & M.'s unappropriated profit and loss balance at the close of 1931 was $2,325,776.16. This was overstated by $2,500,000 improperly entered as "dividend income." Correct accounting would have shown, therefore, a $174,223.84 debit profit and loss balance. (Hearings, Part XII, p. 5296.)

conceded in testimony before this subcommittee, the N. O. T. & M. had not only violated the I. C. C.'s uniform accounting rule but had actually declared dividends out of capital.

> Mr. Brown (executive assistant to the subcommittee). If we take off that $2,500,000, part of that dividend was declared out of capital, on that showing alone?
> Mr. Wyer. Yes. On that basis there would be $175,000, approximately that.
> Mr. Brown. So it was more than a violation of the Commission's rules, was it not, that was involved here? There was an actual declaration of dividend to Missouri Pacific out of capital?
> Mr. Wyer. Apparently there was. * * * (15)

But Mr. Wyer went on to assure the subcommittee that the directors of the N. O. T. & M. (including Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen and six of his Cleveland associates) did not know that they were declaring dividends out of capital.

Appendix: Examination of Statement and Testimony Denying That Money Was Borrowed to Pay Dividends (1)

In testimony before this subcommittee,(2) and in a prepared statement introduced at his request into the record of this subcommittee,(3) Mr. William Wyer, Missouri Pacific secretary-treasurer, protested [sternuously] against any implication that railroads in the Missouri Pacific system had borrowed money for the purpose of paying dividends.

The statement he submitted draws a sharp distinction between financial transactions accounted for in a railroad's balance sheet, and operations transactions, accounted for in its income account. Money can only be borrowed, Mr. Wyer asserts, for the purpose of acquiring assets—a financial transaction. Sometimes, instead of borrowing money from a bank or through sale of securities in order to acquire assets, the railroad in effect borrows the money from itself—that is, from a hypothetical operations fund. Later, when it wishes to pay a dividend and has not sufficient cash on hand, it borrows money from outside and pays the dividends; but the purpose of the borrowing is not to pay the dividend; the purpose is to pay for the assets previously acquired.(4)

Mr. Wyer was shown the statement prepared by the statistical department of J. P. Morgan & Co. which asserted that—

> While full dividends were paid (by the N. O. T. & M.) in 1931 the cash available * * * was derived from loans from the Missouri Pacific, so that the earnings in this case were no more than a book entry.(5)

Mr. Wyer stated that he did not agree with this analysis. "I do not think they knew what the facts were," he said.(6)

Mr. Wyer was shown a memorandum prepared in the offices of the auditor of the N. O. T. & M. and subsidiaries, showing a whole series of advances from the Missouri Pacific of the N. O. T. & M. specifically described as being "for payment of dividend on capital stock".(7) In many cases the amount and date of the advance from the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M. matched the amount and date of the dividends from the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific.(8) Mr. Wyer's comment was that the auditor "did not know, or if he knew he did not stop to think, what the basic principles underlying these transactions were,(9) and that he "never tried to find out what was in the minds of the board of directors when these advances were made."(10)

(4) "If we keep clearly in mind the distinction between these two kinds of changes in the balance sheet, namely the changes arising out of financial transaction and the changes arising out of operation of the property, I think it will help to clear the confusion which has arisen in connection with the questions of increases of indebtedness and the declaration of dividends." (Ibid. at p. 5498)

What was in the minds of the board of directors in an analogous situation is shown in the minutes of the Missouri Pacific board for Sept. 9, 1930:

> The chairman stated that the cash payments which the Company was required to meet up to October 1, 1930, for interest on funded debt, for dividends and for an advance * * * aggregated $4,300,000, and that funds on hand * * * were $2,492,000.
> Whereupon, on motion duly seconded, it was unanimously
> Resolved that the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Treasurer, be, and they hereby are, authorized to borrow $1,800,000 * * * (11)

Mr. Wyer was shown a voucher accounting for the payment of a $296,000 dividend from the Texas & Pacific to the Missouri Pacific, $290,000 of which was stated on the voucher itself to come "from proceeds of $1,700,000 loan to the Texas & Pacific Railway Co."(12) Mr. Wyer, however, denied that the funds to pay the dividend were taken from the funds borrowed. He stated: "The voucher is technically wrong."(13)

The two-fund theory is rendered plausible by the circumstance that borrowing money does not give a railroad a legal basis for declaring a dividend. To get that legal basis, railroads in the Missouri Pacific System adopted such bookkeeping devices as underaccruing depreciation, entering as income items which are not properly income, ceasing to accrue interest on borrowed funds, etc.(14) To get the cash, they borrowed.

The facts of a typical case may be summarized simply. A railroad declares a dividend. It has no cash to pay the dividend. It borrows enough cash to pay the dividend. It pays the dividend. Such a case is herein described as "borrowing money to pay dividends." The minutes of the Missouri Pacific board, the voucher of the Texas & Pacific, the memorandum prepared by the auditor of the Gulf Coast Lines and the statistical department of J. P. Morgan & Co., describe it similarly. This realistic description contrasts with Mr. Wyer's belief that the real purpose of the borrowing involved an asset acquired and paid for "five or ten or twenty years"(15) before.

The two-fund analysis confuses the purpose for which funds are borrowed with the legal basis for borrowing funds. When a railroad acquires an asset, it may either borrow money to pay for it or use funds already in the treasury. If thereafter—perhaps many years thereafter—it borrows money, the acquisition of the asset paid for long ago can certainly not be considered as the purpose of borrowing. At best it supplies the legal basis of the borrowing.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in instructions to railroads for reporting under account 300-D, declares:

> If an obligation of any character has been incurred for the purpose of procuring funds for the payment of any dividends, or for the purpose of replenishing the treasury of respondent after paying dividends, give particulars in a footnote. If none has been incurred for such purpose state that fact.(16)

The careful wording of these instructions ("for the purpose of procuring funds for the payment of any dividend" rather than "for the purpose of paying dividend") indicates that the Commission had in mind precisely the kind of borrowing-to-pay-dividends in which Missouri Pacific system roads indulged. The roads' repeated statements, therefore, that "no obligation of any character was incurred for the purpose of procuring funds to pay above dividends"(17) were clear violations of the Commission's clear instructions.

In addition to arguing that all borrowing is for the purpose of acquiring assets, Mr. Wyer argued that "you cannot earmark dollars".(18) "It is just as logical", his statement declared, "to say that a company borrows money to meet its pay rolls, or to buy coal, or to pay taxes, or to pay interest, as it is to say that it borrows to pay dividends."(19)

The difficulty with this view is that a railroad must meet its pay rolls, buy coal, and pay taxes and interest; while it need not pay dividends. Dividends come last on the list of disbursements, and can be paid only after operating charges are met.

In the typical situation under consideration, a railroad does not have enough cash on hand to meet its operating charges and at the same time to pay dividends. Accordingly, it borrows money. To say that it borrowed the money to buy coal is nonsense; it had enough money to buy coal, and it had to buy the coal. The railroad had no choice between paying dividends and paying for its coal. But the railroad did have a choice between not borrowing and not paying dividends on the one hand, and borrowing and paying dividends on the other. It chose to borrow and pay dividends.(20)

It is true that one other item among the railroad's cash needs, namely additions and betterments, are in part contingent. Thus Mr. Wyer was able to argue with some plausibility that "you cannot earmark dollars" as between dividends and additions and betterments. Money is borrowed; it is useless, says Mr. Wyer, to discuss whether the identical dollars borrowed went for additions and betterments or for dividends.(21)

The record of this subcommittee contains abundant evidence, however, that additions and betterments on Missouri Pacific lines during 1931 had been reduced to the irreducible minimum.(22) Following President Baldwin's instructions, for example, the N. O. T. & M. had made only those additions and betterments "that cannot possibly be deferred."(23) The Texas & Pacific net additions and betterments for 1931 were cut by 85 percent from the 1928 level.(24) Certainly whatever additions and betterments were made in 1931 on Missouri Pacific system roads were absolutely necessary; wherever the railroads had a choice, they postponed such expenditures. Thus the Missouri Pacific did not have a choice between making these minimum additions and betterments for paying dividends. But it did have a choice between paying dividends and borrowing on the one hand, or not paying dividends and not borrowing on the other. It chose to borrow and pay dividends, to the brink of bankruptcy.

way Company held in New York October 27th, 1925, state that the Chairman reported that the estimated earnings of the Company for the three months ending November 30, 1925, would be in excess of the rate of 7% per annum on the capital stock of the Company and recommended the declaration of the quarterly dividend payable December 1, 1925, which was done.

The dividend requirement on New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co. capital stock was $259,575.75, based upon 1¾% on 148,329 shares outstanding. So long as we declare this dividend out of net income of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co. it is necessary that New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co. itself earn a sufficient amount to warrant paying it.

The actual results of that line for the three months period ending with November 30, 1925, aggregated only $172,053.55, or 1.147% and fell short by the sum of $87,522.20 of the amount of dividend which has been declared and paid.

Mr. Andrews to whom I have referred this matter, concurs in my views that meetings of the Board of Directors of The Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railway Co. and The St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Co. should be held and dividend declared out of the earnings of those companies for the current year, or so much thereof as may be necessary to protect the dividend already declared and paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co.

Will you kindly advise if you desire meeting of the Boards of Directors of the two Texas companies mentioned called for the purpose of taking such action as may be necessary in the premises.

Houston, Texas, March 27th, 1926.

Mr. Eckert: Regarding dividends being paid on NOT&M capital stock:

The net income of the NOT&M for the three months ended November 30th, 1925, fell short $87,522.20 of the amount required to pay the dividend of 1¾ on its capital stock, or $259,575.75. The dividend of 20% declared on the StLB & M capital stock February 12th, amount $100,000.00, was, as I understand it, to be first applied against this deficit, leaving $36,856.48 applicable to the three months period ended February 28th. This had the effect of leaving a net income on the NOT&M for the months of February available for dividend payable March 1st of $42,335.75.

The NOT&M income for December showed a deficit of $39,235.98, January net income $33,756.66, plus the above figure, resulted in a net of $36,856.43, for three months, or $222,719.32 short of the requirements if the Mar. 1st dividend is to be paid out of current income.

The net income of the StLB&M for the three months ended February 28th was as follows:

December, 1925—deficit	$ 20,781.70	(red)
January 1926	4,140.39
February	59,750.65
Total	43,109.34

The February figure was that stated before deduction of $100,000.00 dividend, and after applying it the net for February would be $40,249.35 (red), and for the period $58,890.66 (red).

The net income on BSL&W for the same period was as follows:

December 1925	243.14	(red)
January 1926	23,875.94	(red)
February 1926	22,972.79	(red)
Total	47,091.87	(red)

The O&NW also went in red during the same period, and it appears that the current dividend being paid on NOT&M capital stock is not being earned. I have therefore refrained from placing the entry on the books deducting the March 1st dividend from income. The only solution I see is to declare dividends by the StLB&M and BSL&W from surplus in the past, also as large a dividend as possible by the Sugar Land and H&BV.

C-31

Houston, April 28th, 1931

Mr. Baldwin: Replying to your letter of April 16th written at New York setting a goal for Gulf Coast Lines net income for the year 1931.

We have made a survey of the situation and have prepared statements indicating what we believe is a conservative estimate of the probable gross earnings, and showing operating expenses and other charges as now programmed and which are very close to the irreducible minimum unless we make some further drastic reduction in service.

The realization of the goal indicated by you is largely dependent upon gross earnings. Actual results for the first three months of the year reflect a decrease in total railway operating revenues of $1,324,505, and present indications are that April will show a further decrease of something like $350,000, making the total decrease for four months $1,674,000 as compared with the same period last year. The general conditions effecting this decrease will no doubt continue but will be off-set in a measure by the special movement of East Texas oil to Baytown, Atreco, and Pt. Arthur, which traffic incidentally takes a very low rate per car, and by increased movement of citrus during the latter part of the year. The major trends in our freight traffic are shown in a separate statement attached. Passenger revenues are showing a very substantial reduction under last year and there are no prospects for improvement in the near future.

Taking all these factors into consideration, we are estimating gross revenues for the year at $12,889,034, a reduction of $2,539,387 or 16.4% under 1930. As stated above, for the first four months our gross revenue will be $1,674,000 or 26% behind the same period last year.

Our Maintenance of Way and Structures expenses are now programmed at $1,801,507, a reduction of $591,622 or approximately 25% under last year. We have reduced our operating expenses in connection with improvements from $382,600, as originally budgeted, to $55,100; this involves deferring all rail and ballast work. We plan on using 150,000 cross ties as compared with 212,000 last year.

Our present program for Maintenance of Equipment means that we must hold our expenditures for the year to $2,102,409, a reduction of $621,756 or 22.8% under last year. This will be the lowest expenditure for MofE since 1924 and provides running repair money only for locomotives and cars, except that we will be able to turn out about 15 Class 1, 2 and 3 repairs as compared with 49 last year. At the end of 1931 there will be about 30 engines which will have run out their assigned mileage.

Transportation Expenses are estimated at $3,654,538, a reduction of $508,189 under last year, the estimated transportation ratio being 28.35, as compared with 26.98 last year. This estimate gives effect to the reduction in passenger service on the Kingsville Division in January, amounting to approximately 242,000 train miles per annum; also, takes into consideration a substantial improvement in freight train performance as a result of placing 1200-class engines on the Kingsville Division. The estimate further involves a very close check of our supervisory, yard, and station forces which is now being done. The increase in transportation ratio anticipated is entirely due to the low level of earnings.

We will not be able to show much reduction in hire of freight cars because of the fact that such increases as we anticipate in freight traffic will be largely in oil and vegetables, involving increase in private line mileage.

Net income for the year on this basis is estimated at $457,519, a reduction of $644,382 under last year and $680,581 under the goal set by you in your letter mentioned above.

The net result falls far short of what you want to accomplish and I realize this is disappointing and am still hopeful we can improve it and we shall make every possible effort to do so. Our present program for MofW and MofE is materially under last year and we have felt that we have gone as deeply into these expenditures as we could without impairing, the standard of service, but we will continue to check this further to see what more can be done, in recognition of your request.

(signed in pencil) H. R. S.

C-32

Houston, May 7, 1931

(Personal)

Mr. Johnson: Mr. Baldwin has set a goal for Gulf Coast Lines net income for the year 1931 and our careful survey and estimate recently sent him of net results falls far short of what he [want] us to accomplish. While this conservative estimate is about $300,000 less than the goal, we could take a more optimistic view and set a somewhat higher figure but we still believe the net will fall short $200,000 or more.

You will recall that on instructions from Mr. Baldwin we were obliged to set up interest on I-GN advances and open accounts retro-active to January 1926. We have accrued in the accounts of the Gulf Coast Lines and subsidiary companies to the end of March, 1931 the sum of $362,436.14, of which $143,758.87 has come out of Gulf Coast Lines income. I am not at all familiar with Mr. Baldwin's thoughts about this whole matter and I thought it well to bring it to your attention for advice as to whether or not he might be interested in considering the reversal of these accruals—no part of which has been paid over to the I-GN-provided, of course, that the condition of the I-GN at the end of the year will permit.

This thought is prompted solely by a desire to help the Gulf Coast Lines in the event we are unable to reach the goal of $1,120,000 net set by Mr. Baldwin.

(Stamped) J. E. ANDERSON.

Houston, June 20th, 1931

Mr. Baldwin: I attach a statement showing interest on I-GN advances and open accounts as of May 31st, 1931, accrued by the Gulf Coast Lines from January 1926. This interest aggregates $377,882.20, and for the month of May the total debit taken in the accounts of the four GCL was $1,186.81, and the grand total for all lines $4,551.95. Up to the end of April none of this interest had been paid. In June we were able to transfer the sum of $250,000 to the SAU&G, with which it paid the I-GN interest in the amount of $116,663.30, the balance being applied on the principal.

I appreciate that this action was authorized by the Board of Directors, and we probably cannot therefore change or discontinue it even though the lines do not earn the interest. However, no provision was made for accruing interest on the balances in the accounts of the GCL against the I-GN, and from January 1st, 1926, to May 31st, 1931, interest on such balances in open accounts will approximate $100,000. Do you not think that provision ought to be made to set up interest on these GCL balances so that we could, in a measure, at least, offset the amounts we are accruing in income accounts on the GCL in favor of the I-GN?

Effective with May 1st we have discontinued accruing interest on I-GN adjustment bonds in GCL accounts, which will aggregate $4,111.50 per month. While it is true this interest is cumulative it has not been declared, and therefore it is not deemed proper to accrue it. This will have a further bad effect upon the GCL net results.

Will you kindly advise me if this plan has your approval?

(Signed with stamp) H. R. SAFFORD.

Messrs. H. R. Safford, F. P. Johnson:

Referring to Mr. Safford's letter of June 20th regarding matter of accruing interest in favor of the I-GN on advances and open accounts:

14. Answering paragraph 18 of the petition, they deny each and every allegation therein contained.

15. Answering the first paragraph of paragraph 19 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether or not this Court or the Master appointed by the Honorable C. B. Faris, District Judge, has specified the particularity or the time whereby

17. Answering paragraph 21 of the petition, they admit that no hearing was ever ordered and that no hearing was ever held on the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the New Orleans referred to in said paragraph, and that Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, has taken no action to expunge the claim referred to in said paragraph; they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to what is known to the petitioner, and, except as so admitted and denied, they deny each and every allegation contained in said paragraph.

18. Answering paragraph 22 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations therein contained.

19. Answering paragraph 23 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to why the petitioner has failed to make the request therein referred to; they allege that the Trustee is an officer of the Court, whose function is to administer under the direction of the Court all the property placed in the custody of the Court in the proceeding, impartially and with due regard to the rights of all interested parties. Partisan representation of particular classes of securityholders is not part of the duty of the Trustee. That is the function of the trustees of the mortgages or indentures securing the respective issues, or of protective committees or other duly authorized representatives of the respective classes of securityholders. Such partisan representation, as is demanded in the petition, is neither necessary nor proper in a proceeding for reorganization under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act; except as so denied and alleged, they deny each and every allegation contained in said paragraph.

20. Answering paragraph 24 of the petition, they deny the allegations contained in the first sentence of said paragraph; they admit that in 1937 the Irving Trust Company, as Trustee under the Indenture securing the First Mortgage Bonds of the New Orleans, and the Walker Committee, representing Bonds of said issue, filed the petitions referred to in said paragraph; that answers to said petitions were filed; that no hearings have been held upon the issues presented by said petitions and answers; that an order continuing the hearings on said petitions was entered; that no order of dismissal of said petitions has been sought by Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee, or by any of the parties, and, except as so admitted, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations in said paragraph contained.

21. Answering paragraph 25 of the petition, they deny that petitioner properly raised the question of the validity of the claim referred to in said paragraph at the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 19-21, 1943, and that petitioner was directed to present the question referred to in said paragraph to this Court, and, except as so denied, they admit the allegations contained in said paragraph.

22. Answering paragraph 26 of the petition, they deny that the proceeding attempted to be initiated by the petition is necessary for any reason whatsoever; they deny the allegations contained in subparagraph (d) thereof, except so much of said sub-paragraph as contains a quotation from an opinion of Honorable C. B. Faris; and they deny the allegations contained in sub-paragraph (e) of said paragraph.

23. Answering paragraph 27 of the petition, they allege that a large part of the proof with respect to the matters referred to in the petition consists of the testimony of witnesses, many of whom are dead, and, except as so alleged, they admit the allegations contained in said paragraph.

24. Answering paragraph 28 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether or not the petitioner has heretofore caused to be made or participated in the making of an application for the relief prayed for in the petition.

25. Answering paragraph 29 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to what the petitioner believes, and they deny that Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, is disqualified to exercise fully all of his rights and powers as such Trustee.

26. Answering paragraph 30 of the petition, they deny knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations therein contained.

First Defense.

As and for a first defense, the RFC and the Group allege as follows:

27. That, if the petitioner has any rights in respect of the matters complained of in the petition, he is entitled under the Bankruptcy Act to assert such rights in his own name. It is unnecessary and would be improper for the petitioner to proceed in the name of Guy A. Thompson, as Trustee in Bankruptcy of the New Orleans, as requested in said petition.

Second Defense.

As and for a second defense, the RFC and the Group assert:

28. That the petition should be dismissed for the reason that the petition fails to comply with the requirements of Rule 23 (b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure for the District Courts of the United States.

Third Defense.

As and for a third defense, the RFC and the Group allege:

29. These reorganization proceedings were instituted on March 31, 1933, over eleven years ago. During this lengthy period, orders have been made by this Court requiring the filing of claims within periods specified therein, which periods and the time for filing objections to all of such claims have long since expired. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, investigations have been made by the Bankruptcy Trustee herein as to any facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct or mismanagement, as a consequence of which any of the Debtors herein might have a cause of action arising therefrom against any person or corporation, and such investigations have long since been concluded and reports based thereon made to this Court. In connection with the formulation of plans of reorganization herein, the Interstate Commerce Commission and this Court have gone fully into all matters and things which would or might be claimed to be involved in the formulation of a plan, including the matters and things referred to in the petition, and all interested parties have had full and complete opportunity to be heard thereon. Upon the basis of such full consideration the Interstate Commerce Commission and this Court have approved a plan of reorganization, and after such plan had ultimately failed of effectuation on other grounds, the Interstate Commerce Commission again held a full hearing, and under dates of July 4, 1944 and October 9, 1944, has handed down its second and third supplemental reports and orders approving a revised plan of reorganization herein and reaffirming its conclusion that the contentions made by the petitioner in the petition are without merit. Petitioner is now seeking to reopen the record and litigate de novo issues which have heretofore been fully explored. The reopening of the record and the relitigation of said issues at this time as contemplated by said petition would be without justification, wholly inequitable, and would serve no useful purpose, but on the contrary would be subversive of the purpose of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act to provide a means for the prompt and economical reorganization of railroads subject to said Section 77.

30. By Order No. 19, dated May 13, 1933, entered herein, this Court directed that creditors of the Missouri Pacific, the New Orleans and other Debtors in these proceedings, with certain specified exceptions, should file claims prior to August 31, 1933. By Order No. 451 herein, filed February 27, 1936, provision was made for the filing within sixty days of certain additional claims, including those of the RFC. In accordance with these respective orders, proofs of claim were filed by Missouri Pacific covering the advances referred to in the petition and by RFC showing $9,955,226.78 of such advances as part of its collateral. No objection has ever been filed to either of said proofs of claim, although such proof of claim of Missouri Pacific has been on file herein for over ten years and the claim of RFC for over eight years, and the appropriate time for filing such exceptions has long since elapsed.

31. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77c(9) of the Bankruptcy Act, the Trustee herein reported to this Court, after investigation, regarding facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct or mismanagement as a consequence of which any of the Debtors herein might have a cause of action arising therefrom against any person or corporation. Following such report, by Order No. 453, filed herein on March 2, 1936, the Court requested the Interstate Commerce Commission to advise the Court of any such facts known to it. Neither the reports of the Bankruptcy Trustee nor the advices received from the Commission pursuant to such request purport to set out any cause of action based on the matters and things set out in said petition above mentioned, although the Trustee and said Commission were fully familiar with such matters and things. Said reports and advices have been on file with this Court for many years and have never been challenged by any parties to these proceedings.

32. In accordance with the provisions of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, hearings with respect to the reorganization of the Missouri Pacific and New Orleans and the other Debtors herein were held before the Interstate Commerce Commission on February 4-7, 1936, February 10-13, 1936, April 14-24, 1936, March 9-10, 1937, May 4-6, 1937, June 21-23, 1937, July 26-27, 1937 and September 27-30, 1937. At these hearings full opportunity was afforded and used for the presentation of all evidence relevant to the formulation of a plan, including detailed testimony pertinent to the relations from time to time existing between Alleghany Corporation, Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, the advances by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, the dividends on the New Orleans stock and the other transactions between the New Orleans and the Missouri Pacific referred to in the petition. Following briefs and argument before the Commission, a report and order dated January 10, 1940 and a supplemental report and order dated April 9, 1940, were issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission approving a plan of reorganization for the Debtors herein and in connection therewith passing upon the matters and things referred to in said petition and upon substantially the same contentions as those now sought to be made by the petition. After full hearings and arguments before this Court on June 9, 1940 and October 7-10, 1940, said plan of reorganization and the determination of said questions by the Commission were fully approved by this Court. The plan so approved having later failed of effectuation for other reasons, a further hearing with respect to reorganization of the Debtors herein, was held before the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 19-21, 1944, at which full opportunity was again afforded for the presentation of all evidence relevant to the formulation of a plan of reorganization herein, including some evidence relating to the matters and things referred to in said petition, other alleged evidence relating to such matters and things being properly rejected for reasons set forth in the transcript of said hearing. The Interstate Commerce Commission has now by said supplemental reports and orders, dated respectively July 4, 1944 and October 9, 1944, approved a revised plan of reorganization reaffirming its conclusion that the contentions sought to be relitigated by the petitioner as set forth in the petition are without merit.

Fourth Defense.

33. As and for a fourth defense, the RFC and the Group reallege each and every allegation contained in paragraphs 29 to 32, inclusive, of this answer and assert that the petition should be dismissed for the reason that it fails to comply with Rule 24 of the Rules of Civil Procedure for the District Courts of the United States in that the application made by the petition is not timely.

Fifth Defense.

As and for a fifth defense, the RFC and the Group assert:

34. Any control of the New Orleans by the Missouri Pacific and any mismanagement of the former by the latter, if such mismanagement existed, was necessarily made possible by and carried out through and by means of ownership of the common stock of the New Orleans. The rights asserted by the petitioner in the petition are asserted as, and only as, the alleged equitable owner of such common stock. Accordingly, said petitioner, claiming through and as the alleged owner of the very common stock by which the claimed mismanagement is alleged to have been carried out, does not come into this Court with clean hands and is in no position to contend that other interests should be held invalid or [subordinarted] to his own by reason of such claimed mismanagement.

Sixth Defense.

As and for a sixth defense, the RFC alleges:

35. In accordance with the provisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended, and with appropriate approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, RFC made various loans to Missouri Pacific which are now in default. Said loans are outstanding in the principal amount of $23,134,800, plus substantial interest, and are secured by the pledge of important collateral. Included among said collateral are notes of the New Orleans in the principal amount of $9,955,226.78 originally given in payment of the same principal amount of the advances by Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans referred to in the petition. RFC became the pledgee holder of said notes and the assignee of the advances in payment of which the same were given, bona fide and for value, and without knowledge of any of the matters and things referred to in the petition. Under these circumstances, whether or not any effect might be given to the matters and things referred to in the above mentioned petition as against the Missouri Pacific or as against any of the other parties to this proceeding, said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC and said notes in the hands of RFC or its assigns constitute the valid, legal and binding obligations of the New Orleans to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans as aforesaid.

Seventh Defense.

As and for a seventh defense, the RFC alleges:

36. By its report and order dated February 25, 1933, in Finance Docket No. 9817, the Interstate Commerce Commission found that the issuance by the New Orleans of a note or notes in an aggregate amount not exceeding $7,456,726.78 (a) was for a lawful purpose within its corporate purposes, and compatible with the public interest, which was necessary and appropriate for and consistent with the proper performance by it of service to the public as a common carrier and which did not impair its ability to perform that service, and (b) was reasonably necessary and appropriate for such purpose. In accordance with such determination the Interstate Commerce Commission, by its said order, authorized the issuance of said note in the principal amount of $7,456,726.78 by the New Orleans. Said note was thereafter duly issued and pledged with the RFC and constitutes part of the $9,955,226.78 principal amount of such notes held by RFC as set out in paragraph 35 hereof. Approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the issuance of the additional note in the principal amount of $2,498,500 held by RFC was not required under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act.

Eighth Defense.

As and for an eighth defense, the RFC and the Group allege:

37. Many of the officers and directors of the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans and other persons having knowledge concerning the matters complained of in the petition have died. In failing to assert the alleged rights claimed in the petition at any time during the eleven year course of the proceedings herein, and until after long years of effort on the part of all interested parties, a plan of reorganization is on the verge of approval and consummation herein, the petitioner has been guilty of inexcusable laches and is equitably estopped to assert his alleged rights at this time. To permit such assertion, particularly in a court applying principles of equity, would be prejudicial to the rights of creditors generally and would be unfair and inequitable to the court, the Interstate Commerce Commission and all other parties interested in these reorganization proceedings.

Wherefore, the RFC and the Group respectfully pray that the prayer of said petition be denied and that they may have such other and further relief as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Transcript of Proceedings on Petition of Andrew W. Comstock for Order Granting Leave to Petitioner, in the Name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee, to File Objections to Claim of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, Etc.

(Filed January 5, 1945.)

District Court of the United States
in and for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

Be It Remembered: That on December 1, 1944, during the September Term, 1944, of the District Court of the United States, in and for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri, there came on to be heard before the Honorable George H. Moore, Petition of Andrew W. Comstock for an order granting leave to petitioner in the name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of Debtor, to file objections to claim of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company; to participate in any and all proceedings, wherein validity or sufficiency of said claim may be involved, and to take all action, etc., and to grant petitioner leave to intervene specially for such purposes, whereupon the following proceedings were had:

Mr. Everett Paul Griffin, for Protective Committee for International-Great Northern First Mortgage Bonds.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Kitchel: May I make a preliminary suggestion, which perhaps will save some of the Court's time, with your permission?

Mr. Brandwen: It will be all right.

Mr. Kitchel: If the Court please, the petitioner here asks to take some steps in regard to the claim of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, in the name of the Trustee. As a matter of fact, the petitioner can take that action himself. Section 77 provides that when a plan is certified to the Court, the Court will make an order providing that objections should be filed and that a hearing should be had on the objections. In this case that order has been made; objections have been filed by this same client raising this same point, and by the same attorney, and he is entitled, under the statute, to be heard on January 8th, when this plan comes up for approval.

He does not need, in the name of the Trustee, to proceed.

That claim will have to be contested at that date, and it seems to me to be a waste of time to endeavor to start a special proceeding which will bring up the same thing.

I move that the petition be dismissed, without prejudice, however, and that the claim then be heard on January 8th.

Mr. Brandwen: If the Court please, I agree fully, in part, with what Mr. Kitchel has just said. I have always urged, and I am happy to observe that Mr. Kitchel agrees, that when the hearing on the fairness and equity of the Plan comes up, on January 8th, that, of course, the validity and the rank, if any, of that claim must be determined in connection with those proceedings. That is completely correct. I agree with Mr. Kitchel on that.

I do not agree with Mr. Kitchel that we do not have a right to the present relief which is being sought by this application. The application which is being addressed to your Honor's consideration this morning is one in which an applicant requests leave for an order so that he, in the name of the Trustee, may file objections to the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the debtor, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and participate in proceedings in that capacity.

We shall urge, before the conclusion of this argument, that that is a right that the applicant has, irrespective of and in addition to the right which the petitioner has in his capacity as a 5¼% bondholder, to file objections and to participate in those proceedings, and to take such steps as may be necessary, in that proceeding, for the purpose of protecting the 5¼% bondholders, and for the purpose of participating in proceedings in which one of the questions will be the determination of the validity of the Missouri Pacific claim against the N. O. T. & M., and, in the event that any part of it should be found valid, what the rank of that part may be.

They are two distinct, separate matters, although I agree that, with respect to a substantial portion of the matter, they move in the same orbit. There is still, however, an important distinction, and for that reason, with Your Honor's permission, we should like to continue with the prosecution of the special application which is on for this morning's hearing.

The Court: I do not quite understand what the distinction is. Why is it necessary to go through this twice?

Mr. Brandwen: I am not suggesting, if Your Honor please, that we go through the steps in the determination of the validity and the priority of the claim twice. I am perfectly ready to say that that shall be done only once. I am agreeable to that, of course, but I say that, with respect to the determination of the validity of the claim, that that is something that the petitioner here this morning has the right to prosecute in the name of the Trustee, and that if, for example, it is decided in the interest of expedition and the saving of time, with which I wholly concur, that there be only one proceeding for the purpose of determining that then, if it will be agreed by Mr. Kitchel that at the time the hearings come on, on January 8th, the petitioner will have the right to have the right then to file objections in the name of the Trustee and to proceed to oppose the claim in the name of the Trustee at that time, as fully as he could do now, that will be agreeable to us.

We are not asking that there be any duplication of proceedings, but we feel and believe that, on the basis of well-established authority of this very Circuit, the petitioner has the right to proceed here in the name of the Trustee.

The Court: What is your authority for that?

Mr. Brandwen: The principal authority on that is the case of Rosenbaum v. Dutton, and the exact citation of that is 203 Federal 838, Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit.

The Court: What is that?

Mr. Brandwen: 203 Federal 838, a decision of the Circuit Court of this circuit.

If Your Honor please, we are anxious to have the validity of the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. judicially determined fully on the merits, and we do not want, by any procedural difficulty, to be precluded from that. That is why we assert again that we have that right here, and we also have the right, of course, under the Bankruptcy Act, in connection with our filing of objections to the Plan.

May I, in the interest of saving time, state what the issue was in that case?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: In that case there was a large claim filed, among others. It was a case in which the trustees sought to impose an assessment on stockholders. An assessment would not have been rendered necessary if this large claim were not a valid claim, because there would have been enough otherwise to pay all the creditors. These two stockholders upon whom the assessment was imposed by the trustees objected to the claim. They said, "This claim is not valid, and if this claim is not found to be valid there will be no assessment on us." They tried to object to the claim and they were denied permission. The Circuit Court said no, they should have been given the right to proceed, in the name of the Trustee, to object to the claim, that that was a right that could not be taken away from them. They were interested, and the effect of the determination of the validity of that claim would have been very serious to them.

Here, so far as we are concerned, our interest is quite clear. If, for example, this claim of the Missouri Pacific is found to be invalid then it means that prior indebtedness, prior to the stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico of seventeen million dollars, will be eliminated and the value of the collateral possessed by the 5¼% Bonds will be enhanced. So, there is a vital interest on their part.

In the Circuit Court of Appeals of this Circuit they allow that right even to stockholders, and in this case we have creditors. I suggest that, on the basis of that decision, that is a right that is a definite right granted to creditors in this proceeding, and I want to say that that right, which the Court of Appeals of this Circuit felt impelled to grant the stockholders in the Dutton case, to which I have just referred, is even greater in the present case, because in the present case we find ourselves confronted at the very outset with one cardinal, inescapable fact, and that is this: We find a situation where the Missouri Pacific files a claim against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Normally, there is a rigorous duty imposed on the trustee of an estate to scrutinize with the utmost severity any claim filed by a parent against a subsidiary. As a matter of fact, the Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that, in claims of that kind, claims filed by a parent against a subsidary, they are presumptively fraudulent.

In this case, we have [a] unusual situation. It is a fact that we have the same trustee in both companies, and it is just humanly impossible for Mr. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to file objections and prosecute them vigorously and thoroughly against a claim filed by a company of which he is also trustee. So that I say that certainly the authority of the Dutton case of this Circuit, is fortified—I should say almost infinitely—by the circumstances of this case. It is just impossible to ask Mr. Thompson, or to expect Mr. Thompson, and with respect to that I am not—

The Court: I can not agree with you on that. I can't see that—

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, that is one of our basic allegations, that it is a situation where it would just be futile to expect Mr. Thompson, as Trustee, to oppose himself in connection with a claim that he filed as Trustee of the Missouri Pacific.

Now, that is a basic position of ours. We don't have to rely on that at all, even if we did not have that situation. Under the Dutton case, we would have the right to file the objections in the name of the Trustee, but we say that this is an intensifying fact.

Mr. Kitchel: May I answer that part of the argument, or are you going ahead?

Mr. Brandwen: I am going ahead, if you don't mind, Mr. Kitchel, except that I would like, with Your Honor's permission, to ask what Mr. Kitchel would say with respect to the suggestion that I made earlier, in answer to

Mr. Kitchel's proposal, because, as I recall, there was no comment made by Mr. Kitchel on that.

Mr. Kitchel: May I have that statement?

(The statement referred to was read as follows: "I am not suggesting, if Your Honor please, that we go through the steps in the determination of the validity and the priority of the claim twice. I am perfectly ready to say that that shall be done only once. I am agreeable to that, of course, but I say that, with respect to the determination of the validity of the claim, that that is something that the petitioner here this morning has the right to prosecute in the name of the Trustee, and that if, for example, it is decided in the interest of expedition and the saving of time, with which I wholly concur, that there be only one proceeding for the purpose of determining that then, if it will be agreed by Mr. Kitchel that at the time the hearings come on, on January 8th, the petitioner will have the right to have the right then to file objections in the name of the Trustee and to proceed to oppose the claim in the name of the Trustee at that time, as fully as he could do now, that will be agreeable to us. We are not asking that there be any duplication of proceedings, but we feel and believe that, on the basis of well-established authority of this very Circuit, the petitioner has the right to proceed here in the name of the Trustee.")

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I can not agree with that proposition. In the first place, this party has a right to be heard on this objection himself. There is no reason why he should do it in the name of the Trustee. The second reason is that I can not bind the Trustee by any agreement I should make. The third thing is—

The Court: The Trustee's counsel is here.

Mr. Kitchel: The third point, Your Honor, if I may interrupt you, is that, if this claim is to be contested by the Trustee I think he would be entitled to select his own counsel.

The Court: The Trustee has counsel here.

Mr. Dearmont: I would be glad to express the views, I think, of the Trustee in this matter, to the proposal of Mr. Brandwen. In the first place, I think the impossibility of carrying out the suggestion of Mr. Brandwen will readily appear here. If you will just look at this matter briefly, what will result? Mr. Brandwen comes in here representing a man who claims to be the holder of $80,000. par value of 5¼% Secured Serial Bonds, and to speak for some $900,000. additional, par value, I think. I will simply state that, by reason of that fact, by the terms of Section 77, he is given the absolute right, as is any other creditor of this estate, to come in and present his objections to the plan of reorganization proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. That right is given him by the Act.

In his petition he suggests that Mr. Thompson is Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and the Missouri Pacific, and, therefore, is in a position where he can not proceed to oppose this claim, and that, accordingly, he should be allowed the right to come in—not in his own name, although the Act specifically gives him a right to appear in the proceedings and prosecute this very matter and be heard on objections to the Plan—and be allowed to do it in the name of the Trustee. Now, assume that that is a reasonable request and that the case referred to by Mr. Brandwen grants him that authority—

The Court: I haven't had a chance to read it.

Mr. Dearmont: I have not read it, but from his statement I think I can point out why it is not pertinent here. But assume that that case does say that he has that right, then Your Honor is going to be faced the next day by somebody who is in favor of that claim and thinks it should be supported in behalf of the Missouri Pacific, of which Mr. Thompson is Trustee, and somebody else comes in and moves Your Honor to support this claim in the name of Guy Thompson. Then you will have Guy Thompson against Guy Thompson in this proceeding and the estate being milked on each side. It is just an anomalous situation.

The Court: Do you accept that, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: Oh, no; I differ with my esteemed friend very much.

Mr. Dearmont: As far as this case is concerned, assuming Mr. Brandwen's statement is accurate, and I know he undertook to make an accurate statement, he said the parties had no right to proceed in this matter except in the name of the Trustee, and, accordingly, their right to offer objections was denied, and therefore they were permitted to proceed in the name of the Trustee.

It was not a Section 77 case; I assume it was possibly a 77B case, receivership suit.

I want to call attention to what this Act says, which I think obviates any necessity to grant this peculiar and unusual right to this individual bondholder of the Missouri Pacific to appear in the name of the Trustee. Section 77, sub-section 13, in part, reads as follows:

> "The debtor, any creditor or stockholder, or the duly authorized committee, attorney or agent of either of the trustee or trustees of any mortgage, deed of trust, or indenture pursuant to which securities of the debtor are outstanding, shall have the right to be heard on all questions arising in the proceedings and on petition therefor and cause shown any such person or any other interested party may be permitted to intervene."

They ask for leave to intervene and to appear in the prosecution of this claim, or their defense to it, in the name of the Trustee. This man predicates his demand on the ground that he, as a creditor or stockholder or duly authorized committee, shall have the right to be heard on all questions arising in the proceeding. I say that, since he has, as any other creditor, a right to appear and be fully heard in his own right and in his own name, there is no showing that could possibly be made that authorizes this. So, there is no need, since this man is clothed in his own right with the power to come in and urge his objections to this claim, if he has any, why he should be granted authority to put the cloak of the Trustee on his shoulders and come in, in his name, to urge any defense against this claim, and the Trustee would strongly urge Your Honor that any such authority be denied to this creditor, for that reason.

The Court: Mr. Homire.

Mr. Homire: Your Honor, it seems to me they are no more entitled to proceed in the name of the Trustee, representing the N. O. T. & M., than we would be entitled to demand that the Trustee allow the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to prosecute a claim on the other side, in behalf of the Missouri Pacific. It seems to me that they will have full opportunity, in their own name and in their own right, under the statute, to present all their case, to the extent that they have a case, at the time the objections to the Plan are heard.

I join in Mr. Kitchel's motion in that respect, that the petition be denied, without prejudice, at this time.

Mr. Brandwen: May I reply to the statements of counsel for the Trustee and of counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation? I don't know whether it is clear, but I assume—and if I am incorrect counsel for the Trustee, please correct me—you were speaking before, in response to the Court's question, as counsel for the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific and counsel for the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Dearmont: That is right; counsel for all the Debtors.

Mr. Brandwen: I just want to have that clear. I am not questioning in any way—on the contrary, I join with distinguished counsel in their statements that at the time of the hearing on the fairness of the Plan of Reorganization, which is set for January 8th, of course, any creditor, and we, as a creditor, will have the right to be heard on objections to the Plan. That right is a clear right given to the creditors and given to this petitioner, by the statute. There is no question about that, and I am not in any way differing with them on that point. So, let the record be as clear as it can possibly be, on that point.

I say, however, that that is a somewhat different problem from the problem that we are presenting to Your Honor this morning. The problem that we are presenting to Your Honor this morning simply deals with a specific claim which has been filed, and now request, by reason of all of the facts which are enunciated in this petition, that we have a right, under the law and under the decided authorities, to file objections in the name of the Trustee, against that claim, and to participate in all steps necessary to determine whether that claim is valid.

The Court: You base that right on this Rosenbaum case?

Mr. Brandwen: And also on the section of the Act, under well-established principles.

The Court: The authority of Judge Trieber, in the Rosenbaum case?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes; that is the principal authority in this Circuit on that matter, and we say that under ordinary principles of law, of equity, of bankruptcy law, a creditor would have the right to file objections to any claim that is filed, in order to avoid—and this is the reason why the authorities say it must be done in the name of the Trustee—in order to avoid a multiplicity of objections of all [kind] of creditors, and in order to maintain a semblance of order, and in order to avoid chaos, the authorities have established the doctrine—

The Court: But you don't conceive that any party would have a right to proceed in the name of the Trustee in support of that?

Mr. Brandwen: There is no such authority. After all, the only time there would be any occasion, perhaps, for that doctrine—although I have not seen any case on that point—would be, if Your Honor please, if, for example, these distinguished gentlemen would say—and I am sure they are not saying it, but if they would say that the prosecution of the claim of the Missouri Pacific was not going to be handled competently, and they pointed that out to the Court and wanted the Court to assign someone to represent the Missouri Pacific, for the purpose of seeing that that claim was prosecuted properly. That would depend upon special facts and circumstances that perhaps they might choose to make, but so far they have not made any, and in the circumstances, there would be no basis for the suggestion made by both Mr. Homire and Mr. Dearmont, that others might come in and seek to support the Missouri Pacific claim in the name of the Trustee.

We are adopting the most orthodox kind of procedure suggested by the authority, suggested by the Act, and suggested by this Circuit Court of Appeals, that, in order to avoid everybody doing something, that we get leave of Court to file these objections in the name of the Trustee, so that John Jones, Tom Smith, and somebody else may not do the very same thing, and then there would not be any orderly procedure. We say that that is a right that we have that is independent of anything that may be done with respect to the Plan of Reorganization.

Let us assume a purely hypothetical situation, which I have no reason to suppose would be the fact, but let us assume, for the moment, that the hearing does not go on, on January 8th, for any variety of reasons. This is still a matter that we have a right to have determined, because what we are dealing with here is the status of a very large claim. Under ordinary circumstances, what you have is a claimant who would say to the Court, "I have filed a claim for ten million dollars plus. I want to have this claim allowed". This claim has never been allowed. There has never been any order on the claim.

If a claim was filed in an estate, a trustee would say, "Here is a large claim. Maybe we ought to do something about it". Nothing has been done. We say, as far as the status of the claim is concerned, that has to be disposed of and it has to be disposed of irrespective of the Plan of Reorganization. Of course, when there is a Plan of Reorganization it is imperative that it be disposed of, but, as imperative as it is, it does not avoid the necessity of having the claim disposed of otherwise. It is a problem of what is to be done with respect to a claim, whether it is dealt with in the reorganization or whether it is not dealt with in the reorganization.

Now, if Your Honor please, I would like to summarize some of the more important allegations in the petition very, very briefly. Your Honor undoubtedly has a number of these facts before him, but I think if I detail some additional facts it will help Your Honor in the consideration of it.

As Your Honor knows, there are a little over twelve million dollars of the 5¼% Secured Bonds outstanding. These bonds were issued by the Missouri Pacific. The security for these bonds consists of 121,460 shares of the common stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. That quantity of stock amounts to about eighty-two per cent. of the stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

The Court: How much per cent.?

Mr. Brandwen: Eighty-two per cent. of the stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. So that, these bondholders are in a unique position, they have that secured by collateral, which is specific collateral, it is not in mortgage or in roadbed. They have a two-pronged right, one is as bondholders of the Missouri Pacific—they have, of course, a claim against the Missouri Pacific Estate, and, two, by virtue of their collateral they have this claim against the N. O. T. & M. through the eighty-two per cent. stock interest in the N. O. T. & M. Naturally, what they will get will depend, of course, on the value of the collateral, and the value of the collateral will be determined largely by what precedes the stock in the debt hierarchy of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and if, for example, all that precedes the stock in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad is simply the debt of the First Mortgage and Income bonds and a small amount of unsecured claims, the value of the stock then is an entirely different matter from the value of the stock if they are ahead of the claims of the First Mortgage and Income bonds and this inter-company claim, which now amounts, with accrued interest, to in excess of sixteen million dollars. It means that if this sixteen million dollar claim is either expunged completely, or is subordinated behind the stock, that there are sixteen million dollars or more of assets of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico that are available to this collateral, that otherwise might not be available to this collateral. So far as the 5¼% bonds are concerned, this is a matter of vital interest.

The claim was filed for a little over ten million dollars. We say that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is not indebted to the Missouri Pacific in any way at all, because, we say that these advances from the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M. and, as they were described in Mr. Kitchel's brief, capital advances of a parent to a subsidiary—

(To Mr. Kitchel) Your brief of December, 1943.

We say that these advances were made solely for the benefit and purpose of the parent, and not for the benefit of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico at all. We also say that these advances were in violation of the fiduciary obligations which the Missouri Pacific assumed with respect to these 5¼% bonds, in that they undertook not to do anything that might impair them in any way.

Now, briefly, the facts that we rely on in particular, which require the disallowance and expunging of this claim completely, are as follows: The Missouri Pacific, from 1925, controlled and dominated the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It owned most of the stock, about ninety-four per cent. of the stock, and it had its own officers and directors running the N. O. T. & M., and during that period the Missouri Pacific caused the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to pay a little over six million dollars in dividends, although during that period the N. O. T. & M. really had no earnings. As a matter of fact, there was a deficit. Still, the Missouri Pacific caused the N. O. T. & M. to pay over six million dollars of dividends. The N. O. T. & M. did not have the earnings or cash to justify this. The income figures were overstated, accruals for depreciation were understated, maintenance was postponed, and road and equipment were allowed to deteriorate. The N. O. T. & M. did not have the earnings or the cash, still there were demands made by the Missouri Pacific—"We will give you twenty-five thousand dollars for dividends", and the N. O. T. & M., the next day, would make a bookkeeping entry paying the same dividend to the Missouri Pacific. That thing went right on—

The Court: I have had so many of these proceedings that it is difficult to keep the various matters in mind.

This matter has been up before, and has been considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Mr. Brandwen: No. I will tell you what happened. If the Court please, there was some reference—

The Court: The matter was before this Court before, was it not?

Mr. Brandwen: In a petition submitted by Doctor Foley. I want to say this, that there were references before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the advances. Some of these things that I have just referred to were discussed before the Interstate Commerce Commission. I will say this, that the question of the validity and the full scope of this problem was not considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Court: The question of validity never was raised?

Mr. Brandwen: The validity was never raised. There were certain problems at one time. Before the 1940 Plan was being considered there were certain disputes between the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Committee, the First Mortgage Bond Committee, and the Missouri Pacific First and Refunding Committee, as to the respective contributions of the two roads to the whole picture, and in order to determine what the N. O. T. & M. was receiving was fair, a number of these things were gone into, and I repeat just as emphatically as I know how, never were these matters before the Interstate Commerce Commission for the purpose of determining the validity or the rank of this claim, and the most conclusive answer to all that is that the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the very report on the plan which it certified to Your Honor, said expressly that it just assumed the validity, without passing on it, of this claim, and at the hearing before this report was handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission said, "If you have any question about this claim you go to the Court about that". Those are the very words of the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to it. They never proceeded to pass on the validity, and the Interstate Commerce Commission was quite right in not proceeding to pass on the validity of it, because that is a function, under the Western Pacific case, in the Supreme Court—

The Court: This is the first time you have raised this, and this is the third time this matter has been before the Court?

Mr. Brandwen: This very matter? The first plan was before the Court in 1940.

The Court: And came back when?

Mr. Brandwen: After the Plan was considered by Your Honor it went to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Circuit Court of Appeals considered that until July, 1943. Your Honor may recall that, in March, 1943, the Supreme Court decided the Milwaukee and Western Pacific cases, and the Circuit Court of Appeals, although having heard arguments, wanted counsel to submit their further briefs stating to the Court what their interpretation might be of the decision of the Supreme Court. Then there was an agreement, apparently, among counsel, that it should be returned by the Circuit Court of Appeals, and Your Honor sent it on to the Commission for reconsideration and for such action as might be appropriate in all the circumstances. Your Honor wrote an opinion in connection with the remanding of it to the Commission. So far as this Court is concerned, this was not raised in the 1940 plan. The second plan is about to be heard by Your Honor and it is coming up in January.

Now, I should like to say this, that the fullest disclosure of what took place between the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was made by the United States Senate Sub-Committee on interstate commerce. This Senate Committee conducted investigations into various practices of various railroads, and on July 25, 1940, which was several months after the first plan had been certified by the Commission to this Court, they issued a pamphlet in which they summarized a good number of these things, and which appear more fully in a more elaborate volume, but that was not published until July 25, 1940. In the United States Senate Report a good number of these facts are disclosed. As I say, that was published after the first plan was promulgated by the Commission. The Senate Report stated these transactions in considerable detail, showing how the books were fixed up to understate depreciation, overstate income, and annexed a series of letters, a number of these letters being annexed to this petition, which letters show how they acted with respect to dividends. Some of them were either sent to Mr. Baldwin, or by Mr. Baldwin, dealing with the problem of how vital it was that dividends be paid at all costs, and they present some very interesting commentaries. As I say, thirty-three of these letters are annexed to this petition.

I should like, with Your Honor's permission, to read just a little—

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, this is not the best evidence. I object to reading any of the testimony in this case.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, this is argument that I am engaging in now, so that Your Honor can have a fuller picture.

The Court: I don't see how that would be of any assistance to the Court until the Court determines whether or not you should have leave to proceed in the name of the Trustee.

Mr. Homire: You, of course, understand that these advances which the Missouri Pacific made to the N. O. T. & M. have been pledged to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the holder in good faith, as pledgee, without any notice of any [——] whatever in those advances.

The notes were passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a Section 21a proceeding, under the Interstate Commerce Act. Throughout all of the petitions which have been filed, in which Mr. Brandwen or Mr. Biggs have participated, there has never been any statement of their position with respect to the pledge of those notes to the RFC. I think they ought to be required to state what their position is, and I think this will be a very opportune time.

Mr. Brandwen: I was going to come to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation later, Mr. Homire.

Mr. Homire: I didn't want you to overlook it.

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to come to the RFC. and deal with that problem fully.

Mr. Homire: I hope you will.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if Your Honor please, all this that I have just been discussing, this reference to the Senate Sub-Committee Report, is done only for the purpose of giving Your Honor an idea of the enormity of some of the practices that were engaged in by the Missouri Pacific with respect to the N. O. T. & M., prior to the institution of these proceedings.

The Court: What has that to do with the question before us, whether or not you will be permitted to intervene?

Mr. Brandwen: I want Your Honor to be satisfied that we are dealing with a matter of substance. If Your Honor is satisfied that this is a matter of such substance that we don't have to go into it more fully, I am perfectly willing, with respect to that, to stop at this point, so far as the substance of it is concerned. I will be guided entirely by Your Honor's wishes on that, because they are fully set forth in this petition, and they are there.

I want to say this: The claim that has been filed by the Missouri Pacific against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico has never been allowed by an order of this Court.

Judge Faris, when he issued the order providing for the filing of claims, required that objections, if any, be filed with the Special Master whom he had appointed, "within such time and with such particularity as the Master in his discretion may prescribe", but neither the Court nor the Master ever designated the time or the particularity within, or whereby, objections to claims were to be filed.

As Your Honor knows, the Master died and there was no Master appointed to succeed him. As a matter of fact, there are still some claims that are not disposed of, and Your Honor is fully aware that claims arising out of the disaffirmance of contracts have not been fully disposed of, because the time within which the Trustee may elect to disaffirm has not expired, unless it expired in October, 1944, because that was the last order I know of. Perhaps there was an order entered subsequent to October, 1944, which still gives the Trustee time to disaffirm contracts.

Your Honor is, of course, aware of the provision of the Bankruptcy Act, Section 48 (a), which charges the Trustee with the duty of examining all proofs of claims with particular rigor and comprehensiveness. The Supreme Court has ruled that claims filed by a parent against a subsidiary are presumptively fraudulent.

The Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico has never filed any objections to the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific, has never taken any action to expunge the claim, and no hearing was ever ordered on this claim at any time.

As I say, we never asked the Trustee to file objections, because of the point I made before, which Your Honor does not regard with the same seriousness as I do, of the conflict of position in which the Trustee finds himself. I don't want to belabor this point, in view of Your Honor's expression of opinion, but if Your Honor will bear with me, it seems to me that it is the kind of thing that Courts from time immemorial have tried to guard against with the utmost circumspection and meticulousness, because it is contrary to human psychology for a man who, on one hand, files a claim against himself as trustee of another company, and then tries to determine whether the claim should be prosecuted vigorously, or whether the objection should be prosecuted vigorously, particularly, if Your Honor please, in view of these findings of the Senate Sub-Committee, in view of the charges that have been made with respect to what has been done by the Missouri Pacific with respect to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico prior to the institution of these proceedings.

May I point out the difference between the position of the Court and the position of the Trustee in this respect?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: The Court, when it passes on matters has—I was about to say the benefit, sometimes the burden—of argument of proponents and opponents, and opponents will present their case with the most effective—

The Court: Of course, there is that distinction.

Mr. Brandwen: There is that distinction, and that is something that does not apply with respect to the Trustee. After all, a trustee of an estate must represent all the interests in that estate with the utmost impartiality, what is for the best interests of the estate as a whole. He must not prefer one group in the estate over another group, if he has to jump over the line and jump into another company where the interests of that other company are radically different from those of the first estate, when he is asserting a claim of one estate against another. When a claim is already filed he is taking a definite position.

Again, I say that I should assume, if I were in Mr. Thompson's position—this may be presumptuous in me to say—that I should not want to really be in between here, attempting to deal with myself as the asserter of the claim, on the one hand, and as an objector to the claim on the other hand, becauuse there never can be, it seems to me—and, again, I say this with the utmost respect—there never can be anything done under those circumstances which could satisfy a Court, in view of the history here, the seriousness of the charges—

The Court: There may be some difference * * *

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, this was referred to once before. Petitions were filed by the First Mortgage Bond Committee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, the so-called Walker Committee, and the Irving Trust Company, as trustee of the First Mortgage bond issue, raising only some of these questions. I made it my task to examine the record, and in that case there was a question raised as to whether Mr. Thompson could act as trustee for both estates.

The Court: I think there was a motion filed.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, there were, and there was some question as to what happened. I examined the record, and Your Honor, I find, entered an order continuing the hearing on those motions indefinitely, providing in the order that they could be re-docketed at any time for hearing, on thirty days' notice, and nothing has been done since then. Now I say that most of the proof with respect to matters contained in this petition consists largely of documentary material which documentary material is available to the company, in possession of the company and the Trustee.

I do not want to say this that, for example, in dealing with related matters, in this very proceeding, Judge Faris said:

> "For to me it is plain that the Congress intended to stop a practice among railroads and their exploiters and manipulators which has had much to do with making the financial history of railroads the most indecent and sordid chapter ever written in this or any other nation."

That is what Judge Faris had occasion to say in this very proceeding.

Since we submitted this petition there was an answer filed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Institutional Group of Bondholders. I shall not deal with all these matters again. When this answer refers to the fact that this petition fails to follow the requirements of Rule 23 (b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure, I don't think, in dealing with the filing of objections to a claim—and that is what we have before us—Rule 23 (b), which deals with class actions and stockholders' suits, is at all applicable or pertinent.

I say the time to file objections has not expired at all. There never was any order with respect to the time within which objections had to be filed. Then they say that we are now seeking to litigate de novo issues that have heretofore been fully explored by the Commission, after the Commission itself has said, "Take this up in Court."

Again, I say, until a claim has been allowed—

The Court: They don't say anything more?

Mr. Brandwen: The Commission doesn't deal with that question at all, oh, no.

Now, I say that until a claim is allowed objections may be filed at any time before the closing of the estate. Even after it is allowed reconsideration may be had of it. This claim has never been allowed here, and in the circumstances, of course, objections may be filed at any time.

There is one argument that is made in the Fifth Defense, that is a curious kind of thing. I read it a number of times. They say that although our interests may have been injured by a violation of a pledge then we, who have been injured, are charged with unclean hands—because the Missouri Pacific has done these things to the N. O. T. & M., in view of the fact that we are bondholders of the Missouri Pacific, we come into Court with unclean hands.

Mr. Brandwen: After all, we have been injured. The Missouri Pacific has done certain things to hurt our collateral. We come in here and want to get restitution, we want this injury undone, as far as legally possible and appropriate, and we are charged with coming into Court with unclean hands, because the Missouri Pacific itself did these things to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico during all those years.

Now with respect to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation: I should like to state certain factual material that I don't think there will be any dispute on. The claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. amounts to $10,565,000. That claim is based on purported advancements made by the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M. from—according to the claim as filed—March, 1929, to the date of the institution of these proceedings.

The Court: March 29, when?

Mr. Brandwen: March, 1929. For these advances two notes were issued. One was issued in January, 1933, of seven odd million dollars, and one of in excess of two million dollars, representing these alleged advances, issued on February 28, 1933. These two notes, according to the RFC., were pledged with the RFC. by the Missouri Pacific. These two notes were issued by the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific.

The first thing we want to have clear, if Your Honor please, is that at least $600,000. of these alleged advances were not covered by notes that were purportedly pledged to the RFC., so that, with respect to that amount, the RFC. has no notes, and that amount, together with interest alone, amounts at present to in excess of one million dollars.

The second note, of over two million dollars, according to Mr. Homire, never received specific approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission; only the first note received specific approval, Mr. Homire said. I am not making any point of saying the second note did not [——] to receive specific approval—

Mr. Homire: When you say I said, you are not talking about our Answer, but are reading from our brief which was filed before the Commission?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes. I am stating a fact, and I assume a fact assumes a fact, whether it is stated in an answer or in a brief.

Mr. Homire: I want to know just what you are talking about.

Mr. Brandwen: You mean, you want to be clear as to where it comes from?

Mr. Homire: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: So that one thing is clear, the amount of the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. is different from the notes which the RFC. claims were pledged by the Missouri Pacific to the RFC.

Secondly, in this matter we are not attempting to do anything so far as the RFC. is concerned, that is to say, if we are correct in our statement that the Missouri Pacific claim is not valid against the N. O. T. & M., that is an issue entirely distinct and different from what the rights of the RFC. may be, either with respect to the Missouri Pacific or with respect to the N. O. T. & M. They are two distinct matters; that is to say, I, as a maker, may be induced by fraud to give a note to a payee. The payee may negotiate that note, let us assume, to a third person, who is a holder in good faith for value, without notice. There is no doctrine of law which precludes me, as the maker, from bringing an action against this payee for such relief as is appropriate by reason of the fraud practiced by the payee on the maker. No third person can ever prevent or bar that action being brought. If the payee does something that he, in all good conscience should not have done, then if, for example, the holder has to sue on that note, that presents quite another problem. We don't have to deal with that now. All we are dealing with now is purely the relationship between the maker and the payee, and nothing else, and I don't see how the RFC. is concerned with this in any way at all.

The RFC. says, in its Sixth Defense, as follows:

> "said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC and said notes in the hands of RFC or its assigns constitutes the valid, legal and binding obligations of the New Orleans to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans as aforesaid."

Now, if, as I agree, said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC., I don't see what RFC. is concerned about. I don't see how they are involved. I accept this language in their Answer, and I think they are right. They just say this is a matter without effect upon them. I agree with them.

Secondly, they say that the notes—and again, I want to say the notes do not represent all the advances purportedly made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M.—they say the notes in the hands of RFC. constitute a valid, legal and binding obligation of the New Orleans to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans.

It would be very interesting to note that I made an analysis of the collateral that RFC. has outside of these nine million dollars of demand notes, and I attempted to get the market value of the collateral which they have. As of last night's close, the market value of these securities, the First and Refunding 5's, which they have, the Convertible 5½'s, the N. O. T. & M., International-Great Northern Adjustments, the Texas-Pacific Company, the Prescott Bonds, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Fort Worth Stock, and the American Refrigerator Stock, had a value last night of $29,608,000. The RFC. claim is $23,134,000. Under the terms of the Plan they are to get cash settlement for interest of $5,329,242. So, their total claim, according to the Plan—and I am not questioning their right to receive that, not at all—is $28,463,242. In other words, they have collateral, without dealing with these notes in any way at all, or even without dealing with the $1,900,000. First Mortgage bonds of the N. O. T. & M.—they have collateral that has a value of $1,144,000. in excess of their claim, principal, plus the amount that has been agreed upon under the Plan as settlement for interest, and that does not include the excess amount of interest which has been paid in recent payments made in 1943 and 1944, on the First and Refunding 5's, which the RFC has.

So, I would say, based on last night's quotations—and I am not saying these quotations are conclusive; the RFC., in a brief, stated the market values are lower than the real value of collateral, but taking the market value as of last night, I would say the collateral the RFC has is in excess probably as high as two million dollars above the principal plus the amount of interest which has been agreed upon in the Plan, and that is without touching these notes and without touching the $1,900,000. of these First Mortgage bonds of the N. O. T. & M.

Then, under these circumstances, so far as the RFC is concerned, frankly, I don't see why they are concerned. Nobody wants to take away from them what they want to get under the Plan. So far as we are concerned, there is no reason why they should not be paid everything in full, plus the amount of interest as agreed upon. We go for it. But there is no reason why, when they have all this valuable collateral, they should be bothered about something that is purely an internal matter of a claim filed by the Missouri Pacific again the N. O. T. & M. We say we are vitally affected and they are not vitally affected, and there is no reason why we should not be permitted to have the matter determined. We say there is also the doctrine of marshalling—if there is not enough received from the other collateral, if there is any question about that, then you may have something to complain of, and that is recognized by the Answer of the RFC, when they say it is a binding obligation "to the extent required to satisfy RFC's claim as aforesaid." So that, it would seem to me, as far as the RFC is concerned, its position is nothing to give it any concern at all, and the fact that the Court would order a marshalling in such a situation has been a doctrine recognized and hallowed by centuries of chancery decisions. Probably the latest one is the decision of the Supreme Court in the Milwaukee case.

There was one point made—I don't know whether it was made very seriously or not—but one point was made with respect to expenses. The Courts have had occasion to pass on that time and again. Those matters of expense are always within the control of the Court and, certainly, when justice and equity require the expunging of a claim on the merits, it seems to me, if Your Honor please, that everything must be done by the Court to enable a claim of that kind to be judicially determined on its merits, in the most effective fashion.

Mr. Kitchel: May it please the Court: Your Honor asked whether this question of the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. had been a matter of consideration before the Interstate Commerce Commission. There was any amount of evidence offered, one way and another, on this claim. At the hearing in July, on the petition filed by Mr. Foley, I read into the record portions of the transcript of the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which this matter had been dealt with. I do not think it is necessary to do it again.

Let me say first, that the claim is based on the fact that the books of the N. O. T. & M. were doctored, that they did not show the real situation, because depreciation was not taken as it should have been, that there were certain purchases of locomotives by the N. O. T. & M. for the benefit of the Missouri Pacific, and that traffic had been diverted from the N. O. T. & M. unjustly, and things of that kind. Those are the facts which they are relying upon, according to their petition now, in order to establish the invalidity of this claim.

Before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in 1936, 1937 or 1938, Mr. Safford testified as to car hire; Mr. Ballentine testified at length in regard to this locomotive problem that has been referred to; Mr. Trobaugh also testified in regard to car hire; Mr. Scruggs testified as to the diversion of traffic, to the rate division, to the shrinking of the earnings, and Mr. Wyer testified at length as to these advances, explained why they were made, and as to the relations between the companies, and the matter certainly was brought to the attention of the Commission. If the facts that were up before the Commission were not sufficiently developed at that time, it was then open for somebody to do it, without waiting until eleven years thereafter.

Counsel has stated, correctly, that in the Report of the Commission, under date of July 4th, last, they assumed that this claim was valid. I should like to read just what they did say.

The Court: I have a curiosity to hear what the language was.

Mr. Kitchel (reading):

> "Although more than twelve years have elapsed since the Missouri Pacific made its advances of cash to the New Orleans, as above stated, the invalidity of any part of these advances has never been established and we will assume for the purposes of this proceeding that they are valid obligations of the New Orleans in determining the right of and the extent to which holders of Missouri Pacific 5¼% and the New Orleans stockholders should participate in the plan of reorganization."

Prior to that there is considerable discussion as to the evidence that was introduced in regard to those matters. The fact is that their statement "we will assume for the purposes of this proceeding" follows the statement that, although more than twelve years have elapsed, the claim has not been pronounced as invalid.

This is an important matter, Your Honor. There is no doubt that, if this claim were pronounced as invalid it would change the allocations that have been made. There is no doubt about that. But the question now before Your Honor, as far as I can make out, as the sole question, is whether this client of my friend can pursue this subject in the name of the Trustee. After listening very carefully to the argument already made, I have not yet been able to ascertain how Mr. Comstock, having the right to himself object and contest the validity of this claim, will be any better off by dragging in the name of the Trustee.

The argument has been made that, in bankruptcy practice and in equity, perhaps, that objections of this kind should be made by the Trustee, so as to prevent a multiplicity of objections by a number of people.

The Court: I think in this Rosenbaum case it says:

(The Court here read excerpts from the Rosenbaum case.)

Mr. Kitchel: I have not read the case.

Mr. Brandwen: It does not matter. It seems to me that if they were the only parties, as a matter of fact there would be even less occasion to require them to file in the name of the Trustee, because there would be no multiplicity, but in order to enable them to have control of that the Court felt that was the safer thing to do.

The point is this, that we are concerned as to whether, as a matter of law and dealing only with this one question, namely, the question of filing objections to the claim and not dealing, for the moment, with the question of filing objections to the plan of reorganization, because I regard those two questions as legally distinct—I recognize that there is an area where they merge, but they are legally distinct questions. I say this, if Your Honor please, perhaps it may be that Comstock as petitioner would be entitled to file these objections and call for a hearing on this claim, quite apart from the Plan of Reorganization, in his own name. All I can say is that, reading the cases and the authorities, the better doctrine, the safer doctrine, is that you must do it in the name of the Trustee. Frankly, in any further proceeding in this matter, we don't want to be met by the statement that "What you should have done was to ask leave to file objections in the name of the Trustee".

Mr. Kitchel: Reverting again to the question of multiplicity of objections: If, in this particular case, Mr. Comstock should pursue this matter in the name of the Trustee, that is not going to prevent Mr. John Jones or Mr. Tom Smith from coming in and filing objections also. Every party in interest has a right to be heard on this. That may be the distinction which was raised in the case that Your Honor has read. I haven't read that.

From what was just said by opposing counsel, it seems to be the idea that there are two ways of attacking this claim, one, by pursuing the objections to the claim filed before the Special Master, and the other in regard to objections to the Plan. I can not see any economy in the time of this Court by allowing this proceeding to be split into two parts and having a hearing before the Special Master on one hand, and a hearing on the same identical proposition, raised by the objection already filed by his client, on the hearing of the Plan.

Now, can it be that they need the Trustee's name in order to get the information necessary to pursue this claim? I have no doubt that the Trustee would give access to anything justly called for, but there is filed here a petition and exhibits of some sixty pages. They seem to be pretty well supplied with all the facts that they need to develop this thing. I see no reason on earth why Mr. Comstock should not be compelled, if he wants to contest the validity of this claim, to do it pursuant to the objections which he has filed, at the hearing on January 8th, instead of wasting the time of this Court by starting a new proceeding.

I move that the petition be dismissed on those grounds.

The Court: Are there any other parties who desire to be heard?

Mr. Chasnoff: I am associated with Mr. Kitchel, but I was asked by Mr. Mayner Wallace, who had to be out of the city to attend an important meeting in Chicago, to make this statement to the Court as the position of the N. O. T. & M. Committee. I will read the statement that he gave me.

(Reading):

"December 1, 1944.

"The Position of the N. O. T. & M. Committee on the Hearing of the Comstock Petition for Authority to Act on Behalf of the N. O. T. & M. Trustee in Opposing the Missouri Pacific Against the N. O. T. & M.

1. That as representing the bondholders we have no interest in the question of the validity or invalidity of the claim which is, in any event, junior to our bonds;

2. That we agree that the validity of the claim must be passed on by the Court in connection with its consideration of the Reorganization Plan;

3. That in order to expedite the consummation of the Plan we believe that the Court should take testimony and hear arguments on the validity of the claim at the hearing set for January 8; and

4. That we see no reason why the claim should be passed on by a Special Master in a separate proceeding or why Comstock should be authorized to take any special position in opposing the claim except in so far as he may care to present evidence or argument before the Court.

LEONARD D. ADKINS,
S. MAYNER WALLACE,
Counsel for N. O. T. & M. Committee."

Mr. Homire: I should like to join in Mr. Kitchel's motion, if Your Honor please. It seems to me that whatever right they may have—and I don't know what the Rosenbaum case holds, (because I haven't seen it—I think it was undoubtedly decided prior to the enactment of Section 77—

The Court: Oh, yes; it was decided in 1913.

Mr. Homire: Section 77 gives this creditor here the right to proceed in his own name, and any reasons that might have been advanced to support the decision in that case certainly are no longer applicable, or, at least, they are not persuasive here, where the statute itself gives Comstock the right to present his objections in his own name. As has already been pointed out, their objections to the Plan embrace precisely the same questions—attack on these advances and the relationship between the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M., and it may very well be—I think it would most necessarily follow—that if they present their objections properly, by competent evidence, at the hearing on the objections on January 8th, in all probability any claim based on the pending petition would become entirely moot. We feel, therefore, that this petition ought to be denied, without prejudice.

The Court: Would you like to be heard further?

Mr. Brandwen: No; all I want to say is that it surprises me a great deal that objections to my petition were made by counsel for the Institutional Group and counsel for the RFC., inasmuch as I can not see how anything that is sought in this petition would impinge on their rights.

The Court: The motion to dismiss will be sustained and the petition will be dismissed without prejudice.

Which was all of the proceedings had on the hearing.

Order

As to Procedure on Hearing on Objections to Plan of Reorganization and Claims for Equitable Treatment Based Thereon.

(Order No. 2707.)

Counsel for Reconstruction Finance Corporation having moved in open Court on the entire record and proceedings heretofore had in this Court and in the Interstate Commerce Commission in these reorganization proceedings, for certain rulings with respect to procedure for hearing Objections to the Plan of Reorganization and Claims for Equitable Treatment based thereon in respect of the Plan of Reorganization as approved by a Supplemental Report and Order of the Interstate Commerce Commission dated July 4, 1944, and by its Third Supplemental Report and Third Supplemental Order dated October 9, 1944, and certified to this Court on October 13, 1944, the Counsel for the Group of Institutional Holders of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds having joined in said Motion, and counsel for Andrew Comstock having opposed the motion and the Court having considered the arguments of counsel, and it appearing to the Court that it will be in the interest of expeditious and orderly procedure to make the provisions hereinafter set forth, and the Court being fully advised in the premises:

It Is Ordered:

1. That hearing on Andrew W. Comstock's Objection 19 and related Objections, to the extent that they are dependent on Objection 19, and his Claim for Equitable Treatment based thereon (said related Objections being numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13 and 26) be separated from hearing on all other Objections and Claims for Equitable Treatment, and that they be heard separately from other Objections filed by Comstock and separately from Objections filed by other parties, all pursuant to Rule 42 (b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure, which Rules are made applicable to proceedings in bankruptcy by General Order No. 37.

2. That this Court proceed to hear all Objections to the Plan which are not included in Comstock's Objection 19 and related Objections, to the extent that they are not dependent on Objection 19.

3. That this Court defer further hearing of any evidence on Comstock's Objection 19 and related Objections, as above defined in Subdivision (1) of said Motion, and of this Order, until after hearing on Objections not included in Comstock's Objection 19 and related Objections as defined as aforesaid.

4. The Court hereby reserves jurisdiction to make such further order as may be deemed by it to be advisable in the premises, including without limitation jurisdiction, if it be so disposed, and in order to co-ordinate its function with that of the Interstate Commerce Commission at this critical stage of these proceedings, to invite the said Commission to issue such further supplemental report as this Court and the Commission may deem appropriate or necessary to provide for such alternative allocations of securities as may be required to meet the necessities of any ruling which this Court or any appellate court vested with power to review these proceedings may hereafter make in respect of the controversy raised by Comstock's Claim for Equitable Treatment of the Missouri Pacific Secured Serial 5¼% Bonds, based on his Objection 19 and related Objections, as defined as aforesaid.

GEO. H. MOORE,
Judge,
United States District Court.

Dated: January 17th, 1945.

(Transcript of Hearing on Objections to Plan of Reorganization as approved by Interstate Commerce Commission and on Claims for Equitable Treatment.)

(Filed December 26, 1945.)

District Court of the United States in and for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri.

In the Matter of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, Debtor.	In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad. No. 6935.

Be It Remembered: That commencing on January 8, 1945, during the September Term, 1944, of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division of the Eastern Judicial District of Missouri, there came on to be heard before the Honorable George H. Moore, objections to Plan of Reorganization as approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and on claims for equitable treatment thereunder, whereupon the following proceedings were had:

* * * * * * *

(Appearances of Counsel omitted.)

The Court: Are there any suggestions as to the order of procedure here?

(Here ensued informal discussion as to the order of procedure to be followed.)

Mr. Dearmont: May I first offer in evidence the Proof of Notice of the mailing to all parties and interests whose names and addresses are attached in Schedule A, Order 2604, setting this matter of the Plan of Reorganization for hearing on this date, and also the affidavits of publication of the notice of the hearing?

I should also like, for the benefit of the Court and all parties to this proceeding, to offer formally the testimony that was offered before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the matter of a plan of reorganization by the Debtors in this proceeding; not only the testimony and exhibits offered at the hearing in Brooklyn, on October 19, 1943, but any pertinent prior testimony and records before the Commission in this proceeding which has been by the Commission certified to this Court.

The Court: Very well. I will now hear Mr. Gottlieb on his motion for dismissal of the proceedings.

(Said motion was thereupon orally argued, and by the Court overruled.)

Thereupon, various counsel made their respective opening statements to the Court, which statements had not been completed at the usual time for the noon recess.

The Court: We will adjourn until two o'clock.

Thereafter, on January 8, 1945, at two o'clock P. M., the hearing progressed as follows:

Counsel resumed the making of opening statements to the Court, at the conclusion of which an adjournment was taken until January 9, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 9, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M., whereupon the following proceedings were had:

Mr. Wallace: May I have just a half minute to state the position of the N. O. T. & M. Committee?

That Bondholders' Committee feels that this Plan might well have accorded to its bonds more favorable treatment in certain respects; however, the Committee thinks that the Plan on the whole is fair and equitable. Consequently, it urges and prays Your Honor to approve it. The time element outweighs every other consideration with the Committee at this juncture.

We ask Your Honor, also, to allow us to reserve, in the event that for any reason the Plan should not be approved, an opportunity to make such contentions as the Committee may feel obliged to offer.

(At this point Mr. Leisure orally argued the motion of Alleghany Corporation to expunge and dismiss Objections Nos. 20 to 23, inclusive, of objections to the Plan of Reorganization filed by Andrew W. Comstock.)

Mr. Homire: Whether this evidence that is about to be introduced relates to the inter-company claim of Missouri Pacific vs. N. O. T. & M., or to the Objection No. 19 of Mr. Comstock's objections, I would like to know first whether the transcript of proceedings of December 9th, on Mr. Comstock's motion for an order to proceed in the name of the Trustee, might be deemed to be in the evidence of this case. If not, I should like to move that it be deemed part of the record here.

I am particularly interested in connection with the statement that Mr. Brandwen made at that time as to the RFC., which is the pledgee of the notes which the N. O. T. & M. made and delivered to the Missouri Pacific. If his position is the same as it was then, this controversy is one in which the RFC. is not particularly concerned. For that reason, I feel that it would be in the interest of fair and orderly procedure to have the position stated about that at this time.

Mr. Brandwen: I am delighted to state that position. It is precisely the same as was stated at the hearing. I think Mr. Homire said December 9. It was December 1.

Mr. Homire: December 1.

Mr. Brandwen: It is precisely the same position and I am very pleased at the opportunity of repeating and affirming that position.

Mr. Homire: May it please the Court, instead of introducing this entire transcript, it has been suggested to Mr. Brandwen and agreed between Mr. Brandwen and myself that we may merely insert in this record that part which is pertinent to the question, and the reporter has that.

The Court: Very well.

Excerpts From Proceedings of December 1, 1944, on Hearing of Petition of Andrew W. Comstock for Order Granting Leave to Petitioner, in the Name of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee of Debtor, to File Objections to Claim of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company Against, N. O. T. & M., Etc.

Mr. Homire: You, of course, understand that these advances which the Missouri Pacific made to the N. O. T. & M. have been pledged to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the holder in good faith, as pledgee, without any notice of any infirmity whatever in those advances.

The notes were passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a Section 21a proceeding, under the Interstate Commerce Act. Throughout all of the petitions which have been filed, in which Mr. Brandwen or Mr. Biggs have participated, there has never been any statement of their position with respect to the pledge of those notes to the RFC. I think they ought to be required to state what their position is, and I think this will be a very opportune time.

Mr. Brandwen: I was going to come to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation later, Mr. Homire.

Mr. Homire: I didn't want you to overlook it.

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to come to the RFC. and deal with that problem fully.

Mr. Homire: I hope you will.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Brandwen: So that one thing is clear, the amount of the claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. is different from the notes which the RFC. claims were pledged by the Missouri Pacific to the RFC.

Secondly, in this matter we are not attempting to do anything so far as the RFC. is concerned, that is to say, if we are correct in our statement that the Missouri Pacific claim is not valid against the N. O. T. & M., that is an issue entirely distinct and different from what the rights of the RFC. may be, either with respect to the Missouri Pacific or with respect to the N. O. T. & M. They are two distinct matters; that is to say, I, as a maker, may be induced by fraud to give a note to a payee. The payee may negotiate that note, let us assume, to a third person, who is a holder in good faith for value, without notice. There is no doctrine of law which precludes me, as the maker, from bringing an action against this payee for such relief as is appropriate by reason of the fraud practiced by the payee on the maker. No third person can ever prevent or bar that action being brought. If the payee does something that he, in all good conscience should not have done, then if, for example, the holder has to sue on that note, that presents quite another problem. We don't have to deal with that now. All we are dealing with now is purely the relationship between the maker and the payee, and nothing else, and I don't see how the RFC. is concerned with this in any way at all.

The RFC. says, in its Sixth Defense, as follows:

> "said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC. and said notes in the hands of RFC. or its assigns constitute the valid, legal and binding obligations of the New Orleans to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans as aforesaid."

Now, if, as I agree, said matters and things are without effect in relation to RFC., I don't see what RFC. is concerned about. I don't see how they are involved. I accept this language in their Answer, and I think they are right. They just say this is a matter without effect upon them. I agree with them.

Secondly, they say that the notes—and again, I want to say the notes do not represent all the advances purportedly made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. & M.—they say the notes in the hands of RFC. constitute a valid, legal and binding obligation of the New Orleans to the extent required to satisfy RFC's loans.

It would be very interesting to note that I made an analysis of the collateral that RFC. has outside of these nine million dollars of demand notes, and I attempted to get the market value of the collateral which they have.

As of last night's close, the market value of these securities, the First and Refunding 5's, which they have, the Convertible 5½'s, the N. O. T. & M., International-Great Northern Adjustments, the Texas-Pacific Company, the Prescott Bonds, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Fort Worth Stock, and the American Refrigerator Stock, had a value last night of $29,608,000. The RFC. claim is $23,134,000. Under the terms of the Plan they are to get cash settlement for interest of $5,329,242. So, their total claim, according to the Plan—and I am not questioning their right to receive that, not at all—is $28,463,242. In other words, they have collateral, without dealing with these notes in any way at all, or even without dealing with the $1,900,000. First Mortgage bonds of the N. O. T. & M.—they have collateral that has a value of $1,144,000. in excess of their claim, principal, plus the amount that has been agreed upon under the Plan as settlement for interest, and that does not include the excess amount of interest which has been paid in recent payments made in 1943 and 1944, on the First and Refunding 5's, which the RFC. has.

So, I would say, based on last night's quotations—and I am not saying these quotations are conclusive; the RFC., in a brief, stated the market values are lower than the real value of collateral, but taking the market value as of last night, I would say the collateral the RFC. has is in excess probably as high as two million dollars above the principal plus the amount of interest which has been agreed upon in the Plan, and that is without touching these notes and without touching the $1,900,000. of these First Mortgage bonds of the N. O. T. & M.

Then, under these circumstances, so far as the RFC. is concerned, frankly, I don't see why they are concerned. Nobody wants to take away from them what they want to get under the Plan. So far as we are concerned, there is no reason why they should not be paid everything in full, plus the amount of interest as agreed upon. We go for it. But there is no reason why, when they have all this valuable collateral, they should be bothered about something that is purely an internal matter of a claim filed by the Missouri Pacific against the N. O. T. & M. We say we are vitally affected and they are not vitally affected, and there is no reason why we should not be permitted to have the matter determined. We say there is also the doctrine of marshalling—if there is not enough received from the other collateral, if there is any question about that, then you may have something to complain of, and that is recognized by the Answer of the RFC., when they say it is a binding obligation "to the extent required to satisfy RFC's claim as aforesaid." So that, it would seem to me, as far as the RFC. is concerned, its position is nothing to give it any concern at all, and the fact that the Court would order a marshalling in such a situation has been a doctrine recognized and hallowed by centuries of chancery decisions. Probably the latest one is the decision of the Supreme Court in the Milwaukee case.

Mr. Brandwen: May it please the Court, at this time I should like to ask for a ruling from Your Honor, if the Court please, that the hearing on the claim of the Missouri Pacific against the Estate of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway be treated as a separate hearing, and that I respectfully submit to Your Honor that at the conclusion or after the conclusion of the testimony, to be submitted in connection with that claim, and arguments made with respect thereto, Your Honor make separate findings of fact, separate conclusions of law and a separate order thereon. I urge that most respectfully on this Court for, among others, the following reasons: The Bankruptcy Act requires that there be a determination of claims and that the determination of claims be made irrespective of the existence of any plan or irrespective of the relationship of such claims to any particular plan, so that if, for example, the Court should, when it deals with the question of the fairness and equity of the Plan, find that the Plan is unfair and inequitable, there still is a separate determination of this inter-company claim. We have heard so much about it, and I think in view of all the circumstances, in conformity with the mandate of the Bankruptcy Act there must be this separate hearing and separate findings of fact, separate conclusions of law and a separate order. A second reason why we urge that upon your Honor most respectfully is that under the Federal Rules of Practice, joinder of proceedings has been materially liberalized. It has been the policy of the draftsmen of the Federal Rules of Procedure to provide for a liberal employment and exercise of the processes of joinder. However, that should not obscure the fact that what we have here in its essential analysis is the assertion of a claim against the Estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It is localized and particularized in that specific manner, and in the interest of simplicity, in the interest of expedition and above all, in the interest of having this large claim which, with interest, amounts to approximately eighteen million dollars, determined judicially on the merits once and for all, irrespective of the fate of any other aspect of the proceeding. I feel impelled to submit respectfully to your Honor this application, that there be, that there now take place a separate hearing on this claim. I am through on this motion.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, we realize that there should be a judicial determination of this claim, but in that connection we still must raise the point in due course that the judicial determination must be taken in due time and not at the end of the proceedings. Now, as to the question of a separate hearing on this claim which counsel states is for the purpose of simplicity and for expediting the matter, if you have a separate hearing on this claim, how is that going to expedite anything, if he has a separate order and he appeals from that? This is a hearing on the Plan. The question of the validity of this claim has been raised. It can be heard here as a part of the hearing on the approval of the Plan, just as well as it can be heard as a separate hearing. The proof of the claim is already in the record before your Honor, not that it was given before the Court, but that was given in detail before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that record is before the Court. The Court and the Commission operate together in this proceeding. I see no reason at all why there should be a separate hearing and a separate order, but I ask that this hearing on the Plan proceed in the usual, orderly manner. The question has been raised, and is now in issue and can be disposed of here and now in the general hearing on the Plan, and I ask that the motion be denied.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, Mr. Kitchel stated that he recognizes that there must be a judicial determination of this claim, and he says in due time. I want to point out, if your Honor please, that if there ever was or if there ever is in any legal situation a time that may be described as due time, I say this is the time. If, as I assume, Mr. Kitchel, his clients and other proponents of the Plan are interested in expedition, are interested in the fate of the plan, they would be, I respectfully submit, courting the most unprecedented kind of delay if effect were really given to the argument of Mr. Kitchel that this is not the due time.

Now, I say that a comparable issue, I say comparable in legal jurisprudence, was presented to the Supreme Court of the United States in the Milwaukee case, and Mr. Justice Douglas writing the opinion for the Court, sent that Plan back, because of a dispute that in its dignity was not even so high as this claim is, because the Courts below did not resolve that dispute, and if these people want to have that kind of result, then they may get some comfort from their argument that this is not in due time.

Secondly, the Supreme Court, and there may be a little repetition in some of these points that I make, but I have to answer them, because as often as the specter of this argument is raised, I shall have to answer it, that the Court may not with respect to the Plan decide its fairness unless this matter is determined, and as I said earlier, that the determination of this claim is a judicial function, an exclusively judicial function. If there is one respect under Section 77 where the function is not distributed over the two agencies, the Commission and the Court, this is a function that is exclusively judicial, so that, mind you, if, and I do not agree on this with Mr. Kitchel, but if by any chance the inter-company claim were really considered in all its ramifications, I would say this Court must determine this matter as the Supreme Court has said, as an independent matter. The Court must act on its own independent judgment, its own independent appraisal, but you don't have even that hypothetical case. I have stated here as categorically as I can make any kind of statement that no one who has the wit to read can say that the facts with respect to this claim have been even in any substantial measure submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission below. If your Honor feels, with respect to possible appeals, I don't know who the appellants are going to be, I don't suppose anyone in this room knows who the appellants are going to be, that if, for example, there is an appeal in connection with the claim, I think I am quoting the Circuit Court correctly when it expressed itself on Saturday that anything other than matters dealing with the claim would not go up in connection therewith, so that if, for example, any party should feel aggrieved by a ruling with respect to the claim, that would be heard no matter what the ruling may be on anything else, so that so far as that is concerned, let it be perfectly clear that no device can properly be employed which will delay the ultimate consideration of this claim. I think that in view of the fact that there is a plain mandate by the Congress of the United States on the Court to hear and determine claims, it seems to me that the most effective way and really the only way to make sure this matter is determined, is to have a separate hearing on this claim.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I perhaps didn't make myself clear. I didn't mean to intimate that he had no right to put in his objections to the claim now or put in the proof, I didn't mean to say that; I meant to say that this is not the proper time to raise this question of laches. I see no reason, as I said before, why there should be a separate hearing. This is a hearing on a Plan, objections to the Plan, the issue is here, let's try it.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I want to call your Honor's attention to the fact that on December 1st, an application was heard for a hearing on the determination of this claim. I wanted that as a separate hearing.

I asked for that, and I pointed out there that I thought there would be confusion, there would be difficulty in segregating issues no matter how much your Honor might try to keep the issues separate, unless you had a separate hearing. I tried to do everything I could to have the separate hearing at an earlier date, and I don't want any delay on this, I am ready to go on right now, but I do want to have it made perfectly clear that I feel we have a right, a clear right to a separate hearing on this claim.

Mr. Kitchel: Just one more word on that. I was not present at the time, but I am informed that at the hearing before the Circuit Court of Appeals on Saturday Mr. Brandwen raised the same point, that he should have a separate hearing on this claim. This Court simply denied his motion in toto, which was a motion for a stay.

The Court: The motion for a separate hearing is overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Let the record show an exception to that, please.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Do I understand your Honor is making a ruling with respect to separate findings of fact at the same time?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: On all of them?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Then I want my exception noted on that aspect, too. I would like to ask at this point for the production by the Trustee, his counsel, for the claim filed against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Mr. Dearmont: I do not have the original, but I have a copy. We will produce the original if you desire.

Mr. Brandwen: A copy is perfectly satisfactory. Counsel for the Trustee just handed me a copy of the claim, proof of claim, executed by, I am quoting now, "Missouri Pacific R. R. Co., claimant, by F. P. Johnson, Vice-President," which was sworn to on the 28th day of August, 1933. This claim bears the notation that it is No. 1553, or bears the notation, "Claim No. 1553, received this date, August 29, 1933, A. T. Cole, Assistant Secretary." I assume that this is deemed part of the evidence, since it has been in the hearings.

The Court: It may be so understood.

Mr. Brandwen: May I ask counsel for the Trustee whether we may not accept the fact that on August 28th, 1933, when this claim was sworn to, the Estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and the Estate of Missouri Pacific had Trustees administering their affairs.

Mr. Dearmont: That appears of record in this Court and, as a matter of fact, the Trustee was appointed, as I recall, according to my recollection, on July 1, 1933.

Mr. Brandwen: So it may be accepted that as of August 28th, 1933, there was a Trustee or Trustees of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

The Court: There is no question about that.

Mr. Brandwen: No question about that. And may I ask counsel for the Trustee this further question: may we assume that this claim, proof of claim, is the only proof of claim that was filed in connection with the matters referred to in this proof of claim?

Mr. Dearmont: I might state that I was not connected with this proceeding at that time at all. So far as my knowledge goes, there was never any other claim filed than the one copy of which you hold in your hand.

The Court: Mr. Railey is here. Mr. Railey would know, would he not?

Mr. Railey: That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: Then we are correct in assuming, counsel for the Trustee, that the Trustee of Missouri Pacific or the Trustees of Missouri Pacific never filed a claim?

Mr. Dearmont: That is the only claim that has been filed.

Mr. Brandwen: So the answer to that question is, the Trustees of the Missouri Pacific never filed a claim against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Dearmont: Unless the claim, copy of which counsel has before him, was filed at the direction of the Trustee.

The Court: Will you let me see that?

Mr. Brandwen: Sure. (Hands same to the Court.) If your Honor feels—while I regard this as a legally defective claim, I am not going to make any point of it at the moment. I understand the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad is not in the Courtroom at the moment.

Mr. Dearmont: Mr. Thompson, I have just been advised over the phone since coming to Court this morning, is ill, confined to his bed under Doctor's orders. I haven't had an opportunity to call there myself. He is not here today, and that is my understanding.

Mr. Brandwen: In view of that unfortunate circumstance, I should like to ask counsel for the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company a further question: Do you know whether the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company considers this proof of claim which you handed me this morning a valid claim?

Mr. Dearmont: I think the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific would have to answer that for himself. I am not in a position to answer for him.

Mr. Brandwen: You are not in a position to answer. I assume, then, counsel for the Trustee, that you don't know what the Trustee's position is with respect to any aspects of this claim.

Mr. Dearmont: I can express my opinion if you would like to hear it.

Mr. Brandwen: No, I just asked you whether you know what the Trustee's position is.

The Court: You only want to know the Trustee's position?

Mr. Brandwen: The Trustee's position.

Mr. Dearmont: You will have to inquire of the Trustee.

Mr. Brandwen: Then withdraw the questions. Do you know, counsel for the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, whether the Trustee of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company ever submitted a memorandum to this Court bearing on this proof of claim, copy of which you handed me this morning?

Mr. Dearmont: Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Brandwen: Not to your knowledge. Do you know whether the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway ever filed an objection to the claim, copy of which you handed me this morning?

Mr. Dearmont: Not to my knowledge, and I am almost certain that he has not.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I ask the Court to direct the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company to file objections to the proof of claim filed by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company dated the 28th day of August, 1933.

Mr. Dearmont: I might object to that in behalf of the Trustee, if your Honor please, because the order directing the filing of claims in this proceeding specifically provides that any party may file a claim in this proceeding, and I believe the order provides for protest within sixty days thereafter. At any rate, it does provide that any party may file a claim in this proceeding.

The Court: Will the reporter please read me Mr. Brandwen's question?

(Record read.)

Mr. Dearmont: May I reply then to that order, if your Honor please, that any party in interest may file a protest to any claim filed in the proceeding. Therefore, if Mr. Brandwen has objection to this claim, he may, representing a creditor in these proceedings, file a protest, but here again, I think he need not attempt to cloak himself with the name of the Trustee.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Mr. Kitchel: I just want to state on the record that the counsel for the Institutional Group adopts the statement made by Senator Dearmont.

Mr. Brandwen: At this point I should like to question the legal standing of counsel for the Institutional Groups to make any comment on the validity of the claim or invalidity of the claim asserted against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Compay. The Institutional Group of bondholders are claimants of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, they are not claimants in any way against the Estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. No matter what joinder there may be in these proceedings, no joinder known to judicial decision can transmute a creditor or claimant against the Missouri Pacific Railroad to that of a creditor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. The mere fact that there has been this joinder should not obscure that basic fact. This is a claim that is being asserted against the Estate of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company. Counsel for the institutional groups has no claim against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, no claim whatsoever. They are just creditors to the extent that they are creditors only of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. There can be no question about that fact, and Mr. Kitchel, and I am not relying on this very heavily, because the former is the legal status clearly, Mr. Kitchel himself stated at the opening of this matter this morning that the determination of the validity or invalidity of this claim will not affect, need not affect the allocation of the securities to be given to the First and refunding bondholders, some of which he represents, some of whom he represents.

Mr. Kitchel: May I answer on that point, your Honor?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. Kitchel: We are parties to this proceeding, we have been allowed to intervene and to be heard on all questions. Although this determination of this claim may not affect the allocations given to us, we are a party to this case, anxious to have this Plan put through without further delay. We have a right to be heard on every question here. Now, as to the point that I haven't any standing to question this objection because I am a Missouri Pacific holder, Mr. Brandwen's client is a Missouri Pacific holder, he is in the same category as I am.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I hope it is unnecessary to point out that the 5-¼ per cent secured bondholders have an interest in both Estates. In that respect their position is unique. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, if there was any question about their being taken care of in full, are also in that position. That is not so with respect to the Missouri Pacific First Refunding Fives.

The Court: Are you asking for a ruling?

Mr. Brandwen: I am asking for a ruling.

The Court: The Court will rule they have a right to be heard.

Mr. Brandwen: An exception. And I understand that your Honor has ruled against requiring, directing the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to file objections to the claim filed by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company?

The Court: The Court so ruled.

Mr. Brandwen: The Court has so ruled, and may I have an exception to that?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, in view of the fact that the Estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is without the benefit of an active, independent trustee to which it is entitled, defending the interest of the Estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and its security holders as against claims asserted by other entities, I now, ask your Honor to permit us to object and to contest the claim filed against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico by Missouri Pacific in the name of the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

The Court: Do you care to be heard before the Court rules?

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, I think it is not necessary to be heard, that matter was presented to you in December, and as you entered an order upon determination by this Court, it is now res adjudicata.

Mr. Brandwen: May I point out one thing, if your Honor please: when counsel for the Trustee says res adjudicata, I think he is a little mistaken, I think the order said without prejudice. If without prejudice makes it res adjudicata, that is contrary to my understanding.

The Court: The Court has ruled now, anyway.

Mr. Brandwen: But I would like to simply make it clear that I don't regard that as res adjudicata. I take an exception to that, if your Honor please.

If your Honor please, we are ready now to proceed, but we want to make it clear that we are not waiving our position and that we are reserving all the exceptions to your Honor's ruling, and I am now proceeding. If your Honor please, there was a subpoena served, subpoena duces tecum served on the Trustee to produce a number of books and records. Have those books and records that have been subpoenaed, been produced?

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, representing the Trustee, the debtors in this proceeding, I filed promptly after service of the subpoena duces tecum a motion to suppress, offered testimony before this Court last Wednesday, as I recall, and the Court took that matter under advisement. At that hearing, and before your Honor took it under advisement, Mr. Biggs, associated with Mr. Brandwen in representing Mr. Comstock, stated to the Court, and to counsel and into the record in great detail, a substantial modification of the request made at the time the subpoena was issued. We advised that to the best of our ability we would undertake to produce, as they might need them in the progress of the hearing, such records that they request that might be available. We are prepared to carry out almost, I think, in full, the request made by Mr. Biggs, and a few additional ones that he has expressed to me orally since that time. We are not in a position, if your Honor please, to bring in two or three freight carloads of basic records of the debtor in these proceedings that by no stretch of the imagination, as we view it, could be found at all material to any inquiry before the Court on this hearing, but we are prepared on their demand to produce every record that we can locate that is in existence, and we have had six or eight people working pretty busily on it for several weeks, because the demand has been a pretty extravagant demand in the opinion of counsel. We are ready to produce. Now, if your Honor would like to have them all brought into Court, we can do that. If we brought all that was set forth in the subpoena, there wouldn't be room for your Honor or any other lawyer to sit in this courtroom, because they would fill it completely.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, we have heard that a proof of claim has been presented. I now move and ask that that claimant go forward with the presentation of evidence in support of the claimant's claim.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, as I stated before, the proof is in the record. It was put in in full by witness Wyer before the Interstate Commerce Commission. That testimony is before your Honor now. The claim is proved.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I am not going to make any further comment beyond what we have already stated. There is no proof in the record.

The Court: The request is overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception. I now move to have the claim filed by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company on the 28th day of August, 1933, filed against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company, dismissed and disallowed.

Mr. Kitchel: I ask that that motion be denied on the fact that there is no proof in this Court or before the Commission that that claim is invalid. This objector has raised the objection. The burden is on him to support his objection.

Mr. Homire: We join in the motion to deny that request.

Mr. Brandwen: May it be understood, if your Honor please, that my objection with respect to Mr. Kitchel's objections or comments as not being proper for this particular proceeding are continued in connection with the hearing on this inter-company claim, so that I will not have to repeat that.

The Court: It may continue throughout the hearing.

Mr. Brandwen: Every time.

The Court: Yes. The motion is denied.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception. I would like to make one point, if your Honor please, and that is that under well established principles of law that when a claim is filed by a parent against a dominated subsidiary, the burden of proof is entirely on the claimant. That is established in a number of Supreme Court cases, also established by decisions of this Circuit Court. In addition, under the terms of Order No. 235 heretofore entered by this Court, the burden is recognized as being on the claimant in even an ordinary situation, quite apart from this situation which involves a claim filed in a fiduciary relationship. I should have made that point before your Honor's ruling, but I assume that may be so treated. I will call Mr. Delaney to the witness stand.

JAMES M. DELANEY,

of lawful age, being first duly sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, testified in behalf of Andrew W. Comstock, as follows:

The Court: This is the usual time for recess. Announce a recess until two o'clock.

(At this point the Court announced a recess until two o'clock P. M. of the same day, at which time the following proceedings were had, to-wit:)

After recess, on January 9, 1945, at two o'clock, P. M., the hearing was resumed as follows:

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Cole: May it please the Court, with the acquiescence of counsel, and, I trust, with the approval of the Court, may I state the position of my client, so that I may return to New York?

I am Mr. Cole, and represent the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, which is trustee under the International-Great Northern First Mortgage. As the record shows, the requisite percentage of our bondholders approved the Commission's plan, and in view of the fact that this present Plan before tthe Court gives our bondholders substantially better treatment, we feel that the vote of the bondholders the last time is a mandate for us not to oppose this Plan.

Further than that, we took an active part in negotiation of the compromise plan and succeeded in obtaining better treatment, not only as regards the Commission Plan, but as regards the original compromise plan as originally proposed to us. Consequently, we go a little further and say that, in our opinion, while this plan now before the Court gives our bondholders the minimum treatment to which they are entitled, we think it, nevertheless, represents a fair compromise.

As regards the issues that are framed presently before Your Honor, I have listened to the rulings and arguments and the framing of the issues, and believe that the proceedings from now on can have no interest for my client.

As regards the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico debt, should Mr. Brandwen be successful in having that ruled out it would not affect the International-Great Northern bondholders unless it involved recapitalization, which presumably would have to go back to the Commission anyway.

As regards the subordination of the Alleghany claim, that is already taken care of by the Plan, the Commission's order.

I make this statement, because I think it is appropriate that I state our position on the record. Thank you.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I would like to have the copy of the Proof of Claim, which counsel for the Trustee handed me this morning, marked for Identification as Comstock Exhibit 1 for Identification.

(The exhibit indicated by counsel was marked as requested.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 1.]

Direct Examination of James M. Delaney
Resumed by Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Delaney, before we adjourned this morning you listed the number of shares of the capital stock of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway, which were acquired by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. Can you tell us how many shares had been acquired by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company of the capital stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company by December 31, 1924? A. 86,766 shares.

Q. Do you know how many shares of capital stock of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway are outstanding, based on the records that you have examined?

A. According to the 1943 Annual Report of Guy A. Thompson, Trustee, page 19 indicates 148,329 shares of common stock are outstanding.

Mr. Brandwen: At this point, if Your Honor please, I would like to introduce a series of exhibits and, naturally, they are subject to correction.

I want to introduce for the first exhibit a schedule of officers and directors of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for the year 1923.

Mr. McConaughy: Have you copies?

Mr. Brandwen: I would have to get them. The source is stated there and, of course, this may be corrected if any error has occurred.

(The document last introduced by counsel was marked Comstock Exhibit 2.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 3.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule showing the officers and directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway for the year 1923, and ask that that be marked in evidence.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 3.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 4.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule showing the officers and directors of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for the year 1924.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 4.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 5.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule showing the officers and directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company for the year 1924.

(Here ensued private colloquy between Mr. Brandwen and Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. Brandwen: If any errors have occurred we would appreciate that being called to our attention.

(The document last indicated by counsel was marked Comstock Exhibit 5.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 6.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence a schedule containing the officers and directors of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company for the year 1924.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 6.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 7.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule listing the officers and directors of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company for the year 1924.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 7.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 7.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule listing the officers, directors and executive committee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for the year 1925.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 9.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 9.]

Mr. Brandwen: I want to make this statement at this point: I couldn't help overhearing Mr. Teitelbaum's comment to Mr. McConaughy. These lists of directors are given for calendar years. Naturally, I understand that the directors serve between one annual meeting and another. I don't have the exact dates of these periods and, of course, these schedules may be amended to conform to that fact.

Mr. McConaughy: I should think that we ought to be able to get together and agree on a list of officers and directors for those you are interested in, without taking so much time. I think that can be done after Court tonight.

Mr. Brandwen: All I want to put in is the list of officers, directors and executive committee members of these various companies from the date of acquisition of the stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico by Missouri Pacific until the date of bankruptcy.

Mr. McConaughy: If you will give us your list we will check it over, the whole group, and you can have them in the morning. We will check it over tonight.

Mr. Brandwen: They still will have to be marked, won't they?

Mr. McConaughy: I suppose they will.

Mr. Brandwen: They will still have to be marked.

Mr. McConaughy: Go ahead.

Mr. Brandwen: Next is a schedule of officers and directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway for the year 1925.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 10.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 10.]

Mr. Brandwen: Next is a schedule of directors and officers of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company for the year 1925.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 11.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 11.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer the schedule listing the officers and directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway for the year 1925.

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer a schedule of officers and directors of the Beaumont, Sour Lake for the year 1925.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 13.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 13.]

(Here ensued colloquy between Mr. Brandwen and Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. Brandwen: Perhaps this suggestion might simplify matters a little: I offer here a list of officers, executive committee and directors of the Missouri Pacific Railroad,

New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, International-Great Northern, St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, and Beaumont, Sour Lake, for the years 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, and 1933.

(Here followed discussion of how these exhibits shall be marked.)

(The exhibits were thereupon marked Comstock Exhibits 14 to 21, both inclusive, the attached pages to each exhibit also being marked. The designations of the attached sheets last referred to will be supplied later.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 14 to 61, incl.]

A. The report indicates that there were dividends declared June 17, 1931 and June 30, 1931.

Q. What were the dividends that were declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico on June 17, 1931?

A. There was a dividend of $316,188.85 and another dividend—

Q. Wait a minute; just June 17. How many shares of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico stock were outstanding?

A. The report didn't indicate; it just indicated the par value.

Q. The par value was given at? A. $500,000.

Q. Does the report disclose, or does other information that you have seen, disclose the amount of dividends, per share? A. The report indicates the rate per cent. of 63.24.

Q. Have you examined any other records to enable you to say what the exact declaration of dividends per share was?

A. Based on the par value, the dividend was equal—

Mr. McConaughy: That is not responsive to the question, Your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: I didn't object to the question; I objected to his answer.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read to the Court as follows: "Q. Have you examined any other records to enable you to say what the exact declaration of dividends per share was?")

A. No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. You say there was another dividend declared in June, 1931?

A. There were two dividends declared on June 17.

Q. What was the other dividend declared on June 17?

A. It was a dividend of $338,890.88.

Q. At what rate per share was that dividend?

A. I don't know.

Mr. Brandwen: Will counsel for the Trustee stipulate that the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico had five thousand shares of capital stock outstanding?

Mr. Dearmont: I will be glad to get you the information. I don't have that information in my head. I will be very glad to find what they had.

Mr. Brandwen: June 17, 1931.

Mr. Dearmont: I will be very glad to get it.

Mr. Brandwen: In the interest of expedition, may the evidence show that there were five thousand shares outstanding, subject to correction?

Mr. McConaughy: What is your number?

Mr. Brandwen: Five thousand shares.

Mr. McConaughy: Subject to correction, that is all right.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Will you compute the first dividend that you testified to, that was declared on June 17, 1931, in the amount of $316,188.85, and state what was the amount declared on each share? It is just a matter of mathematical calculation.

A. Based on five thousand shares?

Q. Based on five thousand shares.

A. The dividend was equal to 63.23777.

Q. Would you do a similar bit of computation with respect to the second dividend which you testified to as having been declared on June 17, 1931, in the amount of $338,890.88?

A. Based on five thousand shares outstanding, it was equal to 67.77818.

Mr. Dearmont: I have verified it, and in 1931 there were five thousand shares of St. Louis, Brownsville stock outstanding, with par value of one hundred dollars per share, a total of $500,000.

Mr. Brandwen: Thank you.

Q. You testified before that there was another dividend declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico in July, 1931? A. June 30.

Q. June 30, 1931, and the amount of that dividend was?

A. Three and a half million dollars.

Q. Mr. Delaney, coming back to the first dividend concerning which you testified as having been declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in the amount of $316,188.85, and which amount was included in your statement that the dividends received by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in the year 1931 were $4,155,079., have you examined records which will enable you to say whether that dividend was ever paid by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. I have.

Q. And what do those records disclose?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question. He just said he examined records.

Mr. Brandwen: What I can do with respect to this, I can get the original—

Mr. McConaughy: All I want the witness to say is where he got his information.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Where did you get the information that will enable you to state whether—that dividend was not paid?

A. At the general offices of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, at Houston, Texas.

Q. And, of course, you got this information from the books and records that you examined at the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico office, is that what you want us to understand? A. Yes.

Q. What do those records disclose with respect to this first dividend concerning which you testified, of $316,188.85, as to whether it was paid?

A. The records indicate that that dividend was part of a voucher, No. F-2189, that is included in the family line account.

Q. Which were? A. Unpaid at December 31, 1933.

Q. Now I ask you whether, in your examination of the original books and records of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, you obtained information which would enable you to say whether the second dividend concerning which you testified, to-wit, that of $338,890.88, was paid? A. I have.

Q. Will you please state what your examination discloses on that point?

A. I found that that dividend was also a part of Voucher F-2189, which was unpaid at December 31, 1933.

Mr. Brandwen: At this point, may I—taking advantage of the presence of counsel for the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico—ask for the production of the minutes of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico road, shortly before the declaration of these dividends?

Mr. Dearmont: Do you want them right now?

Mr. Brandwen: I won't delay the examination, but I would like to have them here so if we get to it this afternoon—

Mr. Dearmont: The Board of Directors?

Mr. Brandwen: Or whatever committee acted with respect to the declaration of these dividends. So, if you get them for that year—

Mr. Dearmont: What year?

Mr. Brandwen: 1931.

Mr. Dearmont: To expedite this matter, are you going into the minutes of some other years; if so, you might as well let me get them all at once.

The Court: Where are those minutes, Senator Dearmont?

Mr. Dearmont: In the office of Mr. A. T. Coles.

The Court: They are in the city?

Mr. Brandwen: I can not answer that. I can not take time to think about this—

Mr. Dearmont: 1931?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes. Would counsel for the Trustee stipulate that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico owned all the capital stock of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico?

Mr. Dearmont: That is true.

Mr. Brandwen: If that is true—in 1931?

Mr. Dearmont: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: And during the entire period from January 1, 1925 to the present time?

Mr. Dearmont: I think that is exactly true.

Mr. McConaughy: Down to bankruptcy.

Mr. Dearmont: That is, down to bankruptcy.

Mr. Brandwen: I will accept the emendation, and I appreciate Mr. McConaughy's correction, that beginning with March 31, 1933, the ownership of the assets of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico passed to the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. I think you are completely correct.

Will counsel for the Trustee stipulate that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico owned all the bonds issued, and outstanding, of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, from January 1, 1925—1924 to March 31, 1933, the date of bankruptcy, and the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico owned all these bonds since that time?

Mr. Dearmont: January 1, 1924?

The Court: Counsel said 1925 at first and then changed it to 1924.

Mr. Brandwen: I changed it to 1924. I am talking about the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico owning stock of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico.

Mr. Dearmont: If he did in January, January 1, 1924, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Brandwen: That is all I am talking about, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico owning stocks and bonds of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico.

Mr. Dearmont: That is a fact.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Delaney, you also testified to another dividend that was declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico on its capital stock, $3,500,000., June 30, 1931, did you not? A. I did.

Q. And from an examination of the original books of account and records, are you in a position, and if so, will you state what amount, if any, was paid by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico on that dividend? You can do it in years, if that will—

The Witness: The annual reports of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission indicate that at December 31, 1931, $2,500,000. was unpaid, and at December 31, 1932, $1,400,000. remained unpaid.

Q. Then you want us to understand, do you, that of the $3,500,000. dividend which was declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, June 30, 1931, to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, one million dollars was paid in the year 1931?

A. That is what the annual reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission would indicate.

Q. You state that the annual report of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, for the year 1931, discloses that, as of December 31, 1931, two and a half million dollars of that $3,500,000. declaration was still unpaid?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the report of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico further discloses that the item of $2,500,000. which was still unpaid, was carried in the caption of dividends matured and unpaid? A. That is correct.

Q. Are we correct in understanding that in the year 1932, this item of $2,500,000. concerning which you have just testified, was reduced to $1,400,000.?

A. That is correct.

Q. Indicating a payment, in the year 1932, by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, on account of dividends matured and unpaid, of $1,100,000. that year?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the balance of $1,400,000., which was still unpaid, was carried in what caption in the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico 1932 report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. It was carried in the caption of current liabilities, dividends matured and unpaid.

Q. Do you know from an examination of the original books of account and records, what the disposition of this item of $1,400,000. was, concerning which you have just testified?

A. I have seen information which indicates that the dividend—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute. I think, Mr. Brandwen, he ought to tell us where he got that.

The Court: Tell where he saw it.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. May I show this to you, to see whether this letter refreshes your recollection or not (handing paper to the witness)?

A. The Senate Committee Report, Part 12, page 5538, Exhibit 1603.

(Last previous question and answer read to Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. Brandwen: Q. What does that disclose?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I will ask counsel for the Trustee to produce the original journal entry. It is taken from the files of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It is a copy, and that copy can be corrected if there is any incorrectness in it.

What I am referring to is journal entry 27, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, and the original of this bears the initials of Mr. Eckert. I can ask counsel for the Trustee to produce the original, but this is an exact copy of that.

Mr. Dearmont: May I suggest that such matters as you have, that are copies of the record in possession of the Trustee, may be offered, subject to verification. It seems it would expedite these matters, instead of asking me to stipulate.

(Here ensued discussion among counsel.)

Mr. Brandwen: I want to say that the suggestion of counsel for the Trustee is perfectly acceptable to me, if it meets with the approval of Your Honor. All these things—

Mr. McConaughy: I don't want to consent to any part of the Senate Committee Report going in the record, but I will let him testify, subject to our checking the accuracy of it.

Mr. Brandwen: I will offer in evidence the copy of Journal Entry No. 27 (Prior account record during month of March, 1936) the original of which was from the file of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, and upon the production of the original we will have the original substituted for this.

Mr. Freund: Do I understand that this witness has seen every record in the books of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, or is he taking it from the records of the Senate Investigating Committee?

The Court: The witness may state.

The Witness: From the Senate Investigating Committee.

Mr. Freund: Then I object to that.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, if this is a true copy of the Journal Entry and all—

Mr. McConaughy: I think that is all right.

Mr. Brandwen: All I have to do is ask for the production of it and get that in evidence as proof of what took place with respect to this $1,400,000. The fact that he found it in one item or—

Mr. McConaughy: We don't want to burden the Trustee. We will check the item and if it checks out all right it will stand.

The Court: Is that agreeable to you, Mr. Freund?

Mr. Freund: I withdraw the objection.

Mr. McConaughy: It is understood that nothing else with regard to the Senate Committee is going in evidence; just this journal entry?

Mr. Brandwen: When that question presents itself, I presume Your Honor will deal with it at the proper time. It has not yet presented itself. All I am doing is offering a copy of the Journal Entry from the original files.

Mr. McConaughy: What book is that journal entry taken from?

Mr. Brandwen: New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Journal Entry, in the books of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It has on it a statement that, "I certify the above is correct", with the initials "M. E." I am not saying that the original contains that "M. E.", standing for Mr. Martin Eckert, who was auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico at the time.

I do want to say this, if Your Honor please: This is the first time Mr. Freund has honored us with a comment on this. My objection with respect to Mr. Freund's standing on the inter-company claim, is the same as the objection I addressed with respect to Mr. Kitchel.

Mr. Freund: May I inquire whether that entire document is to be marked, or just the Journal Entry?

Mr. Brandwen: Only the Journal Entry.

Mr. Freund: The rest is not going in?

Mr. Brandwen: Would anybody want to look at this?

Mr. Freund: Is that the Wheeler Report?

Mr. Brandwen: I have that report.

This has on it a statement, "I certify the above is correct", with the initials "M. E.", Martin Eckert. I don't believe the original has that statement on it it.

(Copy of the Journal Entry last referred to was marked Comstock Exhibit 22.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 62.]

Mr. Brandwen: So that there will be no question in any counsel's mind, may the record show that this entry, as it is contained in this (I think reading it would probably be an accommodation) recites as follows:

"To charge to profit and loss—miscellaneous debits, Account 621, balance of 1,400,000 stated in Account 722, deferred assets uncollected at December 31, 1935, representing unpaid portion of dividend on capital stock of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company declared July 11, 1931, as per letter Mr. Alexander Wylie, Director Bureau of Accounts, Interstate Commerce Commission, dated March 28, 1936, file DC-9500-X-B. Copy attached to file copy of this entry. Profit and loss—miscellaneous debits 621 $1,400,000. to the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company. Dividends receivable 722 $1,400,000.

This is Journal Entry No. 27 (Prior Account) recorded during month of March, 1936."

This Exhibit 22 refers to a letter of Mr. Alexander Wylie, Director Bureau of Accounts, Interstate Commerce Commission, and I would like now to offer in evidence a copy of the letter of Mr. Alexander Wylie, addressed to Mr. Eckert.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't see that that letter bears on any issue involved here, Your Honor. He has proved that it was transferred over and not paid. What else does he want to prove?

Mr. Brandwen: Exhibit 22 expressly states that this entry is made as per the letter of Mr. Alexander Wylie. Again, this was not done out of thin air, and it is part of a journal entry.

The Court: Is that the objection; did you make an objection?

Mr. McConaughy: I made an objection to that letter. I don't see that it is material to the issues here.

Mr. Brandwen: I think it is part of the original entry.

The Court: It will be admitted, subject to the objection.

(Letter marked as Comstock's Exhibit 23) [See Vol. of Exs. page 63.]

Mr. Brandwen: Exhibit 23, for the benefit of the Court and counsel, if I may read it, it is a letter: "Interstate Commerce Commission, Bureau of Accounts, Washington, D. C., March 28, 1936. Mr. M. Eckert, Auditor, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, Houston, Texas. Dear Sir: Under Schedule 200-A, comparative general balance sheet, asset side", in your company's annual report to the Commission for the year 1934, an amount of $4,732,892.39 is reported against Account 717, "Interest and Dividends Receivable". It is understood that this amount included an item of $1,400,000., representing a part of a dividend declared by the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company in the year 1931, and that this amount was credited to Account 513, "Dividend Income", in that year.

The text of Account 513 reads in part as follows:

"Dividends declared shall not be credited prior to actual collection unless their payment is reasonably assured by past experience, guaranty, anticipated provision or otherwise."

When this dividend was declared, your company was aware that the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway was without funds to pay it, and even on the basis of past experience, the earnings of the company, had business continued good, would not have been adequate to make the payment until some future date. The recording of the dividend in Account 513 when declared was clearly in violation of the Commission's accounting rule hereinabove quoted.

While it is at this time too late to correct the Income Accounts, which have already been closed, it is not too late to write off the unpaid portion of this dividend through profit and loss. Please arrange to have this done in the current accounts, sending me a copy of the journal entry through which the accounting is accomplished.

In this connection you are requested to furnish this bureau with a statement showing the items comprising the current balance in Account 717, this is my comment: That is interest and dividends receivable, together with your comments supporting their classification as current assets within the provisions of Section 7 of the Special Instructions in the classification of income, profit and loss and general balance sheet accounts.

Prompt reply to this letter will be appreciated.

Yours very truly, Alexander Wylie, Director."

And, if your Honor please, this journal entry of Comstock's Exhibit 22, followed thereon.

The Court: Who was Alexander Wylie?

Mr. Brandwen: Alexander Wylie, W-y-l-i-e.

The Court: He was—

Mr. Brandwen: He was the Director of the Bureau of Accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Delaney, coming back to the year 1931, can you now state for the record how much of this dividend item of $4,155,079.00, which was reported by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico as having been received in the year 1931, in its report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, was paid in the year 1931?

Mr. McConaughy: Hasn't he already testified to that?

Mr. Brandwen: I think it would be very convenient to have the specific amount at one point. One can do some mathematical computing.

Mr. McConaughy: I think he specified the amount paid in 1931 and the amount paid in 1932. It is already in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: I say you can do that if you compute it mathematically. All right, Mr. Teitelbaum, help Mr. McConaughy make his objection. I would like to have that last comment in the record.

Mr. McConaughy: It is already in the record, your Honor.

The Court: It may go in.

Mr. Teitelbaum: I object to that going into the record. I didn't say that.

The Court: I didn't get that. What was that?

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Teitelbaum said to Mr. McConaughy, "You object to that," and all I was trying to do—

Mr. Teitelbaum: I did not.

Mr. Brandwen: —was to have, for the convenience of the Court, at one central point, how much was actually received from all these dividends from St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, in the year 1931. Of course, it is in the record, but I think it would be very convenient to have all of those covered together and have one simple answer on that. All I am concerned with is the convenience of the Court.

The Court: He may answer.

A. One million dollars.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, Mr. Delaney, in your examination of the books and records of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, did you obtain a copy of a balance sheet, true copy of a balance sheet of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico as of December 31, 1930?

A. I obtained copy of the balance sheet from the annual report filed with the I. C. Commission.

Q. And you have that with you? A. I have.

Q. May I have it?

(Witness hands same to counsel.)

Mr. Brandwen: All these copies, in order to make it perfectly clear, are subject to correction, because, if Your Honor please, I have not had time to check them carefully myself, and I would appreciate it if any counsel finds any error in them, actual error in them, to call them to my attention.

The Court: I am sure they will be glad to do that.

Mr. Brandwen: I am sure they will, but I want to make that perfectly clear, they are all subject to correction.

Mr. McConaughy: What provision have you made to give us copies? How can we check these? These belong in the Court.

Mr. Brandwen: What I will try to do, Mr. McConaughy, is to see that you get a copy at the close of the hearing.

Mr. McConaughy: We would like to have a photostatic copy of that to check it. Will you make up a copy?

Mr. Brandwen: I want you to have it. I will see that you have a copy made up for your convenience.

Mr. McConaughy: That means now that we will have to compare it with the pencil piece of paper that you have.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, now, let's see, do you have any typed copy?

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me this is dragging it out unduly.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Do you have a typed copy?
A. I have a photostat of that.
Q. You have a photostate of that; fine. That simplifies the matter, doesn't it, Mr. McConaughy?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. What you have given me, Mr. Delaney, is a schedule giving the balance sheet of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico for the years 1924 to 1932, inclusive, as reported and filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad?
A. That is correct.
Q. So that it covers all these years? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer these two pages in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: No objection, subject to correction.

Mr. Brandwen: I will see that you get those as quickly as possible.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have them as soon after the close of court as possible.

Mr. Brandwen: I will see to it that you have them.

(Said papers were thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 24.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 65.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Delaney, with respect to Exhibit 24, the balance sheet of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, are there any figures on this exhibit that were not in the original report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission? Have you done any mathematical computing anywhere here? A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. State what you have done. A. May I see it?

(Counsel hands same to the witness.)

A. I have computed the total current assets and total current liabilities for the years 1930 and 1931, and show a summary at the foot of page 1 indicating the current position.

Q. I see. All you have done is done some addition and subtraction? A. That is correct.

Q. But you haven't done anything else in our Exhibit 24? A. That is correct.

Q. Everything else is taken from the original report? A. That is correct.

Q. Filed with the Commission? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: I should like to call the Court's attention to the fact that in the year 1930, current assets as of December 31, 1930, current assets of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, total current assets are stated at $1,150,522.05, and that total current liabilities of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico as of December 31, 1931, was $1,192,558.30. That is a net deficit in current assets of $42,036.25. In the year 1931 the total current assets on the balance sheet are stated at $901,888.34, and total current liabilities are stated at $3,426,939.79, showing a net current deficit of assets of $2,525,051.45. In other words, the current liabilities as of December 31, 1930, exceeded the total current assets by $42,036.25, and the total current liabilities exceeded the total current assets for the year 1931 by the sum of $2,525,051.45. I may come back to the minutes a little later on, if your Honor please.

Q. I don't think, Mr. Delaney, you testified yet with respect to the sources of interest received by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in the year 1931? A. That is correct.

Q. Would you please particularize the sources of interest income?

The Court: Before you answer that question, I think it might be an opportune time for a brief recess.

(Brief recess.)

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, during the recess, counsel for the Trustee produced a volume containing minutes of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico and minutes of executive committees. I think it would be [simplier] if I just read these particular resolutions in, instead of having exhibits made at the moment. I am reading from page 41 of the volume, St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company minutes, produced at my request by counsel for the Trustee. I am quoting, "Minutes of adjourned annual meeting of Board of Directors of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, held at Houston, Texas, June 17th, 1931." The minutes bear a stamped signature, A. T. Cole, Secretary. On page 43 appears the following: "The next business brought before the meeting was a resolution authorizing the payment of a dividend on the capital stock of the company to the stockholders of record as of November 30, 1930. On motion of Director A. B. Pierce, seconded by Director J. E. Anderson, the following resolution was unanimously adopted. Resolved by the Board of Directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company that a dividend of $316,188.85 be and the same is hereby declared upon the stock of said company out of the surplus payable immediately to stockholders of record as of November 30, 1930. This dividend is to make an adjustment of income and operating expenses between this line and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, the owner of all of the capital stock of this company.

"There was then laid before the meeting a resolution authorizing the payment of a dividend on the capital stock of the company to stockholders of record as of February 28th, 1931. On motion of Director W. G. Choate, seconded by Director Frank Andrews, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: Resolved by the Board of Directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company that a dividend of $338,890.88 be and the same is hereby declared upon the stock of said company out of the surplus payable immediately to stockholders of record as of February 28th, 1931. This dividend is to make an adjustment of income and operating expenses between this line and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, the owner of all of the capital stock of this company."

I now come to page 45 of the minutes, same volume, which recited as follows. As the legend at the head of the minutes, "Minutes of Special Meeting of Board of Directors of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company held at Houston, Texas, July 11, 1931." I should like to state in this connection that what I am reading from is a copy of the minutes. The original—these are not the original minutes, these are a copy produced, and I would like to ask counsel for the Trustee whether he can't lay his hands on the original, because there may be certain exhibits that may be attached to the originals and not attached to this copy. These minutes also bear the stamp of A. T. Cole, Secretary.

"The next business brought before the meeting was a resolution authorizing the payment of a dividend on the capital stock of the company to stockholders of record as of June 30, 1931. On motion of Director C. N. Armstrong, seconded by Director A. B. Pierce, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: Resolved by the Board of Directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company that a dividend of $3,500,000.00 be and the same is hereby declared upon the stock of the said company out of the surplus payable immediately to stockholders of record as of June 30, 1931. This dividend is to make an adjustment of income and operating expenses between this line and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, the owner of all of the Capital stock of this company."

Since counsel for the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is around here, I will take advantage of his presence by asking him whether it is not a fact that the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western stock was fully owned by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, beginning at least from January 1, 1924, to these proceedings, March 31, 1933, of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico; since then the stock has been owned by the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Mr. Dearmont: That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: And I wonder whether I couldn't get from you a record of all the subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and the amount of stock owned by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and the amount of bonds outstanding of those various roads and the amount owned by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Mr. Dearmont: Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I know this is all of record, Mr. Wyer, but I want to have it for this hearing.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, Mr. Delaney, at the risk of repetition, am I correct in understanding that you have not yet testified with respect to the interest source of income of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico contained in the annual report of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the year 1931?

A. That is correct.

Q. Would you please particularize those items now?

A. The report indicated interest income was received from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company, $774,800.00. Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, $123,469.00. Orange & Northwestern, $64,016.00. San Antonio, [Uvale] & Gulf, $220,650.00. Sugarland, $19,200.00. Houston & Brazos Valley, $50,000.00. Houston, North Shore, $51,000.00. International, Great Northern, $16,447.00. Houston Belt & Terminal Company, $400.00. Texas City Terminal, $15,043.00. Total $1,335,025.

Q. Did you testify what the total other income of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as reported in the report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1931 was?

A. I did.

Q. Now, please particularize deductions disclosed by the report.

A. The report indicated there were miscellaneous deductions of $14,366. Interest on funded debt $8,596.

Q. Disclosing net income before interest on funded debt— A. Of $6,046,827.

Q. This item of $6,046,827. is arrived at by including as dividends $4,155,079., is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Interest on funded debt for that year—

A. Is reported as $2,498,262.

Q. And the net income reported after fixed charges for that year? A. $3,545,565—beg pardon, $3,548,565.

Q. That figure of $3,548,565. includes, does it not, a dividend of $4,155,079? A. That is correct.

Q. To the extent that these dividends were not received, that figure would have to be adjusted [correspondly], isn't that so?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that.

Mr. Brandwen: That is purely a mathematical statement.

Mr. McConaughy: I beg your pardon, there is a lot of accounting in that. He says to the extent not received. He has not shown how the books are kept.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. Coming to the year 1932, the report filed by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission discloses net railway operating income on that road of how much? A. $408,197.00.

Q. And the same report discloses, I suppose, other income? A. It does.

Q. Particularize the items.

A. The report indicates that there was interest income of $1,318,438.00, and other income of $20,140.00.

Q. There were no dividends received by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico that year?

A. The report does not indicate receipt of dividends.

Q. The total other income reported by this report amounts to— A. $1,338,578.00.

Q. Please particularize the deductions disclosed by that report.

A. The report indicates miscellaneous deductions of $18,105.00. Interest on unfunded debt of $193.00. Net income before interest on funded debt, $1,728,477.00.

Q. And the interest on funded debt for that year as disclosed by the report is what? A. $2,684,666.00.

Q. What is the net income disclosed by that report after fixed charges? A. It shows a deficit of $956,189.00.

Q. Was there a report submitted by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the year 1933? A. There was.

Q. With the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. There was.

Q. Was that for the entire year or was it broken up into a period up to March 31, 1933, and after, from April 1, 1933, to December 31st?

A. The report that was shown to us was for the combined periods, there was no separation.

Q. No separation. Well, Mr. Delaney, did you prepare any comparative balance sheet of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway for any period from December 31, 1924, to December 31, 1932, based on the report filed by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. I did.

Q. I am referring to the parent. A. I have.

Q. And do you have them with you? A. I have.

Mr. McConaughy: Have you got a photostatic copy that we may have?

Mr. Brandwen: I will see that you have a photostatic copy.

Mr. McConaughy: I would very much like to have it now if he has it. He said he had one of the other one.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Have you got one with you?

A. No, I haven't sir.

Q. Are there any figures contained on the two sheets that you have just handed me, which are not contained in the original report filed by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. There are.

Q. Would you please describe the figures?

A. I have shown total current assets, and on the foot of the statement I have figured certain percentages which do not appear in the Interstate Commerce Commission's report.

Q. Those are mathematical computations, addition, subtraction and division? A. That is correct.

Q. No other computation done by you? A. No, sir.

Q. These sheets are identified as balance sheets of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, December 31, 1932, to 1924. I offer them in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: Subject to check.

(Said papers were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 25.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 69.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Delaney, coming to some other reports you have examined with the Interstate Commerce Commission, what was the credit balance in the profit and loss surplus account of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, as reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission as of December 31, 1924?

A. The report indicated a credit balance of $1,954,540.00.

Q. Now, during the period from January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, concerning which we have just testified, would you please state [tha] aggregate of the net credit transferred from the income account during the period January 1, 1925 to December 31, 1932?

A. They were $8,460,127.00.

Q. That is the aggregate of the items that you have just testified to as net income after the fixed charges for each of the eight years? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, were there any other additions of credit to profit and loss account of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico during that same period? A. There were.

Q. And they amounted to how much, the aggregate?

A. $62,792.00.

Q. They were a series of miscellaneous items, is that correct? A. They were.

Q. I don't want to go into details at the moment, because they are relatively small, is that correct?

A. They were.

Q. Now, there were certain deductions or charges made to this profit and loss surplus account during this same period, were there not? A. There were.

Q. And what were the principal deductions or charge?

A. For dividends declared and paid.

Q. By New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway?

A. That is correct.

Q. On its capital stock?

A. That is what the report indicated.

Q. How much? A. $7,267,386.00.

Q. Can you state the amount of dividends paid by year, beginning with January 1, 1925, by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico on its stock?

A. The reports I examined indicate the following amounts were paid:

Q. By New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. By New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and charged to the surplus account. During 1925, $1,038,198.00. 1926, same amount; 1927, same amount; 1928, same amount; 1929, same amount; 1930, same amount; 1931, same amount. Total of $7,267,386.00.

Q. From an examination of the original books and records of account of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, can you state how much of these dividends was received by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company year by year?

A. I was furnished—I did not examine the accounts. I was furnished with a summary.

Q. Furnished with a summary by whom?

A. By Mr. Peet.

Q. Will you answer the question, then?

Mr. McConaughy: Let him produce the summary.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Will you read from the summary?

Mr. McConaughy: Let him produce the summary. Let's see it.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Read from the summary. Are there other items on the summary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There are. That I have not asked you about?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you answer the question?

A. The year 1925, $814,747.43. 1926, $916,663.78. 1927, $921,235.00. 1928, $921,550.00. 1929, $951,658.75. 1930, $970,051.25. 1931, $977,340.00. Total, $6,473,236.21.

The Court: What is the total?

The Witness: $6,473,236.21.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) That was the amount of the dividends paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, which were received by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company?

A. I have been informed that is the amount.

Q. By Mr. Peet. Were there any other deductions or charges to the profit and loss surplus account during the period of 1925, January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932?

A. There were.

Q. Will you please particularize that?

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to find out first where the information comes from.

Mr. Brandwen: All right, surely.

Q. From an examination of the books and records of account of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, can you state now whether there were any deductions or charges to profit and loss surplus account?

A. The annual reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission indicates there were.

Q. Would you please particularize them?

A. A mathematical computation for the period from January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, indicates the following: Surplus appropriated for investments in physical property, $18,057.04. Debt discount extinguished through charge to profit and loss, $814,890.15. Loss on retirement of railroad equipment, $33,889.12. Delayed income debits, $899,294.61. Miscellaneous debit to profit and loss, $313,-723.65. Miscellaneous appropriations of surplus, $215,-746.15, credit.

Q. Mr. Delaney, addressing ourselves for the moment to the larger item, will you state what is comprised within the category, debt discount extinguished through charge to profit and loss?

A. I have been informed that it represents discount on the sale of securities for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, which were not amortized during the life of the bond issues and was charged direct to profit and loss.

Mr. McConaughy: Let's get the source of the information.

Mr. Brandwen: That is right.

Q. What is the source of your information?

A. [Th4e] annual reports to the I. C. Commission.

Q. Now, you refer to the loss on retirement of railroad equipment, $33,889.12. That probably speaks for itself; we don't need any explanation of that. Now, you come to the next item of delayed income debit, depreciation charged direct to profit and loss. Would you please particularize that item?

A. That was a charge made direct to profit and loss after the depreciation rates were revised at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. So that the total charges direct to profit and loss for the period of January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, amount to how much? A. $9,131,494.42.

Q. Now, what was the credit balance in the surplus account as reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission as of December 31, 1932? A. $1,345,964.90.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if your Honor please, I wonder whether this might not be as good a time and place to adjourn as any. I was going to start in on—

The Court: A very agreeable time to the Court.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, would it be an unreasonable request that we could be supplied with copies of the proposed exhibits before the opening of court tomorrow morning?

The Court: It might save some time, I should think. There will be no difficulty about doing that, would there?

Mr. Brandwen: If we can do that without any great difficulty we will be delighted to do it.

Mr. Kitchel: Even if you can't do it by the time court opens, will you kindly have them for us as you offer them in evidence?

Mr. Brandwen: We will try to do that, Mr. Kitchel. I told that to Mr. McConaughy.

Mr. Kitchel: We would like them at the opening of court if we can have them.

The Court: Well, by the time we open court. Announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(At this point the Court announced an adjournment until tomorrow, Wednesday, January 10, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M., at which time the following proceedings were had, to-wit:)

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January, 10, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

The Court: You may proceed in this Missouri Pacific matter.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, Mr. McConaughy has been furnished with copies of the exhibits which were introduced in evidence yesterday afternoon.

Direct Examination of James M. Delaney

Resumed by Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Delaney, I don't believe that you testified as to the sources of interest income for the year 1932 of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as reported by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in its 1932 report to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Will you please particularize those sources?

A. The report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1932, by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway indicates that interest was received from the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, of $774,800.; Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, $123,469.; Orange and Northwestern, $64,016.; San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf, $220,650.; Sugar Land, $19,200.; Houston & Brazos Valley, $50,000.; Houston-North Shore, $51,000.; Houston Belt & Terminal Railroad Company, $400., and Texas City Terminal, $14,903., which is a total of $1,318,438.

Q. In your examination of the original reports filed by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission, did you examine the income account for the year 1931? A. I did.

Q. Do you have a copy of it with you? A. I have.

Q. This document you have just handed me contains figures that appear on the report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. It does.

Q. Does it contain any other figures, any other computations? A. No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer it in evidence.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 26.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 73.]

Mr. Brandwen: Were you able to get the figures on the capitalization and the bonds outstanding of the various subsidiaries of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Dearmont: It will be here in just a few minutes. It is being typed.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all right. I will go on with something else.

In that connection, I also want to ask counsel for the Trustee whether we could not have the original copy of the Minute Book, of the various minutes that are being furnished at our request. What I have been reading from has been a copy of the minutes, furnished by you.

The reason I ask that is because these minutes refer on occasion to certain exhibits and documents, which exhibits and documents do not appear in the copy.

Mr. Dearmont: We do not have them in St. Louis. The Texas Corporation and Louisiana Corporation have their minutes in the state in which they were incorporated. We do have exact copies of them here in the Secretary's office, and that is what I furnished to you. I am advised by the Secretary, who is here in the court-room, and who has charge of all records here, that that is an exact copy of the original Minute Book.

Mr. Brandwen: There are no exhibits attached to the originals as a copy of the minutes indicate?

Mr. Dearmont: I asked Mr. A. T. Cole, the Secretary, and he told me this is an exact copy. There may be supporting documents in the file, of the railroad in Houston, that are referred to, but this is a copy of the original minutes.

Mr. Brandwen: Do I understand from that, that the original Minute Book does not contain any exhibits that are not found in the copy of this Minute Book?

Mr. Dearmont: I so understand from Mr. Cole. You may inquire of him. He is in the court-room.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to ask counsel for the Trustee whether he won't give us some more information. The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company is a Texas corporation?

Mr. Dearmont: I believe so.

Mr. Brandwen: Its principal office is at Kingsville, Texas?

Mr. Dearmont: Its principal office is in Houston.

Mr. Brandwen: The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico?

Mr. Dearmont: That is right.

Mr. Brandwen: If you should find it is not in Houston, let me know—Houston, Texas.

I read now from the minutes of an Executive Committee meeting of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, that bears the number 80, in the Minute Book furnished me by counsel for the Trustee yesterday afternoon.

Mr. McConaughy: I register a protest against the reading of minutes. He could have copied them last night and had them here as an exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't have a stenographic staff here. These minutes were furnished to us. We have to go through them; we didn't see them until yesterday afternoon.

Mr. McConaughy: Is there any reason why you didn't see them before yesterday afternoon? They might have been available for a long time. This case has been set for hearing since October, and it seems to me that it is a tremendous waste of time to permit Mr. Brandwen to stand there and read into the record all this material which could be covered by an exhibit.

Mr. Kirshbaum: May I be heard on that, too, Your Honor? I have sat here patiently for three days, while Mr. Brandwen goes through each paper. I think all counsel, as well as this Court, will be wanting to get through with this hearing, which was set for hearing objections to the Plan.

We have raised objections, and we feel that the Plan should be rejected. I hope that Mr. Brandwen's purpose is to do something like that, but I don't see why we should surrender this court-room to Mr. Brandwen at this late date, at this eleventh hour. I think the estate was burdened with the cost of counsel and counsel's services and expenses in conducting these hearings, and the Circuit Court of Appeals didn't seem to think that Mr. Brandwen's objections to this hearing was entitled to any special consideration.

I think Your Honor has been most fair, and more than gracious, in extending all this time, and I think it is time that he was kept within range—

Mr. Brandwen: If the Court please, may I be heard with respect to both these comments?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. McConaughy: I didn't hear that last word.

Mr. Brandwen: May I be heard with respect to the comments of both you gentlemen?

May it please the Court, I thought it was clearly understood that we would have a full opportunity and a day in court to present this matter on the merits. This is a claim involving eighteen million dollars—not eighteen cents, not eighteen dollars, but eighteen million dollars. It constitutes at least twenty-five per cent. of the claims against the estate of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

We served a subpoena duces tecum on counsel for the Trustee. Counsel for the Trustee, for reasons that seemed best to him, made an application to this Court to quash that subpoena. There was a hearing on that matter last Wednesday. So far as I know, there has been no disposition of that application. But be that as it may, counsel for the Trustee has stated, both to Mr. Biggs and myself, on a number of occasions, that it would save time, it would reduce the amount of labor to which people would be subjected if, as we needed documents, we advise him of that as much in advance as possible, and he would see to it that we got those materials, so that this court-room would not be filled with a good deal of material.

Now, I acquiesced in that as far as I could, and I am proceeding on that basis.

We have not looked at these documents before; we haven't seen them. If there is a document that is pertinent and material, then, if Your Honor please, I cannot be penalized that I have not had these copied. I don't have the facilities. I can't go to the Trustee's office and take advantage of the stenographic staff there and have those things typed. We have to do this ourselves and we have very limited facilities, extremely limited.

Mr. McConaughy: Why can he not simply put that book in, for the time being, and make a copy when he gets a chance to do it, and mark that as the exhibit?

I am just thinking of expedition here. We are in wartime today.

The Court: The Court is very sympathetic to the suggestion of expedition.

Mr. Brandwen: I believe we will achieve more expedition if I am allowed to handle it this way.

What I want to read and to use in evidence is extremely important and has a very vital bearing on the whole history of these matters.

The Court: How long is it going to take?

Mr. Brandwen: To read?

The Court: Not one particular item, but all you have in mind.

Mr. Brandwen: The testimony? I have no idea.

The Court: Two or three days, or a week or three weeks?

Mr. Brandwen: I think, so far as my direct testimony is concerned, it may perhaps be another week; perhaps less. If other counsel are burdened thereby—I don't see that my friend here—if he wants to stay in St. Louis and listen to this, that is up to him. But I don't think this claim of eighteen million dollars should in any way be affected by that kind of consideration.

Mr. Kirshbaum: There is more than eighteen million dollars involved in this hearing. This railroad involves considerably more than eighteen million dollars, and I think all counsel here will take, in the aggregate, far less time than Mr. Brandwen has himself so far taken on his one claim. And I may say, too, that this is all a charge against the estate, and I don't think it is fair to permit Mr. Brandwen to go on, like Tennyson's brook.

Mr. Brandwen: I asked for a separate hearing so that this matter could be separated from the objections to the Plan. Your Honor deemed it proper not to grant my application. If that had been done those people who are here on objections to the Plan would not have had to remain. They don't have to remain, even so. If it were heard as a separate hearing, only those people interested in this claim would be here.

Mr. Kirshbaum: As I understand, counsel was given an opportunity by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in its first report, before it rendered this supplemental report, to bring this matter into Court, and they had sixty days before the Interstate Commerce Commission rendered its modified plan, in which counsel could have presented these same items.

I don't impugn any other motive to Mr. Brandwen except trying to benefit this estate, but I can not see why this matter was not brought on before this. It seems to me that this eleventh hour attempt to take the whole stage and to surrender ourselves to him is a little bit unfair, to say the least.

Mr. Brandwen: I am not asking anybody to surrender anything. By the same token, I am asking that we be not required to surrender any basic rights.

I regret to say that this gentleman who just addressed Your Honor—whose name I don't have—

The Court: Mr. Kirshbaum.

Mr. Brandwen: Is not aware of what took place since the report was handed down by the Commission on July 4. If he were aware of what has taken place since the Commission handed down its report of July 4 he would not have made the statement which he made, but I will attribute that to lack of information.

The Court: Why is it necessary to read all these matters into the record, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: I feel that this evidence is very vital on the question of relationship of the Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It is part and parcel of the domination and control.

The Court: Why take up the time of the Court and counsel by reading it all?

Mr. Brandwen: I want to read one paragraph that is such an important paragraph that I don't think Your Honor could get the full picture of this unless those things are stated in the fashion that I want to do it. I think if it just goes in without any comments on them as I read them, I don't think Your Honor would be helped.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't think counsel is entitled to make comments at this time. If he wants to sum up at the end, all right.

The Court: There is no question about that.

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to summarize. I simply want to help Your Honor in respect to some of these things, so that Your Honor may understand just what I am trying to do, and it seems to me that that is perfectly appropriate in the trial of any case. It is not done as a mere mechanical matter, as though we put in a nickel in a vending machine and get the result—

Mr. McConaughy: I would like in this connection to have the record show that Mr. Brandwen showed the letter from Mr. Wylie, to Your Honor yesterday, for the purpose of determining whether it was admissible. Your Honor read it over, and then Mr. Brandwen proceeded to read that letter again in open court. I think that sort of procedure is wasteful.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, that was perfectly appropriate procedure.

The Court: You have one particular part?

Mr. Brandwen: I have one particular part. If I had read that it would have taken less time than all this discussion.

The Court: Very well; you may do that.

Mr. Brandwen: I am reading from the minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company.

"Held at office of the company, 3600 Terminal Tower, Cleveland, Ohio, at eleven o'clock A. M., April 26, 1933, pursuant to due notice.

"Present: Messrs. O. P. Van Sweringen, Chairman; L. W. Baldwin, William Wyer (Assistant Secretary)."

Mr. Brandwen: It may be stipulated in the record that Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen was the Chairman at that time, or Chief Executive Officer of the Alleghany Corporation?

Mr. McConaughy: Whom are you asking for that stipulation?

Mr. Brandwen: Anyone who is in the court-room—there are people here representing the Alleghany—if there is no objection.

Mr. Leisure: If you are addressing the question to me, I was taking care of something of my own and I was not paying attention to what you said.

Mr. Brandwen: What was the position that Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen held in the Alleghany Corporation on April 26, 1933?

Mr. Leisure: I am not sure. It has been a long time ago.

Mr. Kitchel: We don't know, Your Honor.

Mr. Brandwen: I will produce that evidence.

At this point I would like to offer in evidence a list of the officers and directors of the Alleghany Corporation for the year 1933.

(To opposing counsel) I will see that you get a copy of this in just a minute.

Mr. Leisure: May I see the exhibit?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes (handing document to Mr. Leisure). I now continue—

Mr. Leisure: Just a moment.

Mr. Brandwen: I beg your pardon. Of course, they are subject to correction—

Mr. Leisure: I assume this exhibit is offered under your proof on Objection 19?

Mr. Brandwen: It is offered in this proceeding, whatever we are proceeding under.

Mr. McConaughy: I am not prepared to admit that, unless somebody connected with the Alleghany can state that those were officers and directors at the time.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, all I have done is for the purpose of simplifying the testimony. This is taken from a recognized manual, Moody's Manual. That is a manual that is used currently. I could call somebody, but that would take very much more time.

Mr. Freund: I thought Mr. Brandwen was going to read from the minutes in the book he had before him, and there is nothing in there about the Alleghany Corporation. I think all this present discussion is due to an interpolation of Mr. Brandwen.

Mr. Brandwen: I have read part of the minutes and I am going to continue with other parts of the minutes, so the record can show who these people were.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor has our objection to Exhibit 27.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception. I will have to prove it in a longer way, then.

In the minutes from that same day. Petition to the Federal Court.

"The Chairman, O. P. Van Sweringen, (who acted as Chairman of the meeting) stated that the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company owes $1,400,000. accrued dividends to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, which it may be compelled to pay if the Trustee of the First Mortgage of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, with which the stock is pledged, demanded payment. The company has no funds with which to make such payment. In addition the company owes more than $300,000. in current unpaid vouchers and has cash of only about $130,000. and is unable to borrow or otherwise procure the balance of the fund needed.

"In the circumstances he recommends for consideration that the proper officers of this company be authorized to file in its behalf, in the District Court of the United States, Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri, a petition under Section 77 of Chapter 8 of the Act of Congress relating to bankruptcy, stating this company's inability to pay its debts as they mature, and it is desired to obtain the benefit of sub-section 77 by effecting a plan of reorganization in connection with and as part of the Plan of Reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, which filed a similar petition in said Court on March 31, 1933.

"Whereupon, after full discussion and motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, this company may be unable to meet its debts as they mature, and in the opinion of this committee it may be necessary that this company effect a plan of reorganization in connection with, and as a part of the Plan of Reorganization proposed to be effected by its proprietary company, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, in accordance with Section 77 of Chapter 8 of the Act of Congress relating to bankruptcy, by the filing of an appropriate petition for that purpose in the District Court of the United States, Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the President or any Vice-President of this company be and is hereby authorized, on behalf of this company and upon advice of counsel, to sign and/or verify and file with the District Court of the United States, Eastern Division, Eastern Judicial District of Missouri, a petition substantially in the form of the petition submitted to this meeting, or one having similar effect, with such changes in form or substance as may be made by any such officer on advice of counsel, and cause a copy thereof to be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Mr. McConaughy: I am a little confused. I think you said 1932 once and 1933 once. Kindly give us the date of that meeting.

Mr. Brandwen: The date of this meeting is April 26, 1933. If I stated at any time 1932, it was a complete inadvertence. I don't recall it, but it is clearly April 26, 1933.

I would like to point out that these minutes of April 26, 1933, bear the stamp of William Wyer, Assistant Secretary, and a statement of that "a true copy", with the signature, presumbably at least, it is written by Edwin G. Wagner, Assistant Secretary, which does not appear—

Mr. McConaughy: I don't see how important that material is. He has the main thing in. It is conceded that it is a true copy, and yet he goes on with all this material, just taking additional time.

Mr. Kitchel: If he had had it marked in evidence, Your Honor, and handed it to you to read, you could have read it in about one-tenth of the time he took, and you would be perfectly familiar with it.

Mr. Brandwen: I think it would have taken a fraction of the time it took to discuss it.

Mr. McConaughy: We are trying to see if we can not speed up the trial of this case.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't think you are doing it in the way it should be done.

Mr. Dearmont: While I represent no adversary party in this case, I would like to be of assistance in expediting this proceeding.

Had I been requested by counsel to furnish copies of these minutes of the corporation I should have been very glad to do so, and I will now undertake, if counsel will indicate at any time during the progress of the trial that he would like to have copies of any reasonable record—by "reasonable" I mean a reasonable amount of time of a stenographic staff such as the Trustee has, I would be very glad to furnish a copy, not only to Mr. Brandwen to introduce here in evidence, but copies for other counsel. I am not attempting to interfere with Mr. Brandwen's method of proceeding with this case, but I simply offer that to whoever cares to take advantage of that.

Mr. Brandwen: Thank you.

Q. Mr. Delaney, I hand you a cash book that counsel for the Trustee produced this morning, and ask you to look at it (handing book to the witness).

You have had occasion to look at the cash book which I just handed to you, before this hearing, have you not?

A. I have.

Q. Please describe what that cash book is that you have in your hands now.

A. This is Cash Book A of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, which purports to be transactions of cash received in New York during the period from April 1, 1925 to August 30th, 1930, and cash receipts and disbursements of the Cleveland office from September 1, 1930 to March 31, 1933.

Q. All, of course, of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company? A. So I am informed.

Q. Does the book indicate that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the date of the first advance reflected in that book, from Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. August 1, 1927, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, this amount advanced by them, $25,000.

Q. Advanced to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. This appears on the cash receipts side and reports a receipt from the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

Q. Is there any other advance in August, 1927?

A. On August 31, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, this amount advanced by them, $310,000.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. McConaughy, I have a series of checks that reflect those advances. In order not to incumber the record too much, and not delay matters, may I simply state how the check was signed and endorsed?

(Here ensued private colloquy between Mr. Brandwen and Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. McConaughy: Why can we not get together and stipulate?

Mr. Brandwen: No, we are not going to stipulate that, because there are many questions about that.

Mr. McConaughy: You want to mark and identify—

Mr. Brandwen: Instead of offering all these checks I want to state that there was a check covering that, signed by someone, and endorsed by someone.

Mr. McConaughy: All right, if you will let us see the checks.

Mr. Brandwen: Certainly.

The $25,000. advance from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is represented by the check of August 1, 1927, check drawn on Guaranty Trust Company, New York, signed by H. L. Utter, Treasurer, and endorsed for deposit to American Exchange Irving Trust Company, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, H. L. Utter, Assistant Treasurer, and the $310,000. item, to which the witness just testified, is drawn on the same bank, by Mr. Utter, as Treasurer, and endorsed by Mr. Utter as Assistant Treasurer.

Q. Now, were there any disbursements from this account in the month of August, 1927?

A. The cash book indicates there were.

Q. What were they?

A. August 1, 1931, Kuhn-Loeb Company, Bankers, for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, Equipment Trust Series C, deposit made in connection with the payment of the following equipment: American Locomotive Company, two switch locomotives, $23,679.35. Four baggage cars—

Mr. McConaughy (to the witness): Did you not say August 1, 1931

The Witness: August 1, 1927. Four baggage cars, $20,743.72, and on August 31, five steel chair cars, $40,821.32.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Was there any other disbursement during that month, in that account?

A. A number of minor other items, which comprise items such as the—

Mr. McConaughy: I object to all this detail. It is not necessary. It has nothing to do with the case at all, that they bought some steel cars.

Mr. Brandwen: I am perfectly willing, if that is agreeable to you, Mr. McConaughy, to simply state "equipment" and not have the details.

Mr. McConaughy: State the sum.

Mr. Brandwen: I am perfectly willing to do that, because I think your suggestion is sound, and I am willing to have it done on that basis. I just didn't want any question raised because he was reading from the original book record.

Q. You say there were other small disbursements?

A. American Exchange Irving Trust Company, dividend account, dividend 1-¾ per cent. on 148,329 shares N. O. T. & M. stock payable September 1, 1927, $259,575.75.

Mr. Brandwen: As reflecting the last payment, may I have the record to show there was a check in the amount of $259,575.75, which bears an endorsement on the back of it—

The Witness: For deposit American Exchange Irving Trust Company dividend account H. L. Utter.

Q. There were some other minor receipts, in the month of August, in that account? A. There were.

Q. What was the balance in that account on August 1, 1927? A. The books indicate $33,904.39.

Q. The receipts concerning which you testified, during that month— A. They total $335,608.88.

Q. And the total disbursements for the month were?

A. $345,891.73.

Q. You have already stated what the balance in this account was at the beginning of the month. What was the balance in the account at the end of the month?

A. The balance at the end of the month indicated $23,621.54.

Q. Were there any advances made in the month of September, 1927, and state what advances, if any?

A. Missouri Pacific.

Q. They were from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. The record indicates on September 15, 1927, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company advanced this amount, $590,000.

Mr. McConaughy: May I inquire how many of these months you are going to take month by month this way?

Mr. Brandwen: I wanted to deal with the advances as they appear on the books of the company.

Mr. McConaughy: I simply ask how many of these months there are that you were going to deal with.

Mr. Brandwen: There will probably be five years.

Mr. McConaughy: Month by month?

Mr. Brandwen: There are some months in which there were no advances.

Mr. McConaughy: Are those photostatic copies of this that you have there?

The Court: Is there not some way, if you have that many months to cover, that would suit your purpose and at the same time shorten this considerably?

Mr. Brandwen: I am perfectly willing to try that, if, for example, these gentlemen will stipulate what the cash balance of this account was at the beginning of the month, what the advances of the Missouri Pacific were during the month, what other receipts there may have been in that account during that month.

Mr. McConaughy: You ask Mr. Delaney to prepare tables from this record, showing exactly what you want to show, in the form of an exhibit, and we will take it and you can put it in the record, and it will save all this time.

The Court: It will save considerable time.

Mr. Brandwen: There are certain matters that we have not gotten any data on, that I would like to inquire about. We have not been able to get any data, in connection with these receipts and disbursements—

The Court: Would that prevent you from adopting the suggestion of Mr. McConaughy?

Mr. Brandwen: We can not make it completely unless we have the additional material with respect to those.

Now, if your Honor feels that we should sit down and prepare such a schedule, if it is agreeable with counsel we are perfectly willing to take a couple of hours off, get a schedule ready and see how far we can get, and then supplement that by additional material.

Mr. McConaughy: I think that would save a great deal. The stenographer has taken all this down at a great deal of expense for a transcript. I don't see any use of putting it all in.

Can we take that up later this afternoon?

Mr. Brandwen: No. I want to go along with as orderly testimony as I can.

I make that suggestion, that we take a couple of hours off at this time and we can get that material up.

(To the witness) Do you think it can be done in a couple of hours?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: As long as Mr. McConaughy is not raising any question about the fact that we are taking these from the record—

The Court: Then we will adjourn at this time until two o'clock?

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right. We won't bother to check it now. Let him put it in, and accept it subject to check.

The Court: Announce a recess until two o'clock.

At this point, at eleven o'clock A. M., a recess was had until two o'clock P. M.

JAMES M. DELANEY,

having been previously sworn, and resuming the stand, testified further as follows:

By Mr. Brandwen:

Mr. Leisure: May it please your Honor, this morning before the adjournment, Mr. Brandwen asked me to concede that Mr. Van Sweringen was the chairman of the board of Allegheny in 1933. I didn't know at the time, and in open court I hesitated to make such concession. However, over the period of the noon hour I have checked it and I have found that he was not chairman of the board in 1933, but I want to check it further, and if Mr. Brandwen will give me a list of any lawyers such as this exhibit that he has, I mean any directors that he wants to show their position as officers, I will be very happy to take it and check it, and if it is correct, we will interpose no objection, and I have spoken to Mr. McConaughy and he says if they are correct, he has no objection, either, so there will be no objection to that kind of exhibit, or if it interferes with the orderly proof that he wants to put in, if he wants to put the exhibit in, subject to our having the right to correct, then I shall have no objection to it.

Mr. Brandwen: Since Mr. Leisure was good enough to do a little investigating work in the noon hour, did he determine from his investigation as to what office Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen occupied in the Allegheny Corporation in April, 1933?

Mr. Leisure: Yes, sir, my information is, Mr. Brandwen, that he was president.

Mr. Brandwen: Then, let the record show that Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen was president of Allegheny Corporation April 26, 1933, the date as of which the meeting of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico was held.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Delaney, in connection with the proof of claim which is marked Comstock Exhibit 1, for identification, did you make an examination of the original cash book that was furnished by the Trustee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. I made an examination of the New York and/or Cleveland Assistant Treasurer cash book of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad.

Q. And based on your examination, did you prepare any schedule thereon? A. I have.

Q. And do you have that schedule with you? A. I have.

Q. Would you please state to the court the substance, by categories, that you made of that schedule?

A. The schedule that I have prepared from the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company cash book A, I made certain extracts in regard to receipts and disbursements recorded therein. This extract shows the month, the balance at the beginning of the month, the amount received from the Missouri Pacific at the beginning of the month, the amount received from others during the month, miscellaneous receipts by the assistant-treasurer at New York or Cleveland, it shows the total receipts during the month, it shows the total balance available during the month. The disbursements show the check number where available, the amount of disbursements, the payee, and a brief description covering what the disbursement was made for.

Q. Is there anything contained in this schedule that does not appear in the original book from which you have prepared this schedule?

A. Yes, sir, on the last sheet there is a summary.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer these in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: I make no objection, if your Honor. If there are any mistakes in it, we will call them.

Mr. Brandwen: That is always understood.

Mr. McConaughy: And I take it, we will have a copy of that this evening.

Mr. Brandwen: We will have this photostated, try to have this photostated at the office of the Missouri Pacific at the close of the session. Mark this as our next exhibit.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 27.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 75.]

Q. This is the only copy you have, isn't it?

A. That is correct.

Q. I am going to inquire about a few of these items.

Mr. Brandwen: Would your Honor like to look at it?

The Court: Yes.

(Mr. Brandwen hands same to the Court)

Q. Without going into detail, just take one month as an illustration simply for convenience, I have it before me, and I just want only one month to illustrate the point, if your Honor please. Please state what was the balance remaining, I am simply taking this as an illustration, in the beginning of the month of February, 1930.

A. The cash book indicated a balance of $13,565.35.

Q. State the receipts dividing them between those from Missouri Pacific and other sources.

A. The books indicate $260,000 was received from Missouri Pacific, and $311.14 from miscellaneous sources.

Q. And state what the disbursements were during that month from that account?

A. During that month check 1481, in the amount of $259,575.75 was issued to the Irving Trust Company, dividends account. The explanation in the cash book is it was a dividend of 1¾% on the N. O. T. M. stock. There were sundry miscellaneous disbursements of $448.93, or a total for the month of $261,024.68.

Q. And there were many other entries of comparable character in other months throughout the period in this schedule?

A. That is correct. They are described as miscellaneous disbursements.

Q. And as I say, the analysis of receipts and disbursements which you gave in the month of February is found repeated in a number of instances throughout this schedule? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: The counsel for the Trustee has produced a series of checks and I had a schedule prepared for the convenience of the Court and counsel. They are checks drawn by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, on the Guaranty Trust Company, and the schedule shows the date of the check, the number of the check, the amount, by whom it is signed and whom it is endorsed by, and a few notes explaining certain special cases. Instead of offering these checks, I would like to have offered this schedule. They don't cover all the advances, but they just cover checks that were given to us for this period.

Mr. Kitchel: Were those checks cashed?

Mr. Brandwen: They were endorsed; they were deposited.

Mr. Kitchel: They went through the account?

Mr. Brandwen: I assume so. The checks show they were endorsed. I assume they went through the account. They bear the usual stamp. I thought it might be simpler to do it this way.

Mr. McConaughy: It is all right, Your Honor; subject to our objection, it may go in.

Mr. Brandwen: Mark this in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 28.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 83.]

Mr. McConaughy: May I inquire, Mr. Brandwen, that is all you want with the checks, is it? We will have access to them?

Mr. Brandwen: Oh, certainly, we got them from the trustee; of course. All I say is these are the only checks that we received from the trustee during this period.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right; I haven't any doubt but what it is correct. We just want to make sure.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, Mr. Delaney, I believe that in the month of November of 1930, there were certain advances recorded on the books from the Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Would you please state the items relating thereto on the cash book?

A. November, 1930, receipts indicate $300,000. was received from the Missouri Pacific.

Q. Does the cash book indicate when a check was issued by Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas, Mexico, for that item? What does the entry indicate in the cash book?

A. Will you please re-read the question?

(Last question read.)

A. The cash book shows a receipt of $300,000.

Q. I show you copy of a letter and ask you whether you have ever seen this before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is a letter written, copy of a letter written by Mr. William Wyer, Treasurer, on Missouri Pacific Railroad stationery, to Mr. J. P. Morgan & Company, November 26, 1930. It says, among other things: "This will serve as your authority"—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute.

Mr. Kitchel: It isn't in evidence yet.

(Mr. Brandwen hands same to Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. McConaughy: Okay.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(A paper was then marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 29.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 84.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would your Honor like to see this letter?

The Court: Yes.

(Mr. Brandwen hands same to the Court)

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to call your Honor's attention to the item that says: "This will serve as your authority to charge against the above account on November 29, 1930, credit New Orleans, Texas & Mexico $300,000."

Q. Going to December, 1930, does the cash book indicate issuance of a check by Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with respect to any advance during that month?

A. The cash book of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico indicates receipt of $50,000 from Missouri Pacific.

Q. I show you this letter and ask you if you have ever seen this before?

A. I have seen a copy of this letter before.

Mr. Brandwen: I just have some notes on this one. May I just offer the other one?

(Handing same to Mr. McConaughy)

I would like to offer that in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: No objection.

Mr. Brandwen: Mark this as an exhibit.

(Said paper was marked by the Reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 30.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 85.]

Q. Would you please state what other receipts there were in this cash account in the month of December, other than those from Missouri Pacific, that are not very trifling? A. May I see the cash book, please?

Q. Don't you have the cash book with you? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't?

Mr. McConaughy: Will you state what year?

Mr. Brandwen: 1930.

The Witness: December 6th the book indicates receipt from the Railway Express Agency, express receipts as per check book memorandum, $18,737.00, and the 22nd of December, Railway Express Agency, Incorporated, express receipts as per check book memorandum, $14156, and on the 29th, ditto for $2020.10. There were interest on the balances of the Guaranty Trust Company, and—

Q. I don't want to ask you about the minor items, disregard those very minor items. Coming to January, 1931, does the cash book indicate any advances from Missouri Pacific Railroad to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in the form of a check?

A. The cash book indicates receipt here of $247,750.

Q. And it doesn't state whether that was in the form of a check or not? A. No, sir.

Q. I show you this letter and ask you if you have ever seen this before?

A. I have seen copy of this letter attached to check stub, No. 10948, Guaranty Trust Company book numbered with check stubs numbered 10,501, to 11,000.

Q. This is a letter from—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute. Do you have a copy of it?

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to give you a copy of it.

Mr. McConaughy: I want it before you start reading it.

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to read it, I just want to state whom it is from. This is a letter from William Wyer, Treasurer, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to J. P. Morgan, dated January 28, 1931. Offer this in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: It is all right with the exception of the last two lines of the exhibit, which are not on the original.

Mr. Brandwen: All right.

Mr. McConaughy: You can leave it on, but the record shows that they are not offered, is that right?

Mr. Brandwen: No, he just stated where he saw it. If you want them off, that is all right.

(Said Letter was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 31.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 86.]

Mr. Brandwen: May the record show that Mr. Wyer is in the court room and is examining the copies of these exhibits before they are being offered for evidence.

Q. Now, coming to March, 1931, will you look at the cash book and see whether the cash book indicates that advance from Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in that month, was represented by a check, or evidenced by a check?

A. The cash book indicates receipt from Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, on the 31st of March, in the amount of $925,000.

Q. I show you this letter and ask you whether you have seen this, or a copy thereof, before?

A. I have seen a copy of this letter.

Mr. Brandwen: This is a letter from Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, William Wyer, Treasurer, to J. P. Morgan & Company, dated March 25, 1931. I offer it in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: No objection.

(Said letter was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 32.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 87.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) I show you this letter and ask you whether you have seen this or a copy thereof before?

A. I have seen a copy of this letter before, attached to Guaranty Trust Company stub No. 10972 of Missouri Pacific Railways check stub book.

Q. In the month of September, 1931, does the cash book disclose any advances from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? If so, in what amount?

A. The cash book of the New Orleans, Texas, Mexico Cleveland office indicates on September 30th, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company advanced this amount at 5%, $850,000.

Mr. Brandwen: I wish to offer in evidence now a letter from Mr. Wyer to J. P. Morgan, dated September 25, 1931.

Mr. McConaughy: No objection.

(Said letter was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 33.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 89]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Coming to October, 1931, does the cash book evidence any advance from the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? If so, in what amount?

A. The cash book of the Cleveland office indicates that on October 31, 1931, the Missouri Pacific advanced this amount at 5%, $125,000.

Q. I show you this letter, and ask you whether you have [——] this, or a copy thereof?

A. I have seen copy of this letter attached to stub No. 10975 of Guaranty Trust Company, check stub book of Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Brandwen: I wish to offer in evidence letter written by Mr. William Wyer, Treasurer, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to J. P. Morgan on October 24, 1931.

Mr. McConaughy: There is a typographical error there, Mr. Brandwen. They don't add up.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, now, then,—

Mr. McConaughy: It must be a mistake in the the copying.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, we will check this and have it corrected, subject to correction.

Mr. McConaughy: All right.

Mr. Brandwen: As all the others are.

Mr. McConaughy: That, we are pretty sure, is wrong.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, that is.

Mr. McConaughy: You will see that it is corrected?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I will see that that is corrected.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 34.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 90.]

Mr. Brandwen: The error in addition or subtraction there made a zero for a six, but I won't take the time right now to calculate it.

Mr. McConaughy: It is a million off.

Mr. Brandwen: It doesn't affect the amount of the advance in any way. I might as well have it corrected right now. May I change it in pencil? It should be a 3 instead of a 2. The item up above is correct. And change their copy, too.

Q. Now, coming to March, 1932—

Mr. McConaughy: May I interrupt just a second? With respect to copies of these exhibits, it appears that there may have been omitted the initials of the dictator of the letter, and if we wish to put those on, I assume there will be no objection.

Mr. Brandwen: I would be delighted to have them, because I notice in some of the letters we have them, and on others we do not. But certainly I would like to have them on myself. That is quite satisfactory if you will let me have them. I will be delighted to supplement these exhibits.

Mr. McConaughy: You have access to them and can correct them. Go right ahead. They are your exhibits.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Coming to March, 1932, does the cash book evidence any advance from Missouri Pacific Railroad to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? If so, in what amount?

A. The cash book does not indicate an advance during the month of March.

Q. Does it indicate any advance in the month of April?

A. The cash book indicates on April 1, the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, advanced a certain amount at 6%, $925,000.

Q. I show you this letter and ask you whether you have seen this, or a copy of it before?

A. I have seen a copy of this letter before.

Mr. Brandwen: I wish to offer in evidence letter written by Edwin G. Wagner, Assistant Treasurer, to J. P. Morgan & Company, March 28, 1932. I assume, Mr. Wagner, I am told he is in the room.

Mr. McConaughy: I have no objection, subject to check.

(Said letter marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 35.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 91.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) I now come to September, 1932, and ask you whether the cash book evidences any advance from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in the month of September, 1932?

A. The cash book does not indicate an advance received from Missouri Pacific in September.

Q. Is there one in October, 1932?

A. The cash book indicates on October 1, 1932, Missouri Pacific Railroad Company advanced this amount at 6%, $800,000.

Q. I show you this letter and ask you if you have seen this, or a copy of it before?

A. I have seen copy of this letter.

Mr. Brandwen: This letter purports to be written by Mr. William Wyer, Treasurer, Missouri Pacific, to J. P. Morgan & Company, September 26, 1932. I offer it in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: No objection.

(Said paper was marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 36.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 92.]

Mr. Brandwen: Coming to your summary—

Mr. McConaughy: Are you through with these advances?

Mr. Brandwen: No, no, I am dealing with the exhibits.

Mr. McConaughy: I mean are you through with the Missouri Pacific advances to the N O T M?

Mr. Brandwen: No.

Mr. McConaughy: This is all the advances you want to prove, is it?

Mr. Brandwen: No.

Mr. McConaughy: Some more advances?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, this exhibit deals with advances. That is the purpose of the exhibit. I dealt with those that were not reflected by checks as exhibited by the letters.

Mr. McConaughy: The exhibit does not show all the advances.

Mr. Brandwen: May I make it clear, Mr. McConaughy, from the very beginning?

Mr. McConaughy: What I am getting at here is, you have gone through and had him testify to each one of a number of advances, all of which could have been put in one sheet of paper, together with each of these documents, and they could have gone in as one exhibit in two minutes, while you have taken practically an hour to do it. I just want the record to note our protest.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, will the record show that it is now five minutes of three. We started proceedings this afternoon either 2:15 or 2:20. We introduced the exhibits, and discussed exhibits before we got to these letters. Let the record show that, so far as time is concerned. I think that if we are going to have anything in the record at least with respect to a matter as simple as that we could have a much closer approximation.

The Court: Mr. McConaughy suggests a question to the court, and that is, why is it necessary to do this in this way?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, the exhibit that was introduced, which is No.—what is that number?

The Witness: 27.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, you have it. 27?

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Brandwen: Is a record of all advances made by Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as they appear in the cash book for the period covered by the claim in question, all of them as they appear in that cash book.

Now, the advances were divided into two categories. There were checks for some advances, and there were these letters for others. I gave an exhibit with respect to those checks that were given to us for this period in question, and I supplemented that with these letters with respect to those advances that are not evidenced by checks, and those letters are very important, as showing how that was done.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen has been in this case before this. He ought to know the record. Everyone of these advances is listed in one document already in the record before this court. He is completely duplicating information that is already in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor Please, I challenge Mr. McConaughy to establish these advances.

Mr. McConaughy: Everyone of these advances that he has enumerated here today appear on an exhibit in this court record now that was taken before the commission. I will name it, it is No. 226. Now, all those letters could have been bunched together and put in one exhibit and put in here. It is just a dragging out process. There is no excuse for it, I think, your Honor.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I want to state as clearly as I know how that this evidence that we have in exhibit 27 offered this afternoon—

Mr. McConaughy: I am not even talking about Exhibit No. 27.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, may I be permitted to finish my statement without interruption from Mr. McConaughy? If your Honor please, I will repeat that the evidence contained in Exhibit 27, which we have offered this afternoon is not contained in any document that has ever been submitted to this Court, or to the Commission. I am not saying that some items contained in that exhibit have not been submitted to the Commission, certainly some were. I say this is the first time that any exhibit has been offered in connection with these proceedings which contain—the evidence which is contained within the four walls of Exhibit 27,

Mr. McConaughy: I say that Mr. Brandwen might as well discuss the war in China, because I haven't even mentioned Exhibit 27. That went in. I was happy to see him put it in that way. What I have objected to is this: asking the witness to enumerate each and every one of these advances, which already appear in an exhibit filed in this court, and then offering in evidence separately each letter, taking up all of that time. There is no excuse for it.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I repeat the information and material that has been offered to your Honor this afternoon has not appeared before the Commission and was not submitted to your Honor at any time. I know the exhibits they have reference to, and it is because I understand that exhibit very well, that I felt it was necessary to have this information so that there would be no question as to what the facts are.

The Court: It is difficult for the Court to know just what is contained in various exhibits. You may proceed.

Mr. Brandwen: Thank you.

Q. Mr. Delaney, coming back to Exhibit 27, have you a total of all the advances made by Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. McConaughy: Now, isn't that fact in the record?

Mr. Brandwen: That is. I am just asking one question so that your Honor may have in one convenient answer in one place, just what the total figure is.

The Court: It is already there.

Mr. McConaughy: You have put it in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor is not interested in getting that figure right now, I will pass it by. The total is in there, but my thought was that you might have this figure a little more clearly. I just wanted to do that for your Honor's convenience. It is there, that is true.

The Court: Very well. He may answer.

A. Total advances through the New York and/or Cleveland Treasurer's cash book—

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) According to that exhibit?

A. According to that exhibit, yes, $9,531,750.

Q. Does that exhibit disclose any repayments, from New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to Missouri Pacific? A. Yes.

Q. In what amount? A. Amount of $364,000.

Q. So that the total net advances from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, disclosed by Exhibit 27 is? A. $9,167,750.

Q. Now, Mr. Delaney, did you examine any other books to determine whether there were any other—any other original books of account and records of the Missouri Pacific, or New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to determine whether there were any other advances from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes.

Q. Will you state what they were, please?

Mr. McConaughy: Aren't those advances in the record?

Mr. Brandwen: In what record?

Mr. McConaughy: The record before this Court?

Mr. Brandwen: No. You read those exhibits, Mr. McConaughy, and see just what is in the record. You will find it is quite a different story.

Mr. McConaughy: You are asking him merely as to what advances there were. The whole list of advances are in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I want to state again as clearly as I know how that not up to this point is there any evidence, any document that gives a true picture of the advances of Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, no matter how much protesting may be uttered by my friend, and when an examination is made, if they choose to offer anything, and if your Honor admits it, then your Honor will see quite clearly what is involved.

The Court: Is there anything before the Court?

Mr. Brandwen: There is something, but I didn't know whether there was an objection or not.

The Court: I don't know either.

Mr. McConaughy: I am just protesting, Your Honor, at this repetition.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor, please—

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Will you answer?
A. Will you repeat the question, please?

(Question read.)

Mr. Brandwen: That is in addition to those listed on Exhibit 27? A. Yes.

Q. Will you state what they were?

A. The Missouri Pacific records, and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico records indicate that on April 30, 1932, there was an advance of $100,000 made directly to N O T M, and that is all during that period covered by the exhibit.

Q. Now, do any other—have you in the course of your examination of other books of account and records of Missouri Pacific, and N O T M ascertained whether there were any repayments from New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to Missouri Pacific, in addition to the repayments covered by Exhibit No. 27? A. There are.

Q. Would you please give the dates and amounts of those repayments?

A. The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico local treasurer's records indicate that on June 30, 1930, $500,000 was repaid. On March 31, 1931, $8800.00. August 31, 1931, $200,000. October 31, 1931, $75,000. December 31, 1931, $100,000. February 29, 1932, $300,000, and August 31, 1932, $225,000. A total of $1,408,800.

Q. Now, if you will just engage in a simple bit of arithmetical computation by adding to the summary of the exhibit the additional amounts to which you have just testified and deduct therefrom the additional repayments that you have just testified to, what figure do you arrive at as total net advances from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, during that period? A. $7,858,950.

Q. Mr. Delaney, I now come to Comstock Exhibit 25, which was offered in evidence yesterday, and I call your attention to an item, a category in that exhibit called unadjusted debits, and there are two items underneath that category of unadjusted debits as of December 31, 1932, one called rents and insurance premiums paid in advance, $18,200, and the other called "Otner unadjusted debits" of $16,101,497., is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Do you have this information in any other schedule?

A. No.

Q. What is this item of unadjusted debits? Is there any category in the Interstate Commerce Commission accounting regulations that deals with unadjusted debits or defines unadjusted debits? A. There is.

Q. Would you please let us have it?

A. I am reading from the uniform system of accounting for steam railroads, accounting classifications governing investments and road equipment, operating revenues and expenses, prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission which is published by the American Association of—

Mr. McConaughy: How long is this going to be? Isn't that a published document that you can get a hundred copies of?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes. I wanted to have the record show what "other unadjusted debits" are.

Mr. McConaughy: You can put the document in evidence.

Mr. Brandwen: All I want to read one paragraph. I thought the court ought to know from what the witness is reading.

Mr. McConaughy: The court can read the exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: But from what is being read, just what it is, I want to excerpt one paragraph from there.

The Court: Proceed.

The Witness: Containing publishers notes, "The contents of this volume have been verified by the Bureau of accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission with authentic records of the Commission." On page 224, paragraph No. 727, other unadjusted debits.

Mr. Brandwen: Just a minute. May I change that?

Mr. McConaughy: Did he identify the document from which he was reading?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, that is the document he was reading from.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have the document identified.

Mr. Brandwen: All right. This is an accounting classification issue. It is prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. McConaughy: It is important to have the date, Mr. Brandwen.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I know. I am going to get back to the date. What we have here is one effective January 1, 1943. We will come to that.

Q. Now, I would like to ask you this question: Do these Interstate Commerce Commission regulations have any category known as "Other unadjusted debits"?

A. They do.

Q. And would you please read into the record how the Interstate Commerce Commission defines other unadjusted debits?

Mr. Brandwen: I want to say at this point, if your Honor please, we don't have a copy as of December 31, 1932. We will try to get a copy; if there is any change in that definition, I would appreciate it if counsel on the other side—

Mr. McConaughy: You don't know whether there is any change, is that it, you are assuming there is no change?

Mr. Brandwen: I myself don't know.

Mr. McConaughy: Why don't you ask the witness?

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Do you know whether there has been a change in the definition of other unadjusted debits between 1932, and the present time? A. I don't know.

Q. Will you read—

Mr. McConaughy: What is the use of reading it? How do you know it is in force, was in force at the time? I object to it as being not proved in effect at the time that is in controversy here.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, we have people, I am sure, from the auditing staff of the Missouri Pacific, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, who might perhaps answer that question. I don't want to interrupt this witness, but if we are to go on, I would like to ask one of those employees of the trustee to answer that if he can.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception. I would like to ask counsel for the trustee whether in your records you have a copy of the Interstate Commerce Commission accounting regulations that were in force from 1925 to 1933, inclusive?

Mr. Dearmont: Will you give me just a moment?

Mr. Brandwen: Surely.

Mr. Dearmont: I am advised by the chief accounting officer that he believes he has probably that in his office, that is, for any particular year. 1932, do you want?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, for 1932, but I think since we are asking for it, to avoid any question about that, I thought if we would take the accounting regulations during that entire period of 1925 to 1933, inclusive, we could simplify matters.

Mr. Dearmont: Yes, they have, and they will inquire and advise you shortly.

Mr. McConaughy: What kind of preparation for trial is this, I ask your Honor? The case was set for hearing back in October. He wants to prove accounting regulations and hasn't got them in court, and this is a document published by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Brandwen: Well,—

The Court: I don't think it is necessary to call upon the trustee's counsel for that.

Mr. Brandwen: To show just what these other unadjusted debits were. Well, in view of the fact trustee's counsel stated that those records were probably available, I would like to get them from him, if I could, so as to save time, if I may.

The Court: If he desires to show them to you.

Mr. Dearmont: The assistant accounting officer has gone out to inquire, and will produce them if we have them.

Mr. Brandwen: Thank you.

Q. Now, do you have any split-up of the other unadjusted debits which you have stated here, which has been stated here as $16,101,497, into component parts as reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Would you please state what they are?

A. According to the annual report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ended December 31, 1932, the unadjusted debits are indicated to be family line bills, $15,867,538.50, and other items $233,958.44.

Q. That is to say, the designation family line bills as it appears in that report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission is one of the sub-heads of "other unadjusted debits", all of which total $16,119,697.00; is that it?

A. That is correct.

Q. And what are the other items contained in the category of "other unadjusted debits"?

A. Will you please restate the question?

Q. Are there any other items stated in the category "other unadjusted debits" besides those of "other unadjusted debits" family line bills?

A. Yes, there are other items.

Q. And they amounted to? A. $233,958.44.

Q. I ask you to examine a copy of the report filed by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway with the Interstate Commerce Commission as of December 31, 1932, and ask you whether there is any statement or comment made with respect to this item: "Other unadjusted debits family line bills" in that report?

A. The annual report of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company, to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1932, indicates on page 219, schedule 228, other unadjusted debits family-line-accounts. "Open accounts of affiliated companies to be applied in offset settlement at time of general liquidation of all amounts due to or from affiliated companies, $15,867,538.70."

Q. That is the only comment made with respect to the item "Other unadjusted debits—family line bills" as it appears in that report? A. That is correct.

Q. From an examination of this report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, this item of other unadjusted debits family line bills appears in balance sheet of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it appears on the asset side of the balance side?

A. It does.

Q. And does it appear in the category of current assets?

A. No, sir.

Q. Does it appear in the category of deferred assets?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where does it appear?

A. It appears as the last item on the balance sheet under other unadjusted debits.

Q. On the asset side? A. On the asset side, account 727.

Q. Do you know from an examination of the original book records of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, what was comprised within this item "other unadjusted debits—family line bills"?

[Q.] During the course of my examination at Houston, Texas, I was informed of the general nature of the make-up of those accounts.

Q. Who informed you thereof?

A. Mr. Banks, assistant auditor New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Q. And would you state what you were informed by him?

A. I requested Mr. Banks to furnish me with the details of the $15,867,538.70, of family line bills of December 31, 1932. In the limited time at my disposal I had only people to show me details that were attached to a journal entry that was made as of December 31, 1933, which was supported by a detailed statement of the family line bills.

Q. What was the amount of other unadjusted debits-family line bills as of December 31, 1933?

A. Prior to the entry of journal No. 56, the amount was $15,659,743.69.

Q. That is a difference of how much between this latter figure than you quoted and the figure as of December 31, 1932? A. Approximately $200,000.

Q. Did you have occasion to talk with Mr. Banks about the relative and comparative character of the family line bills as of December 31, 1933, and those of December 31, 1932?

A. Mr. Banks furnished me with the supporting vouchers of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad, vouchers that were unpaid in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, having liabilities prior to March, 1933. From those vouchers and also within the limited time at my disposal, I ascertained that the general nature of the charges might be classified as follows:

Q. Charges you mean in the family line bills?

A. That is correct. There are charges for a proportion of joint expenses pooled during the month for fuel, oil used during the month, per diem reclaimed and mileage paid, maintenance and supplies, dividends and other charges too numerous to mention, but this will indicate the general make-up of the bills that I saw.

Q. These bills that you are now testifying to are the other unadjusted debits family line bills?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did he indicate to you whether there was any substantial change in the category of the family line bills between December 31, 1932, and December 31, 1933?

A. No, sir.

Q. He indicated there was no substantial change?

A. No substantial change.

Q. Now, I believe you testified yesterday that among the family line bills that were unpaid as of December, 1933, immediately prior to December 31, 1933, were two dividends declared on June 17, 1931, amounting to—was it $650,000.

Mr. McConaughy: 55.

The Witness: $655,000.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) $655,000. Is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. You found bills among the family line bills for those two dividends among those unpaid bills immediately prior to December 31, 1933? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, you referred to a journal entry No. 56 on December 31, 1933. Do you have an exact copy thereof?

A. No, I just made a transcript of the information contained on the voucher.

Q. And would you please state what the transcript discloses?

A. The transcript discloses that the charges were made to advances to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company, of $10,664,331.10; Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western Railroad, $3,588,548.60; Orange Northwestern Railroad Company, $201,111.78, and New Iberian Northern Railroad, $1,205,752.21. A credit was made to family line bills of $15,659,743.69, and the explanation on the journal substantially states as follows: To transfer family line bills of record as of November 30, 1933, having liability prior to 4/1/33, from account 727, unadjusted debits to account 706, advances to affiliated companies as authorized by auditor's file 21-0, and as detailed on the statement attached to file copy of this entry.

Q. May I ask whether—to break down in simpler terms just what happened and see if this is correct: That journal entry No. 56 states that there were family line bills in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and owed by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, Beaumont Sour Lake & Western, Iberian— A. New Iberian.

Q. New Iberian & Northern, and what is the other?

A. Orange Northwestern.

Q. And Orange Northwestern in the amount of fifteen million— A. —$659,743.69.

Q. $15,659,743.69, which were still unpaid?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the amount of the family line bills still unpaid as of April 1, 1933, of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway were $10,664,331.10? A. That is correct.

Q. Family line bills prior to April 1, 1933? A. Yes.

Q. And that the total amount of other unadjusted debits-family line bills prior to April 1, 1933, still unpaid of the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western were $3,588,548.60?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that there were family line bills owing, due from Orange & Northwestern Railroad for a period prior to April 1, 1933, in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, which were still unpaid in the amount of $201,111.78?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that there were family line bills due from New Iberian Northern Railroad Company, bills coming into being prior to April 1, 1933, in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in the amount of $1,205,752.21, which were still unpaid? A. That is correct.

Q. And am I correct in understanding that the journal entry arranged a transfer of all these unpaid family line bills due from these four respective subsidiaries which were still unpaid as of April 1, 1933, to another account on the balance sheet of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the account to which these unpaid family line bills of these four respective subsidiaries were transferred, was that under the investment account?

A. That is where this classification is.

Q. It was transferred to a position in the investment account. And what are the categories in the investment account? You have a copy of the report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A. Investments in affiliated companies, it is sub-divided into A, stock, B, bonds, C, notes and D advances.

Q. And then this journal entry which was accomplished shortly after the proceedings here began in this court effected a transfer of these unpaid family line bills to this account of advances in the investment account of N O T M and affiliated companies? A. That is correct.

Q. And there had been some figures in the advances account of the investment account prior to this transfer?

A. That is correct.

Q. And this was in addition to that account?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in that examination that you made of these family line bills when you were in Houston, did you get any details dealing with the age of these unpaid family line bills? A. I did.

Q. Will you please particularize them, insofar as you can, without too great detail?

A. I made aging based upon the audit—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I want to protest once again. He could have these on a piece of paper, listing them and the dates of each when the interest and dividends accrued. Now, we have to listen to this for 15 minutes.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, your Honor please, perhaps we can do that. Do you have anything that we can conveniently do that? A. Yes, sir, this schedule.

Q. All right.

The Court: We recessed an hour too early this morning. If you think it would shorten this matter a good deal to total up a good many of these matters, I wish you would.

Mr. Brandwen: We only took ten minutes to get a bite. We will do everything we can. It is, as your Honor appreciates, a tremendous matter. I have not gone to bed before one o'clock any night since I have been here.

The Court: I understand. This matter has been going on here for years and years, and this comes in at the last moment. It seems to me you could organize this so as to take a great deal less time.

Mr. Brandwen: We are doing everything we humanly can to do that, if your Honor please. Of course, if your Honor please, in respect to a matter that involves a relationship, as you know, of parent and subsidiary, you are dealing with a great many aspects that are not typical of ordinary dealings between people who are dealing with each other at arms length, and one cannot read records, for example, such as in the Commonwealth case, or the Deep Rock case, without being impressed with the detail that those various tribunals have required parties to go into, in order to be able to show the full effects of what was done, and after all here you have a relationship of parent, Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and have got twenty-two companies, you are dealing with twenty-five railroad companies, you are not dealing with a very simple situation, the ramifications are tremendous, I can appreciate, your Honor, and nothing would please me more, and I am not saying this merely as a matter of words, I mean this very sincerely, we are trying and I think that your Honor will agree that when this matter is concluded that we have really exercised the utmost in resourcefulness for the purpose of simplifying the issues instead of going into all kinds of detail, and I can't do it at the moment to show just the extent to which we have gone for the purpose of making the issues so simple and how we have brushed aside so many things that might have been properly considered. We simply have said to ourselves, we will have to deal with the most important, with the basic issues and let the other things go by the board so that it will not be too complicated. If your Honor please, I really would like you to believe me that we have really gone to tremendous lengths. As I say, I have read through records in matters of this kind, and there is just no comparison in the streamlining that we are doing here, and that we propose to do.

Mr. Kitchel: We admit it is a complicated situation. Mr. Biggs started this proposition back in October, 1943, before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Counsel has made one or two endeavors to have this thing brought on by special intervention, but apparently the unraveling of this complex situation, as far as I can make out from counsel's statement, has been rather left to the last moment, and he comes in here more or less unprepared.

Now, I think he has had plenty of time since October, 1943, to date to prepare himself thoroughly, even in this complex situation he has mentioned.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I do think that Mr. Kitchel's statement that we come in here unprepared is really as contrary to the facts as we know any statement can be. We have worked on this matter most assiduously, not at the last minute at all, and if we hadn't worked most assiduously in this matter, there couldn't be any kind of presentation such as has been made to this date. We have worked certainly as energetically and as vigorously as any counsel that I know of who have worked in the preparation of any litigation, and to say that we come in at the last moment unprepared, I think really it is not fair, it is entirely baseless, and entirely unwarranted, in fact, and it is entirely without justice.

Mr. Kitchel: I understand, I am just informed that Mr. Delaney, the accountant, began his work in the Missouri Pacific offices on December 10, about three weeks ago.

The Court: This is January 10th.

Mr. Kitchel: Beg pardon?

The Court: This is January 10th.

Mr. Kitchel: Yes, a month.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I don't know how many people of the Missouri Pacific have been working on this matter, but I am sure a great number of people have been working on this matter. I am quite sure that they have had to spend a great deal of time in getting together a good deal of material.

The Court: There were statements made here about the number of Missouri Pacific employees that have been engaged in it.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, and when we consider that these men have been working day and night, holidays and Sundays, without any kind of relaxation, working day and night, and not merely since December 10th, Mr. Railey is quite mistaken. Sure, Mr. Delany may have come here to St. Louis on December 10th, but I am quite sure that Mr. Railey is in no position to say how much work Mr. Delaney did before December 10th, and how much work was done in other offices before December 10th. If your Honor feels—one of the things we wanted to do was, we wanted to have this matter heard last summer, we tried to have this thing brought on, we wanted to avoid this very situation right now, and that, if your Honor please, with respect to this matter, we asked for a separate hearing, and your Honor felt that we shouldn't have a separate hearing, certainly on a hearing of a claim of this size, and really fairness and candor must compel the conclusion that we are moving along with considerable dispatch, for a matter as complicated and as difficult as this, dealing with a reorganization, and inter-company dealings involving 25 companies.

Mr. Kitchel: May I suggest a remark that if they have been working for such a long time and so steadily on this thing, why couldn't they have had a few of these schedules arranged so that this proof could be put in in a short time instead of dragging it out as was attempted to be done this morning?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, if we hadn't spent a great deal of time preparing the schedules that we have already prepared, I don't think Mr. Kitchel would have any notion of how long it would take. When Mr. Kitchel, or Mr. McConaughy made a suggestion this morning that would expedite the matter, there was no delay with respect to trying to accommodate the situation, and that was done and we got a schedule out within a few hours, but that schedule could not have been gotten out in these two or three hours unless a tremendous amount of preliminary work had been done. Each one has his own theory how a case should be presented, or what facts are, or may be material, and your conception of what may be material, may be different from mine, but when, for example, in court you make a suggestion as to the way you think it should be done, if we would meet your suggestions without doing violence to the merits of the case, of course, we will accommodate ourselves to your wishes on that point, but I think, if your Honor please, and I want the record to be as clear as I know how, it is grossly unfair of Mr. Kitchel to make any such comment with respect either to the nature of the preparation or the nature of the presentation. After all, when these gentlemen have taken all these years to get to a point where they are now submitting a plan of reorganization, and then for them to come along and say that with respect to a claim that has been in existence all these years, we have been at it for two days only and they are already complaining about it, where they have been at the preparation of plans for 12 years.

Mr. Kitchel: Which reminds me, your Honor, that they should have been in this case, if they were going to raise this claim, they should have done it in 1937, when the thing was first before the commission, instead of waiting until the eleventh hour.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I suppose we can go on this way quite a good deal. I paid my respects the other day in the Circuit Court of Appeals with respect to why this wasn't brought on since 1937, and I am perfectly willing to meet that issue as to why it wasn't brought on since 1937, and do that with the clearest kind of conscience, and if there is anybody that wants to know how I would deal with that, I am perfectly ready to discuss that point. There can't be any question in anybody's mind. I mean, if your Honor please, one of the great difficulties in this matter, one of the most serious difficulties in this matter is, here is a claim that has been filed, a claim in existence all these years and even to this very day there has been not a scintilla of evidence beyond a document offered with respect—in this hearing, in these proceedings before this court with respect to the validity of the claim, and we have to produce evidence on the question of advances ourselves. I say, if your Honor please, I argued this thing yesterday and your Honor made a ruling on this point, I hope your Honor will excuse me for referring to this, but I think this really, so far as Mr. Kitchel is concerned, I think it really comes with poor grace and I think it is most unfitting for him to speak about the fact that we have to hear the claim at this moment when they had all these years and this claim could have been disposed of. There were representatives of the trustee here, there were representatives of the [cliamant] here who could have done it, and here we have to go along without even the benefit of a trustee of this estate of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to handle the objection.

The Court: A good deal of this is beside the point. How can we shorten this proceeding?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, all I can say is we are going to get as many schedules on this as we can, and when before this testimony began, Mr. McConaughy made the suggestion, or put the question as to whether there was any schedule that Mr. Delaney had on the ageing of the accounts, I asked Mr. Delaney whether he had one and he said he had one, and I was worried then to see if that was in shape to be offered as an exhibit. I am perfectly ready to do that with respect to all those schedules, and we want to make one thing clear, if your Honor please, and that is this, in order to get the full flavor of the relationship between Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and subsidiaries, it is not enough merely to have certain facts that are capable of various interpretations, or from which certain inferences can be drawn, we want to have those made crystal clear, so that there can't be any question of doubt about that, and certainly we have a right to do that with respect to a claim of this magnitude, a claim that deals with a quarter of the liabilities of this estate. I want to say this, if your Honor please, that we do not know to this very moment in this hearing, what the trustee's position of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is with respect to this claim. Even to this point, even though we have been at it for two days. Still I say, can't he, and certainly I think, if your Honor pleases, and I say this most respectfully, certainly we should have a right to know what his position is with respect to it. We have gone on just the same because we did not want to delay; I told the Circuit Court of Appeals on Saturday, that if it wanted us to go on on Monday we would go on, so there wouldn't be any complaint about delay. We want to go on and have this thing concluded, and have this thing concluded as speedily as possible, have it concluded once and for all. That was the very burden of my argument, and the [desireability] of having a separate hearing so that this matter can be disposed of once and for all, plan or no plan, or whatever may happen to any plan or whatever plan may be adopted.

Mr. Kirschbaum: As to how this matter may be shortened, I venture to make a suggestion to the court.

The Court: I will be glad to hear you.

Mr. Kirschbaum: It has been suggested that a number of these exhibits that Mr. Brandwen has been offering right along are in the record. That being so, it seems to me, there should be no need for rehashing those, and insofar as any impression is concerned, I don't think that he comes now before a jury where a jury needs be impressed. I think also that with regard to any inferences that may be drawn from such documents that are in the record, it seems to me that that is a matter of legal argument which counsel can use in raising the objection if there be objection to the plan as such. I think everything else is persiflage.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I want to make perfectly clear that there isn't any document that we are offering that was in the record. If there is any document that we are producing that has been before the Commission we will have that without limiting it at all, but there has been no document that we have offered as an exhibit that has been before the Interstate Commerce Commission. I want to make that [pefectly] clear. If there is any document that we offered that has been submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, if these gentlemen will tell us what the document is, certainly we will not have any extended testimony with respect to that, and when I speak here about inferences, I am not talking about legal argument, I am talking about completing testimony, factual testimony.

The Court: The more discussion we have, the more difficult it is for the court to determine how it is possible to shorten this.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Can't that be done off the record, can't the counsel get together with the trustee off the record and come here and offer them the next day?

Mr. Brandwen: If Mr. Kirschbaum knew anything at all about the case—not knowing anything about the case, I can understand it, but after all I think that when, for example, a suggestion springs from ignorance, I think a suggestion is not very commendable.

The Court: Mr. Kirschbaum, the court didn't hear your last statement. I would like to hear you repeat it. You were drowned out by opposing counsel.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I simply said, your Honor, that I thought that all these documents could be agreed upon as to their validity outside of the court room with the trustee or Mr. McConaughy, and then come prepared next day and offer these documents in evidence, and there wouldn't be any wrangling among counsel as to their validity and veracity and so on, and from there on counsel can present his legal argument.

The Court: Is that your opinion also, Mr. McConaughy?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes, your Honor, I think that is a happy suggestion. I think the question that Mr. Brandwen was just about to ask will illustrate the point. Mr. Brandwen has been doing a lot of talking here, but the thing I originally addressed my remarks to was his requesting this witness to list a whole number of items with figures on them. Now, then, Senator Dearmont has already stated to Mr. Brandwen that if he will give him material of that kind he will prepare exhibits for it. All he has to do is to ask this witness to take his material over to Senator Dearmont and he will prepare it in schedule form.

The Court: It is your opinion that the Court can expedite this best by adjourning at this time?

Mr. McConaughy: I think it all depends on what Mr. Brandwen is willing to do. If he is willing to accept that very generous offer, I think he will have a set of exhibits here that he can go forward on tomorrow.

The Court: Don't you think you can arrange for that, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, we will have as many exhibits arranged for in advance as we humanly can, but our testimony is not going to be limited to testimony from—we are going to have testimony of other people in addition that will not be dependent upon exhibits alone.

The Court: Can counsel shorten the proceeding by agreeing to the validity of certain documents?

Mr. Brandwen: I don't think there has been any question of validity of the documents. I haven't heard any question about the validity of the documents. I think the documents have been accepted.

Mr. McConaughy: The only point is that none of us have ever seen any of these exhibits until they flash them on us here.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Then, they were all rehashed before, your Honor.

Mr. McConaughy: Just to bring this to a point, I think it would be well to have the last question read.

The Court: Read the last question, Mr. Reporter.

(Last question read.)

Mr. McConaughy: Let me describe these items. In each year there is an amount of interest charged against the particular subsidiary. Now, what Mr. Brandwen is asking this witness to do is to go back to 1924, 1925, or some year in there and to read off the amounts of interest that accrued with respect to each of these periods and to each of these three or four subsidiaries into the record when a piece of paper would show it much more clearly?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I think this is a perfect example of how statements are made without any knowledge of what is involved. I wasn't going to ask anything at all with respect to it, there was nothing further from my mind than that. Now, what you are confronted with, we have a very strange situation, on one hand they say the exhibits are flashed on them, they have never seen them before. On the other hand, they say they are already in the record. Both of those statements can't be true. I was going to ask the witness about the ageing. He might have been able to answer that question probably in two minutes.

Mr. McConaughy: You know that is not so. Interest accrued in each of several years.

Mr. Brandwen: I was not going to. That may be your meaning of it, that may not be mine. You don't know just what I had in mind, you don't know what the witness was going to say, and I think what we have here is, you have certain estimates made as to how long certain things are going to take when they know nothing at all about them. That answer might have been given in two minutes, but even though it might have been given in two minutes I was perfectly willing to have a schedule offered so as to avoid any comment with respect to it, but when Mr. McConaughy speaks about interest in those items in connection with ageing, I want to say clearly he knows nothing at all about it, and I think he ought to be informed as to what the situation is. He knows nothing at all about it, because that was not going to be involved in the question at all. It wasn't involved in that question, and I think the least they can do when they make these claims is to ascertain the facts and speak with more knowledge. That is the difficulty we are laboring under, your Honor please. We wanted this done and a good deal of time was spent on this in order to be able to get an answer to that question, that would be reduced to a very brief compass. Certainly we could have gone into the matter the way Mr. McConaughy suggests, but that is one of the things we did in order to avoid all those details, in order to avoid all that elaboration, but to get really the simplest kind of presentation we have struggled with those figures and spent a good deal of time to get them compressed.

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Do you have a schedule that we can use?

A. Here is my working paper, but you can't use that.

Q. You say we can not use it?

A. I don't think so; it is not sufficiently explained.

Mr. Brandwen: What would Your Honor suggest that we do, to take time off to get this reduced to a schedule to introduce, or use it?

The Court: How much time will it take to do that?

The Witness: About fifteen minutes, because there is other information on the schedule.

The Court: Do you suggest that we take a recess?

Mr. Brandwen: Very well.

The Court: Announce a fifteen-minute recess.

(After the recess, the hearing was resumed at 4:25 o'clock P. M.)

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Delaney, did you prepare a schedule, during the recess, listing and detailing the aging of the family line bills that were still unpaid as of and immediately prior to Journal Entry No. 56? A. I have.

Q. Is this the schedule that you have prepared? A. It is.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence. (Handing document to Mr. McConaughy, and then to the Court.)

Mr. McConaughy: All right.

(The document last offered in evidence was thereupon marked Comstock Exhibit 37.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 93.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. And it was that group of family line bills, contained in schedule, Exhibit 37, that were transferred to the investment account as advances to affiliated companies, by reason of Journal Entry 56, concerning which you testified this afternoon?

A. That is what the Journal Entry indicates.

Q. Did you prepare a schedule showing the increase of other unadjusted debits as contained in annual reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. I did.

Q. Submitted by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in each year from December 31, 1924, to December 31, 1932?

A. Yes.

Q. I simply want to ask you one question: In your third column you state "total unadjusted debits". Should that be "total unadjusted" or "total other unadjusted"?

A. It should be "other".

Mr. Brandwen: Will you write the word "other" on it here, and also here on the top (handing document to Mr. Kitchel)?

Q. Do you have with you in such form as can be presented, in schedule form, the balance sheets of the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, as submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the period January 1, 1924, to December 31, 1932? A. I have.

Q. Are these figures contained in the two sheets you have just handed me, figures taken from the reports filed by the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. They are.

Q. Are there any computations of any kind made by you, that did not appear in the original reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer these in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right, subject to check.

(The two sheets last offered in evidence were marked Comstock Exhibits 39 and 39-A, respectively.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 95.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. I don't know whether we already have this in the record, but it simply involves one figure.

I might ask you this, Mr. Delaney: Do you have a figure readily available which will state the total amount of interest on funded debt of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as reported in the annual reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Can you state what was accrued as a charge for interest on funded debt, for the period January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. $17,169,269.

Q. Can you state, and if so, state what it is; what was charged to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico surplus for dividends during the same period, January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932? A. $7,267,386.

Q. Do you have in a single figure the total of the net railway operating income of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico as reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission, from January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932? A. I do.

Mr. McConaughy: What company?

Mr. Brandwen: New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

A. $6,583,861.

Q. Was there any other income reported during that period from January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. There was $303,900.

Q. Any additional credits direct to the profit and loss account during that period?

A. The reports indicate $62,792. was.

Q. Making total credits of $6,950,554.?

A. That is correct.

Q. There were certain deductions— A. There were.

Q. (Continuing) —from that during the period January 1, 1925, to 1932? Please state what they were.

A. There was miscellaneous deductions of $195,784. There was interest on unfunded debt, $153,904.

Q. What are the charges direct to the profit and loss account? A. $1,864,108.

Q. You have already given the total figure, I believe, for dividend income from affiliated companies, as reported, and also interest income from affiliated companies' debts, as reported? A. I have.

Mr. Brandwen: I think that is all with Mr. Delaney.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, we would like to defer the cross examination until tomorrow morning, if we may.

The Court: You may announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

At this point, at 4:35 o'clock P. M., an adjournment was taken to [Jnauary] 11, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 11, 1945, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

The Court: You may proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, there are just two matters I would like to offer. First, I would like to offer in evidence document furnished by counsel for the trustee, which indicates the capital stock and bonds of subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, owned 100 percent, and pledged under first mortgage, dated April 1, 1924.

(The Exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 40.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 98.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence document summarizing statement of sources of income, or deficit, for years 1925 to 1932, inclusive, of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, which Mr. Delaney testified about at length the other day. It is presented in summary form.

(The Exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 41.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 99.]

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, on yesterday Mr. Brandwen asked if I would not undertake to furnish certain excerpts from classifications, as income, profit and loss and general balance sheet accounts for railroads prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. I have secured from the chief accounting officer of the trustee the excerpts requested:

Account 513, entitled, "Dividend Income;"
Account 727, entitled, "Other Adjusted Debits."

I have also been requested to read the last sentence of account 514, entitled, "Income from Funded Securities," which reads, as follows:

"Interest accrued shall not be credited prior to actual collection unless its payment is reasonably assured by past experience, guaranty anticipated provision, or otherwise."

I am advised by the chief accounting officer of the trustee that the rules which appear on this paper and from which I have just read, were in force during the years 1925 to 1933, inclusive.

Mr. Brandwen: I should like to offer this document in evidence, if your Honor please.

(The Exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 42.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 100.]

Mr. Dearmont: That is all, Mr. McConaughy.

JAMES M. DELANEY,

having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further, as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. McConaughy

Q. Mr. Delaney, do you have your notes from which you gave the testimony yesterday concerning the repayment of certain of these advances? A. That is Exhibit 27.

Q. No, this was given as oral testimony. A. Yes.

Q. Found at page 134 of the transcript of the testimony. Do you recall there was an item of $500,000. repaid on June 30, 1930; your next was $8,800., on March 30, 1931. Now, I believe you stated that this material is based on the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico local treasurer's records, is that correct? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Is that the place where you would expect to find the accounting behind these disbursements of $500,000. and $8,800., as testified, and so forth? A. That is correct.

Q. You would not think it necessary to look at the ledger to determine the nature of the disbursement?

A. It might be.

Q. Did you look at the ledger? A. I did.

Q. What does the ledger show with respect to this disbursement of $200,000.; I take it you also looked at the Missouri Pacific books on this same thing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do they show with respect to the $200,000., disbursed on August 31, 1931?

A. The general ledger indicates that $192,387.93, was applied to interest and $7,612.07, was applied to principal.

Q. Let's take the next item of $75,000.00, October 31, 1931?

A. The general ledger indicates that $51,405.74, was applied to interest and $23,594.26, to principal.

Q. What was the date? A. On October 31st.

Q. Now, the next item, December 31, 1931, $100,000.00?

A. The general ledger indicates $59,997.75, was applied to interest, and $40,002.25, to principal.

Q. What was the date on that?

A. That is December 31, 1931.

Q. The next item of $300,000.00?

A. On February 29, '32; is that the one you have reference to?

Q. That is right.

A. The general ledger indicates $64,125.07, was applied to interest and $235,874.93, principal.

Q. You didn't find another item about February 27, 1932, did you? A. I don't recall it.

Q. Now, the next item is August 31, 1932, $225,000.00?

A. The general ledger indicates $168,175.00 was applied to interest and $56,828.15, to principal.

Q. Now, then, if you take those payments as to principal, and apply them to the—the total of advances, which you testified, was $7,858,000., is that correct?

A. $7,858,950.

Q. Now, if you deducted from that only the principal payments, what balance would remain?

A. Do you want me to make a mathematical computation?

Q. Yes, if you will please. Mr. Delaney, what was the total amount of advances before you deducted any repayments, do you recall? That is, to which you testified?

A. What period does that request refer to, please?

Q. I am referring to the advances to which you testified.

A. In connection with Exhibit 27?

Q. In connection with Exhibit 27, most of them were shown on that. A. May I see the exhibit, please?

Q. Here is a copy of it. I wonder if I may refresh your recollection, just to save a little time— A. Yes, sir.

Q. At page 132 of the record, you said that according to that exhibit the amount was $9,531,750.; then you testified as to another $100,000.; do you recall?

A. According to Exhibit 27, if my memory serves me correctly, the total advances shown thereon were $9,531,750.

Q. That is correct.

A. Then there are some repayments on that exhibit.

Q. Well, I am trying to get the full amount of advances.

A. That is right.

Q. There should be added to that $9,531,000.—

A. Another $100,000.

Q. I note that mentioned in your testimony on page 134.

A. That is correct.

Q. So that the aggregate of the advances would be what, according to your testimony?

A. The gross advances would be $9,631,750.

Q. And from that sum you would deduct these items to which I first called your attention, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, then, applying that last figure that you gave me, I would like to have you give me the net figure after the principal deductions to which you have just testified in your cross examination.

A. The witness is not clear as to what counsel—as to whether counsel wants a record of the $364,000.00 of repayments that I have on Exhibit 27.

Q. Were the repayments shown on Exhibit 27, included in the repayments to which you have testified orally?

A. No, sir.

Q. So that you then had another repayment of $300,000.00, is that right? A. $364,000.00.

Q. Include that as a further deduction.

A. As a further deduction?

Q. Yes.

A. Mathematical computation would indicate $8,396,038.34.

Q. Then this figure which appears in the transcript of the testimony on page 135, of $7,858,950.00, probably should be corrected, shouldn't it, as the net figure?

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Mr. McConaughy: I will tell you just to make it clear, I will read the question: "Now, if you will just engage in a simple bit of arithmetical computation by adding to summary of the exhibit the additional amounts to which you have just testified," and that refers to these items of $500,000.00, $8,800.00, $200,000.00, $75,000.00, $100,000.00, $300,000.00, $225,000.00; aggregating $1,408,800.00;—I will read the question again now: "Now, if you will just engage in a simple bit of arithmetical computation by adding to the summary of the exhibit the additional amounts to which you have just testified, and deduct therefrom the additional repayments that you have just testified to, what figure do you arrive at as the total net advances from the Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, during that period?" And your answer was, "$7,858,950.00". I think the point is that in deducting the principal payments only you got a larger sum, isn't that it? A. That is correct.

Q. And this figure $7,858,950, is after deducting the total of the sums to which you testified, $1,408,800.00, which included some interest, isn't that correct?

A. That figure is after deducting $1,408,800.00, in payments by the local treasurer of N. O. T. M.

Q. And the $1,408,800.00, includes some interest payments? A. I don't know.

Q. Mr. Delaney, I think there is a little difficulty about that: You testified just a few minutes ago that in the case of a part of the items there was some principal and some interest: Take, for example, the $200,000.00, on August 31, 1931, that you said contained $7,612,000.00 principal, and $192,387.00 odd, of interest, isn't that right?

A. Counsel must have misunderstood my reply. I said the general ledger indicates the way it was applied on the books.

Q. And what is your reason for deducting the $300,000.00, and crediting it all as a payment against the principal when the ledger shows that $192,387.00 odd, was credited as interest only?

A. I have treated it as a straight repayment in the computation.

Q. You have just disregarded the ledger?

A. In that connection, yes.

Q. Mr. Delaney, can you tell me what the total amount of dividends paid by the Brownsville to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in 1931, amounts to?

A. Based on information contained in the annual reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is indicated that the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company paid to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, $4,155,079.00.

Q. Now, at pages 80 to 86, of the transcript you gave a number of cumulative profit and loss figures for the N. O. T. M. covering the period 1925 to 1932. I wonder if you would be kind enough to prepare a statement for me listing the annual amounts that result in these cumulative totals. You do not need do it now, but at your convenience?

A. Counsel, I think Mr. Brandwen introduced that this morning as Exhibit 39, if I recall correctly.

Q. There is the transcript which shows the items I refer to. (Indicating transcript of record)

A. I understand, counsel, this is with reference to the account?

Q. That is right; if you will break those down by years and let me have a copy of it. You don't have to do it now. Referring back to my question about the dividends paid by the Brownsville to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in 1931, was the figure $4,155,079., which you gave, an accrual of dividends or an amount paid?

A. I don't know.

Q. You haven't anything that would show that?

A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to read a question and answer at page 85 of the transcript: "Now, you refer to the line regarding railroad equipment, $33,889.12 that probably speaks for itself; we don't need any explanation on that". This is the part I am interested in: "Now, you come to the next item, delayed income debit depreciation charged to profit and loss; will you please particularize as to that item?" Do you recall what you were testifying to there; do you recall that testimony? A. I do.

Q. Your answer was, "That was a charge made direct to profit and loss after depreciation rates were revised at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission." Do you recall about what time that request was made?

A. The annual report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1931, I believe contains a reference to a letter, if my memory serves me correct, sometime in April in that year, or maybe now there is a copy of that report that might refresh that.

Q. I wonder if we could get that report?

A. 1931 report. I am now quoting from a copy of the Interstate Commerce Commission annual report of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1931, page 323, schedule 396, line 17, delayed income debits, adjustment of depreciation reserve to salvage value of obsolete equipment and revised rates on standard equipment; authority letter from Mr. Alexander Wylie, Director, Bureau of Accounting, I. C. C., to Mr. F. P. Johnson, vice-president, Missouri Pacific Lines, dated April 30, 1931, and as detailed in note under schedule 258-A, page 238, $874,965.82.

Q. Did you look up that letter and the correspondence?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ascertain what the reasons were that—or why it was that the Interstate Commerce Commission requested that that change be made? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission were as to depreciation rates during 1931—that is the period in question, isn't it? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what they are now?

A. I have read the recent publication, but to quote it from memory I would not attempt at this time.

Q. Do the present rules undertake to deal with depreciation rates? A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. Mr. Delaney, did the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company declare any dividend in 1932?

A. The annual report for the year 1932 does not indicate any dividend declared or paid.

Q. And you did not find in your investigation that any was declared?

A. So far as my examination was concerned, I did not.

Q. You testified that you had access to the books of the Trustee in Houston, I think, and in St. Louis, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you have any difficulty in getting anything that you asked for?

A. Well, that requires a little explanation, if I may make that, Mr. Counsel?

Q. Go ahead.

A. When I first appeared at the Trustee's office, or counsel's office in St. Louis, I was directed to Mr. Thompson. Mr. Thompson, in turn, directed me to Mr. Baldwin, or Mr. Vollmer. He attempted to reach him by phone while I was in his office, did not succeed, and instructed me to go on up and he would talk to him. When I arrived at the Missouri Pacific office, Mr. Vollmer was very gracious and stated that they would make records available, but I was not to ask any questions of any of the employes; that they had a job to do, running a railroad, and were not interested in this squabble, and any direct questioning would have to be done in court. The result of that, as you can well appreciate in an organization as large as the Missouri Pacific, and within the time limits I had to dig things out—take things at their face value without endangering or jeopardizing individuals, or any one of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Q. Were you refused any record that you asked for?

A. They were not produced. There were certain records which could not be located, we looked it up with the auditor, because of the periods, the number of years back in the current records. They have subsequently been produced here in the last couple of days, but I haven't had an opportunity to, as you appreciate, to look over them.

Q. Mr. Delaney, by whom were you retained?

A. Andrew W. Comstock.

Q. And he is the only one who is paying your bill, is he? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all.

(Witness excused)

Mr. Brandwen: Is Mr. Eckert in the room?

M. Eckert,

a witness, of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified on behalf of Andrew W. Comstock, as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Give the reporter your name, please. A. M. Eckert.

Q. Will you please give your resident address?

A. 4615 Lindell Boulevard.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Chief accounting financial officer, Missouri Pacific.

Q. How long have you occupied this present post?

A. Since December, 1938.

Q. Did you have any connection with the Missouri Pacific, or New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, or any of the other companies involved in these proceedings prior to 1938? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you please state what those connections were, going back, let's say— A. Twenty years?

Q. The early twenties? A. Forty years?

Q. No, twenty years.

A. I was appointed auditor of the Gulf Coast Lines, which is a group of about fifteen companies, along in 1918. I served as auditor and general auditor until February, 1938, when I came to St. Louis as general auditor of the Missouri Pacific.

Q. So that from the period of 1918 to 1938, you were general auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico; St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico; Beaumont, [Sour] Lake, among others, from 1918 on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were your headquarters during the period from 1918 to 1938?

A. At Houston, Texas, until I came to St. Louis in February, 1938.

Q. Would you please state for the Court just what the general duties of your task were, your occupation, were, from 1918 to 1938, in your capacity as auditor and general auditor, briefly?

A. General supervision over the accounts, ledgers and preparation of annual reports and such things as ordinarily fall within the province of that office.

Q. Supervision of general entries?

A. I did not make them myself.

Q. But under your supervision?

A. Under my supervision, and with my approval; yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I believe you have listened to the testimony given by Mr. Delaney, when he was on the witness stand?

A. Yes, sir; I have heard a good deal of it, but I did not hear all of it.

Q. You were in the court room, were you not, when you heard all the reading of entries from a cash book which was kept by the New York treasurer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes, I was in the room.

Q. Now, that book was, or was that kept under your jurisdiction? A. No, sir.

Q. That was under the jurisdiction of the treasurer in New York? A. Yes, sir; or Cleveland.

Q. You say New York or Cleveland; would you please state when the dividing line took place so that it was no longer in New York and became Cleveland?

A. I don't recall the exact date.

Q. Was it changed to Cleveland after you became auditor of the Missouri Pacific? A. I don't recall the date.

Q. But you could verify that? A. I could verify it.

Q. From an examination of the cash book itself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen the cash book from which testimony was given yesterday by Mr. Delaney of the New York treasurer's cash book? A. I don't believe I have.

Q. So you haven't seen it even to the present time?

A. Not that I recall—I recall—

Q. Do you know how the office of the New York treasurer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was set up?

A. I do not, sir.

Q. Do you know how it functioned?

A. No, I don't know exactly how it functioned?

Q. Can you tell us approximately, or generally, how it functioned?

A. Well, it was under the supervision of some one else. I don't know just exactly how it functioned. I think Mr. Wyer was in charge for a time. I think he was also in charge of Cleveland.

Q. When you refer to Mr. Wyer, you are referring to William Wyer? A. William Wyer.

Q. And before Mr. Wyer was in charge of the New York treasurer's office in New York of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, you don't know who was in charge prior to him?

A. No, I don't recall. I think it was Mr. J. E. Davey, if I recall correctly, in charge, under Mr. William Williams.

Q. When you refer to Mr. Wyer being in charge of the New York treasurer's office, was he treasurer at the time of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. The records will show that; I don't know.

Q. From your general knowledge of the books and records of that, you must understand, must have been rather thorough going, because you say you were responsible for the preparation of annual reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, during the years, at least 1924 to '32, inclusive; do you know what transactions were conducted by the treasurer's office of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in New York?

A. Well, I know he made—advances were made from time to time—through the treasurer we got the accounting.

Q. Were there certain financial transactions engaged in by the New York treasurer's office, that were then passed on at some subsequent date to your department in Houston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Their office of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is in Houston—was in Houston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During this entire period? A. Yes.

Q. Were you consulted, or advised in advance of the transactions made by the New York treasurer in New York?

A. I don't know that I was consulted or not; I know that we had—we got the advances from New York, or from Cleveland, as the case might be.

Q. When you say "advances," you mean the monetary advances, is that what you are referring to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me ask you this; the New York treasurer kept an account with the Irving Trust Company, didn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you get a record of that account each month?

A. Yes, we got account current from the New York office, or Cleveland office, showing the amounts that were included therein.

Q. You got that shortly after the first of the month in each case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether the New York or Cleveland treasurer's office handled any railroad operating finances, or were they all handled there?

A. There was a time that it was decided to pass money from the Railway Express Agency to the New York office and ultimately they were reimbursed to us. We were reimbursed for the amounts that was transmitted there.

Q. When you say in your last answer it was decided—decided by whom, do you know?

A. Decided by the management.

Q. Would you particularize a little more fully?

A. Well, I was then under the supervision of Mr. F. P. Johnson, the late Mr. F. P. Johnson, and the instructions came from him, I believe, as I recall now.

Q. Mr. F. P. Johnson was vice-president and chief financial officer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he an officer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Yes, sir; he was chief accounting and financial officer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico line—the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, shortly after the Missouri Pacific acquired the securities of the Gulf Coast Lines, N. O. T. & M. and others.

Q. But generally speaking in connection with the financial matters affecting the operation of the railroad did the New York or Cleveland treasurer have anything at all to do with those matters?

A. Well, I cannot necessarily answer on that. I think though, the former treasurer is here, and he can answer that for himself.

Q. Yes, that is true, Mr. Eckart. The reason why I am asking you that question is because you were the auditor, the general auditor. A. The general auditor.

Q. And all of the records ultimately came under your supervision and under your investigation, you had to submit these reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and you signed these reports that were submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And because of that I thought you would know just how these matters were handled?

A. I don't know. The records, of course, will show you. You have been going back into a long time ago, and my memory would not serve me correct for twenty years back.

Q. Can you state in your own language, please, what you understood the relationship to be between your auditing office in Houston and the treasurer's office in New York, or Cleveland? A. What the relation was?

Q. The relationship was, yes; what liaison did you have, how did you carry on relations, one with the other? What was the nature of the contact? I am making this very general so that you can answer? A. We had no contact—

Q. Contact.

A. Contact with the—immediate contact with the New York or Cleveland office.

Q. You did not?

A. No, and all we saw was what we got in the way of account current, and advances as made from time to time. As I say, the records will show exactly what that was.

Q. Did you have much communication with the New York treasurer's office?

A. We had no connection with the New York office; it was handled through St. Louis.

Q. You, in Houston, had none? A. No, sir.

Q. And the Houston office had none with the New York office? A. No, sir.

Q. The office in St. Louis was that of the Missouri Pacific? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the reason why you cannot state just what the relationship was between New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and Houston, and the New York treasurer's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that for a while Mr. William Wyer ran the New York treasurer's office of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. And then when the New York treasurer's office was moved to Cleveland, and became the Cleveland treasurer's office, Mr. Wyer continued to run that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the relationship by communication which you testified to before which existed between St. Louis and New York, now became St. Louis and Cleveland, or Cleveland and St. Louis? A. That is logical.

Q. And that is correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Eckert, inasmuch as you have been an auditor for so many years, of course, one of the first things that you learn and one of the things you undoubtedly learn best were the accounting rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission prescribing methods of accounting to be used by the various railroads? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And am I not correct in understanding under the Interstate Commerce Commission rules, the books of account of the railroads must be kept solely in accordance with Interstate Commerce Commission requirements and regulations? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. That is, you cannot have any sets of books that other private industries, and private corporations may have?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you ever check, or see, the books of the New York treasurer's office? A. No, sir.

Q. You never did? A. No.

Q. You never checked, or audited, the books of the Cleveland treasurer's office?

A. No, sir; that was done by Mr. Johnson's office in St. Louis.

Q. That was done by Mr. Johnson's office in St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir; it was under his jurisdiction.

Q. Now, there was introduced into evidence this morning a category found in the Interstate Commerce Commission accounting regulations, describe as "other unadjusted debits," you are acquainted with that category, are you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell me, Mr. Eckert—I show you an annual report filed by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, with the Interstate Commerce Commission, taking one at random, for the year ended December 31, 1931, and ask you to turn to the schedule that shows the item, "other unadjusted debits."

A. I have here the annual report of the N. O. T. & M. for the year ended December 31, 1931, that shows on—

Q. The balance sheet?

A. The balance sheet account on the assets side, "other unadjusted debits."

Q. That item, "other unadjusted debits," appears on each one of these balance sheets, assets side of these reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, does it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this report was signed by you, was it not?

A. Yes, sir; this also shows, "other unadjusted debits," this is ended December 31, 1932.

Q. Now reading from the balance sheet, asset side, as a debit in the report filed by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and signed by you, we come to schedule 200a, on page 200, which is general category of unadjusted debits, now although the term of unadjusted debits, it is on the asset side of the balance sheet, because it is an asset, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the balance sheet on the asset side—I assume the reporter is getting all the answers of Mr. Eckert, although he is just nodding his head—coming to schedule 200a, which is one, at least shown on balance sheet, asset side on page 200, we find as the first broad category of assets as investments; that is correct, is it not?

A. That is correct.

Q. There are a number of sub heads under the general category of investments, correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Then immediately below that general category of investments is the general category known as current assets? A. That is correct.

Q. And under this caption or category of current assets, there are a number of specific items, subdivisions of current assets? A. That is also correct.

Q. And immediately below that, I am still dealing with the asset side of the balance sheet, is a third category of assets, which are categorized as deferred assets, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And there are several subdivisions under that category of deferred assets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as a final category on the asset side of the balance sheet, there is this category of unadjusted debits?

A. That is correct.

Q. That is the lowest category on the asset side of the balance sheet, isn't that correct?

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute—,

Mr. Brandwen: Lowest in physical arrangement.

A. That is the last item; yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you know what an unadjusted—do you know how the Interstate Commerce Commission defines an unadjusted debit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, let us deal with the categories under, let's say sub divisions, rather, under the category of unadjusted debits; the first one given here is loss and insurance premiums paid in advance. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That needs no explanation; that is clear?

A. That is clear.

Q. The next one, and I am reading these all in the order in which they appear, is "discount on capital stock"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that we need not pause on for the moment, and the one immediately below that is "discount on funded debt," and that we need not pause on for the moment, and the one below that is "property abandoned charged to operating expenses," and we can pass that up for the moment. A. Yes.

Q. Then you have a subdivision still under the general category of unadjusted debits, "other unadjusted debits," and that is the last item that is footed on that page, before the grand total, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, the item, "other unadjusted debits," has alongside of it: "Page 219." And going to page 219, you find "schedule 226," called "other unadjusted debits." Now, you are, I assume, fully acquainted with the make-up of the item called, "other unadjusted debits," as defined by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its regulations?

A. Yes.

Q. And coming to the analysis of the other unadjusted debits; that is, going from the balance sheet to particularization of the subsequent page, we find in Schedule 226, on page 219 of the report filed by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as of December 31, 1932, the following items: The first one reads as follows: "Suspense debit account, minor items, thirty-one in number, each less than $50,000.00; $127,763.60." Do you understand that minor items in this account of less than $50,000.00 then can be included in this "other unadjusted debits"?

A. According to the classification.

Q. I will skip one item for the moment, and I will come back to that: The next item in "other unadjusted debits" there, is "freight in transit, $80,835.47." Would you please explain why you put that item in "other unadjusted debits"?

A. That item probably had not been collected.

Q. Would you say that this item comes within the category of the Interstate Commerce Commission regulations, which says, and I am quoting just this part of it: "That this account shall include or account for all balances in the suspense account that cannot be entirely cleared or disposed of until additional information is received." Would you say that comes within that category?

A. That is account 727.

Q. Yes, that is account 727. I am talking about 727, which for the record is the number assigned to that account, "other unadjusted debits". A. Yes.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Eckert, that in Interstate Commerce Commission regulations, accounting regulations, each one of these accounts has an account number?

A. Yes.

Q. So that "other unadjusted debits", is account No. 727, and I was reading from the Interstate Commerce Commission regulation for account No. 727, and I ask you whether it is not a fact that the reason you included the item "freight in transit" of $30,835.47, was because it was one of those items in the suspense account and could not be entirely cleared, or disposed of until additional information was received?

A. Or although the money had not been collected.

Q. If it were, for example, freight, or claim that was definitely ascertained, wouldn't you have put that in the accounts receivable? A. Yes.

Q. In the accounts receivable? A. Yes.

Q. But you put this in "other unadjusted debits," which is not the accounts receivable?

A. I will—I might have to explain the interline freight account to you on that.

Q. All right.

A. That is, if you have interline freight that moves on waybill, for instance, from Brownsville to New York, that freight might be delayed and the money might not be collected, or might not be reported in interline account, for maybe two months or three months later; that is probably what that is made of.

Q. And might there not be any question about what the amount would be?

A. We know pretty well what the amount is from our records.

Q. But there is still some information to be obtained, is there not?

A. There might be some information to be obtained, yes.

Q. And that is why you put it in the "other unadjusted debits" category rather than the "accounts receivable"?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have one other item, that is the one we discussed, "minor items in this account of less than $50,000.00". We do not have to discuss the others. Then we come to one other category which is described here, still dealing with "other unadjusted debits" as the "family lines account, open accounts with affiliated companies to be applied in offset settlement at time of adjusting liquidation of all accounts due to or from affiliated companies, and the figure is $15,267,538.70. I am reading this correctly, am I not, Mr. Eckert? A. Yes, sir; that is correct.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I ask you to refer me to any place in the accounting regulations or classifications of income, Profit and Loss and general balance sheet accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission which is known as a family line account.

A. Well, I might say this, that you apparently are taking issue with the examination made by the Interstate Commerce Commission of our accounts. They were audited regularly and they passed these accounts as they were with certain exceptions which were assented to when we were wrong. I don't understand we were wrong in making the report that way, if that is what you are getting at.

Q. No; I am just asking if there is any place that you can refer to—

Mr. McConaughy: I don't think that is a proper question. He is asking this witness to interpret the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission. That will be for Your Honor to do.

The Court: He may answer.

A. I don't know where else you would go to get it, if you had some family line bills subject to offset that could be made at a later time, and, as I said a while ago, it was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. We will deal with that a little later on. I am not going into that at the moment. I am trying to get some information about a certain matter that the Interstate Commerce Commission may not have gone into, or may not have been interested in going into. That is another matter. I simply ask you whether there is any place in the classification, to which you can refer, that deals with family line accounts, if there is any such place.

A. I don't think there is anything mentioned in family line accounts, but it falls within that category.

Q. According to your interpretation. Look at Account 727, "other unadjusted debits", and the description given by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and tell me what in that account, or that definition, family line account, or in what respect family line account fit or fits into any part of that description, Account 727.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Eckert has said they would go in there. Why should he have to explain it, if it is his opinion that it would appear in there.

The Court: He may answer.

A. "This account shall include"—excuse me.

Q. You are reading from Exhibit 42?

A. Account 727 says this, under "other unadjusted debits":

"This account shall include the amount of debit balances in suspense account that can not be entirely cleared and disposed of until additional information is received."

I take it that that means carries with it inference that debit balances in suspense account couldn't be entirely cleared and disposed of until setoffs could be made in the account.

Q. When you say "setoffs could be made in the account", will you please explain that a little more? I don't quite follow you there. I just want it explained.

A. We had a group of railroads there, about fifteen. We were making advances one to the other when they needed the money, and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was the clearing house for all traffic balances, inter-line freight, and other balances. They collected the money. As the amount was collected statements were made as between the different lines in the group. Sometimes other lines were not able to pay N. O. T. & M. and N. O. T. & M. paid them something, even when they couldn't make an offset.

Q. You mean when subsidiaries of N. O. T. & M. couldn't make an offset?

A. Yes. That is a family line balance and, as I said a while ago, was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. Am I correct, Mr. Eckert, in understanding that this item of family line account means that these are bills due from various of the subsidiaries of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as of December 31, 1932?

A. Yes, that is correct, that is the account.

Q. And that is correct, these represent bills due?

A. Not bills, but balances.

Q. Balances due and payable from various subsidiaries of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And these balances are made up originally from bills and vouchers, are they not?

A. Well, mostly bills and vouchers, and also from balances in the account, and traffic balances and things of that sort.

Q. You have a voucher for each item?

A. Were ordinarily issued.

Q. For each item in the family line? A. Yes.

Q. Do you think you have any records which would indicate the component elements of these family line accounts amounting to $15,867,538.70 according to the various subsidiaries of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? In other words, do you have records which will disclose how much of this fifteen million odd dollars was owed, as of December 31, 1932, by St. Louis-Brownsville to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, how much was owed to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico by Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, and so forth? A. I haven't it here, but I can get that.

Q. You can get that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I ask you to get that? A. Yes.

Q. We tried to get those records before, but were not able to get them. I will appreciate it if you will make a note of that.

Mr. McConaughy: May that be stated in the form of an exhibit, so he can present it that way?

Mr. Brandwen: I will be delighted to have that.

The Witness: You want to know how this account of fifteen million dollars is made up?

Q. Yes, according to—

The Witness: Roads?

Q. And also if you can state any other further details, just what they consisted of by categories.

Mr. McConaughy: What was the date?

Mr. Brandwen: December 31, 1932.

Mr. McConaughy: May we also have that for December 31, 1931, for comparative purposes?

Mr. Brandwen: That is perfectly agreeable to me.

The Court: You can get that in exhibit form.

Mr. Brandwen: While you are doing that, since the amount is much smaller, could you get that for December, 1924?

The Witness: I think I have to get that from Houston. It will take a little time to get it, but I think I can get it. If I can get it I will do so.

Mr. Brandwen: Fine. Thank you, Mr. Eckert.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Eckert, when the item of family line accounts, under a category of "other unadjusted debits" first appeared in your reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. I don't recall now.

Q. You don't recall now? A. No.

Q. As stated before, there were vouchers and bills in most instances of those items that were included in family line bills; that is correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, when a voucher was made which constituted a charge—let us say a charge from St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, who determined what category that charge should go into?

A. I will have to ask counsel what you mean by "category".

Q. Well, who determined, for example, whether, when a voucher was made, a charge against the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico in favor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, for example, who determined whether it should go to one of these items of current assets, or one of these items of deferred assets, or one of the items of unadjusted debits, or one of the items of other unadjusted debits, or family line bills? Who determined where that item should go?

A. The charge distribution on the voucher would show where the debit would go to, what debit it would go to.

If it was paid currently that would go into current assets. If it was paid later it would go down into the other classification.

Q. Were not these matters passed on by some people in your organization, as to how they should be classified?

A. Usually, it was left to the Chief Clerk in the department that made the distribution on the voucher.

Q. Did not the distribution have to be passed on by other people than the Chief Clerk?

A. Well, vouchers were signed by my assistant or myself.

Q. So that, not until a voucher was signed by you or your assistant—what was your assistant's name?

A. Mr. Banks.

Q. A distribution did not become operative—the distribution of that voucher to a particular account did not become operative?

A. I wouldn't say that. I may have been away.

Q. Then your assistant—

A. A voucher, of course, had to be approved.

Q. By whom?

A. Either by myself or, as I said, by my assistant or myself.

Q. Did you have occasion, with respect to some of these vouchers, to speak to any of your superior officers as to how they should be dealt with? A. No, sir.

Q. You never did?

A. No, sir. We had vouchers there that we piled up and as we could pay them we paid them. As we could make offsets we made offsets. You call it set-off. Some were left behind.

Q. Some were left behind? A. Yes.

Q. Even though others in subsequent months were paid?

A. Yes.

Q. What were the circumstances which induced you to leave some behind when others made at later days were paid?

Mr. McConaughy: Has he testified that there were others at later days?

Mr. Brandwen: He said some were left behind. You can't leave some behind unless they are paid later.

Mr. McConaughy: The question assumes they were paid out of order.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Eckert just said some were left behind. Ordinary English warrants no other connotation.

Q. Is that not correct, Mr. Eckert?

A. Yes; sometimes we didn't have the money to make the offset. In other words, we didn't have enough money on one side of the account to offset with the other side of the account, with the other railroad.

Q. Let me have this very clearly, so there will not be any question on the record as to what we are talking about. Let us deal, at the moment, only with one category of these vouchers that finally got into family line bills, that were distributed to family line bills, that were characterized as family line bills, that is, a charge—confining ourselves to one company alone, for the moment—a charge against St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico running to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Isn't it a fact, for example—not to make it hypothetical, I will read from an exhibit. Dealing, for example, with St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico alone, we find, for example, that in May, 1928, Voucher No. F-1710—would that be a voucher number? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The total of that is $103,587.57. Isn't it a fact that what that means is that St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico was charged that month, by that voucher, with $103,587.57 and the charge was in favor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico; that is correct? A. Yes.

Q. That charge was not paid that month?

A. I am not in a position to verify the amount you have given in the voucher, without referring to the records.

Q. Subject to the records.

A. If it is a hypothetical question, all right, I will answer it that way.

Q. These are figures obtained from Mr. Banks, but they are subject to correction, that is understood.

On Voucher F-1710, isn't it a fact that there is attached to that voucher either one bill, or a series of bills, rendered to the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, aggregating the amount of $103,587.57? A. That is correct.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that voucher was still unpaid as of December 31, 1933, according to Journal Entry No. 56, which you drew up on December 31, 1933, when you transferred—

A. That is correct.

Q. —these unpaid family line bills to investment account, in the subdivision of advances to affiliates; that is correct? A. Yes. I say it is correct. I assume—

Q. Subject to correction. If any of these dates or figures that I am giving are found by you, after your own careful examination, are not correct, of course I want to have them corrected.

Now, the information obtained from this Voucher F-1710 indicates that these are charges made by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico against St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico for joint expenses pooled during the month? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that has not yet been paid. The next voucher that we find that is unpaid, of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, is voucher for October, 1928, F-1861, amounting to $150,800. Now, would you want us to understand that there were not any vouchers entered during the period from May, 1928, to October, 1928, which were charges against St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico and in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico during that period?

A. I take it that you are reading from a list which has lapses between those two months?

Q. Between May and October—June, July, August and September, four months.

A. If these other vouchers that you read, the first one is still open, then the ones intervening must have been paid.

Q. They must have been paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, if we find that vouchers, charges of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico against them, in favor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, for the month of May are still unpaid and those for June, July, August and September were paid—paid, we assume, by St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico on their behalf; is not that correct, otherwise the vouchers would still be here unpaid?

A. Of course, the other vouchers are probably offset. There might have been some odd amount that we couldn't use that one in May, 1928, for.

Q. When you say "odd amount" what do you mean?

A. Well, if we had vouchers for $275,863.22 we would try to get a voucher from the other side in order to clear that amount, the same amount, or pay a small difference in either direction.

Q. You allowed the May, 1928, voucher to be unpaid although vouchers of four subsequent months were paid?

A. I can not answer that.

Q. I would like you to check that. I would like to know why they were not paid, what the vouchers were for, because all of these vouchers, you must admit, are in odd amounts, because they are the addition of bills.

A. What year is that, Mr. Brandwen?

Q. Mr. Eckert, what I am reading from is the list of the unpaid vouchers for charges made on or before April 1, 1933, that were still unpaid, on or before April 1, 1933.

The Court: How many are there?

Mr. Brandwen: There are quite a number. They amount to fifteen million odd dollars. I am not going to read them.

The Court: You want this witness to check all of them?

Mr. Brandwen: The group of these vouchers?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: You can get up a schedule very simply, stating that a group of these represent joint operating expenses, a group of them represent fuel oil—

The Court: I don't know whether he can or not.

Mr. Brandwen: As to the nature of them. I don't want to have many details.

The Witness: I will find out at noon.

Mr. Brandwen: So we can have that in concrete form, just what these bills were for. I don't want details with respect to each one. There are a number of them that repeat themselves, month in and month out. For example, from the test checking that we did we found a great number of these were in the category of proportion of joint expenses, power, that were charged to St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, so that—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I fail to see the materiality of it. This is the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico he is talking about, an obligation to the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, may I explain the materiality of this?

The Court: I wish you would. That will help the Court.

Mr. Brandwen: I shall be pleased to.

As one examines the balance sheets of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the various years from 1924 to 1932, one sees a constant increase in the amount of the sums due and owing from the various subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. We find that steadily and constantly increasing year by year; the bills that are rendered to the various subsidiaries by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to their various subsidiaries have not been paid, and that the amount is increasing steadily, year by year, and in some years the amount has increased as high as four million dollars, and you find these items carried in "other unadjusted debits" right along, and that they were not paid.

We find that when Mr. Thompson came in as Trustee, one of the first things he did was to take it out of that category and put them into advances to affiliated companies, and they have not been paid to this very day.

Now, it is extremely important, for the purpose of determining surplus, balance sheet assets, whether, when you have bills due and owing from these various subsidiaries for all these years, that are unpaid, whether they could be used as part of the surplus for the purpose, even, of considering the payment of dividends.

If Your Honor please, I seek to establish that every single dividend—although I don't have to do that for the purpose of this case, for the purpose of sustaining our position—I seek to establish that every single dividend paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was paid out of capital and was an illegal payment. I repeat, for the purpose of sustaining my position, I don't have to go anywhere near that far. I hope to establish that every single dividend was paid out of capital, in violation of law.

The Court: You are talking about—

Mr. Brandwen: From January 1, 1929, to December 31, 1932, that every single dividend paid was paid out of capital, and that the purpose here was to keep this stock on a dividend basis so that the market might reflect the fact that they had here a stock that was declaring dividends, and that all these things were done under the domination and under the control of certain people, who were not interested in the operation of a railroad, but who were interested in financial matters, to see what they could do in a financial way on the street. I mean Wall Street and the financial market-place. That is why I am going into this, because of that very definite, very marked relationship.

Mr. McConaughy: It is all very interesting, but he asks for an explanation of these various obligations. He has got the amount of them and the general character of them. I can't see why he should ask Mr. Eckert to go to a tremendous job to make out a list of these items when he has had the books in front of him.

Mr. Brandwen: Let us lay that specter aside, once and for all. We asked for these particular vouchers. We haven't yet been able to get them. I am not complaining, but the fact is that we were not able to get them, but for them to say that, when we asked for them and have not been able to get them, that we have had them a long time, I think bespeaks a statement that has no basis. I say that when comments are—

Mr. McConaughy: I don't see—

Mr. Brandwen: Let me finish. I say that comment on a basis of knowledge is one thing, but they don't know about this. We have tried to get them, and I am not registering any complaint at all with respect to that. Mr. Eckert very generously says he will try to get them, and we hope he can do so. I don't see any reason why we should not get them. If he is going to do it as he says, get them up in schedule form, what is lost thereby? Is the loss that Your Honor might have some information about this, and this whole situation of family line deals will, once and for all, come out into the open, and we will know what we are talking about? Is that the concern?

When a statement is made that there is not a single dividend that has been paid except out of capital, and that this is one of the ways of demonstrating that, I think it is most important that we have everything that throws light on what the actual situation was.

Mr. McConaughy: If he is contending that there is something the matter with these particular items in this account, that is one thing. He has not said that.

Mr. Brandwen: I am contending that there is a lot wrong in this account. All I want to say is that we can very well use the phrase that Hamlet used about things in Denmark.

Mr. McConaughy: The Court is entitled to know.

Mr. Brandwen: I am trying to get that proof from the witness. I don't expect the Court to take my statement as testimony. I expect to establish this through the witness, an intelligent witness, who is auditor for these roads who is in charge of all these things.

Mr. McConaughy: He says he is seeking for something that may be wrong; he don't know.

Mr. Brandwen: I am saying there is something wrong, and far more than we will ever have time to disclose to this Court, but we will disclose enough so we can sustain our position. What I say is not competent testimony, but I want to show what is wrong, through these witnesses, one of whom is Mr. Eckert. I am sure Mr. Eckert will take care of himself, and will be delighted to see that the Court has all the information that bears on this.

The Court: I can not see that what you are asking for now is necessary, from anything you say you will attempt to show. If Mr. Eckert thinks he can furnish the information the Court will let him do it. It is hard to see that you can find anything that will be relevant at this time.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, if, for example, you include certain items in an earned surplus account on which you rely for the purpose of declaring a dividend, and if those items don't belong there, if they are improper items and if they are not assets, it must follow as night follows day, that you don't have a surplus if those items are greater than the amount of surplus shown, and a dividend being declared out of capital. I feel, if Your Honor please, that it follows with axiomatic inevitableness that not only is it relevant, but the connection is so imperative that it can not be escaped. I mean, if anything is relevant that is most relevant.

The Court: Very well, you may proceed.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. I understand you are going to try to get this?

The Witness: I said I would make an effort, yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I appreciate that, and I think it would be probably more appropriate if I don't go into the details on these specific items any further, until we have further word from Mr. Eckert with respect to the schedules, so that we can deal with them in a more concrete fashion.

The Witness: Your Honor, let me ask counsel a question, if I may?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: Do you want that broken down by different kinds of vouchers; do they cover, for instance, fuel oil so much? You don't want that detail?

Mr. Brandwen: No, no; I would just like broad categories—fuel oil, joint expense, and things like that. I want to have the task made very simple for you.

The Court: You can determine that during the noon hour, you say?

The Witness: I will try to, Your Honor, if I can. It will take some little time to do it, but if I can I will.

Mr. Brandwen: Would it be Your Honor's wish—

The Court: Do you desire to proceed along some other line?

Mr. Brandwen: I think it might save everybody's time if we can give the witness a little more time for this.

The Court: We will adjourn at this time until two o'clock.

Thereupon, at 12:00 M., a recess was had until two o'clock P. M.

MARTIN ECKERT,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand, testified further as follows:

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Eckert, have you been able to get any schedules on the subject matter that we inquired about this morning?

A. Mr. Counsel, I find that it will take a great deal longer than we thought it would to get the details of all the four lines, but I have one for the St. L. B. & M., which is the larger ones for the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933, in toto, the St. L. B. & M. only; to get the other will take perhaps a week. I have to get that from Houston.

Q. You don't have the Beaumont & Sour Lake here?

A. I do not, no, sir. And then there was another exhibit which I could continue work on this afternoon, that is on the vouchers as of April 1, 1933, of the St. L. B. & M. to the N. O. T. & M. I could probably have that tomorrow. This will take about a week to get this up, if you want to accept it.

Q. You say this will? A. I mean the other three lines.

Q. These are all the same, these are copies? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I assume you gentlemen have already seen these?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

The Witness: I understood that that was about the form you want it in, Mr. Counsel.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Well, I want to say that I appreciate any information that we can get from you, Mr. Eckert. A. Thank you, sir.

Q. What is that? A. Thank you.

Q. And I have just seen it. I would like to look at this. What you have just handed me, Mr. Eckert, is a schedule from the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company? A. That is correct.

Q. That is correct, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And you call this an analysis of amounts due New Orleans, Texas & Mexico from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is correct, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say here that this total amount for these years which you have here on this schedule from 1928 to 1933, broken up according to years, you say were transferred from Account 778. Account 778 is what?

A. That is "other unadjusted credits".

Q. That is "other unadjusted credits—family line bills"?

A. No, not necessarily. Other unadjusted credits is the style of the account in the classification.

Mr. McConaughy: May I interrupt a second, Mr. Brandwen. Since there is a considerable amount of testimony about this paper, may not it be marked for identification?

Mr. Brandwen: Oh, yes. Mark this, please.

(The same was marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 43 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 102.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Did you prepare this exhibit 43 for identification yourself, Mr. Eckert? A. I did not.

Q. Who prepared it? A. It was prepared in Houston.

Q. Prepared in Houston? A. Yes.

Q. I see. Do you know who prepared it in Houston?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. When did you receive it here?

A. I received it here a few days ago.

Q. Do you know who requested you to send this schedule here?

A. Well, I think the request came from, partly from me to pick up a lot of analysis in connection with this hearing.

Q. And who requested you to pick up a lot of analysis, as you stated, for this hearing?

A. I did that myself, a lot of it, because I wanted to be prepared if I had to get on the stand.

Q. Did anybody also join in this request?

A. Mr. Peet was with me on it, my assistant, Mr. Peet, he worked on a lot of detail of it.

Q. Now, then, account No. 778 on the books of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, is called other unadjusted credits, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That denomination indicates a liability on the part of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company to N. O. T. M., doesn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say of this schedule, this was transferred to account No. 757. What was account No. 757?

A. Non-negotiable debts to affiliated companies.

Q. [None]-negotiable debts to affiliated companies. Where is that in the balance sheet of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Amounts payable to affiliated companies.

Q. Look at balance sheet—the latest one I have here, I think, is December 31, 1932, from the annual report filed by you with the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Nothing shown here on the N O T M.

Q. Is there a category on the N O T M balance sheet called 757, non-negotiable debts to affiliated companies?

A. Oh, yes, there is open accounts, non-negotiable debts to affiliated companies under notes.

Q. What is the general category under which this subdivision appears? A. Open accounts.

Q. And is there another category above the term "open accounts"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is that? A. Notes.

Q. May I see that, please, where you read it from?

A. (Witness indicates)

Q. But this is on the N O T M. Would you transfer this to a liability of N O T M? You don't mean that, Mr. Eckert, you can't mean that. A. Well, they had some—

Q. Would you listen to my question again, please, because I am quite sure, if your Honor Please, either Mr. Eckert misunderstood—

The Court: Read the question.

(Last question read)

Mr. Brandwen: May I ask this question, please?

Q. You are now looking at the annual report of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico was indebted as of December 31, 1932, and as of December 31, 1933, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, according to the schedule which you have here, in the amount of $10,667,331.10, which was unpaid by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico as of that date, and that that debt ran in favor of New Orleans Texas & Mexico. Is that not correct?

A. Yes, and that debt was due to the N O T M.

Q. Those amounts were due to N O T M? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they had been carried up to December 31, 1933, on N O T M. balance sheets as "other unadjusted debits—family line bills", is that not correct?

A. It is carried in this report in account 727, other unadjusted debits on the asset side of the balance sheet.

Q. On the asset side? A. That is correct.

Q. And if you will look at the reference in account 727, in the balance sheet contained in the volume from which you are reading, you will find that it refers to a breakdown of the other unadjusted debits, and if you look at the breakdown on that report you will find the amount of family line bills stated for the entire—that are due to N O T M, from the various subsidiaries, is that not so?

A. That is correct. This happens to deal with the year 1932.

Q. Yes.

A. The statement I gave you is for the year 1933.

Q. The statement that you gave me deals with the years 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933, and they are aggregated? A. Yes.

Q. That is correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And the amount that was added in the year 1933, according to your statement is $452,993.35?

A. That is correct.

Q. Out of a total of $10,664,331.10. Now, the item appearing in the annual report filed by you with the I. C. C. on behalf of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as of December 31, 1933, shows all the amounts due in family line bills from the various subsidiaries of N O T M to N O T M., is that not correct? A. That is correct.

Q. The schedule that you handed me this afternoon, this exhibit 43 for identification, shows how much of the total amount of family line bills unpaid and owing to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, were represented by family line bills from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico alone, is that not correct? A. That is correct.

Q. All right, we have that straight. Now, on December 31, 1933, through a journal entry after the trustee was appointed, you did something with respect to these other unadjusted debits—family line bills which you have in the balance sheet, and I ask you what did you do?

A. Well, we transferred the amount up into 706-D.

Q. 706-D. And what is 706-D?

A. 706-D is investments in affiliated companies—D advances.

Q. Now Mr. Eckert, when you say in this schedule of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, that the amount of $10,666,331.10, which as shown on the books of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico prior to the journal entry on December 31, 1933, was carried in the opposite column to unadjusted debits, the column in St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico being called other adjusted credits—family line bills, isn't that correct?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. And just as in the case of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico books, when by the operation of the journal entry you transferred the other unadjusted debits-family line bills up to sub-item D advances, under the term investments of affiliated companies, by a similar parity of bookkeeping, when you came to the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico books you put that up to the open accounts under non-negotiable debts to N O T M? A. Yes.

Q. That is correct, is it? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, I ask you whether any of the items contained in this exhibit 43 for identification have ever been paid?

A. They have not.

Q. They have not been paid to this date? A. No.

Q. Now, I notice that in 1928, you show here that St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico owed New Orleans, Texas & [Mexico], the sum of $150,800 for equipment trust notes, as you state here, principal and interest, which was not paid by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico. Would you please state what that is?

A. Well, I haven't any further detail here, except this statement. I haven't had an opportunity to examine it very closely, but the statement indicates that it is St. L. B & M equipment trust notes, principal and interest, not paid.

Q. You also show that there were certain operating expenses of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico owed by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico including a proportion of pooled expenses in the amount of $284,530.48, that were not paid during that year. Is that correct—is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the amount of $284,530.48 is represented by three vouchers of May, 1928, November, 1928 and December, 1928?

A. I couldn't verify that here without the records.

Q. You know, do you not, that a dividend was declared in 1928, by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. It is not indicated on this statement. A dividend declared in 1931—

Q. I am not talking about that. I am talking about 1928. There was a dividend, Mr. Eckert, in the year 1928 declared to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, of $603,329.

A. $603,112.51.

Q. That is your figure? A. Yes.

Q. $603,112.50? A. 51 cents.

Q. Was that paid?

A. According to this it was, yes, sir.

Q. You say it was paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How was that paid?

A. I don't know how it was paid.

Q. Was it paid by check?

A. It was probably by voucher.

Q. What is that?

A. It was probably paid by voucher.

Q. And what was the characterization given to that voucher when that dividend was declared and to take on a voucher form?

A. I don't recall the exact wording of the voucher, that is too long ago to remember the wording.

Q. You still have those vouchers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are they here? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you prepared any other schedules for this hearing? A. No.

Q. You have no other schedules? A. No, sir.

Q. But you say this dividend declared in 1928, of $600 odd thousand dollars was paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you cannot state at the moment how it was paid?

A. Except that I think it was paid by voucher, that is my recollection.

Q. By voucher? A. Yes.

Q. And you mean a voucher was just prepared, and that was payment?

A. Oh, the voucher was paid and the money was paid.

Q. I mean you don't know whether a check issued thereafter?

A. No, I don't know whether a check was issued or not.

Q. You can't say now whether this dividend was put into family line bill? A. No, I don't think it was.

Q. You don't know at the moment?

A. No, I don't know definitely, but I don't think it was.

Q. You don't think it was. But you now—this schedule shows that other unadjusted debits-family line bills due from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to the extent of $435,330.48, which charges were made to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, and which amount was owed by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico to NOTM, has not yet been paid?

A. According to this statement it has not been paid, yes.

Q. What is that?

A. According to this statement it has not been paid.

Q. And to your best information it has not been paid?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, we come onto the year 1929. Now, in the year 1929, you state that certain unadjusted debits-family line bills, certain vouchers charged to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, and owed by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, for equipment trust notes in the amount of $99,725. was still unpaid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your schedule also shows that bills owing from—

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to object to this line of testimony. He is asking the witness to repeat what the schedule already shows, and it has been marked for identification.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I think it is extremely important to have this evidence gone into with a sufficient amount of clarity and a minimum amount of delay, so that we will be in a position, if your Honor please, to show why it is that New Orleans, Texas & Mexico persisted in a course of paying dividends out of capital. That lies at one of the roots of these problems.

Mr. McConaughy: That doesn't answer my objection, Your Honor. All I object to is asking the witness to answer a question which is merely repeating a figure shown on an exhibit already.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, it is not offered in evidence as yet.

The Court: It is not offered in evidence.

Mr. Brandwen: Not offered in evidence. He wanted it identified, and I had it identified. I would like to acquaint myself with these figures, too. It just came in a few days ago, Mr. Eckert said, and as I said, I am not complaining about the fact that we saw this for the first time only a short time ago, although we tried to get the information earlier, but I say I am not complaining about that at the moment.

The Court: All right, go ahead.

Mr. Brandwen: Was there a question?

(Question read as follows:)

Q. Your schedule also shows that bills owing from—

Mr. Brandwen: Q. —from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, for materials and supplies in the year 1930, of $251,706.41 is still unpaid, that is correct, is it not? A. What is that amount?

Q. I am sorry, $143,642.44. A. That is correct.

Q. And your schedule, exhibit 43 for identification, shows that fuel oil bills owing from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, incurred in the year 1929, of $299,887.55 are still unpaid?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And so also per diem mileage, reclaims and equipment rents of $344,269.73, owing from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in this account of other unadjusted debits-family line bills for the year 1929 are still unpaid? A. That is correct.

Q. And your operating expenses, including a proportion of pooled expenses chargeable to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, due and owing to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, for the year 1929, are still unpaid? A. That is correct.

Q. Now,—

Mr. McConaughy: Did your Honor have a copy of this exhibit?

The Court: No.

Mr. McConaughy: May I just show it to you? I believe, your Honor, that the witness already testified once that everything on this exhibit is unpaid, and it only repeats it to read this off.

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to read any more at the moment. I just want to get certain things clear.

Q. Now, then, we understand, of course, that all the items referred to on this exhibit 43, for identification, are unpaid? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, I am going to deal with several items that don't appear in some of the other years, there are only a few items and I would like to come to those. In 1929, do you know what the dividends declared by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was?

A. I have a memorandum which shows $1,039,970.83.

Q. Was that paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was paid. Do you know when? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know how it was paid?

A. Paid like all the others, through voucher, paid to NOTM.

Q. You do not know whether a check was issued thereafter? A. I do not.

Q. Could that information be obtained?

A. I think it could.

Q. May I ask that information be obtained before the hearings are concluded?

A. Do you want the vouchers?

Q. I want to have the history of the voucher from the moment the voucher was set up for the dividends to see just what happened to the voucher once it was set up, pursuant to a declaration of a dividend, and all the steps it went through before it came to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. A. Yes, sir, that is all for the year 1929?

Q. I am going to ask you that with respect to each of these years, 1929, 1930 and 1931, also 1928.

A. 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931?

Q. Since you can get them up, while this schedule only goes to 1928, I would like you to get them up for 1926 and 1927, because dividends are reported to have been paid by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, during those two years.

A. You understand, Mr. Counsel, that I have to get this from Houston, either by telephone or they will have to read them off. I don't know how quick I can get it.

Q. Will you do the best you can?

A. I will do the best I can.

Q. We tried to get that information, Mr. Delaney did when he was in Houston, and he wasn't able to get it.

A. I don't know why not. They didn't refuse him anything, I don't think.

Q. Well, as Mr. Delaney said this morning, there were certain things he couldn't get, it wasn't a matter of refusal, they weren't available. I mean just at the moment he wasn't able to get the analyses of the "other unadjusted debits-family line bills" for December 31, 1932, he was not able to get it, he asked for it. I am not saying that there was any refusal, all I say he asked for it and was not able to get it. As soon as you are through making a note, you let me know. A. All right, sir.

Q. Now, in 1930, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company declared a dividend in favor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in what amount?

A. $930,897.99.

Q. And in 1931? A. $4,155,079.73.

Q. Now, I notice in this exhibit 43 for identification, you have dividends on St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico capital stock declared June 17, 1931, payable to stockholders of record November 30, 1930, as $316,188.85. That was one of the dividends declared during the year 1931, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That has not been paid? A. Has not been paid.

Q. That was put into a voucher that went into "other unadjusted debits-family line bills" of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. That is correct.

Q. Please explain the circumstances of your putting that dividend declared on June 17, 1931, by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, into "other unadjusted debits-family line bills"?

A. My dear sir, that happened 14 years ago, I don't remember now, but as I told you this morning, offset settlements were made, wherever they could be made, and if I had been as wise then as I am now, I would probably have paid it and it wouldn't have appeared on this statement.

Q. Why do you say if you were as wise as you are now?

A. If I had known of this thing coming up 15 years later I would probably have paid it and it wouldn't have appeared on here. It could have been paid through an offset settlement.

Q. It could have been?

A. I think it could have been, yes, sir.

Q. That could have been paid?

A. I think so, I think those items could have been paid.

Q. But you put them into: "Other unadjusted debits-family line bills"?

A. Yes, sir. It was one of those that was not offset, no special reason for it, it probably could have been done at the time.

Q. That is, you say it could have been paid, that particular voucher could have been paid?

A. I think that one, and the next one, too.

Q. Now, the next one that you are testifying to is the other dividend declared on June 17, 1931, payable to stockholders of record February 28, 1931, in the amount of $338,890.88. That declaration of dividend was never paid?

A. It was not paid.

Q. And that got into the category of other unadjusted debits, family line bills of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. That is correct.

Q. That was never paid? A. No.

Q. Now, you say both of those dividends could have been paid? A. I think they could have been paid.

Q. They could have been paid?

A. I say I thought they could have been paid.

Q. You thought? A. Yes.

Q. You think now?

A. I think now that they could have been paid at the time.

Q. You think now they could have been paid at the time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you can't tell us now how it happened then that these dividends declarations, both of which were made on the same day, were put into "other unadjusted debits-family line bills", though? Didn't someone instruct you to put them into other unadjusted debits-family line bills, Mr. Eckert?

A. Yes, I think the Interstate Commerce Commission, checking our records. They also instructed us to put it up in 706, later on, account 706.

Q. You put this into other unadjusted debits-family line bills before the Interstate Commerce Commission knew about it, isn't that so, Mr. Eckert? A. I don't think so.

Q. Isn't that so? A. I don't think so.

Q. You mean to say that the first entry that you made against the "other unadjusted debits-family line bills" or the first voucher that you made for these dividends was only after this was called to the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission? I ask you to think very hard about that question, Mr. Eckert?

A. I would like to look at the records on that before I give you a definite answer, but as I said this morning, the Interstate Commerce Commission checked our records almost every year, and I would like to look at the record to see before I answer that definite question.

Q. I think the fact the Interstate Commerce Commission looked at these records subsequently is not responsive to this question. I simply ask you, Mr. Eckert, as auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, if you want this court and counsel here to understand—

Mr. McConaughy: Now, wait a minute.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to ask this question. After I have finished my question, won't you please wait until I finish my question?—to understand that you did not make a voucher for this dividend, the two dividend declarations and put them into other unadjusted debits-family line bills before any intimation was given to the Interstate Commerce Commission of these two declarations of dividends?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to this, he has asked that question, and it has been answered. This is not cross examination, he called the witness himself.

The Court: He may answer.

A. I said I would like to look at the record on that. I made a statement that I thought the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized us to put that in account 757. I am not certain about that, and I would like to look at the record before I give you a definite answer.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. I want to say that the item other unadjusted debits-family line bills is what number? A. 757.

Q. 757? A. Yes.

Q. I show you this document and ask you whether you have ever seen that, or a copy of that before?

A. This appears to be copy of the two vouchers which you have just referred to as being a dividend on the capital stock of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico to the N O T M.

Q. From an examination of that voucher would you state whether you had anything at all to do with the original preparation of it?

A. No, sir, I didn't even sign this voucher. It was not approved by me. It is a memorandum voucher, apparently.

Q. From an examination of the document that I have just shown you, can you state when this was prepared, the original of which was prepared?

A. According to the date at the top, it is shown as July 22, 1931, and apparently audited in June, 1931, account.

Q. Dividends having been declared on June 17, 1931?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What would be your best information at the present time as to the time when such voucher was prepared?

A. According to the date it shows July 22, 1931.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Eckert, that no reports had yet been submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to this fact by that time?

A. What do you mean no report had been submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Q. With respect to the declaration of these two dividends referred to in that voucher?

A. This was audited apparently in June, 1931, accounts and if it was audited in June, 1931 accounts, it would be shown in the reports for the end of the month of June, 1931.

Q. And you say it was reported to the commission then, at the end of June, 1931?

A. If that information on there is correct, it probably would have been in the June, 1931, report of the N O T M to the I C C.

Q. And when that report was sent on to the Interstate Commerce Commission as of June 30, 1931, how would this item have been identified, or in what category would these items have been? A. In dividends received.

Q. Dividends received? A. Yes.

Q. Dividends received by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Yes. Of course, you are dealing with a figure there I can't check. I would have to verify this from the records. I can't tell you from this piece of paper just what happened. I am telling you now that I would be glad to check it and see what it does show.

Q. And you will check that?

A. I am under oath here and I am on trial, apparently.

Q. Oh, no, Mr. Eckert, you are not on trial, not on trial by me, anyhow. You are under oath, though; that is true.

Now, Mr. Eckert, during that same year of 1931, you recall that there was another dividend of $3,500,000 declared by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and that, according to the testimony already given was declared on June 11, 1931.

A. I beg your pardon, I think it was July.

Q. Excuse me, July 11, as of June 30th? A. Yes.

Q. Was that dividend paid?

A. No. About a million of that was paid, if I recall. I think Mr. Delaney testified to that already.

Q. The books indicate payment of a million dollars?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how that was paid, that million dollars was paid?

A. No, I do not, not from memory I couldn't tell you.

Q. But you are going to check on that?

A. I will check on that, yes.

Q. Now, there was still a balance of $2,500,000 on that dividend that had been declared on July 11, but had not been paid in any fashion during that year. Now, in what account of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, did that $2,500,000 appear, if any?

A. It was in the profit and loss account of the N O T M.

Q. You mean to say that it was treated as income?

A. Yes, in the profit and loss.

Q. As income? A. In the surplus account.

Q. It was treated as income before it gets to the surplus account? A. It eventually goes into surplus.

Q. Then, before it gets there it must go through another channel? A. Dividend received.

Q. Dividend received? A. Yes.

Q. If it wasn't paid how could it be in dividends received? A. Well,—

Q. And if it wasn't paid, and you say it wasn't paid?

A. I don't recall what the exact amount was, I would have to look that up, too. I don't know whether it showed dividend received or not, but that is the logical place for it to go.

Q. Even if it wasn't received?

A. No, if it hadn't been paid it shouldn't have gone in there.

Q. Do you know whether the $2,500,000 was paid?

A. No, not all of it.

Q. The $2,500,000 you know was not paid?

A. No, not all of it.

Q. You know the original dividend, you recall, was $3,500,000?

A. There was about $1,400,000 of it was not paid.

Q. I am talking about as of December 31, 1931?

A. I don't know. The next year I think they paid more of it, so that the only amount left outstanding was $1,400,000.

Q. So that you don't know what happened to, or how, you don't know how this item of $2,500,000 was picked up and treated on the books of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. I would have to look at the books or the record. I haven't anything here to go by.

Q. Do you have any records? A. It has been so long ago.

Q. Do you have any records in St. Louis?

A. I have the annual reports here to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. Now, I show you the annual report of the St. Louis Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ended December 31, 1931, of which you were General Auditor at the time? A. Yes.

Q. And ask you whether by examining page 200-L your recollection may be refreshed with regard to the $2,500,000.00 that according to that report was still unpaid as of December 31, 1931?

A. Item shown in line 23 opposite Dividends Matured Unpaid, $2,500,000.00.

Q. So that St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico on its report that you submitted in its behalf [fo] the Interstate Commerce Commission for December 31, 1931, shows that two and a half million dollars of that dividend was still unpaid? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And in that respect the $2,500,000.00 was just as unpaid as were the two dividends that you have just testified to that were declared on June 17th, 1931?

Mr. McConaughy: If a thing is unpaid, isn't it unpaid, your Honor?

The Court: Yes. If it is unpaid, it is as unpaid as anything else.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, the two dividends of three hundred and sixteen thousand odd dollars and three hundred and thirty-eight thousand odd dollars that were declared on June 17, 1931, that are unpaid, were put into the category of family line bills? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That were unpaid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was this $2,500,000.00 of this larger dividend that was unpaid put? A. Well, later—

Mr. McConaughy: I beg your pardon, would you kindly state as to what time you are asking?

Mr. Brandwen: Immediately after the entry was made for the $2,500,000.00 in the year 1931, and ultimately as of December 31, 1931.

The Witness: I didn't get the question.

(Last question read.)

A. I said it was put in the—reported as dividend matured unpaid, and vouchers were probably issued for that amount.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) It was not put in the family line bills account? A. No, sir.

Q. So that although you had two dividends declared on June 17th, 1931, that were unpaid, and you had the balance of $2,500,000.00 on the large dividend of $3,500,000.00 of which two and a half million dollars were unpaid, you treated the unpaid dividends differently?

A. Apparently so.

Q. There can be no question about that, can there, Mr. Eckert? A. It doesn't look like it from here.

Q. It doesn't look like there is any question about it? A. From where I sit.

Q. Can you state now—

The Court: It looks like what, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: It doesn't look like it from where I sit, I said.

The Court: Doesn't look like what?

The Witness: The thing he indicated about the six hundred thousand dollars not being in the same—put in the same plane with the $2,500,000.00. The $2,500,000.00 shown in there, your Honor, as dividends matured unpaid, and the $665,000.00 is not in there, that is what he is talking about; the $665,000.00, on the other hand, was written off to family line bills.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) And other unadjusted debits—family line bills, except in dealing with the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, eliminated other unadjusted credit family line bills? A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you please state what the circumstances were which induced a difference in treatment of these unpaid dividends?

A. I don't believe I can answer that question now.

Q. Do you want to check that further?

A. I will check it, yes.

Q. Did you receive any instructions from anyone?

A. No, sir.

Q. You did that on your own?

A. Of course. I was working for a living, just like everybody else is. I was at that time.

Q. I am sure you are now, too, but with respect to a number of these matters, instructions were being issued from other places in the Missouri Pacific Empire, isn't that so?

A. No, I wouldn't say that. We handled those things pretty well down there. These dividends between the St. L., B. & M. were declared by the S. L. B. & M. board of directors under the guidance and legal opinions of one of the men that I thought more of than anybody I think I ever knew in the legal profession, that is, without disrespect to anyone here, Honorable Frank Andrews, of Houston, Texas. He was a great lawyer, and it was on his advice that these dividends were declared.

Q. These dividends were declared? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Andrews was a director of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico?

A. Yes, sir, a director.

Q. Do you know whether he was present at this meeting on July 11th, of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, where this dividend of $3,500,000.00 was declared?

Mr. McConaughy: I don't think that is a proper question to ask the Auditor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

The Witness: Ask the Secretary about that.

Mr. Brandwen: We had the minute book here, but it was returned to the Trustee's counsel, and the minute book, of course, would be the best evidence on that. I thought since he had taken it back—

Mr. McConaughy: If you will show me in the minute book, that he was present, I will concede it.

Mr. Brandwen: I will do that.

Q. Now, you have a copy of Exhibit 43, for identification, before you, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you look at the family line, other unadjusted credits here, family line bills, that are unpaid from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the year 1931, and tell us how much—what was the total amount of the charges and bills of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico due to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the year 1931, other than these two dividends on June 17th that you testified to that were unpaid for that year?

Mr. McConaughy: May I have that question, please?

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) And are still unpaid?

The Court: Read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read.)

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, this is gradually working out to the point where Mr. Brandwen will have had the witness testify to practically every figure on this exhibit. Why can't he put it in evidence?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, it was just subtraction, and if the witness will agree, I can simplify it.

Mr. McConaughy: Is there anything about this exhibit that you don't want to put it in evidence?

Mr. Brandwen: I don't see it at the moment.

Mr. McConaughy: Why not put it in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to have the witness comment with respect to some of these things on the exhibit.

Mr. McConaughy: That has nothing to do with the question you have asked him now. You just asked him to state the balance of the account, which is perfectly plain from the face of the exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like it on there so there can be no question about that figure, so that the Court and no one else would have to do any computing.

Q. Is it not a fact that exclusive of these two dividends of June 17, 1931, which went to family line bills, and are still unpaid, there were charges for various items listed, various categories listed such as material bills, fuel oil, and so forth, operating expenses in the amount of $2268,-561.34, which are still unpaid for the year 1931?

A. That is correct.

Q. The total amount of other unadjusted debits-family line bills of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway as of December 31, 1932, was $10,652,092.00, is that correct?

Mr. McConaughy: Did you say 1932?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: You have the exhibit before you, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: I don't have the exhibit. He said the amount due the N. O. T. & M. It was $10,664,331.10, was the total.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Let me ask you this: do you know how much of these unadjusted debits, other unadjusted debits-family line bills were paid in the three months, January, February and March, 1933?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. And I assume you do not know what vouchers were paid during that period then? A. I do not, sir.

Q. When I stated before that the other unadjusted debit family line bills were $10,652,092.96, I meant to say that they were the other unadjusted debit family line bills due New Orleans, Texas & Mexico only from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico. If the record is not clear on that, I want to make that perfectly clear.

Mr. McConaughy: That still leaves it unclear, because we don't know as of what date you are talking.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) As of December 31, 1932?

A. 1932?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. This shows $10,652,092.96. That is the report of the St. L. B. & M. to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ended December 31, 1932.

Q. So that we have in the record, the amount due and owing from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, on other unadjusted debits family line bills as of December 31, 1932? A. That is right.

Mr. Brandwen: I should like to offer in evidence schedule that has just been prepared showing the other unadjusted debit-family line bills due from St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico and Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western as disclosed by the subsidiaries report to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. Those were the two biggest debtors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico on the family line bills, is that not correct?

A. Yes, sir, St. L. B. & M. to the N. O. T. & M.

Mr. McConaughy: We will accept it subject to check.

Mr. Brandwen: That is in evidence.

(Said paper was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 44.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 103.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, can you produce the June 30th, 1931 report of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. You mean the monthly report of revenue and expenses?

Q. The full amount that you have submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. That is the fiscal year.

Q. Yes, I know, but the full report that you submit on June 30th, at the end of each month.

A. You mean the report of—monthly report of revenues and expenses?

Q. Yes. A. I will have to get that from Houston.

Q. Would you do that, please?

A. Yes, sir. What do you want, the St. L. B. & M. to the N. O. T. & M.?

Q. Yes, please. June 30th, 1931, and July 31st, 1931. Do you know how much cash on hand St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico had at the beginning of June, 1931?

A. I do not, sir.

Q. Do you know how much cash it had on hand on June 30th, 1931? A. I don't have any figures on that.

Q. Those figures are available, are they not?

A. They are available. You want the cash on that?

Q. I want the amount of cash on hand and the current assets and current liability position of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico for the months of June and July, 1931.

Mr. McConaughy: I wonder, your Honor, if Mr. Brandwen wouldn't be good enough to all of us to present his request for future witnesses and the information he wants so we won't have this business of waiting and going all through this?

The Court: I thought before this hearing there was an agreement here with Mr. Biggs that they would take it up with counsel to produce things and you would notify them what they were.

Mr. McConaughy: That is what Senator Dearmont said yesterday.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I didn't know how much information this witness had, I didn't know what reports he had. I thought under the circumstances that this witness would know how the three and a half million dollars was paid.

Mr. McConaughy: Why didn't you call him over and sit down and talk with him? Has he refused to talk to you?

Mr. Brandwen: I will tell you, if your Honor please, I want to say this, I am hesitant about talking to witnesses in this case in advance, I am very hesitant about that, because—I am not saying this with respect to Mr. Eckert, I want to make this perfectly clear, I am not satisfied as to how much of this information will be communicated to my opponent here, and I don't see how we can get protection on that. If, for example—

The Court: This is mostly all a matter of record.

Mr. McConaughy: Is there something secret about this, your Honor? I thought we were trying to get the facts.

Mr. Brandwen: We are trying to get the facts, I want to get the facts in such a way where all the facts will be put in the record, and I am not satisfied, if your Honor please, that that has—

The Court: It is a matter of records. I don't see how it would make any difference. The Missouri Pacific Railroad is not going to have these records falsified or anything of that sort. It is the same information for them as it is for you.

Mr. Brandwen: We tried to get that information when Mr. Delaney was in Houston, and he wasn't able to get it, they said it wasn't available, he tried to get it.

Mr. Kitchel: On the cash on hand?

Mr. Brandwen: On a number of items.

Mr. Kitchel: We are talking now about the cash on hand.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't know. Mr. Delaney is here and he can say whether he asked for the amount of cash on hand on June 30th, 1931, or not; I can't say.

Mr. Kitchel: You just said he couldn't get it.

Mr. Brandwen: I said he couldn't get a number of things he asked for.

Mr. Kitchel: What we were talking about was cash on hand on certain dates. The implication is there, you mentioned that.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't know whether he asked for it or not, but he asked for a number of things that he couldn't get.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I was going to say, it seems to me all this has been certified by the I. C. C., their accounting department has gone all over this, and apparently counsel is trying to upset the I. C. C. as well as all parties concerned. I notice counsel has taken four days of everybody's time to state what the issue was this morning, and wound up by indicating to the Court that he is on a fishing expedition. Now, I think it would be pertinent for your Honor to know, as was disclosed before the Interstate Commerce Commission and in this Court, that this gentleman represents a client of Mr. Comstock, who has thirty-nine shares of N. O. T. & M. stock purchased in 1942, and the Commission said in its report, purchased as a speculation. This man has considerable profit for the thirty-nine shares of N. O. T. & M. that he owns, and I think it is more than unfair to take up the time of all the counsel—I should say the Court first, the Court and of counsel, in trying this issue out and taking this long, protracted method of doing it.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, on the contrary, I think that if one examines the record here very carefully, one will find, one must necessarily conclude that the amount of evidence submitted with respect to the issues presented by this very large claim are both abundant and weighty, and when any counsel states that anything is protracted here in view of the size—

The Court: There is no question, whether it is stated by counsel or who, there is no question there has been a lot of the time of this Court taken up unnecessarily on matters that you have taken up with the witness on the stand here that you could have gotten the information just as well by asking him privately as you can by asking him in the presence of all the counsel here and the press and everyone else.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I regard this as a very serious matter, and we are trying to get this done as quickly as we know how, and I think we are doing it, and it is a very serious matter, and we have made, in my opinion, I say this with all due respect, we have made real progress with respect to the presentation of the testimony. An examination of the exhibits will disclose that beyond any question. I am doing everything I can to get the information as quickly as we can in advance. I cannot say that we can get all that completely in advance.

Mr. Kitchel: May I say a word, your Honor? Taking this document that he has just been questioning the witness in regard to, it showed on its face that at the end of 1932 a certain amount, I haven't my glasses, I think it is ten million odd, had not been paid. When he got through his examination that is all he has shown, and he took since quarter past two to bring that out.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to say this—

Mr. Kitchel: And it was all on the sheet when he started.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to say this, if your Honor please, say that this is one specific way in which Mr. Kitchel's comment can be nailed to the mast; so there won't be any question about that, I want to take this opportunity, with your Honor's permission, to have that nailed to the mast. You can search this document from now until doom's day, Comstock's Exhibit 43, for identification, and let anyone show me where there is in this document a statement showing that with respect to two dividends declared on June 17th, 1931, those two dividends that are unpaid go into family line bills, whereas, twenty days later another dividend was declared of three and a half million, of which one million presumably is paid, leaving two and a half million still unpaid, and that goes into quite another account. I think when it is learned as to why those different treatments were made in respect to a transaction or transactions that are comparable, I think it may be interesting to learn that. You can look at this document and you can't find that out, you can't find out from this document how much cash there was on hand at these dates, so when Mr. Kitchel says all that was done was about definite things that were in this document, I think he is completely mistaken.

Mr. Kitchel: In that particular I am mistaken.

Mr. Brandwen: You are.

Mr. Kitchel: But there was no reason why you had to go over item after item that had no bearing on the question you are now raising, when you could have brought that out in about two minutes without going through the whole document.

Mr. Brandwen: I want to have the record show, so that all who read may know that I asked what these other items were, and there is one answer made by this witness, I don't think it is important to make any comment on it, but which I hope to comment on at final argument that is very illuminating with respect to the way these matters were treated, which answer did not appear on this document, and Mr. Kitchel will be reminded in final argument as to what I have reference to, so when Mr. Kitchel says that all this is in this record, certainly certain figures are, but the significance of those figures and how they are related to these very basic issues, as to whether a subsidiary was so dominated by this Empire so that they did anything they wanted and as they wished, you have to show each one of these things so that the connection appears clearly.

Mr. Kitchel: Are we having the argument now, your Honor? It sounds like it.

Mr. Brandwen: I understand that you interrupted. I was examining a witness and you felt fit to come up with your statement, and certainly you admitted that you were wrong.

Mr. Kitchel: To the extent that I admitted.

Mr. Brandwen: To the extent that you admitted, a very important admission.

The Court: It is certainly very unfortunate that this wasn't done earlier instead of at this stage of the proceeding.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I stated last July when this matter came up first that I thought time would be saved if we did it then. I made that as clear as I knew how in order to avoid this. I know under ordinary circumstances, I appreciate your Honor's position on that, under ordinary circumstances a matter like this might have gone on, if you will, before a Special Master. I didn't suggest that because I didn't want to have anybody say there was any delay. I would like to point out, if your Honor please, that with respect to a matter, the Terminal Shares matter, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was interested in in the early days where they were having a very tough battle with respect to the Terminal Shares contract, that was a matter that involved inter-company dealings; it was a serious matter so far as dollars and cents were concerned, but I don't think any greater than this; that was before your Honor came into this case; but an examination of the amount of testimony taken, the length of time they spent, and I am sure that counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were very able, very competent, did their job very well, it took a good deal of time.

Mr. Homire: I would like to point out, your Honor, that that was done in the very early stages of this case, in the year 1935. I would like also to ask whether or not Mr. Brandwen will follow the very helpful suggestion that was made here by Mr. McConaughy that he announce in advance what information he wants these witnesses to produce so that we won't be one day with a long list of questions and maybe have to wait another week or two until the answers get here.

Mr. Brandwen: I will tell your Honor that I will do my utmost with respect to it, but I should like to point out that we haven't been engaged in the litigation of this matter even two full days on this, in the litigation of this particular claim, and I feel we made tremendous progress. We won't stress all the ramifications of this matter, and I told your Honor yesterday, and I repeat it, we are not going into any side issues, however they may bear on the principal issue. We feel that in order to achieve your Honor's desire on this matter, we are going to stick to the most basic issue and let the others fall by the wayside, however relevant they may be, but when you consider that we haven't been engaged in this even two full days—

The Court: If you can expedite the matter at all then in any degree by [determinining] what witnesses you are calling and suggesting what documents you would like them to produce, please do so.

Mr. Brandwen: I will try to do so, surely. I have been doing that in a great many cases, with counsel for the Trustee, and he has been furnishing me with those documents. I must confess that I have been reluctant with respect to other witnesses. I am not saying that about Mr. Eckert. It must be apparent to your Honor here that one of the principal opponents whom we have in this matter is aided, certainly one can see quite obviously, by Mr. Wyer.

Mr. McConaughy: What is the inference to be drawn from that, please?

Mr. Brandwen: The inference to be drawn from that is as to how much dealing Mr. Wyer has been doing with employes of the trustee.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Wyer is not an employee or officer of the Trustee.

Mr. Brandwen: No, but I say how many dealings he has been having.

Mr. McConaughy: What are you doing now, just insinuating? Do you know anything about what you are talking about?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I think I do.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, you stated before that by a journal entry on December 31, 1933, I think it is called Journal Entry No. 56, you transferred the unadjusted debits-family line bills of N. O. T. & M. as of December 31, 1933, to the investment account in the subdivision of advances; that is correct, is it not?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. I want to ask you this question, Mr. Eckert. Did you ever prior to December 31, 1933, make a comparable transfer of other unadjusted debits-family line bills to advances in investment accounts?

A. I did not. I did this on instructions of the Commission.

Q. You did that on instructions of the Commission?

A. Of the Interstate Commerce Commission, yes, sir.

Q. And you had never done that before?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Would you please refresh your recollection as fully as you can?

A. I don't think we ever had anything in 706.

Q. Well, since it will not be known what 706 is, you mean you never transferred prior to December 31, 1933, items from other unadjusted debits-family line bills to advances in the investment category, investments to affiliated companies? A. I don't recall that we did.

Q. And you said you did this pursuant to instructions from the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you this memorandum and ask you if that refreshes your recollection?

A. Yes, but that is all right. This is a letter getting Mr. Johnson's approval. He was the Chief Accounting officer at that time. There was an exception taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission to the 1932 audit.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to offer this in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: Does your Honor wish to read it first?

Mr. Brandwen: I am sorry. I offer this in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: All right, your Honor.

(Said paper was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 45.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 105.]

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to read this exhibit at the moment, I am going to inquire with respect to it.

Q. This letter was written or a memorandum was written by you, Mr. Eckert, from Houston, on January 18th, 1934, and from its contents it appears that it was written before you closed your December, 1933 account?

A. That is correct.

Q. Your Journal Entry No. 56 was one of the closing December, 1933, accounts, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So this was a suggestion that you were proposing to Mr. Johnson, who was the principal financial officer?
A. Chief Accounting Financial officer.

Mr. McConaughy: That has been testified to already.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I know it has. This is a letter written to him.

Q. Proposing a certain way of dealing with the family line bills and family lines vouchers that had accumulated up to December 31, 1933, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.
Q. That was your suggestion?
A. It came from the Interstate Commerce Commission. I don't mention it there, but the Interstate Commerce Commission checked our account and told us to do that.
Q. Did they tell you that by letter? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Will you produce that letter? A. I have it in here.
Q. Will you produce it?
A. An excerpt from it. It is about an inch thick, I think. If it is about an inch thick I don't want to produce the whole file. I will produce an extract of the letter dealing with that specific part of it, if that will do.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, you see, if your Honor please—may I just be pardoned for this comment—I had this before me, but in reading this I could never tell that this followed after any purported request from the Interstate Commerce Commission. It would never occur to me to ask the witness for this letter. One can read this as fully as one can and one would never suppose that. I simply want to cite this as an illustration of one of the problems that one is up against. I could not have gone over all this questioning with Mr. Eckert. I simply mention that as an illustration.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the fact, Mr. Eckert, that you say that, I am quoting, "I (that is Mr. Eckert) would like before closing December, 1933, account, to transfer such items, insofar as prior items are concerned, to advances and non-negotiable debit accounts in the same manner as we handled similar items some years ago." Do you recall I asked you before as to whether prior to the journal entry of No. 56 as of December 31, 1933, you had ever transferred other unadjusted debits-family line bills to advances to affiliated companies in your investment account, and your answer was that you—

A. I said I didn't recall any.

Q. Well, now, does this memorandum, this letter of yours refresh your recollection?

A. I can't tell from that letter whether we had any items or not; it says prior items, and you are talking about 1933.

Q. Yes, but you say here, and I simply am reading your own language, you are suggesting to Mr. Johnson this transfer from other unadjusted debits-family line bills to another account in the investment account advances, and you say, you suggest that it be done, "In the same manner as we handled similar items some years ago." I am asking you whether this excerpt that I just read from in your letter to Mr. Johnson refreshes your recollection?

A. I may have transferred some; I said I didn't recall now. Lord, man, that is thirteen years ago.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I appreciate that, that is a fact that is an inescapable fact here, and if you don't recall, you just don't recall. I simply am asking whether this refreshes your recollection.

A. That letter indicates that we had some few others, I don't know what they were, but I know that the Interstate Commerce Commission was checking our accounts right along about once every year, I would say. That was an outgrowth of some exception that they had taken. Exception No. 19, I think it was, in the 1932 account, the 1932 account, and it was following along the very lines of that exception, which we assented to. Now, you didn't know about the Interstate Commerce exception, I don't imagine?

Q. No, I didn't.

A. That is an outgrowth of that exception.

Q. And you must admit from this letter—

A. Poorly worded I will say that.

Q. I make no comment on your wording, Mr. Eckert, I make no comment at all on it; I simply say I couldn't tell that from a reading from this letter.

A. That letter was submitted to St. Louis, and as you will see at the top, it was approved by Mr. Johnson; he did that in his own handwriting.

Q. That is his handwriting.

The Court: Announce a five minute recess.

(Five minute recess.)

MARTIN ECKERT,

a witness of lawful age, having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand, further testified as follows:

Direct Examination (Continued).

Questions by Mr. Brandwen:

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I was wondering—we didn't quite get the matter straightened out—Mr. Brandwen said the same thing he did yesterday. I was wondering if we can't get a direction from the Court to Mr. Brandwen not to call any more witnesses and then ask them to send to Houston for information and that sort of thing. Of course, if there is some reasonable excuse for not having asked for these [docuemtns] before—

The Court: To get a direction from the Court as to what?

Mr. McConaughy: Directing him that when he puts on a witness to give the witness advance notice of what he wants the witness to bring into Court. If he must have something that he doesn't know about, that is all right, I don't object to that, but there ought to be some reasonable effort made to give the witness advance notice as to what he wants.

The Court: You are asking the Court to give a specific direction as to that?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: I don't know that any specific direction is necessary, but in order to expedite matters, Mr. Brandwen, give the witnesses as much advance notice as possible.

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to try to do that. That was one of the thoughts I hoped to be able to accomplish in connection with that subpoena, but we have heard a good deal about that, and I was perfectly willing—

The Court: Harping upon that theme again?

Mr. Brandwen: It is a difficult situation, and we are trying to do our very best with respect to it.

Q. Mr. Eckert, when it becomes necessary and desirable to make the miscellaneous adjustment in the accounts, the surplus accounts in the Profit and Loss accounts, in excess of five thousand dollars, isn't it customary for you as auditor to get instructions from others to make those adjustments?

A. What kind of adjustments do you refer to?

Q. Say, in profit and loss, or surplus accounts.

A. No, sir.

Q. You just go ahead and make them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I ask you to look at this document and see whether you have seen the original of that before?

A. No, I haven't seen the original of this, but I imagine it is taken from page 323 of the NOTM report for the year 1924. Apparently, that is what the thing indicates.

Q. That is, it is contained in the report of the NOTM filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1924, and you were the auditor of the NOTM during that year, as you testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your signature appears in the original report, does it not? A. I guess it does.

Q. Now, I ask you to have this before you. I just handed to Mr. Eckert the copy of the report filed by the NOTM with the Interstate Commerce Commission as of December 31, 1924, which copy was furnished to me by Trustee's counsel. Would you like to look at it a little before I question you? A. Yes, I would like to look at it.

Q. Sure. All right, you look at that, and I will ask you about it. Now, in that report you submitted on behalf of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, to the Interstate Commerce Commission as of December 31, 1924, you have a group of miscellaneous credits which you added to the Profit and Loss account for that year. Isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first item is, although it is under miscellaneous credits, an item in red which deals with the reversal of errors, credit to profit and loss in previous years of $98,715.94. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. The next item, which is under Miscellaneous Credits, and I am only reading from Miscellaneous Credits, is the difference between par value and cost of five per cent noncumulative income bonds reacquired and retired during the year of $109,686.00. Now, the next item here is one I would like to inquire about in particular, and that is stated on this report submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission as interest payments received on first mortgage bonds of affiliated companies previously written off to profit and loss as follows: The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916,—I am reading, you understand, from a report filed by you with the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1924— A. Yes.

Q. —and the amount that you included in the credit for that was $2,548,916.40, and you have a similar item, that is, interest payments received on first mortgage bonds of affiliated companies previously written off to profit and loss as follows: the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, November 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916, $440,409.32. Would you explain each one of these two items, please?

A. I think I would have to refresh my memory on that. It is quite a long time ago and there were some bonds that were reacquired—no, cut that—there was some interest on these bonds that had previously been written off to profit and loss where the item was reversed, but I don't recall whether we ever had that up with the Interstate Commerce Commission or not.

Q. Do you know who instructed you to write up interest on first mortgage bonds for the period July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916, that [——] been written off and all of a sudden in 1924, to add to surplus $2,548,916.40?

A. I don't recall that now at all; it is too long ago.

Q. Yes. There certainly must have been some instruction from someone on a matter of that magnitude, am I not correct in supposing that?

A. There probably was some correspondence about it, but there is no reference made to it here.

Q. We have a right to understand, haven't we, Mr. Eckert, that you didn't do that on your own, did you?

A. I said I didn't recall what brought it about, but I would have to get at the files on that and see what brought it about, if there was any correspondence on it.

Q. You will admit it is a very extraordinary action?

A. Well, it might appear to be, on account of the large amount involved.

Mr. McConaughy: If your Honor please, we object to that question.

Q. And also that it covered the period July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916. The end of that period was eight years before this entry was made, some of it nine years before the entry was made.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, he is just arguing with the witness. The witness says he doesn't recall. Doesn't that settle it?

Mr. Brandwen: I think, in view of the size of the transaction, if the witness can refresh his recollection, I would like to have him do so.

The Court: Proceed.

A. I would say, your Honor, I would have to get some more information on that. I don't recall the details of it. It is twenty-one years ago.

Q. That is, it was written up in 1924?

A. Yes, but the item apparently speaks for itself in that it indicates that it was—

The Court: Let's see it.

The Witness: Right there.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I regret that I don't recall, but when did you first come with the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, did you say?

A. I came there in 1918 as Assistant Auditor; I first came to the properties in 1908 when it was still the CSNOP Railroad, but I wasn't auditor all the time; I was chief clerk.

Q. Yes, but from your general contact with the property, you knew the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company was in bankruptcy during the period July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916? A. Yes.

Q. It was in bankruptcy during that period? A. Yes.

Q. So that this item which has been written up in the amount of $2,548,916.40 as interest on these first mortgage bonds, covered a period during which the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico was in bankruptcy?

A. Yes, they came out in 1916.

Q. They came out in 1916? A. Yes.

Mr. Kitchel: Receivership.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, Receivership, yes.

Q. Do you know when any interest on these first mortgage bonds, St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, during the period of July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916, was written off?

A. I told you I would have to examine the record on that. I can't answer.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. And do you know whether the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, what its financial engagements or commitments with the others were during the period of November 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916?

A. The same answer I made for the StLB&M applies to that.

Q. It also was in equity receivership during that period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I suppose you want me to understand that you do not know at the present time when there was any write-off of any interest which accrued on the first mortgage bonds of the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western while it was sojourning?

A. I was not the auditor of the NOTM or the BSL&W during that period, during that period of 1912 to 191[illegible], but Mr. McCullough was auditor at that time.

Q. But you do not know when it was written off?

A. No, I don't know when.

Q. I just want to get that clear. The sum total of these two items that were written up in December, 1924, annual report to the Interstate Commerce Commission amounted to over three million dollars, is that correct?

A. No, not over three million dollars; it is two million—

Q. Five hundred and forty-eight thousand?

A. $2,988,000.

Q. $2,988,000?

A. Nine hundred and eighty-nine, in round figures.

Q. Can you state whether when you became general auditor of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, whether you hadn't already found these items for interest that had accrued on these first mortgage bonds while these two companies were in receivership had been written off? Would your recollection enable you to answer that?

A. My recollection doesn't go that far back without referring to the records.

Q. Now, would you turn, please, Mr. Eckert, to the Surplus Account of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, I think it is No. 300 in that same report filed by you with the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. 300? Yes, sir.

Q. Before we go into that, I understand that you are going to get that further information for me?

A. I will endeavor to get the information for you.

Q. Fine. Fine, and when you have it, will you please let me know so that you and I may discuss it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, from an examination of that report of that particular category in the 1924 reports submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission by New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, what do you find was the earned surplus of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico on January 1st, 1924?

A. $992,767.35.

Q. And the income for that year is reported as what?

A. $2,099,531.17.

Q. And you had miscellaneous other credits there that amount to less than two hundred thousand dollars, and I will not trouble you about them, and then you find another item called "Miscellaneous Credits," and that amounts to how much? A. $3,009,465.00.

Q. And isn't that the item concerning which you have just testified which appears on page 323 of that annual report?

A. I didn't testify about it, because I didn't know; I told you I had to get some further information on it.

Q. But that was the item concerning which the testimony addressed itself? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And that was a report that you signed when you sent it to the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the first charge against that surplus. What is that?

A. Dividend appropriations of surplus.

Q. No, before that. Is that what it is, dividend appropriation of surplus? A. Yes.

Q. How much? A. $3,485,379.00.

Q. That is to say that New Orleans, Texas and Mexico paid out in dividends during that year $3,485,379.00?

A. Yes, sir, that was the dividend appropriated.

Q. Yes, and that figure is almost $500,000 more than the earned surplus at the beginning of the year plus the income for the year 1924? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the fact that—look at Item 300-D, dividend appropriations, and would you please state what you said with respect to that in the report which you submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. 300-D?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, yes.

Q. You answered that question, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did you say in response to that question when you furnished your report to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Regular stock dividend declared at the rate of seven per cent per annum, regular dividend shown on Schedule 300-D and figured on quarterly basis. No obligation has been incurred for the purpose of procuring funds for payment of dividends or for replenishing treasury of respondent after payment of dividends.

Q. And that was a correct statement, was it, Mr. Eckert? A. I think it was correct.

Q. You heard the testimony as to when the Missouri Pacific acquired the stock of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico the other day? A. No, I didn't, I wasn't here.

Q. I should like to read from the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company held at 60 Broadway, New York, on Monday, May 19, 1924, at 2:00 P. M. Who was the president of the Company at the time, do you recall?

A. I don't recall.

Q. I think it is in the evidence and I would like—

A. I think Mr. J. S. Piatt was president prior to the time that the Missouri Pacific acquired the securities.

Q. Yes. Now, I will read this—it isn't long, but to deal with this point I would like to read this portion of the minutes, if your Honor please:

"The President advised that he has received an opinion from counsel to the effect that an extra distribution on the capital stock could lawfully be made and that the accumulated net profits of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company were sufficient to provide for such a distribution."

Do you know where that opinion is available?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Would you make an effort to find out, please?

A. I think the Secretary probably ought to get that for you.

Q. All right, the Secretary was—I think the Secretary was Mr. Warren. It looks like the signature of, I think, G. Warren. A. Yes.

Q. Yes, he is the same Mr. Warren who is a member of the New Orleans, Texas, and Mexico bondholders committee? A. Yes, sir, I think he was.

Q. (Reads) "Therefore, on motion duly made and seconded, it was resolved that an extra dividend in addition to the regular dividend of $16.50 per share be declared out of the accumulated net profits of this Company payable to stockholders of record as of May 26, 1924, as shown by the transfer books of the Company, said dividend to be payable as follows: $4.50 per share on June 2d, 1924. $6.00 per share on September 1st, 1924; $6.00 per share on December 1st, 1924.

"Further resolved that the assistant treasurer of the company be and hereby is authorized to arrange for the distribution of the additional cash distribution of $4.50 per share payable June 2d, 1924, and to execute and arrange for the distribution of dividend certificate of $6.00 per share in respect of the dividends payable September 1st, 1924, and December 1st, 1924, respectively, and that such certificate be executed on behalf of this Company by the assistant treasurer and registered by the Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company as registrar and be in such form as counsel may approve."

I now come to the minutes of a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company held at 39 Broadway, New York City, on Monday, August 11, 1924, at 2:30 P. M. There were present Messrs. G. H. Walker, who was Chairman of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Bondholders Committee in these proceedings, J. S. Piatt, Alex Burger, and G. Warren, and I would like to read these resolutions with your Honor's permission:

"The President of the Company reported that the estimated earnings of the Company for the quarter ending August 31st, 1924, would be substantially in excess of the rate of seven per cent per annum of the capital stock of the Company and stated that the Company's cash position would justify the disbursement of the customary quarterly dividend. On motion duly made and seconded it was resolved that a dividend of 1-¾% be paid of the outstanding stock of the Company for the quarter ending August 31st, 1924, payable September 1st, 1924, to stockholders of record as of August 22, 1924, and that the assistant treasurer of the Company be authorized to make the necessary arrangements for the payment and disbursement of the dividend."

Immediately thereafter in the minutes appear the following:

"The President stated that the Company might not have sufficient funds available to make the payment of the extra dividend of $6.00 payable September 1st, 1924, and advised that it might be necessary to obtain a temporary advance to meet this payment from one of the company's banks. On motion duly made and seconded it was resolved that G. H. Walker, Chairman of the Board, or J. S. Piatt, President of the Company, be authorized to procure an advance, or advances from Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company of such sum or sums and upon such terms as he in his discretion deems necessary to provide sufficient funds to meet the Company's dividend requirements on September 1st, 1924, and that any such advances made by Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company be secured by a lien on the stock of the International Great Northern Railroad Company now held by said Bank."

I now come to the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company held at 60 Broadway, New York City, on Thursday, November 6, 1924, at 12:30 P. M. and, parenthetically I may note that the officers of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company of New York were moving about.

Mr. Kirshbaum: Your Honor, may I note parenthetically that I object to the counsel reading this from only one point of view. It is in evidence, I think it should go in evidence and your Honor may read it without taking up the time of the Court; and if it is not in evidence, I object to it unless counsel proposes to ask a question based on it.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I have asked a question and I am going to ask some more questions.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. Again, Mr. J. H. Walker acts as Chairman, Mr. Warren was also present at the meeting, and so was Mr. Alex Burger, among others, and the minutes state:

"That the Chairman reported that the earnings of the Company for the quarter ending November 30, 1924, would be at a rate largely in excess of seven per cent per annum of the Company's stock and the Company's cash position justified the payment of the customary dividend. On motion duly made and seconded it was resolved that a dividend of 1-¾% be paid on the outstanding stock of the Company for the quarter ending November 30, 1924, payable December 1st, 1924, to stockholders of record as of November 20, 1924, and that the assistant treasurer be authorized to make the necessary arrangements for the payment and distribution of this dividend. The Chairman advised that, although application had been made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell additional first mortgage bonds of the Company, to reimburse the Company's treasury in part for expenditures for Additions and Betterments, such application might not be acted upon in time to provide the treasurer of the Company with funds to meet its December 1st obligations, which obligations are about as follows: regular quarterly dividends, $260,000.00. Special dividends, $890,000.00, with the possible requirement of $600,000.00 to provide for the financing of the new equipment recently ordered and that therefore it might be necessary for the Company to borrow temporarily a sufficient sum to take care of the December 1st obligation, and, then, on motion duly made and seconded it was resolved that G. H. Walker, Chairman, or J. S. Piatt, President, be and are hereby authorized to obtain advances from the Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company or any other Bank and Trust Company in their discretion to a sum, or sums, not to exceed $1,200,000.00 in order to provide the Company with sufficient funds to meet its December 1st, 1924, requirements, securing such obligations by a loan application or note and a pledge of security for the payment of any advances so obtained of all the stock of the International Great Northern Railway Company held in the treasury of the Company."

Now, there is just one other item at the meeting of—

Mr. Kirshbaum: If your Honor please, may we have a question now?

Mr. Brandwen: I am just about through. This is the last one and then I am finished.

The Court: There have been plenty of them and you haven't asked a question yet.

Q. Minutes of a Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans, Texas, and Mexico Railway Company held in Room 1923, No. 120 Broadway, New York City, on Wednesday, January 7, 1925, at 12:00 o'clock.

Mr. Walker and Mr. Warren were also present, and the following appears in the minutes:

"The Chairman reported for the information of the Board that pursuant to the authority conferred by this Board at its meeting of November 26th, 1924, the Company borrowed from the Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company $850,000.00 to provide for December 1st requirements and $100,000.00 to provide for December 31st requirements, such advances being secured by a pledge of the stock of the International Great Northern Railway Company."

Now, Mr. Eckert, look at the report that you have filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission on behalf of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico for the year 1924, and see what dividends were paid by New Orleans, Texas and Mexico during that year?

A. Why, dividend appropriations were $3,485,379.00—I mean $3,385,379.00.

Q. And doesn't that report indicate the number of dividends that were made?

A. Yes, it shows three, six—seven.

Q. And would you please state what that shows?

A. What each one shows?

Q. Yes, so that we can show these are the dividends referred to in these minutes, or that the dividends referred to in these minutes are reflected in that report.

A. Well, in the first one on February 14, 1924, payable March 1st, 1924, of $259,549.50. The second one was declared on May 19, 1924, payable June 2d, 1924, $259,549.50. The third one, again on May 19th, 1924, payable on June 2d, 1924, $667,413.00. The fourth one was on May 19th, 1924, payable September 1st, 1924, in the amount of $889,884.00. The next one was on May 19th, 1924, again, payable December 1st, 1924, $889,884.00. The next one, August 11th, 1924, payable September 1st, 1924, $259,549.50. The next one on November 6th, 1924, payable December 1st, 1924, $259,549.50. Total, $3,485,379.00.

Q. Mr. Eckert, when you signed the report and you read the statement in the report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission that "no obligation has been incurred for the purpose of providing funds for payment of dividends or for replenishing treasury by respondent, that is, the NOTM, for the payment of dividends, "were you aware of the items that I have just read from the minutes?

Mr. McConaughy: I don't see how that is material, what Mr. Eckert was aware of.

Mr. Brandwen: I think it is very important, if your Honor please.

The Court: He may answer.

A. Well, I knew that there were several dividends declared, or to be declared, in connection with the sale of the NOTM stock, and I also knew there were some loans to be made, but that didn't have any direct bearing on the reply I made to the ICC report, because I got legal advice in making that notation.

Q. Oh, you did? Then you differed from the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico who stated in the minutes on November 6th, 1924, that—

Mr. McConaughy: You just read that previously.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, I am going to ask a question.

Q. (Continuing) —that it might be necessary for the Company to borrow temporarily a sufficient sum to take care of the December 1st obligations, which the Chairman immediately before this particularized as the regular quarterly dividend of $260,000.00 and a special dividend of $890,000.00?

A. Well, I don't know that I differed with him on that, because if they had enough financial backing to borrow money to pay dividends, I think they had a perfect right to do so in view of the fact we had a great many projects and additions and betterments for which we could issue bonds and that was also referred to in your reading of these minutes where we could have reimbursed ourselves by the issuance of bonds. That entered into the notation I made. Eventually, we would get that money back.

Q. You didn't make that statement that you just stated in the notation you made? A. No.

Q. You did not?

A. I did not. That is what I had in mind and that is what our law department had in mind when they told me to show that.

Q. But that is not stated in this report? A. No, sir.

Q. And you also differed from the Chairman who reported at the meeting, the Chairman of the [Road], who reported at the meeting of the Board held on the 7th day of January, 1925, that he had borrowed, that the Company had borrowed from Irving Bank Columbia Trust Company $850,000.00?

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me, your Honor, the facts are in the record. He is now asking for a construction of language.

The Court: He may answer the [queestion]. Complete your question.

Q. —to provide for December 1st requirements, which he stated at the November 6th meeting covered the regular quarterly dividends, the requirements covered the regular quarterly dividends of $260,000.00 and a special dividend of $890,000.00?

A. I don't think I ever differed with the Chairman of the Board of Directors, Mr. Counsel. I think the answer I made a little while ago will apply to this as well.

Q. Now, coming back to page 323 of your report of 1924 to the Interstate Commerce Commission, you state in this report that interest payments were received on these first mortgage bonds of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, which had theretofore been written off to profit and loss for the period of July 1st, 1912, to May 31st, 1916, in the amount of $2,548,916.40. Did New Orleans, Texas and Mexico ever receive that sum of money?

A. I think I testified awhile ago that I was not prepared to answer that question until I made it—until I made a further study of the matter. That is also true of the item from the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western.

Q. I see. There were letters written by the Commission with respect to the report of 1924 that a—report filed by you on behalf of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission bearing on the report. I have tried to get those letters but I haven't been able to see them yet. Would you obtain them, please?

A. I will endeavor to get them.

Q. And will you let me have a chance to look at them beforehand? A. Yes, sir, anything you want, Counsel.

The Court: Might save time if Court would adjourn at this time and take up the matters you want to ask about. Court will stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 12, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

After a brief recess, the hearing was resumed as follows:

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, may I point out that Mr. Delaney was requested to furnish counsel with detailed figures used in summarizing profit and loss in his testimony, and Mr. Delaney has just furnished counsel with that summary.

There is just one formal thing for the record, if Your Honor please. While we have not made any very careful attempt to check the record, there was one obvious misprint in the record, that has also been discussed with counsel.

Let the record show that all the exhibits which we have offered, except for Exhibits 1 and 43, which were marked for identification, all other exhibits than Exhibits 1 and 43 were offered in evidence. The record is ambiguous in certain parts on that point, but Exhibits 2 to 45, inclusive, with the exception of Exhibits 1 and 43, are in evidence.

Direct Examination of Mr. Martin Eckert
Resumed by Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Eckert, I show you this copy and ask you to state what that is.

A. It is a statement showing, for the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, a schedule of dividends declared and reported paid during the period January 1, 1924, to December 31, 1932, shown in the annual reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Schedule 300-D.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: Will you ask the witness to state who prepared it?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

The Witness: This was prepared by Mr. Delaney.

Mr. Brandwen: And shown to Mr. Eckert before he came to Court this morning, and, of course, it is subject to check. In order to eliminate the necessity of questioning him in respect of each one of these items—

Mr. McConaughy: Subject to check.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 46.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 106.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would Your Honor care to see it (handing exhibit to the Court)?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I would like to say this: That, since that was prepared by Mr. Delaney, I would like to reserve the right to cross-examine Mr. Delaney about it.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Am I correct, Mr. Eckert, in stating that of the total of dividends reported as paid by St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, as appears in this Exhibit 46, to New Orleans—

Mr. McConaughy: I don't think he has qualified the witness to answer this yet. He doesn't state whether the witness examined this statement and checked it. He is asking a question as to an amount, out of his head.

Mr. Brandwen: I thought I made it clear that this statement was shown to Mr. Eckert before Court.

Mr. McConaughy: You are not testifying.

The Court: Admitted, subject to the objection.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Have you examined this Exhibit 46?

A. I didn't check it; I just looked at it a little while ago. That is all I did to it. I would like to check it myself against the annual reports and other reports.

Q. This schedule just purports to be extracts from the Annual Report submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Eckert, you were asked yesterday when you were on the stand, to see about getting some material concerning which you testified, and you are still engaged in the process of attempting to get that material, are you not?

A. Yes, sir. There will be some little delay, because I have to get it from Houston, Texas.

Q. They relate to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Yes.

Q. And some of the subsidiaries. As soon as you get that will you let us know promptly? A. Yes.

Q. Yesterday you testified to family line bills of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and you were asked to produce whatever comments or communications were made by the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect thereto?

A. That is correct.

Q. Pursuant to that request you handed me this morning some excerpts from Interstate Commerce Commission communications, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the first one that you handed to me was this document here, which is an extract from a larger document which I have not yet seen (handing document to the witness)?

A. Exception No. 19 of the 1932 audit, examination of Interstate Commerce Commission, which, however, does not mean that it confined itself only to the year 1932, because the final answer by us was not made until sometime in 1934.

Q. But this was sent to you with respect to the 1932 report filed by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And the communication sent by the Interstate Commerce Commission is a much larger document?

A. Very much larger. There is quite a file of it.

Q. And this is what you excerpted for me and handed me this morning?

A. Yes, sir. I am testifying that that is a correct copy of what is in that Exception.

Q. And this is a complete copy of what appears in Exception No. 19? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The document last indicated was marked Comstock Exhibit 47.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 107.]

The Witness: Counsel, I only have one other copy of that.

Q. Can you get more copies made? A. I can.

Q. Will you please do so? Mr. Eckert, is there any significance of these items that appear in the upper right-hand corner?

A. That is the file reference of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. You also handed me this document this morning, did you not (indicating)? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 48.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 108.]

Q. Exhibit 48, which has just been marked in evidence, states it is an extract from a letter—

Mr. McConaughy: I can't hear you.

Mr. Brandwen: Exhibit 48, which has just been marked in evidence, purports to be an extract from a letter dated February 12, 1934, addressed to Mr. Louis F. Ormond, Examiner of Bureau of Accounts, Interstate Commerce Commission, Houston, Texas. This was written by whom?

A. Written by myself.

Q. We have not had a chance to see the entire letter, but this is the note that you excerpted, thinking it was pertinent to the testimony you gave yesterday?

A. Yes; that is a correct extract of it.

Mr. Brandwen: I will show you this in a moment, Your Honor, because I should have identified the next one first, to be more complete.

Q. I now show you another document, which you handed me this morning, and I ask you to look at that. A. Yes.

Q. What does that purport to be?

A. That is Exception No. 11, taken by Examiners of the Interstate Commerce Commission to our accounting as of December 31, 1932, under the Interstate Commerce Commission File D-C 9032, St. Louis, B. & M. Railway Company.

Q. Yes, this is an exception taken with respect to the accounting of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, as reported in your Annual Report of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1932? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whereas, Exhibit No. 47 dealt with New Orleans, Texas & Mexico; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 49.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 110.]

Q. So that the record may be completely clear, I am now referring to Comstock Exhibit 47, which is described in Exception No. 19. I want to ask you one question with respect to the paragraph designated as (a). When the Examiner, in his Exception, refers to "An account styled 'family line bills' classified under Account 727 'other unadjusted debits' ", he is referring to charges and bills due from various subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico; that is correct?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And when, in paragraph (b) the Examiner refers to "An account styled 'family line vouchers' classified under Account 778 'other unadjusted credits', which account reflected a balance of $78,394.45 as of December 31, 1932", he was referring, was he not, to amounts in this account that were due and owing from New Orleans, Texas & Mexico: That is correct, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Coming to Exhibit 49, dealing with paragraph (a) in Exception No. 11 then, where the Examiner refers to the—

Mr. McConaughy: I think it is improper to ask this witness what the Examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission meant in a communication to the company. The letter speaks for itself.

Mr. Brandwen: I am trying to get this clear. The witness already testified that he responded to this Exception and assented to it, and I can certainly ask him as to what he understood was meant, because he acted thereon.

Mr. McConaughy: He is asking the witness to construe somebody's letter.

The Court: He may do so.

Mr. Brandwen: (Continuing question) —refers to "an account styled 'family line bills' classified under Account 727 'other unadjusted debits'", showing a balance of $410,674.21.

Mr. Eckert, that refers, does it not, to bills and vouchers due and owing St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico from other companies?

A. Bills rendered against affiliated companies by the St. L. B. & M.

Q. The St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico was a creditor? A. That is right.

Q. When you come down to item (b), still dealing with Comstock Exhibit 49, reference is made by the Examiner to "An account styled 'family line vouchers' classified under Account 778 'other unadjusted credits', which account reflected a balance of $10,598,654.54 as of December 31, 1932". That refers, does it not, to the amount due and owing from St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Mr. Eckert, it was your practice, was it not, to prepare earnings reports from time to time of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its various subsidiaries, prior to directors' meetings of those companies?

A. Not for the subsidiaries companies. We prepared it for the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico proper.

Q. For the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico itself? A. Yes.

Q. You gave those reports to the directors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. No; I gave the reports to the Executive Assistant, Mr. Safford.

Q. I show you this letter, Mr. Eckert, and ask you whether you have ever seen this or a copy thereof before.

A. Yes, I think I saw this letter before.

Q. Who signed that letter, do you know? The copy I have doesn't indicate.

A. Well, I think I signed the letter. I would like to check it, though, to see whether it is correct. I state under oath I did sign that. I think the letter is all right, it sounds very much like—

Q. Like yours. There is an item on here that you won't care about, so I am not going to offer this particular one, because it states where it is found. May I then ask you if that is not a copy of the letter that you just saw (indicating document)? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: May I ask the witness a question, Your Honor?

Q. Was that prepared by you, or under your direction, Mr. Eckert, this document that has been offered in evidence and that you have just looked at?

The Witness: You mean the letter itself?

Mr. McConaughy: Was that document?

The Witness: No, sir; it was not.

Mr. McConaughy: I agree to its going in evidence, subject to our check of it.

Mr. Brandwen: That is always understood, Mr. McConaughy.

The Court: That has been understood.

Mr. McConaughy: As I understand it, you are offering this with the exception of the notation at the foot, consisting of three lines?

Mr. Brandwen: No. I am offering that as is.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit 50.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 111.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. I now show you this document and ask you whether you have seen this or a copy thereof before.

A. I have to take it subject to check. I recognize the letter; it is signed by Mr. Banks.

Q. And Mr. Banks' position was what?

A. My assistant.

Q. And he is Assistant Auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Assistant Auditor, now.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) You did not physically prepare the copy which I have just offered in evidence?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. I assume that if you find any inaccuracies in that document, you will let us know about it? A. I will, sir.

(The Exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 51.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 112.]

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you know anything at all about the purchase by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico of International-Great Northern adjustment bonds in 1927?

A. No, I think I know they were purchased; I don't know much about it, and I could not give any detail about it.

Q. You don't know anything at all about when the arrangements for the purchase were made? A. I don't, sir.

Q. Then I will not examine you about that.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all I have with Mr. Eckert at the present time.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to defer cross examination, your Honor.

The Court: May Mr. Eckert be excused?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I may wish to recall him for cross examination.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to call Mr. Cole to the stand now. I have indicated to counsel for the Trustee that I was going to ask for Mr. Cole to be called.

Mr. Dearmont: Counsel asked me if I could produce Mr. Cole, and I thought I could, and I called his office and find he is going by the doctor's office this morning and we expect him back at his office in just a few minutes. I have also asked Mr. Wagner; Mr. Cole is not here right now, but I think will be in a half hour.

Mr. Brandwen: And Mr. Baldwin will be available? I would like to call Mr. Baldwin. I would like Mr. Cole first if I could. I want to have Mr. Cole for a few questions before I get Mr. Baldwin.

Mr. Dearmont: Mr. Cole is not here. I think he can be here in the next half hour. I have called his office and will call again.

The Court: We will recess, and call me as soon as the witness arrives.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 11:53 a. m., at which time court reconvened, and the following proceedings were had:)

AMOS T. COLE,

a witness of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified on behalf of Andrew W. Comstock, as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Give the reporter your full name and address, please.

A. Amos T. Cole; residence, Hotel Kingsway, St. Louis.

Q. What is your present occupation, Mr. Cole?

A. I am secretary for the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

Q. And have you been connected with the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company in any capacity for a number of years? A. Yes.

Q. Would you please state for the record just what your connection has been with the Missouri Pacific Railroad or any of the other railroads that the Missouri Pacific had any interest in?

A. I started with the railroad, that is now a part of the Missouri Pacific property in 1907, as clerk, and then paymaster at Beaumont and Houston, in 1911, and was later made secretary and treasurer of what is known as the Gulf Coast Lines; that is, the N. O. T. M., and subsidiary companies.

Q. You became secretary and treasurer when, do you recall?

A. 1918, I took over the duties, and I think I got the title a year or two later. At first I was just acting. In 1932 I was moved to St. Louis as assistant secretary of the Missouri Pacific, and the lines here.

Q. And prior to 1932 were you acting as secretary and treasurer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its various subsidiaries with your headquarters in—

A. Houston.

Q. Then we understand that you were secretary and treasurer of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico during the period 1918 to 1932? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Beaumont, [Saur] Lake and the other companies?

A. I did not always have the title of secretary. I think Mr. Warren in New York was secretary and I had the title of assistant secretary of the N. O. T. & M., and I believe of the subsidiary companies, I was secretary and treasurer at that time.

Q. Now, Mr. Cole, I show you copy of minutes that were produced the other day by Trustee's counsel, and ask you whether you have the original here of the minutes, June 17, 1931, of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Company?

A. No, sir; the originals are not here.

Q. Do you know where they are?

A. They are in Houston.

Q. They have been requested from Houston and do you know what arrangements have been made for getting them? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Mr. Cole, these minutes that have been furnished us, copies of which have been furnished us, are not complete in every respect, are they? Will you look at them, please?

A. Well, I don't know. I would have to check them with the original to answer that.

Q. Would you just look at them and look at the first page, for example, and see if you can tell from them that they are not complete; that is, the exhibits are not there?

A. They seem to be complete as far as the transactions at the meeting are concerned, but the waivers that are spoken of are attached to the original copies in Texas.

Q. You do not have copies of them here?

A. I do not have copies, no; they would not be here.

Q. These copies indicate that the originals were signed by you as secretary? A. Yes.

Q. And you were present at the meeting? A. Of course.

Q. And these gentlemen who are named as being present as directors were present, also? A. That is right.

Q. I have asked counsel for the Trustee to see whether he could get the original with the original waivers.

Mr. Dearmont: I thought I had complied when I gave him a copy.

Mr. Brandwen: I asked you the other day in court whether we could not get the original, because these don't have—

Mr. McConaughy: What is the materiality of the waivers? We don't object to the validity of the meetings or the minutes, are you objecting to them?

Mr. Brandwen: No, I am not objecting to them.

Mr. McConaughy: Then what is the importance of it; do we have to send for stuff from Houston just because of some waivers?

Mr. Brandwen: I just want to know when the waivers were signed. I just want to know what notice there was.

Mr. McConaughy: What materiality is that? We concede the meetings were validly held.

Mr. Brandwen: I want them; if they can be produced they can be produced.

Mr. Dearmont: They can be produced, but I really didn't understand that you wanted—I thought this served your purpose, but if it does not, I will ask to get the original copies here.

Mr. McConaughy: I feel that if all we are going to get is some waivers, or copies, there is no materiality in that.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, the reason I want them is, we are dealing here with two meetings; one, on June 17, 1931, and one on July 11, 1931. These two meetings held within twenty days of each other, and at the first meeting there were dividends declared amounting to $655,000.00 odd; and at the second meeting there was a dividend declared that involved $3,500,000; that is a total of over $4,100,000, in dividends—

Q. And Mr. Banks' position was what?

The Court: The Trustee said he will try to get them.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, sir.

Mr. Dearmont: If there are any other original minutes that we don't have, and you want that are in Texas, I think you better tell me about it all at once.

Mr. Brandwen: I will try to do that. That is why I gave you a list of items earlier—it has nothing to do with these, but I have been trying to do that.

Mr. Dearmont: You are just asking me now if there is something I could have sent for.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, there are certain other things that I expect to find that we are trying to get.

Mr. Dearmont: This morning?

Mr. Brandwen: And some of those that I discussed the other day that are on that list.

Mr. Dearmont: Tax returns?

Mr. Brandwen: (Q.) Now, Mr. Cole, from an examination of each meeting, July 11th, you find that the original waiver is not present there either, or on July 11, 1931?

A. No, the original waiver is not attached to this copy of the minutes.

Mr. Brandwen: May the record show that the minutes of July 11, 1931, since they are all in evidence that Mr. Andrews, who was a director of the road was not present.

A. I don't understand your question.

Q. I just wanted the record to show that, isn't that correct? Mr. Andrews was not present at the meeting on July 11, 1931? A. No, he was not.

The Court: The original is not there; that is a copy?

Mr. Brandwen: Not the waiver.

The Court: The original of the waiver was not there; you meant there was a copy there.

The Witness: No, sir, there is no copy. Mr. Andrews was not present at that meeting.

Mr. Brandwen: (Q.) He was present at the earlier meeting on June 17th? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Cole, it was your practice, was it not, to prepare resolutions in advance of director meetings?

A. Sometimes we did; not always.

Q. When you say "we", you mean you?

A. Well, on instructions from—sometimes the legal department furnished the wording of the resolution.

Q. And when the matter of the declaration of the dividend by the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico was to be considered, you were told about that in advance, were you? A. I don't know.

Q. I show you Exhibit 50, that was offered in evidence this morning and ask you whether an examination of this will refresh your recollection as to the procedure?

A. Your question again, please?

Q. Does this refresh your recollection as to the practice you observed prior to the holding of meetings, when those meetings were to consider the declaration of dividends? A. No.

Q. It does not? A. No.

Q. Did you, when you received this letter of March 27th, Exhibit 50, did you have a "suitable resolution" prepared for the next meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico? A. I don't know.

Mr. McConaughy: What year are you talking about?

A. It is hard to remember if I prepared the resolution or the attorneys prepared it, or who prepared it; of course, if the letter was there it was prepared.

Mr. McConaughy: May the record show what year you are talking about?

Mr. Brandwen: March 27, 1926.

Q. Now, I show you a letter of July 2, 1926, and ask you whether you recall having seen that, or a copy thereof?

A. Do you want to know if I have seen this before?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't recall. That is 1926, and that is eighteen years ago.

Q. You don't recall? A. No, sir, I don't recall.

Q. Do you have any files of letters that are addressed to you in regard to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, in St. Louis?

A. No, not in St. Louis; that would be in Houston.

Q. And as this letter is shown to you, does this refresh your recollection in any way as to whether you received it? A. No.

Mr. McConaughy: You just asked that question.

Mr. Brandwen: It doesn't? A. No; I could not recall.

Q. You have means of checking whether you received such a letter?

A. I would have to check with the office in Houston to see if it is in the file.

Mr. McConaughy: What was that?

A. I would have to check with the office in Houston to see if it is in the file.

Mr. Brandwen: May I offer this in evidence subject to the examination by Mr. Cole?

(The last Exhibit referred to was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 52.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 113.]

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Cole, I refer you to the minutes of June 17, 1931, of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, and call your attention to the resolution on the bottom of page 43 and ask you to examine that for a moment—(Handing witness paper)

You have examined it? A. Yes.

Q. And you will notice, Mr. Cole, that this resolution provides for the declaration of a dividend of $316,188.85. Do you have any information now, or any recollection now as to how that amount was arrived at? A. No, sir.

Q. You know nothing at all about it? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you given any records, reports, or memoranda, indicating why the figure of $316,188.85, was the figure fixed for the dividend? A. I don't recall.

Q. Now, I call your attention, Mr. Cole, to the resolution on page 44 of the minutes of the June 17th meeting, and ask you to examine that resolution for a moment.

A. I have read the resolution.

Q. And I will ask you with respect to this resolution on page 44 of the minutes of the board of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, held on June 17, 1931, which resolution immediately follows upon the resolution concerning which you have just testified, and that resolution provides for the declaration of a dividend by the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, on its stock, in the amount of $338,890.88; do you recall whether any memoranda, document, or explanation was given to you as to why this dividend was fixed at this amount? A. No.

Q. You can't therefore, state to the court why those dividends were fixed at these respective amounts?

A. No, sir, I can't.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Cole, why there were two dividends declared at the same meeting? A. No.

Q. There was no memoranda that you have that would throw light on the matter?

A. No, I have no information on that at all.

Q. Examining the minutes of June 17, 1931, Mr. Cole, can you state whether there was submitted to the board of directors of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, June 17, 1931, any reports bearing on earnings, income, profit and loss, balance sheets, or anything else, relating to the financial position of the company on which the board of directors might have acted? A. No, sir, I don't recall.

Q. Well, examine the minutes, won't you please, and see whether there is anything in those minutes which would indicate that any report was submitted to the board of directors of the meeting on June 17, 1931, bearing on that point? (Handing witness paper)

A. I don't recall that there were any statements delivered to me in connection with the resolution we adopted of this amount in connection with dividends.

Q. When you say any statements, will you please elaborate on that a little further; statement is a general term; describe what you mean by statements?

A. As I understand your question to be whether presented at the meeting or delivered to me any instrument in connection with those two resolutions; there were no statements at all.

Q. The minutes don't show that there was submitted to the board of directors here at [his] meeting of June 17, 1931, any operating statements, income statements, profit and loss statements of any kind, or financial statements that the board might consider before it passed these resolutions declaring the dividends; am I stating correctly what the minutes refer to?

A. There was nothing submitted that should have been included in the minutes. Now, whether there were statements of the kind you mentioned submitted to the members of the board of directors at the meeting or before the meeting, I don't know. I don't recall that. Maybe I would not have knowledge of it.

Q. What is that?

A. Maybe it was submitted before the meeting, and maybe I would not have knowledge of it.

Q. And these minutes that we have here of June 17, 1931, are true copies of what took place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the meeting? A. That is correct.

Q. On June 17, 1931? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I ask you to look at the minutes of a special meeting of the board of directors of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, held at Houston on July 11, 1931, and ask you whether from an examination of the minutes, or from your recollection, you can state whether the board had before it any financial data when it considered the declaration of this dividend of $3,500,000.00?

A. There was no financial data submitted that should be made a part of the secretary's records.

Q. Do you know whether there was any financial data submitted? A. No.

Q. You don't know? A. No, I don't recall.

Q. So since you don't recall that you can't say whether it should or should not have been made a part of the secretary's records?

A. Well, if it was submitted and should have been made a part of the secretary's records, I think it would have been noted in the minutes.

Q. But you can't say whether it was,—whether such financial data was submitted?

A. No, I can't say whether it was or was not submitted.

Q. And the same answer applies with respect to the meeting of the directors held on June 17, 1931?

A. That is right.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if your Honor please, I should like to offer, pending receipt of the original minutes, original exhibits, and copy of these two meetings in evidence with the privilege of having them exchanged for the originals when the originals come from Houston.

The minutes of June 17th, pages 41 to 44, inclusive, marked Exhibit 53, pages 1 to 4, inclusive.

(The last Exhibit offered was marked Comstock Exhibit 53, pages 1 to 4, inclusive.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 113.]

Mr. Brandwen: The minutes of the meeting of the board of directors of July 11, 1931, which appear on pages 45 and 46, of this book, as Exhibit 54, pages 1 and 2.

(The last Exhibit offered was marked as Comstock Exhibit 54, pages 1 and 2.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 118.]

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, we will object to the offering of the original copies in the record because we will want to keep them.

Mr. Brandwen: We will take copies of them if these are copies; that is perfectly agreeable to do it that way. I don't want the responsibility for keeping the original copies.

Mr. Brandwen: (Q.) Mr. Cole, I show you this document and ask you whether you recall having received a copy of that before?

(Handing witness paper.)

A. No, sir, I don't recall having received that.

Q. You have means of ascertaining whether you did receive such copy? A. In the files in Houston, yes.

(The document last referred to was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 55.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 120.]

Mr. Brandwen: We will look at them, of course, and then if there is any inaccuracy in them we will call the attention of counsel and court. I offer this document in evidence. I want to say these have numbers on top, such as "C-16," that are written there from a prior hearing or I could have that recopied, but that can be disregarded.

Mr. McConaughy: Let it be understood that those letters are not part of the exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I want to make that perfectly clear.

Mr. McConaughy: So that there cannot be any reference here or in the record on appeal; it is completely out of the case.

Mr. Brandwen: Not the "C-16."

Mr. McConaughy: What you mean to say is that they are not on the exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: That is not on the exhibit, and you may strike this out now.

Mr. McConaughy: You are not offering that in evidence, two of the previous exhibits that contained numbers like that?

Mr. Brandwen: They all contained numbers like this, like "C-16," and so forth.

Mr. Dearmont: I simply wanted to say counsel asked this witness to verify this and that document in the record, to expedite it copy should be furnished and contents of this to check up.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I will see to it that the witness has them. I understood from counsel for the Trustee that all of these would be checked.

Mr. Dearmont: I will be glad to verify them, but when you put something in the record that is not the physical work of this witness, I just was thinking about the modus operandi of having it checked. I should be given a copy of anything you want him to verify.

Mr. Brandwen: I will say that the witness has a copy of everything he has been asked to identify.

Mr. McConaughy: Let it be understood that you will have them some time today.

Mr. Brandwen: We have another copy I will let them go right away, otherwise, can you let them go temporarily—

Mr. McConaughy: No—

Mr. Brandwen: We will have them all typed up.

Q. Now, Mr. Cole, I show you this document and ask you whether you have ever seen this or a copy thereof before?

(Handing witness paper.)

A. No, sir, I don't recall having seen that.

Q. And you will make the same examination with respect to this document that you will with respect to other documents that have been offered? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer this letter in evidence.

(The document just offered was marked as Comstock Exhibit 56.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 120.]

Mr. Brandwen: (Q.) From an examination of Exhibits 55 and 56, would you say that it was the practice for officers of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, to advise you of the amount that it was intended to have St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico declare dividends at subsequent meetings?

A. Yes.

Q. That was the practice?

A. No, I don't say that it was the practice, but it is possible that they did advise me, and—

The Court: The reporter did not get your answer.

A. It is possible that I was advised of those amounts in order that I could see the amounts were correctly stated in the resolution prepared.

Mr. Brandwen: Did you make any independent examination of the operating figures of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico? A. No.

Q. You did not? A. No.

Q. You just took these figures that were given to you by other departments of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico? A. That is correct.

The Court: We will now adjourn until 2:00 p. m.

(Thereupon, court adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p. m.)

A. T. Cole,

having been previously duly sworn, upon resuming the stand, testified further as follows:

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Cole, I asked you shortly before you resumed the stand whether there were any minute [book] of the directors, and/or stockholders of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, here in St. Louis, other than the ones that trustee's counsel produced the other day, and you stated—

A. There are no copies of prior minutes in St. Louis. Now, there may be other copies of those same minutes that are in that book maybe, in my office, but prior to 1930, I don't think there are any minutes in St. Louis.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, I should like to offer in evidence a resolution appearing in the minutes of the adjourned annual meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, held at Houston, on June 19, 1930, declaring a dividend of $131,075.01. I should like to suggest that this particular resolution may be marked, and then we should like to have the privilege of substituting it with a copy from the trustee's office.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit 57.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 121.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence resolution immediately following the preceding resolution in the same minutes of June 19, 1930, which resolution provides for the declaration of a dividend of $239,663.62, and I ask that we have the privilege of substituting this with a copy furnished us by the trustee's counsel.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you want to mark that as a separate exhibit?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

(Said paper was so marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit 58.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 122.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence resolution from the minutes of the adjourned special meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, held at Houston, Texas, on December 6, 1930, providing for a dividend, for the declaration of a dividend of $178,568.70.

(Said paper was so marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 59.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 122.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence resolution adopted immediately after the foregoing resolution in the same minutes, same meeting of the Board, providing for the declaration of a dividend by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, of $381,590.66.

(Said paper was so marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit 60.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 123.]

Mr. Brandwen: I should like to have the record show that this minute book from which I have been having these excerpts introduced into evidence show that executive committee meetings were held for the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, and that they were held at 3600 Terminal Tower, Cleveland, Ohio, and that there were present Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen, L. W. Baldwin, and below that is written William Wyer, Assistant secretary.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you want to state the date?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, July 8, 1930. Another one on August 12, 1930, same people present, at the same place. Next one September 2, 1930, same people present at the same place. Next one September 9, 1930, same people present, same place. December 18, 1930, at 3600 Terminal Tower, Cleveland. Next one January 22, 1931, same people present, 3600 Terminal Tower, Cleveland. Next one April 14, 1931, 3600 Terminal Tower, Cleveland, same people present. Next one May 14, 1931, 3600 Terminal Tower, same people present. And I will get up a schedule of the other executive committees and those people present so as to save the court time and counsel time.

Q. Mr. Cole, there is nothing contained in any of the minutes from which I have read extracts and introduced them into evidence stating that any financial reports or financial data were submitted to the directors at the time of the declaration of these dividends, is that not correct?

Mr. McConaughy: Those are the ones he has looked at?

Mr. Brandwen: No, he hasn't looked at them yet.

Mr. McConaughy: You better let him look at them.

Mr. Brandwen: I want him to look at them. They are the meetings of June 19, 1930, and December 6, 1930. I have got them marked. You can see them.

The Witness: You said December 6, 1930?

Mr. Brandwen: I think the next one is December 6, 1930.

The Witness: There is nothing in the minutes to indicate that there were any statements submitted.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Will you just state what minutes you looked at, Mr. Cole? A. Yes.

Q. And the dates of the meetings?

A. December 6th, and June 19th.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) 1930, both? A. 1930, yes.

Q. Those are the only resolutions dealing with the declaration of dividends by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, other than those referred to in the meeting of June 17, 1931, and July 11, 1931, which have already been testified to, is that correct, in that volume?

A. I will have to check the books to see if that is correct.

Q. Would it take you long to do that?

A. Give me your dates again.

Q. You have looked at June 19, 1930, you have looked at December 6, 1930, we already have June 17, 1931, we already have July 11, 1931. There are no others in that volume, are there, of minutes dealing with dividends? I tried to include them all.

Mr. McConaughy: You are speaking of directors' meetings only, aren't you?

Mr. Brandwen: If there are any executive committees meetings that deal with the declaration of dividends, I wish you would call them to our attention. I didn't see any. A. There were two on December 6th.

Q. Two, yes. And there were two on the June date also. Mr. Cole, I wonder whether we could not save some time if you will check this later and let us know whether my statement is not correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, one further question, Mr. Cole: In connection with the hearing on the claim that is now pending before this Honorable Court, have you prepared any memoranda or data, prior to the testimony which you gave this morning in court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I see what you have prepared?

A. Yes, sir (handing same to counsel).

Q. At whose request was this?

A. At the suggestion of Mr. Vollmer.

Q. And when did he make such request?

A. That suggestion? Oh, about ten days before this week.

Q. What is that?

A. About ten days before court opened on this hearing.

Q. And the data which you prepared were the lists of officers-directors of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and—

A. And New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico.

Q. And that is all that you prepared?

A. Yes, sir; that is all. You have it all there.

Q. Have you given this data to anyone else, to anyone?

A. Yes, I made several copies of it.

Q. Do you know whom they were given to?

A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Whom did you give them to?

A. Gave them to Mr. Vollmer.

Q. Mr. Vollmer is who; who is Mr. Vollmer?
A. Mr. Baldwin's assistant.
Q. Thank you.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Kirschbaum: May I ask two questions?

The Court: Yes.

Cross Examination
By Mr. Kirschbaum:

Q. Mr. Cole, from 1930, down to 1933, was the stock of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad, that is, the voting stock, completely owned by the N O T M?
A. Yes.
Q. It was? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Was the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad able to meet all its obligations at the time of the declaration of the dividends to which you have testified, so far as you know?

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that.

A. So far as I know, yes, sir.

The Court: Wait a minute. When you hear counsel making an objection, wait until he has time to make an objection, and the court has an opportunity to rule.

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that question.

The Court: What is objectionable about that question?

Mr. Brandwen: It calls for a conclusion as to whether—there is before this court full data, balance sheets and income statements of the road that speak for themselves.

The Court: This man is secretary of the company.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, but I don't think he is in a position to make any comment on that. His answer is not at all competent, or relevant.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I think it is most relevant.

Mr. McConaughy: Is it your contention that full data is on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico?

Mr. Brandwen: I think so.

Mr. McConaughy: You are willing to stand on that, are you?

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to stand by any limitation.

The Court: I didn't understand what you said, Mr. McConaughy.

Mr. McConaughy: He made the statement in making the objection that the full data was before the court on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company, and now he is taking it back.

Mr. Brandwen: No, I haven't taken anything back, I said that the data bearing on that question is before this court, and the way to get this before the court is by dealing with the specific facts underlying, rather than a conclusion.

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, counsel has asked the witness with respect to certain financial statements which the witness said was not attached to the minutes. Counsel has been trying to give the inference to the court that these documents were for some reason, surreptitiously or otherwise, kept out of the minutes, and I think it is a fair question to clear it up to find out whether this witness knows whether the company at the time of the declaration of the dividends was solvent. I think that is important for this court to know, in view of the fact that the company was a completely owned and dominated company of the N O T M.

Mr. Brandwen: Moreover, I don't think it is proper cross examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Brandwen: Note my exception.

Q. (By Mr. Kirschbaum) What is the answer, please?
A. So far as I know it was.

Mr. Kirschbaum: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Will you please state to the court how you remember the fact as to whether the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company was able to meet all its obligations?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question, he didn't make any statement of the kind that Mr. Brandwen attributes to him. He said as far as he knew.

Mr. Brandwen: Would you read the question and answer, please?

(Question and answer read.)

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Well, then, I ask you what material, what information do you recall or what material information did you have at the time that you now recall that enables you to answer that question as you did?

A. I have no information to show that the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico was not able to meet its obligations.

Q. Do you know what the obligations of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico were at the time of the declaration of the dividends? A. I do not.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. You do not know what they were?

A. I have no figures on it.

Q. You have no figures, and you do not know—pardon me, your Honor.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. And you do not know what its financial position—

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen called this witness, now, he is trying to cross examine him.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. What its financial position was at the time the dividends were declared?

A. I do not know that the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico could not meet its obligations at the time.

Q. You do not know what its financial obligations were in dollars and cents, do you? A. No.

Q. You do not know what it had in current assets at the time, do you? A. No.

Q. (By the Court) Did you know at that time?

A. At that time? Judge, that is a long time ago, I really couldn't say.

Q. You don't know now. You did know then what their obligations were?

A. Well, I didn't know then that they could not meet their obligations.

Q. What do you mean by that? You have no opinion on the subject?

A. No, I mean if they could not have met their obligations, I probably would have known.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) You don't know now what the current assets of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico were at the time? A. No.

Q. You don't know what the current liabilities of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico were at the time of the declaration of dividends? A. No.

Q. You don't even know now, do you, what the obligations were of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, if anything, at that time, at the time of the declaration of dividends?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. You don't. That is all. You have no questions?

Mr. McConaughy: No.

Mr. Brandwen: I am through with Mr. Cole, unless the court has something.

The Court: No.

EDWIN WAGNER,

of lawful age, being duly sworn on his oath to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, was examined and testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Wagner, would you give the Reporter your full name and address?

A. Edwin Wagner, Kirkwood, Missouri.

Q. What is your present occupation?

A. I am treasurer for the trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and certain of its controlled and affiliated companies.

Q. How long have you been associated with the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company? A. Since 1926.

Q. And were you associated with New Orleans, Texas & Mexico or any of its subsidiaries since 1926? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the position that you occupied with New Orleans, Texas & Mexico from 1926 on?

A. From 1926 until I think about 1928, I was assistant treasurer, assistant secretary.

Q. Of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. That is right.

Q. Did you have a similar office with any of the other companies that were subsidiaries of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Oh, yes, practically all of the controlled companies.

Q. Mr. Wagner, where did you make your office during the period of 1926 to 1938?

A. From 1926 to 1930, we were in New York. From 1930 to 1938, we were in Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. To 1938, in Cleveland, Ohio? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, where did you make your office in New York?

A. At 120 Broadway.

Q. That was the office of what?

A. Office of the chairman of the board of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and a number of other companies.

Q. And would you state what the other companies were that occupied those offices at 120 Broadway?

A. I couldn't very well remember them all, but they were practically all of the controlled and affiliated company of Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, including the Texas & Pacific Company, which is not in these proceedings, the Wabash Railroad had its offices in the same building, the same gentleman was chairman of the board of both companies.

Q. And the same offices?

A. No, they had separate offices, but the chairman only used one office.

Q. The chairman of the board of directors of the Misouri Pacific was also chairman of the board of directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. That is right.

Q. That was Mr. Williams? A. Williams.

Q. And he was also an officer of the Wabash Railroad?

A. He was chairman of the board of the Wabash.

Q. And your offices surrounded that of Mr. Williams?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And in your capacity as assistant treasurer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, working in the assistant treasurer's office in New York, what did you do, what activity did you engage in?

A. As assistant secretary and assistant treasurer my duties concerned themselves with the transfer office where we paid interest, transferred stock, and things of that sort.

Q. Stock of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Also of the Missouri Pacific.

Q. Also of the Missouri Pacific? A. No.

Q. Do you know what relationship there was between the New York's treasurer's office of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, as you described it, of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in this suite of offices and the offices of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, at Houston, Texas? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you deal with operating matters in this office, this treasurer's office? A. No, sir.

Q. Just dealt with financial matters?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever get in touch with anybody in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, at Houston, about any of these matters? A. I can't recall a single case.

Q. You can't? A. No, sir.

Q. When there was any occasion to get in touch with anybody respecting financial matters affecting New Orleans Texas & Mexico, whom did you, or any of your associates get in touch with?

A. I can't speak for my associates, of course, but as far as I am concerned, I had nothing to do with financial matters in New York.

Q. You had nothing at all to do with them?

A. No, sir, except paying interest and so on, as I have related.

Q. I see. And when was this treasurer's office moved from New York to Cleveland?

A. In the summer of 1930.

Q. And where were the offices moved to in Cleveland?

A. In the Terminal Tower.

Q. The Terminal Tower Building?

A. In Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. And what was the nature of your activities when you moved to Cleveland, your own personal activities?

A. Of course, we had no transfer office after we moved to Cleveland.

Q. You had none in Cleveland?

A. That is right. It required that that office be in New York.

Q. That is, the New York Stock Exchange requirements required the transfer office—

A. —to be in New York. J. P. Morgan & Company were then employed to do that work for us. My duties in Cleveland were to generally assist the secretary and treasurer in the management of the office.

Q. And the secretary-treasurer was Mr. Wyer?

A. That is right.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you paid interest on bonds of the New Orleans Texas & Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific? A. That is right.

Q. And other roads? A. Various other roads.

Q. And who was your immediate superior?

A. As assistant secretary and treasurer, Mr. Wyer.

Q. I see.

A. No, I beg your pardon, Mr. Huntsman was my immediate superior. Mr. Wyer was treasurer, and, of course, was superior to Mr. Huntsman.

Q. Mr. Huntsman's position was what?

A. His position was vice-president and, I think, assistant secretary and assistant [treasurer].

Q. And what participation did you have in connection with financial transactions of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico that were engaged in the New York office other than this relating to interest payments and dividend payments and transfer of stock? A. None whatever.

Q. None whatever?

Q. And can you particularize in a little more detail as to what the nature of your activities was?

A. Well, let's see, when Mr. Wyer was out of town, of course, it devolved on me to be in charge of the office except on Texas & Pacific matters, another gentleman handled that. When Mr. Wyer was in the office we frequently handled whatever was necessary and mail that came in and we prepared the minutes of the meetings of the various companies, programs for the directors which were prepared before the meetings, we handled the New York and Cleveland bank account.

Q. And when you had occasion to get in touch with New Orleans, Texas & Mexico officials in connection with financial matters, did you get in touch with anybody at Houston? A. No, sir, not that I recall.

Q. Whom did you get in touch with?

A. I can't say I ever got in touch with anybody personally, but if I did, and it is possible I did, it would have been Mr. Barnes of St. Louis.

Q. And who is Mr. Barnes in St. Louis?

A. Mr. Barnes was in the president's office in St. Louis.

Q. That is in Mr. Baldwin's office?

A. Yes, sir. It is also possible that I might have talked with Mr. Johnson at some time. I don't recall any specific case.

Q. Whose office was also in St. Louis?

A. That is right.

Q. When you were in the treasurer's office in Cleveland, you never got in touch with any of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico officials in Houston, or in Texas?

A. I did not.

Q. You spoke a little while ago about arranging the program for the directors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Am I correct in understanding that you mean thereby, arrange for the financial program?

A. Well, the whole program of the meeting. There were various things besides financial matters on the program, but the subjects which were to be considered at the meeting were listed.

Q. And was it your practice to go over the financial requirements of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, even for the following month, or the following period?

A. Insofar as requirements in the East were concerned.

Q. In what?

A. In the East, that is, in the New York office where concerned, we had nothing to do with the financial requirements down in Houston.

Q. The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company does not have any office or does not go through Cleveland or through New York, in any way, does it?

A. No, sir.

Q. As a railroad? A. No, sir.

Q. Doesn't touch any of those places at all? A. No, sir.

Q. Or remotely, even? A. No, sir.

Q. So I should like to ask you now to particularize a little more fully as to what you mean by the financial program of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, so far as the East is concerned?

A. If we had interest to pay on bonds in New York, or if we had bills to pay in New York, salaries of our Cleveland offices or dividends or sinking funds under the mortgages, we would look at the check book, see what money we had available to do it, if we didn't have enough, of course, we would talk it over and see what was needed, that is, within our office. I didn't talk this over with anybody in Texas or St. Louis, but Mr. Wyer and myself did or possibly, the chief clerk or the cashier.

Q. Might do what? A. We might go over the subject.

Q. Yes.

A. I don't recall any specific conversation, but I know that was the general practice.

Q. And you would consider what the dividend requirements were, what the interest requirements were, and see whether there was enough money in the bank accounts of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to pay those?

A. Yes. We considered all requirements that we had to meet.

Q. And if there weren't enough, if there wasn't enough money in the bank account, what would you do?

A. I wouldn't do anything, but Mr. Wyer, of course, would be informed of it.

Q. I see. And arrangements were presumably made thereafter to take care of those requirements?

A. Presumably so.

Q. But you had nothing at all to do with them?

A. I can't recall any specific case. I may have talked to Mr. Barnes or Mr. Johnson about it, but I don't recall that I ever did. It wouldn't be unnatural if I should.

Q. Now, when you said before that all that your office dealt with was with respect to the financial problems of the road in the East, was that confined to you or to the entire office in Cleveland?

A. I don't believe I quite understand that.

Q. When you said before that you in the Cleveland's office addressed yourself to the financial requirements of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in the East, I would like to know whether that was something that you personally limited yourself to, or whether that was the task of the treasurer's office in Cleveland?

A. Oh, I assume that was the task of the treasurer's office.

Q. In Cleveland? A. Yes. We all discussed it.

Q. You just dealt with the financial problems of the road so far as the East was concerned?

A. That is all I dealt with, yes.

Q. That is all, Mr. Wagner.

Mr. McConaughy: May we take about two minutes, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: (After conference) No cross examination.

Mr. Brandwen: No cross examination?

The Court: No cross examination.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Wagner doesn't need to wait, does he?

The Court: No, they are finished with the examination.

L. W. BALDWIN,

a witness of lawful age, being first duly sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, testified as follows:

Direct Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Baldwin, will you please give your name and address? A. L. W. Baldwin; St. Louis.

Q. And your occupation, Mr. Baldwin?

A. My present occupation is Chief Executive Officer for the Trustee, and president of all the debtor corporations.

Q. President of what? A. All the debtor corporations.

Q. And you have been president of the corporations that you describe as debtor corporations for how many years, do you recall?

A. Of the Missouri Pacific since 1923; of the others only after acquisition.

Q. That was when?

A. Except in a few very small ones which I don't even know that I could classify.

Q. So that from sometime in 1924, you became president of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes.

Q. And you have made your office in St. Louis exclusively, have you, since you assumed your post as president of the various roads? A. I have.

Q. You have been addressing yourself in your work with these various railroads in what particular capacity?

A. You mean since the bankruptcy?

Q. No. Prior from 1923 of Missouri Pacific and from 1924 of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, what was the nature of your activity? A. I was president.

Q. And as president you concerned yourself during that entire period with all problems in which those roads were involved? A. I tried to.

Q. That is, operating problems and financial problems, both, did you not?

A. Yes, to some extent. Financial problems not to the same extent as operating problems.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific Railroad does not touch at any point New York or Cleveland, does it? A. No.

Q. Did you have much contact with the treasurer's office in New York of Missouri Pacific or New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Not a great deal.

Q. But you did have contact with the treasurer's office of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in New York?

A. To some extent.

Q. And can you state what the nature of that contact was? A. No, I couldn't state it.

Q. You couldn't?

A. It would be quite indefinite. Largely being a good fellow, I guess, and interested in the property.

Q. And I presume you succeeded in that very well?

A. Thank you.

Q. Now, Mr. Baldwin, you know that New Orleans, Texas & Mexico declared dividends each year beginning with January 1, 1925, to the end of 1931, do you not?

Mr. McConaughy: Why don't you ask the financial officer about that? Mr. Baldwin was the president, the chief executive officer. I can't understand why you have to ask Mr. Baldwin this kind of a question. It can be obtained in a much quicker and better way.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: The objection is overruled, if there is an objection.

A. I know there were dividends, from the record, dividends declared, the first one January 27, 1925, and the last one October 13, 1931. I don't think there are any missing. I haven't personally checked that.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Yes, that covers a period of seven years. Now, Mr. Baldwin, I show you a letter addressed to you, which was taken, copy of which was taken from your files.

Mr. McConaughy: Now, Mr. Brandwen, don't you think you ought to explain that that has not been checked?

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to have Mr. Baldwin, I want Mr. Baldwin to have a full opportunity of examining this, and making such comments as Mr. Baldwin [things] appropriate. I am not going to have the letter offered in any other way. I simply am telling Mr. Baldwin about this. Would you please look at it, Mr. Baldwin, and see whether that refreshes your recollection?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Well, Mr. Baldwin, may I ask you to have the checked after you—

A. Do you mean by that, my answer, that I have said I didn't get the letter?

Q. No, no; you say you don't remember it specifically?

A. That is right.

Q. You are not saying you didn't receive it? A. No.

Mr. McConaughy: And is that letter in evidence?

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to offer it in evidence. Do you want to look at it?

Mr. McConaughy: Have you got another copy?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

(Said letter was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 61.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 123.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, I show you this document, Mr. Baldwin, which purports to be copy of a letter sent by you to Mr. Safford in reply to Exhibit 61, which you just saw?

Mr. McConaughy: Please make clear that it wasn't copied directly from the Missouri Pacific files.

A. That letter was supposed to have been written January 14, 1926, which is fifteen years ago.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Eighteen years ago. A. How?

Q. Eighteen. A. Yes.

Q. Nineteen years now.

A. Certainly I couldn't remember the specific letter, and do not. I don't deny that you got it from my files.

Q. Or, rather, shall we state that you don't deny that a copy, the original copy of that is in your files? A. No.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(Said document was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 62.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 124.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) I assume, Mr. Baldwin, you do not have with you a record of the dates of the meetings of the Board of Directors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, which declared the dividends referred to by these Exhibits 61 and 62, these last two letters that you looked at?

A. I couldn't identify them. I could give you the dates of the meetings that declared dividends.

Q. Well, do you have data with you which—well, will you state, please, what were the dates of the meetings of the Board of Directors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico which declared dividends in the year 1925?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to that. Why should the president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad have to be listing dates of that kind, taking time that way?

The Court: Can't you get that testimony from other witnesses?

Mr. Brandwen: No, not the dates when meetings were held.

Mr. McConaughy: He can put that in through any kind of a clerk. Why do we have to waste that kind of time?

Mr. Brandwen: All right, I will do that if your Honor wishes.

The Court: I do think you ought to be as considerate of Mr. Baldwin's time as possible. He has a big job with the railroad system.

Mr. Brandwen: I will do that, and I will withdraw that question and simply ask him this question, just this one question:

Q. Mr. Baldwin, I now show you a letter dated October 7, 1926, which purports to have been sent to you, copy of which was taken and copied from the files.

A. I have no doubt that this came from my files. However, I can't verify it.

Q. I know.

Mr. Brandwen: I know. I offer this in evidence.

(Said letter was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 63.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 125.]

Q. I now show you a letter, Mr. Baldwin, sent to Mr. Safford, dated October 14, 1926, in response to the letter which you just saw, dated October 7th, 1926.

A. It shows signed by L. W. Baldwin, per W. G. V. That is Mr. Vollmer, and I believe it came from a copy of a letter in my files. I don't remember the letter.

Q. Mr. Vollmer is your assistant? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this letter in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: Are you going to continue this, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: I am going to offer a series of letters.

Mr. McConaughy: I ask why that has to be done? All these other papers he has been able to put in and we agreed to them. Why should Mr. Baldwin have to take his time from running a railroad in war time to identify this group of letters?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, will you let me have all of these letters introduced?

Mr. McConaughy: You can put them in subject to check.

Mr. Brandwen: All right, we will do that, that is all right. I just didn't want to have any question raised about that. If that is it, we can save a good deal of time. I would like to ask Mr. Baldwin just a few questions with respect to some of these matters. Mark this as an exhibit.

(Said letter was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 64.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 125.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would your Honor like to see this? (Handing same to the Court.)

Mr. Brandwen: Well, then I am perfectly willing to adjourn with Mr. Baldwin for a while so that we can have these letters offered.

Mr. McConaughy: What do you mean for a while?

Mr. Brandwen: I want to ask Mr. Baldwin about some of these letters.

Mr. McConaughy: You can't ask him now?

Mr. Brandwen: No, I want these letters in first.

Mr. McConaughy: Well, put them in, then. Let's be considerate of Mr. Baldwin's time. Why don't you put the letters in and we will check them later.

Mr. Brandwen: All right, I offer that in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: Put them in as one exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: Mark these exhibits.

(Said papers were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibits 65 to 70, inclusive.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 126-128.]

Mr. Brandwen: Now, mark these.

(Said papers were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibits 71 to 79, inclusive.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 129-133.]

Mr. Brandwen: And these.

(Said papers were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibits 80 to 84-A and 84-B, inclusive.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 133-137.]

Mr. Brandwen: And these.

(Said papers were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibits 85 to 90, inclusive.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 137-139.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would you want them delivered to you right now, or shall I go on?

Mr. McConaughy: No, go right ahead.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Baldwin, I would like to know whether you recall anything at the moment about the dividends amounting to in excess of four million dollars that were declared by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico in the year 1931, to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. I remember there was—whether that is just the right amount or not, I don't know, but it was in that vicinity of that amount in that year.

Q. Do you remember the circumstances underlying the declaration of such large dividends at that time?

A. It was to pass certain moneys on to the N. O. T. M. That was the only way that I knew to pass money to the N. O. T. M., and the N. O. T. M. held the bonds and all the stock of the property. Just what it was used for, I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. May I ask you this, Mr. Baldwin: were you consulted before it was decided by the directors of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico to declare those large dividends in 1931?

A. The one, one I was, I know, and I think I was present at, I think, one or two meetings in 1931 where they declared them.

Q. I see. Mr. Baldwin, you have been attending Court while the hearings on this claim have been going on throughout the week, haven't you? A. Yes, off and on.

Q. And you have been listening?

A. Without any regularity.

Q. And you have been listening to the testimony?

A. Some of it.

Q. May I ask you if you recall now, Mr. Baldwin, who spoke with you about the declaration of that large dividend of $3,500,000.00 declared by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico in July of 1931?

A. I don't remember who spoke to me about it. There was some correspondence on the subject. I know it was necessary to do it in order to meet the requirements, it was thought necessary by all of us.

Q. What was that last?

A. It was thought necessary to do it by all of us in order to meet the cash requirements of the N. O. T. M.

Q. Do you know now or did you know then whether St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico had the money to pay that dividend?

A. I didn't know whether they had the cash or not. They had the wherewith in some way.

Q. You did know that. Do you know whether it ever got the cash to pay that dividend?

A. I have heard since they did not.

Q. When you say you heard since, may I ask, since the hearings began?

A. No, it was in 1933 there was an adjustment which showed it.

The Court: What was the last?

The Witness: In 1933 there was an adjustment made when I knew it.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. And you hadn't heard prior to December, 1933, when the adjustment was made that St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico did not have the cash with which to meet the dividend?

A. I don't think I did, Mr. Brandwen, but I couldn't definitely say I did.

Q. I am just trying, you understand, just to get your best recollection.

A. I am trying, too. I always thought of those properties, you understand, as one property. It never meant anything to me but one railroad, and I didn't know when I got off of one and onto the other.

Q. And that was true whether you were dealing with the Missouri Pacific or the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico or the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, or any of those?

A. No, it wasn't that way. Those properties I am talking about were Gulf Coast Lines, other than the I. G. N.

Q. You regard the I. G. N. as something entirely separate from the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and their subsidiaries?

A. Yes. But the others, frankly, I didn't know when I got off of one and onto the other at times. I don't mean none that I knew, but I mean it took me some time to find out where the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western was, where it started and ended, and where the N. O. T. M. started and ended.

Q. But you put International Great Northern in quite a different category in your mind? A. Yes.

Q. May I ask you to tell us why you distinguish those, the International Great Northern and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its subsidiaries?

A. Well, it was a different kind of a railroad, it had to be operated differently, took different kind of power, it took heavier rail, and I never thought of them in the same light. I rather considered from a general view it might be a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific, and that is because, further, because the reason we got those lines was because we wanted the I. G. N.

Q. You wouldn't have taken the Gulf Lines if the Missouri Pacific hadn't taken the I. G. N.?

A. I imagine we wouldn't. I know we went in to get the I. G. N. and it was taken, and we had to then make the deal for the N. O. T. M.

The Court: I didn't get that last.

The Witness: In order to get the I. G. N. it was necessary to deal for the N. O. T. M.

The Court: But you added something to that. I didn't get it.

The Witness: If I did, I don't place it.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Now, tell us about that difference a little more between the I. G. N. and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico with respect to the territory.

A. Well, I will tell you another thing about it, the I. G. N. bonds weren't owned by the N. O. T. M.

Q. Yes, and that made quite a difference in your mind?

A. That made quite a difference, and the other two, the bonds and the stock and everything, was owned by the N. O. T. M.

Q. Now, Mr. Baldwin, dealing with any distinction that you made, say, between the I. G. N. and the N. O. T. M. so far as territory was concerned, were they contiguous lines or did they go off each in their own way?

A. Well, they were, I would say—if you are going to describe it in a short sentence, you would say they went off in their own way, but they had common points.

Q. They had common points, but over certain areas there were connecting roads that just connect it in some cases only with I. G. N., and in other cases only with N. O. T. M.? A. That is right.

Q. That is correct, is it not?

A. That is right. And when you say N. O. T. M., I still include all the railroads.

Q. You include N. O. T. M. and its subsidiaries other than I. G. N.? A. That is right.

Q. And beyond the fact that you were told, advised that N. O. T. M. needed some money or needed some kind of transfer of funds or credits to it in 1931, you didn't go Into the question as to whether St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico could or could not pay that large dividend?

A. Well, I had some correspondence with Mr. Safford on the subject, and he and the attorney both said it was all right, and they asked to have a Board meeting rather than an Executive Committee meeting to pass that dividend.

Q. And the attorney was this Mr. Andrews?

A. Frank Andrews.

Q. Did you give much thought at the time to the financial position of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its various subsidiaries? A. Among them, you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. I would say no to that, but I would also say that I never understood we declared any dividend or proposed to declare any dividend that wasn't out of either cash or surplus.

Q. And did you make an examination of those accounts yourself? A. I did not.

Q. Those profit and loss accounts? A. No.

Q. You addressed yourself primarily to the operating problems of those roads?

A. Well, I no doubt saw the balance sheet of the N. O. T. M., but I didn't go into any of the details of the relationship between the two among all of them except so far as something like you just talked about.

Q. Mr. Baldwin, you remember, do you not, that shortly after Missouri Pacific acquired the stock of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, that there were some other railroads in Texas that were acquired? A. Yes.

Q. And they were described very often as so-called short lines, is that correct?

A. I don't remember about the so-called short lines.

Q. But there were certain railroads acquired, so-called?

A. Some of them were short lines; some of them I particularly remember was not particularly short lines.

Q. And with what road did those lines, the three roads tie up with, that is, the International Great Northern, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its subsidiaries?

A. Well, the S. A. U. & G.

Q. That is the San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf?

A. Yes. It ties up with both the I. G. N. and the Gulf Coast. Another one was the Sugar Land Railroad, that tied up with the I. G. N. Another one was the San Antonio-Southern, that ties up with the I. G. N.

Q. The Asherton & Gulf?

A. Asherton & Gulf, it ties up with the I. G. N. I am not sure whether it ties up with the S. A. U. & G. or not.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I think this is getting unduly protracted again. This kind of information can be obtained from somebody else just as easily as Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. Brandwen knows where the railroads are, if he wants to discuss them all he has to do is to ask him about them. Why get an enumeration of railroads?

Mr. Brandwen: No, just that Mr. Baldwin, I think, is certainly a very good operating man. I just wanted—I think probably the best operating man in the system. I thought it would be best to get this information from him.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I don't see why we had to take Mr. Baldwin's time to get a list of railroads.

The Court: Yes, I think you can get that from somebody else than an outstanding operator.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Baldwin has been listening to this testimony all this week and he is interested in this, I am quite sure.

The Witness: I am interested to see this road reorganized.

The Court: Are you?

The Witness: Yes, I am.

Mr. McConaughy: Now, you have made a statement, Mr. Brandwen, I think we better clear up, while Senator Dearmont is here. You point to the fact that Mr. Baldwin has been in court for some time. Did you ask to have him here?

Mr. Brandwen: I asked to have him here today, yes.

Mr. McConaughy: Let's have it understood clearly.

Mr. Brandwen: I told Senator Dearmont that we would be calling a number of people, and I asked him whether, or Mr. Biggs did ask him whether counsel for the Trustee wouldn't arrange to see that these men were available during the course of the week. I did not ask, so far as I can recall, counsel for the Trustee to have Mr. Baldwin here before today.

Senator Dearmont: I was asked to get him just before the hearing began, and Mr. Vollmer, Mr. Peet, Mr. Eckert, Mr. Wagner and Mr. Cole here as witnesses.

Mr. Brandwen: That was asked by Mr. Biggs.

Senator Dearmont: That is correct.

Mr. Biggs: I didn't state it was necessary to have them in the courtroom all the time.

The Court: I hope, Mr. Brandwen, that you can get this testimony, as much of it as you can get from somebody else, that you spare Mr. Baldwin's time.

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, will you please instruct counsel to try to get this examination as pertinent to the issue as possible? This was a very interesting dissertation, but I don't see the relevancy or pertinency of all this.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I imagine if Mr. Kirschbaum will read the papers and hear the final argument, I think he may appreciate the pertinency. Until such time as he reads what is in the exhibit or sees the document, I don't see how he can make any comment on pertinency or relevancy.

Q. I will just ask you this question, Mr. Baldwin, at this point, do you know anything at all about the purchase of International Great Northern Railroad Company adjustment mortgage bonds in the year 1927 by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't. You don't recall anything with respect to that? A. No.

Q. Then I shall not ask you about it. You know nothing at all about their acquisition in 1927 and you know nothing at all about any subsequent pledge?

A. I don't first hand know anything about it. I heard some discussion about it in recent days, but if I knew about it at the time I have forgotten it.

Q. You had nothing to do at all with the arrangements made for the purchase of these International Great Northern adjustment bonds in 1927?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that. He said he doesn't recall. That ought to settle that.

A. I don't remember that I did.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, if your Honor please, I am not going to ask Mr. Baldwin any further questions. I shall accept your Honor's suggestion and try to get this information.

The Court: Are you through with Mr. Baldwin?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I am.

The Court: Colonel Baldwin, they are through with you.

The Witness: Thank you, sir.

The Court: Announce a five minute recess.

(Five minute recess.)

Mr. Brandwen: Shall I proceed?

The Court: Well, wait until a few more come.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, you undoubtedly recall that when Mr. Eckert left the stand this morning he stated he was going to try to get some additional material.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Cole is trying to get some additional material for us. I have no further testimony to offer at this point. There will be certain documentary material which we have not gathered together, but I don't think we will have to use any witnesses for that. To save the time of the Court and counsel I was going to get that together at a convenient time. Under the circumstances, I have nothing further to say.

The Court: It is four o'clock. I will adjourn this hearing today over until Monday. The Court has some accumulated matters to take care of tomorrow. If counsel have anything they care to put in at this time, they may do so.

Mr. McConaughy: We have nothing to put in at this time, your Honor.

The Court: Might as well adjourn at this time, then, until Monday morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. McConaughy: That will be satisfactory.

(At this point, 4:00 P. M., January 12, 1945, the Court announced an adjournment until Monday morning, January 15, 1945, at ten o'clock, with the direction to the bailiff that announcement be made that all parties and witnesses interested in the cause now before the Court be excused until Monday morning, January 15th, 1945, at ten o'clock.)

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 15, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M., whereupon the following proceedings were had:

The Court: You may proceed with the Missouri Pacific matter.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I stated at the close of the Friday session that I was waiting for some material that Mr. Eckert stated that he was going to get. I spoke to him this morning and he said the stuff is being worked on and has not yet come in, but he hopes to be able to have it soon. Meanwhile, I think I can introduce some documentary material and we can get that out of the way.

I should like to have marked in evidence, with the privilege of substituting copies prepared by the office of counsel for Trustee, excerpts from the minutes of the Directors of the Missouri Pacific, a meeting held in New York on April 10, 1924. The material begins on the second page and goes on for several pages. It deals with the acquisition of stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico by Missouri Pacific.

Mr. McConaughy: You are starting here (indicating)?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes. Beginning with page 2, to a page that would be page 5 if it were numbered.

Mr. McConaughy (after examining document): Do you object to putting in the entire minutes? What I would like to have is the minutes showing who was present.

Mr. Brandwen: I can state who was present. That is all you want?

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right.

Mr. Brandwen: We can do that. At the suggestion of Mr. McConaughy, I also offer the material at the beginning of the minutes, showing where the meeting was held and who were present.

(The document last offered in evidence was thereupon marked Comstock Exhibit 91.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 140.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would Your Honor like to see the minutes (handing same to the Court)?

I should now like to introduce in evidence a resolution, from the minutes of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, held in New York, July 7, 1926.

Mr. McConaughy: I make the same request, for a statement of who was present.

Mr. Brandwen: I am perfectly delighted to do that, Mr. McConaughy.

Then, Your Honor, I shall supplement my offer, according to Mr. McConaughy's suggestion, to have incorporated the statement that these are the minutes and the statement of those who were present.

(The minutes last offered in evidence were thereupon marked Comstock Exhibit 92.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 145.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence material from the minutes of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, held in New York on November 11, 1926, and I am indicating what I would like to have in (indicating to Mr. McConaughy).

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 93.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 146.]

Mr. Brandwen (to the Court): This will be quite a task on your eyesight, because it is a very light copy (handing Exhibit 93 to the Court).

I should now like to offer in evidence an item from the minutes of the Executive Committee meeting of the Missouri Pacific, held in New York on December 27, 1927 (handing exhibit to Mr. McConaughy).

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 94.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 149.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence an item from the minutes of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, of a meeting held in New York February 11, 1930 (handing exhibit to Mr. McConaughy).

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 95.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 150.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence items from the minutes of the Executive Committee meeting of the Missouri Pacific, held in New York on February 4, 1930.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 96.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 151.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence items from the minutes of the Executive Committee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held in New York on February 4, 1930, and I should like to have the record show that there is an insert in pen, this item stating the following, after the words "Advance $100,000. to this company," the following insert in pen "Carrying interest at five per cent.", which is written in pen and ink and has the initials of Mr. Wyer, in handwriting I can not identify.

Mr. Wyer: Mr. Williams'.

Mr. Brandwen: The handwriting of Mr. Williams, according to Mr. Wyer, and Mr. Wyer has his initials on this.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 97.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 152.]

Mr. Brandwen: I offer in evidence items from minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, held on March 4, 1930, in New York.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 98.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 153.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence several items from minutes of a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, held in New York on April 3, 1930.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to this, Your Honor. These minutes deal with an advance to the Missouri Improvement Company. What that has to do with the issues in Objection 19—I think that is the number—I don't see.

Mr. Brandwen: That is one of the items I am offering. That is not the only item I am offering.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that part of it.

Mr. Brandwen: Do you want to look at the other before you make your objection, or do you want to make this just the same?

(Here ensued private discussion between Mr. Brandwen and Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. Brandwen: You object only to the one item showing an advance to the Missouri Improvement Company?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Will Mr. McConaughy agree that the Missouri Improvement Company was a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: The reason I am putting both in is because you have two advances in the same meeting, and one provides for a rate of interest and the other provides for no rate of interest.

The Court: It will be admitted.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 99.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 154.]

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I should now like to offer an item from the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, held in Cleveland on December 18, 1930.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 100.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 155.]

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I now offer in evidence excerpts from minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, held in Cleveland on May 14, 1931.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 101.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 156.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence excerpts from minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, held in Cleveland on July 14, 1931.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 102.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 159.]

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I now offer in evidence excerpts from minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, held in Cleveland on April 12, 1932.

(Here ensued private colloquy between Mr. McConaughy and Mr. Brandwen.)

Mr. McConaughy has asked me to add to my offer in evidence, the material that I designated, additional material. Inasmuch as he requested it, and since he will have the information before the Court, I will have no objection.

The items Mr. McConaughy asked me to offer, in addition to what I intended to offer, was the items dealing with advances to Texas-Pacific, I.-G. N., New Orleans, Texas & Mexico—I object to one item here, dealing with security for advances, and I should like to have my consent modified to that extent.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen (to Mr. McConaughy): If you want to offer it when you come on, you may.

Mr. McConaughy: If I may, I should like to have the portion of these minutes, which Mr. Brandwen is not willing to insert as a part of his exhibit, also to be included, with the understanding that he is not to be bound by it.

The Court: I don't understand that.

Mr. McConaughy: It will be on our responsibility, if we may offer it.

The Court: Offer what?

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it now.

Mr. Brandwen: I will do anything to facilitate matters, but I would say that I object to that offer.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: Does Your Honor sustain the objection?

The Court: I sustain it at this time, yes.

Mr. McConaughy: All right.

The Court: You may offer it later, yourself.

(Excerpts from minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of Missouri Pacific, held in Cleveland on April 12, 1932, were marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 103.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 160.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence excerpts from minutes of the meeting of Executive Committee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held in New York on September 20, 1927.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 104.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 164.]

Mr. McConaughy: Has Your Honor examined that excerpt?

The Court: I don't know—not as—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to the admission of that in evidence as immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Brandwen: It was marked.

Mr. McConaughy: Then I move to strike it out; it is immaterial and irrelevant. It relates to the International-Great Northern adjustment bonds, and what that has to do with the issues framed here, I don't understand.

Mr. Brandwen: I still, Your Honor, am considering the motion made, although there is no objection made to its offer originally. If Your Honor is doing that, then I would like to point out I am offering it. If Your Honor will note that on this excerpt which for the purpose of identification at least it has been marked as Comstock Exhibit 104. So that we will clearly have in mind what you are talking about, there is a statement in these minutes which states that the chairman of the board of the executive committee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, stated that this company, that is, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, did not have surplus funds to provide for said purchase of the $823,300. International-Great Northern adjustment bonds, but that the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company was prepared to provide the necessary funds there by advancing the same or by purchasing said adjustment mortgage bonds from this company, so that New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was given the choice of doing one or the other, and I think that that has an important bearing on the relations of the two companies.

Mr. McConaughy: I will withdraw the objection.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if your Honor please, I should like to offer in evidence excerpts from the minutes of the board of directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held in Cleveland on December 13, 1932, as Comstock Exhibit No. 105.

(The document referred to was marked as Comstock Exhibit No. 105.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 166.]

Mr. Brandwen: I should now like to offer in evidence excerpts of the minutes of March 31, 1933, of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held at Cleveland from the 31st day of March, 1933, as Comstock Exhibit 106.

(The document referred to was marked as Comstock Exhibit No. 106.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 170.]

Mr. Brandwen: I should now like to offer in evidence a letter from Mr. Safford, to Mr. Baldwin, which I failed to do on Friday afternoon. I have just shown it to counsel.

(The document referred to was marked as Comstock [——] No. 107.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 172.]

Mr. McConaughy: If the court please, if we can find a copy of this letter there will be no objection. On the other hand if we can't locate the letter we will object to it on the ground it is not dated.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I have not any objections to all the efforts that may be made to try to find a copy. Copy of this originally came, so, I am advised from the office of Mr. Baldwin, and I would not like to trouble him about this. Of course, if we can find a copy that shall have the date, I shall prefer it. Now, then, I have a letter of July 1st, and which Mr. Safford represents, is already in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: We will do our best to see if we can find out something about the date of it.

The Court: It will be admitted subject to correction.

Mr. Brandwen: I should now like to offer in evidence, if your Honor please, a summary prepared for us of the schedule of dividends declared by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, beginning with January 1, 1925, and offer this subject to correction.

(The document referred to was marked Comstock Exhibit No. 108.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 173.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence Article V, from the indenture of the first mortgage bond issue of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, dated April 1, 1924. This is taken from the copy of it as it appears in the record.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that your Honor as mere duplication; the full mortgage is in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I just don't know whether the entire document is going to be considered by your Honor, I simply want to have this excerpt in simply as a convenience.

The Court: The whole document is in there, is it?

Mr. Brandwen: Not in this hearing; the full document is in in the Missouri Pacific proceedings, and you will have this question as to what is in this.

The Court: Very well, it may be admitted.

Mr. Homire: I don't understand, if the Court please: Is this to be admitted—is this excerpt to be admitted? It seems to me that it is improper to receive this particular part of the indenture without the rest of it, and I would like to object to it on the ground this is not admissible without the balance of the indenture. If the rest of the indenture is in evidence there is no need to put this in.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, if there is any part of the indenture that counsel would like to have inserted because of any relevancy or materiality to this other proceeding I have no objection, but it seems to us that clearly in the interest of keeping the record within reasonable bounds and only dealing with those things that are relevant, that this kind of procedure is [emanently] desirable.

The Court: The objection will be sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: I have no objection whatever to the entire instrument, but I do object to this part being put in the record.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Also urging the same objection; I urge the same objection.

The Court: The Court has already sustained the objection.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen said something else that creates some doubt in my mind. I understand from the—understood from the beginning that the entire record of this proceeding down to date is a part of the record here before this Court. If there is any misunderstanding about that, Mr. Brandwen—

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, there is.

Mr. McConaughy: Let us have that straightened out.

Mr. Brandwen: At the opening, I don't know whether we have a transcript of that, but I would like to read, if we have it, if it has been transcribed, what counsel for the trustee stated on that issue. I think he made a statement at the opening, counsel for the Trustee is not in the room, I would like to read it if it has been transcribed. I think he stated that on last Mohday morning, and perhaps you gentlemen have a transcript of what happened last Monday morning. We have not had that yet, and I understood it was not transcribed, I proceeded in my reaction as to what was before your Honor on the basis of what counsel for the Trustee stated, but since that has not been transcribed, and no one seems to have the statement on that proposition, we might defer this matter until we get that copy of the transcript, if your Honor please. There was no objection at that time to the statement of counsel for Trustee.

(At this point Mr. Dearmont entered the Court Room.)

(To the counsel for the Trustee) There was a question raised as to what is in the record in this proceeding, and I cited to your Honor, in your absence from the court room, that you made a statement last Monday morning on the issue, but we do not have your statement transcribed yet, and I wanted to read what you stated at the session last Monday morning. Now, it is perfectly agreeable to me, if your Honor please, to have counsel for the Trustee state, in view of the fact that we have not a copy of the transcript, restate it as to what he was offering last Monday morning.

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, I am not able at this moment to state my offer possibly in the same words. I know what I had in mind. I offered in evidence in the case the transcript of the proceedings on the plan of reorganization at the Brooklyn hearing in the Interstate Commerce Commission held, I believe, on October 19th, 20th and 21st, 1943, and the record transmitted to this court by the Interstate Commerce Commission in connection therewith and the record before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the original plan hearings transmitted to the court by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which I had in mind included the testimony and the exhibits offered in the earlier hearing which culminated in the plan of January 10, 1940. That is what I had in mind.

Mr. Brandwen: May I ask you this, counsel for the Trustee, whether you did not state last Monday in dealing with the transcript of the material testimony and exhibits submitted to the Commission before the October, 1943 hearings that you stated that you were offering those portions that were pertinent to this hearing?

Mr. Dearmont: I may have so stated. What I had in mind, though, was putting before the court in this matter, but frankly, I had this in mind, that various counsel here represent various interests, and it might be embarrassing to any one counsel to attempt to offer the record before the I. C. C. because some counsel might not want to be bound by all of it, but if counsel for the Trustee is interested in having it all before the court, all that was transmitted on the plan, that was my previous position, to simply offer in this proceeding the record before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the plan, being the testimony [give] there and the exhibits offered and if I did not make it clear in my offering, and I am permitted to do so now, I will renew that offer.

Mr. Kitchel: May it please the court, this is a hearing on the approval of the plan certified to this court by the Interstate Commerce Commission. I say it is very proper that what is in there is offered in evidence, should be offered, and as I go one step further, and say as a matter of law and as a matter of practice, the whole record before the Interstate Commerce Commission, not only on the hearing in October, 1943, but from the institution of this proceeding that, together with the action taken by this court on the plan, the original plan certified in January, 1940, I think the whole record is before your Honor, and if it is not we will offer it at the proper moment.

Mr. Homire: If the court please, I agree entirely with Mr. Kitchel in his position in this matter. The whole record of the Commission must necessarily be before the court, because it was certified to the court by the Commission at the time the plan was certified, and our position is that that record is before the court. It is not necessary to offer it, but if your Honor should rule differently as to the necessity of it we agree with what Mr. Kitchel says, and we would also offer it at an appropriate time.

Mr. Kirschbaum: We will say with reference to the continued doctrine on which counsel attempted to offer that, it seems to me to be a novel procedure for counsel to say when he is offering a document, "I offer paragraph 5 of that document, because it favors me, and leave out the rest, because I don't want to." But it seems to me that counsel is offering a document in evidence, the whole document has got to go in.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, your Honor has made a ruling on that offer still in the interest of brevity that I still think is very important. I am simply offering an excerpt from a document and if there is any objection to it the objection has been made. I always proceeded on the assumption if an individual wants to offer an excerpt from a document that is of record, if some one else wants another portion of it, of course, that other portion may be offered and in the interest of any other party. The reason I offered that which I thought was pertinent. There is matter in that document that I have no concern about. I was only concerned about saving time, that is all, so the explanation that I was simply selecting that which is favorable and leaving out anything that was unfavorable is entirely without basis, and it is not worthy of expression. Now, if your Honor please, I must ask your Honor's indulgence again with respect to arguing this point. We have done what we honestly and sincerely could have done to attempt to get a segregation of the issues involved in the consideration of this very large claim. We tried to point out as clearly as we knew how that it was imperative that this claim be heard separately, because there are so many issues necessarily involved, bearing on the fairness and equity of the plan which can have no possible bearing on the validity or invalidity of the claim asserted against the estate of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. It was because we genuinely feared, I might say expected that this kind of position might be taken by certain counsel, and because we felt that under Section 77, it was imperative for your Honor to rule on the validity or invalidity of this claim that we did everything we possibly could to have that segregated. I think I may be permitted to say that this matter was up before the Circuit Court of Appeals, and I made the point to the bench there a week ago Saturday and said if there should be an appeal taken, by whom no one can say, and they may want to present all the material in connection with the plan, Judge Sanborn said, and I am quoting him correctly, he said, "You don't understand our rules; we would not permit such a thing. It would be limited merely to the material bearing on the validity or invalidity of the claim." Now, that was a statement from the bench. It was not included in any opinion or anything else, but it was stated very clearly that that is what their rules require. Now, there can be no question under all the circumstances that that is what is being tried here in substance despite all of these attempts made to encumber it, that is what is being tried here is the validity or invalidity of the claim, and that which has a bearing on the validity or invalidity of the claim, of course, should go in, and material that can, under no circumstances have any relationship thereto, how can there be any basis for that being considered in connection with this specific issue? Certainly we know, your Honor is dealing with a broad problem of fairness and equity of a plan and any issue, or any fact, or any document that has any bearing or relationship that is relevant, in your Honor's opinion to the problem of the benefit of the plan, why, of course, that has to be considered, but for any one to assume that the issue of the validity or invalidity of the claim moves in precisely the same orbit, has the same beginning and the same end and the same boundaries as has the problem of the fairness or equity of a plan, I think is surely unrealistic, so, of course, if your Honor please, I must renew my objection to the suggestion that in dealing with this problem that has been before your Honor during a good part of last week and this morning that certainly many things are in that record that may be pertinent and have no bearing on the fairness and equity of the plan and can have no possible connection, no matter how far one may stretch one's imagination, and that is why I object to the position taken by counsel who expressed themselves on the subject.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, as I said before, the hearing on the approval of the plan, on the matter I have mentioned, is before the court. When it comes to an appeal, referring to Judge Sanborn, of course, the whole record on appeal, the whole record, that paragraph would not be taken and simply the things bearing on this particular controversy, if the appeal is simply on this controversy. Now, so far as the present situation in this court is concerned, the whole record is before your Honor. Either party may point out in their discussion or in their briefs, such portions of the record as are germane to this case, it is all there for them to point out, and this whole record is here; that is, if this particular controversy were in a separate procedure the whole record would be there, but as I say, the only parts that would be called to the court's attention in connection with this claim, would be those parts dealing with it and the same would hold good in the appeal.

The Court: The court has ruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Then I should like to mark for identification that document, the excerpt which I just attempted to offer.

(Thereupon said excerpt of document was marked for identification as Comstock Exhibit No. 109.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 174.]

Mr. Kitchel: May I ask if the court ruled on the proposition that the entire record which I have mentioned before the Interstate Commerce Commission and before the court prior to this hearing is in this record?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Kitchel: Is it of record in this proceeding?

The Court: Yes, I so ruled.

Mr. Brandwen: I take exception to that insofar as they apply to the material and bearing on the controversy dealing with the claim subject to the provision of the N.O.T.M.

Mr. Brandwen: There may be a few more documents to get which would take some five or ten minutes, here, and I just got the books from the counsel for Trustee and I should like to have a few minutes to look at them. I thought perhaps in the circumstance in order not to delay any one your Honor might want to give us a little recess for a few minutes for that purpose.

The Court: After that, what?

Mr. Brandwen: I won't have anything until Mr. Eckert gets the material that he said he was getting together.

The Court: When will that be, do you know?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I can't say.

The Court: Do you know Mr. Dearmont?

Mr. Dearmont: If that was between Mr. Brandwen and Mr. Eckert this morning, I was not present.

Mr. Brandwen: I asked the question this morning and he said they are getting the material together.

The Court: Can you give us some idea?

Mr. Brandwen: He did not give me any idea, I did not ask him whether today, tomorrow or Wednesday.

Mr. Dearmont: I will be glad to contact Mr. Eckert right now and advise your Honor in about five minutes.

The Court: Yes, I would like to know.

Mr. Dearmont: Just the material that you talked about.

The Court: You will not proceed further?

Mr. Brandwen: This material may take an additional five or ten minutes.

Mr. Kirschbaum: May I inquire of Mr. Brandwen how long further he [tends] to take in the presentation of his material. I understood at the adjournment of court on Friday that he had advised your Honor that he was finished when he presented the exhibits as to certain records he was expecting from Houston, Texas, and he comes in this morning and has taken up the whole morning with additional proof. Now, I think we have a right, after being in court, your Honor being so patient for more than a week to know just when he intends to finish.

The Court: That is what the court is endeavoring to find out.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, if one would take the pains, if I am not asking too much, to read the record as I stated it for the record last Friday afternoon, I said there was some documentary material I was going to offer and I got that documentary material together so as to save the time, I did it this morning, what I thought would be a very convenient time. Now, with respect to Mr. Eckert's material, I don't think that once I have looked at the books it will take much time at all. I would say that so far as my presentation is concerned, not knowing, of course, what other counsel may offer, I could not make any comment on that, since other counsel have not taken me into their confidence and have not told me what they are going to offer, I cannot make any comment on what may be necessary in answer to that offer. All I say is, so far as the material I am still to offer, that will not take very much time at all.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Then may we conclude, your Honor, that counsel will be finished with his affirmative presentation here this afternoon?

Mr. Brandwen: On that I was wondering when I may have that material from Houston by mail: Mr. Eckert and the counsel for the Trustee is now trying to find out what the state of that material is. How can any one make any such statement.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Mr. Brandwen, that part of the material does not come—that if the trustee does not receive the material, I am sure that does not follow there—I still think we have a right to know when Mr. Brandwen is going to finish here, or we will have to rent the court for the time we have been here.

Mr. Homire: I would like to inquire whether Mr. Brandwen's expressions as to his hopes in finishing his case at an early hour, or date, apply also to the cases which I assume he may be interested in, in connection with objections 20, 21, 22 and 23.

Mr. Brandwen: Those are the Alleghany objections?

Mr. Homire: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I will tell you, your Honor, what I wanted with reference to those: When we get to those, I would like to see how much of those we can stipulate in the case of Alleghany, and there is no reason why we cannot stipulate a great deal of that material, and then the amount of proof in my opinion, should be far less than anything that has been offered in connection with this claim.

Mr. Homire: Have steps been taken to prepare the stipulation?

Mr. Brandwen: Steps have not been taken to prepare such stipulation. I wanted to expedite the handling of this inter-company claim, I have centered on that, and when that matter is out of the way we will move along with great dispatch, and I am perfectly willing, if your Honor please, in answer to Mr. Homire's request I am perfectly willing to have counsel for Alleghany as far as possible prepare for the inter-company claim and see for themselves as to what they would prepare to stipulate and let me look at them and it is not asking too much, although I am not asking them to do that, I am simply making this as a suggestion, as they may or may not be willing to do and if they are not willing to do that, I would not complain a bit.

Mr. Leisure: Now, if your Honor please, Mr. Brandwen mentioned a stipulation to me on Friday, and I said I would be glad to talk to him about it, but there was one thing that I would strenuously oppose and that was any suggestion that would cause this hearing to go over on the theory that we were attempting to arrive at a stipulation, and then finding we could not stipulate and there would be an adjournment, we would have to come back here and try the case later. So I suggested to Mr. Brandwen that we get together over this last Saturday and Sunday and try to do that. Mr. Brandwen did not agree to that. Now, it seems to me that the time for stipulating has passed, and we are down now to the point where we have to start the case and it is too late now to ask the court's indulgence to sit down while we get together and prepare a stipulation.

Mr. Brandwen: We will go on with the case against Alleghany when the inter-company claims are finally concluded.

Mr. Kitchel: Would it be possible to have a five minute recess while the Senator is out looking for those records?

The Court: The court will be in recess for five minutes.

(Five minute recess.)

The Court: You made a statement about the suggestion that you would look up the matter for counsel; what have you heard about this?

Mr. Dearmont: If your Honor please, I was not able to talk to Mr. Eckert; he had just gone out to lunch, but I talked to Mr. Peet, who is familiar with the material that they are attempting to assemble. Mr. Peet said Mr. Eckert would have some of the material ready this afternoon, and some of it that has been asked for on last Friday, we would have some of that ready to present this afternoon. Some that was asked for this morning they could not get ready this afternoon, but would have, they thought most of it, in the morning, although they were not positive that they could get all that had been requested in the morning, and that there were some items that had been requested that they were in doubt whether they would ever be able to produce, because they deal with records that have probably been destroyed, vouchers and some other matter. That is all the information that I have from Mr. Peet.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, while Senator Dearmont is here I believe I am correct in saying that Mr. Cole has some material brought up from Houston, isn't that correct?

Mr. Dearmont: That is here, if your Honor please; I have that material, and we can produce on that, as we have produced this morning, and I gave to Mr. Atkin, or showed it to him, the Missouri Pacific directors records, meetings of directors and executive committees for the years 1925 and '26. I believe they are in your possession now, and in the court room here, are the original records from 1910 to 1933, of the meetings of the boards and the executive committees, if any, of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, and some records for the Beaumont, [Sauer] Lake & Western, and probably the original minutes of the N. O. T. M. from the time the Missouri Pacific acquired the stock of the N. O. T. M. in 1924, and what purports to be copies of the minutes from 1916 down to that date. I am advised by Mr. Cole that that has been all he has been able to locate anywhere on the Missouri Pacific Lines in the custody of any of the trustee's officers. There was another minute book that was requested for the purpose of seeing the original; we have the copies of—we have the minutes of the meeting that was produced.

Mr. Meyers: That was given to me, Mr. Brandwen, today while you were presenting the case.

Mr. Brandwen: When was that given to you?

Mr. Meyers: This morning.

Mr. Dearmont: Have you got everything you asked for from Mr. Cole?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I haven't seen what was produced this morning because I was presenting testimony in this matter and I can't say. One thing I would like to ask counsel for the trustee: Mr. Cole was going to make an analysis of the minute book that he testified from the other day as to the executive committee meetings and do that and get some data, and I don't know whether Mr. Cole is here or whether he made an examination of that book.

Mr. Dearmont: I have not talked to him about it.

Mr. Brandwen: I haven't seen Mr. Cole since that afternoon.

Mr. Dearmont: He was here this morning.

Mr. Brandwen: He was going to get up in a schedule there, and let me see that schedule.

Mr. Dearmont: You are not ready to deal with Mr. Cole then.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't know whether he has it.

The Court: You don't know positively whether you will be ready to go ahead at two o'clock or not?

Mr. Brandwen: I will say this, it would save time if we reconvened a little later than two, so I could look at this matter and then perhaps we can assemble enough to go on for a while. I will say that Mr. Eckert saw all the material Mr. Eckert had.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like, if possible, to get something definite as to when Mr. Brandwen is going to close. If we get these documents from Houston and he sees them, they will suggest something else, and then we can send to Houston for it, and this can go on for weeks. I think it is time we come to the end of this.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, so far as my material is concerned, there is no danger so far as I can visualize of this going on for weeks so far as our work is concerned. I want to make that particularly clear. Your Honor has a statement from counsel for trustee as to what this situation is. I think that is as full as can be stated, and I am perfectly willing to sit down with Mr. Eckert between now and the time Court reconvenes, and go over very carefully with him what he has, and I want your Honor to know—

The Court: Do you know how long that will take?

Mr. Brandwen: I don't even know what he has. Now, if I knew what he has, I could be more specific. As I say, so far as I am concerned, I do not plan to take much time, but if, for example, there are certain things that can't be produced, if there are certain vouchers that are no longer in existence, they are no longer in existence and we are not going to fuss about that.

The Court: The court is perfectly willing to continue a little bit later here this afternoon, because James M. Kurn of the Frisco Railroad is being buried at two o'clock and I would like to attend his funeral. I was not going to do it if counsel were all here prepared to go on, out of town counsel, I was not going out there, but if counsel is not ready to go ahead at two o'clock, I will adjourn for an extra hour.

Mr. McConaughy: That will be agreeable to us if you want to make it three thirty; suit your convenience, Judge.

Mr. Brandwen: What will it be?

The Court: We will recess until 3:30.

(Thereupon, the Court declared a recess until 3:30 o'clock p. m.)

Monday, January 15, 1945,
3:30 o'clock P. M.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Eckert.

MARTIN ECKERT,

a witness of lawful age, having been heretofore duly sworn, upon being recalled to the stand testified further as follows:

Further Direct Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I felt that Mr. Eckert has a little stuff and I thought we would take whatever he has, and he is working on some more material. I thought we would take whatever he has right now.

Q. Mr. Eckert, your duties as Auditor of the New Orlean, Texas & Mexico came under the supervision in 1926 of Mr. F. P. Johnson, the vice-president and Chief Accounting Financial officer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and Missouri Pacific, with its offices in St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir. I don't know what time it was in 1926. I think he was appointed sometime in 1926.

Q. Now, you prepared a schedule, Mr. Eckert, showing the date of the acquisition of the N. O. T. & M. stock and how that stock was paid for? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some of that is already in evidence, but since he had it on one schedule, I would like to offer it in evidence.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 110, and received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 177.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) This was prepared by you and under your supervision, wasn't it?

A. Prepared under my supervision—no, I will take that back, it wasn't prepared under my supervision, prepared under the late Mr. Johnson's supervision, and there was a statement we had on hand when you asked for the information, that is why we had it so readily available.

Mr. Brandwen: Do you want to look at it?

Mr. McConaughy: Go ahead.

Mr. Brandwen: I think the schedule just warrants a few questions that I would like to ask Mr. Eckert about.

Q. Mr. Eckert, since this schedule has been prepared, you have had occasion to examine what these red figures are that are indicated in the form of an asterisk on this schedule. Would you please explain what they denote?

A. They denote that the fifteen months, seven per cent notes were converted to the fifteen year, seven per cent notes.

Q. Sinking fund notes? A. Sinking fund notes.

Q. I see. And in the next to the last column the total that you have here is $15,792,600.00, and you state in the note with respect thereto that the fifteen year, seven per cent sinking fund notes who are called for redemption, and the funds were provided for in part through the sale of 5¼ per cent secured serial gold bonds dated December 1, 1926, in the principal amount of $13,156,000.00. How was the difference between $13,156,000.00 of the secured 5¼ per cent and the $15,792,600.00 of the fifteen year, seven per cent sinking fund notes met? A. Through cash.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, am I correct in stating that the material that I have requested and that I requested of you on Friday morning, you have been advised is on its way to St. Louis? A. Some of it, but not all of it.

Q. Not all of it. And some of the material you find that you can complete from material that you have here?

A. Yes, sir, and some of it I find I can't produce because of the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission permitting destruction of certain records which I have since learned have been destroyed.

Q. With respect to those records that have been destroyed, quite clearly, there is nothing more than need be done, but you have been advised that pertinent material has already been forwarded to you by air mail?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that you are expecting to receive it today?

A. Expecting receipt today, yes, sir.

Q. And there are certain schedules you are working on now that could not be completed in time for the 3:30 session this afternoon? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Well, that is all I have of Mr. Eckert. If it is agreeable to Mr. Eckert, and if Mr. Eckert doesn't have any obligations of some other nature, I would be delighted to work with you in any of the matters this evening.

A. Off the record, please.

(Discussion off the record.)

Q. The other day, Mr. Eckert, I asked you whether you had the break-up of an account on the asset side of the balance sheet of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico as of December 31, 1932, as you reported it to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is known as interest and dividends receivable, and since then you prepared a schedule on that? A. I did, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer that in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit No. 111, and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 179.]

The Witness: I will have some other exhibits tomorrow, but I don't think I will be able to produce all of them, as I said a while ago. I will produce what I can. I am making every effort to get them.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all I have of Mr. Eckert.

Mr. McConaughy: I am not prepared to cross-examine Mr. Eckert until Mr. Brandwen finishes his direct.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to ask Mr. Eckert one question.

The Court: Just where you are, Mr. Eckert.

Cross Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Eckert, what was the latest request you received from Mr. Brandwen for information?

A. I received some today.

Q. You received some today. How many documents did he request today? A. Well, he asked for—

Mr. Brandwen: Just as to the number.

A. If I recall, I think it was about four.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Four documents; and didn't he ask for some yesterday?

A. No, sir, I didn't see him yesterday.

Q. Did he ask for any on Saturday?

A. Only what he asked me on the stand.

Q. You weren't on the stand Saturday. A. Friday.

Q. In other words, there weren't any requests between Friday on the stand and this morning?

A. I didn't see him, no, sir.

Q. What is your estimate as to the time it will take to complete the material that you know you can supply?

A. I can't give you a definite answer to that, but I think I will have most of the things he wants tomorrow, sometime tomorrow.

Q. In the morning, or would it be in the afternoon?

A. Probably in the afternoon.

Q. Not until afternoon. Well, now, will you have to deliver some of them on a subsequent day?

A. If they can be gotten, yes, sir.

Q. I am only talking about the material that you can supply. That you know you can supply, when is the earliest that you think you can complete all of the requests made by Mr. Brandwen? I just want your best judgment on it?

A. I think I testified to the effect that some of the information he asked for would take a week, and I have discovered since that, as I stated, under the regulations of the I. C. C. it isn't permissible to destroy certain records, which I learned since have been destroyed.

Q. All right, let's leave those out of consideration.

A. I can't tell you definitely whether I can do everything tomorrow or not until I make a further survey.

Q. All right. That is all.

Redirect Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Eckert, that material that I asked you for this morning you either have completed already, you already completed, or will be able to complete today. It is all material that is in St. Louis?

Q. You asked me for one statement, Mr. Brandwen, which has to do with interest on the purchases of securities of the Short Lines. I haven't been able to develop anything on that.

Q. As I told you, I thought there was such a schedule in your files, and I think I can indicate where they may be found, and if so I will do that.

A. If I can get the exhibit number it will simplify it greatly.

Q. I will try to get that for you. A. You will?

Q. Yes. That is all.

Recross Examination.

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Would you just state for the record what documents you cannot complete tomorrow, and I don't want to get the information about the documents, but the amount of work that is involved in preparing them. I am not speaking of the ones that you think you cannot supply by tomorrow.

Mr. Brandwen: May I suggest that perhaps that question might be deferred until tomorrow, because I may want to take the position, perhaps, with respect to that material, that if it cannot be completed within a very short period of time, I may forego the request for that.

The Court: Well, what difference would that make?

Mr. McConaughy: He objects to his answering the question.

The Court: You object to his answering the question?

Mr. Brandwen: I think it won't be very illuminating or informative.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I stated a while ago I couldn't tell definitely until I went into it a little further. I have got to find out just what we can or what we cannot get with respect to certain of the information he asked for. I will do what I can to get it, but I can't say definitely now whether I can give them to him or not until I make that further investigation.

Mr. McConaughy: All right.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I should like to introduce excerpts from the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held on the 15th day of February, 1917, in the City of New York.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Did I understand counsel to say 1917?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Is that B. C. or A. D.?

The Court: That question, I take it, is asked seriously?

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, I object to the offer of counsel unless all the minutes go in. I object to any excerpt going in.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, now, then, do I understand there is no objection to the fact that it is 1917, but the objection is to all the minutes? Now, I simply want to have your Honor look at these after counsel has looked at them to see whether it wouldn't be unnecessarily cluttering up the record with respect to this particular point. I am offering them as of that date for a very special purpose, and that will appear clear from an examination of this resolution.

Mr. Kirschbaum: We already have over a hundred exhibits, your Honor, for a very special purpose.

Mr. Brandwen: For a very special purpose, that is true.

(Said minutes were thereupon marked by the reporter as Defendant Comstock's Exhibit 112, and were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 180.]

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if your Honor please, I should like to have offered in evidence excerpts from the special meeting of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway Company, held in Houston, Texas, on April 29, 1924.

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, I make the same objection, that the entire minutes should go in and not just excerpts so that your Honor, if your Honor thinks all of this is material, your Honor should have a complete picture of what was done at the meeting, not just one excerpt that counsel relies on.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, there are other items there that are not related to what is involved in these proceedings, and it would just needlessly encumber the record.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I am inclined to think, your Honor, that most of what counsel has offered here is needless. I haven't seen the pertinency, and counsel has failed to state the pertinency of any of these minutes.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like the record to show that Mr. Kirschbaum has not looked at any of the exhibits or has not looked at the minutes before he has made his objection, even.

Mr. Kirschbaum: And I think it is unnecessary to do so.

The Court: Mr. Kirschbaum's motion is overruled, his objection, rather.

(Said minutes were thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 113, and were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 181.]

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I now offer in evidence excerpts from the meeting of June 10, 1924, of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, held at Houston.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Will your Honor please allow my objection along the same lines? I understand counsel is again offering excerpts with regard to a wholly owned subsidiary, that is, excerpts of the minutes. If your Honor will please allow me the same objection as made before?

The Court: Overruled.

(Said minutes were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 114, and were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 183.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now, if your Honor please, would like to offer in evidence excerpts of minutes from the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, of the meeting of the Board of Directors held in Houston April 29, 1924.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I make the same objection, if your Honor please, with respect to its being an excerpt and not the entire minutes.

The Court: Overruled.

(Said minutes were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 115, and were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 184.]

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I now offer in evidence excerpts of the minutes of the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western meeting of the Board of Directors of June 10, 1924, held in Houston.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Will your Honor allow me, please, the same objection to reading excerpts into the record?

The Court: Allow you an exception?

Mr. Kirschbaum: I made objection to the evidence. If your Honor has overruled it, I should like an exception.

The Court: Very well, you may have it.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Thank you, sir.

(Said minutes were marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 116, and were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 186.]

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to call Mr. Cole now for one or two questions that I will clear up with Mr. Cole.

A. T. Cole,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon being recalled to the stand, testified further as follows:

Further Direct Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Cole, the other day when you were on the stand you were asked a question as to whether, I am reading page 336, "Those are the only resolutions (June 19, 1930 and December 6, 1930) dealing with the declaration of dividends by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico other than those referred to in the meeting of June 17, 1931, and July 11, 1931, which have already been testified to, is that correct, [in] that correct?"

And you answered, "I will have to check the books to see if that is correct." Since then have you had an opportunity of checking that particular volume?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is the answer?

A. I don't find any more in there.

Q. You also made an examination of all of the executive committee meetings that were held in this volume of St. Louis, [Brownville] & Mexico minutes? A. That is right.

Q. And you prepared a schedule of Executive Committee meetings of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, giving the dates and the place where held? A. Yes.

Q. Is that a schedule that you just prepared? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: Would you state what volume you referred to?

Mr. Brandwen: It is called St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, furnished by counsel for the Trustee.

Q. Will you describe this, Mr. Cole? I think it would be better if you described them.

A. That volume contains a copy of minutes of meetings of stockholders, directors and executive committees.

Q. Of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico?

A. St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, yes, sir.

Q. Between what date?

A. January 7, 1930, is the first, and August 26, 1937, is the last one.

Q. Well, we are not going into that. Now, this schedule of executive Committee meetings was prepared by you?

A. That is right.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Brandwen: I think we want to point out just where the meetings of the executive committee meetings were being held, that is all. They weren't being held in Texas.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 117, and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 188.]

Mr. Brandwen: That is all I have at the moment, if your Honor please.

Mr. McConaughy: No cross examination.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all, if your Honor please, that I have this afternoon.

The Court: What do counsel desire to do?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I don't care to proceed, if your Honor will permit me, until Mr. Brandwen is ready to say he rests, I want to hear that from him.

Now, your Honor, I think, should put a time limit on his closing. I think that should be done now. The testimony given by Mr. Eckert shows that requests were being made of him as late as this morning for information, and I don't think there is any excuse for that when we consider—

The Court: Have counsel any suggestion just how the Court will determine a time limit?

Mr. McConaughy: I think it would be in order for your Honor to say that Mr. Brandwen shall complete his case by closing time of the morning session tomorrow.

The Court: The Court would hesitate to do that.

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me when this proceeding was—

The Court: Not only would hesitate, but won't do it.

Mr. McConaughy: All right. May I say a word more on that, your Honor? Your Honor will recall that this proceeding was announced or noticed in October, and Mr. Brandwen has, therefore, been in a position to prepare himself for this trial, and I think what your Honor has observed here is clearly a showing of lack of preparation when he came to trial.

The Court: I think if I did as you suggested, that the Court limit him perhaps to asking that any further exhibits be produced, something of that sort, it might be a different thing, but to tell him that he has to close by a certain time, I would be treading on dangerous ground there.

Mr. Kirschbaum: May I be permitted a word, your Honor. I have observed these proceedings and the patience of your Honor, which I think is without end. It seems to me, though, from what I have observed, that the procedure of counsel,—of the procedure of counsel, that counsel is attempting to make out an affirmative case out of the lips or out of the mouths of the exhibits of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and its various subsidiaries, and I respectfully submit to your Honor, that that is in accordance with what in well known procedure shouldn't be done before trial. Now, certainly he has had all the time to conduct an examination before trial, and to do as counsel has stated before your Honor he intends to do, which is to look over the records and make up his mind what he has got there, what is shown there, to make up his mind whether he intends to offer this, that or the other, he has got a lot of loose little strands and he is trying to draw a picture, if he can draw it, and I say he should start now on his argument. The time taken up of the Court, I think, is away out of proportion to vital matters that your Honor has before him for consideration. We believe that the Plan is objectionable and should and will be thrown out by the Court, but we don't think that this is any proper way to attempt to do it.

Mr. McConaughy: May we have a ruling, then, your Honor, that Mr. Brandwen shall be limited to the exhibits which he has now requested of Mr. Eckert? As I understand it, he has all of the requests complied with, is that correct?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, I have all my requests complied with.

Mr. McConaughy: All requests for information and material have been supplied to you except that now outstanding on the part of Mr. Eckert?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, except that which is outstanding.

The Court: What?

Mr. Brandwen: Except that which is outstanding, as you say?

Mr. McConaughy: Well, then, I think, your Honor, we should have a statement from Mr. Brandwen as to what is outstanding now, and that he be limited to that.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please—

Mr. McConaughy: And I move that such an order be made.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, we have been, with all due respect to the Court, been going through a proceeding where we are dealing with a claim, which on its face purports to be a claim for over ten million dollars, and if interest is allowed thereon, amounts to eighteen million dollars. We have been going on in this case a certain number of days. We think it is a most extraordinary situation that up to this very moment there is no information available as to what the position of the Trustee of Missouri Pacific is with respect to this claim. After all, the Missouri Pacific is being administered by a Trustee, and under your Honor's jurisdiction, and certainly with respect to a claim of this magnitude and this importance, what the position of the Trustee of Missouri Pacific is with respect to this claim is a most important matter, and from all standpoints of ordinary legal procedure, well, established legal procedure, that should have been one of the first things that we all should have been apprised of. We don't even know that at the moment. I didn't say that when I submitted my application to the Court, to have that clarified at the outset and that application was overruled. I went on. Certainly, we have this extraordinary situation where here is a claim asserted by whom I don't know, no evidence yet as to who is asserting this claim. We have a document that has been filed, and certainly, again I say, with all due respect to this Court, certainly under well established principles of procedure and well established principles of law, the burden not only of going forward, but the burden of establishing the validity of that claim and showing what it is made up of and why there is any basis for it, should have been on the party asserting it, but up to the present time none of that has been done. We have, after exception to your Honor's ruling and reserving the exception, gone on with that, taking on a burden, if your Honor please, that we feel that we are under really no obligation as we understand the law, legally to assume, but we have gone on, and it would seem to me that when one considers the procedure that we have pursued in the framework of this whole proceeding, we think, if your Honor please, we have done more than our share, and it seems to me that if any of these gentlemen wanted to be fair with respect to this, I think that there should have been some kind of recognition of the unusual character of the situation instead, if you will, of being interrupted, being reproved, because we are taking on this additional task and, again, if your Honor please, and again I want to say I have had occasion to examine with a great deal of care the way these intercompany claims have come on for hearing, especially the one that has come on for hearing before the Supreme Court of the United States, and when you consider how much time was devoted thereto, I say, the amount of time we have given to this, the amount of time that has been spent, recognizing, if your Honor please, everything that your Honor has done, I think it is only a very picayunish fraction of the amount of time that has been spent in any of those cases.

The Court: How much more are you going to ask for?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I don't at the moment see or think that I shall ask for anything else, but, if your Honor please, before your Honor issues any kind of mandate or any kind of ruling curtailing something, suppose your Honor might feel after looking at some of this material that your Honor would like to know more about some of this material? After all, all we are trying to do is, in view of the extraordinary situation, where nothing has been done by the claimant, we don't know who the claimant is, or whether the claimant wants anything prosecuted, to issue any kind of ruling or mandate with respect to a cut-off or limitation, I simply can't believe that your Honor will want to do that kind of thing, considering all the circumstances.

Mr. Kitchel: In regard to counsel's reference to the Trustee and lack of knowledge of the Trustee's position, this objector has filed an objection to the Plan. His duty is to support his objection. The Trustee, so far as I am able to ascertain, has given him every opportunity to go through the records of this company and ascertain what he wanted to find, and he never started this until the late date which now makes him come in, and instead of producing something, fishes around with one witness to find if he can find out something which he would like to inquire on further. I think the criticism of the Trustee is entirely unjustified. The burden is on the objector to sustain his objection.

Now, as to the second point that he makes, that he doesn't know who is asserting this claim and there is no proof in regard to it, this claim was proved before the Interstate Commerce Commission. The record shows absolutely detail as to how the claim is made up. The matter was the subject of long discussion and cross examination before the Commission, and if he wants to know who was asserting the claim, we will say all those who are supporting this Plan assert that claim and take the position that it is already proved, and it is up to the objector to show that the claim is invalid, and the criticism of the Trustee is quite unjustified. I am sorry the Trustee's counsel is not here to defend the Trustee himself.

The Court: The Court is anxious to limit this hearing as much as possible. I think there has been an unnecessary amount of time spent already. Have you any suggestion as to what may be done along that line, Mr. Kitchel? The Court would be glad to hear from you on it.

Mr. Kitchel: I would adopt the Court's suggestion, that is, that he shouldn't be allowed to ask for any more exhibits than he has already asked for. If on tomorrow it proves impossible to obtain some of this material for a week or so, I would suggest that the Court direct that it be omitted because of the delay in securing the matter heretofore.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, if, as I assume, they are complaining about the time, why can't they go ahead with their case?

The Court: I don't know if they desire to do that.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, we do not care to go ahead with our case until we know what the case against us is.

The Court: You have nothing to offer until tomorrow, then, is that it?

Mr. Brandwen: Nothing more until tomorrow.

The Court: Announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(At this point the Court announced an adjournment until tomorrow morning, January 16th, A. D. 1945, at ten o'clock A. M., at which time the following proceedings were had, to-wit:)

Met pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M., Tuesday, January 16, 1945, and the following proceedings were had:

At 10:15 A. M., after the Court had disposed of other matters, the following occurred:

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, Mr. Brandwen has been over with Mr. Eckert since about nine o'clock this morning getting the schedules in shape, and expected to be here by now. I think he will be here in a very few minutes.

The Court: Is that this morning or today?

Mr. Biggs: I would assume safely by at least 10:30.

The Court: Have you any further information as to how long it will take?

Mr. Biggs: It depends on Mr. Eckert.

The Court: Announce a brief recess. Notify me as soon as they are here.

(Recess lasting until 10:50 A. M.)

Mr. Brandwen: May it please the Court, I understand that Mr. Thompson, the Trustee, is in the room. I should like to just have him testify for just a minute or two, please.

The Court: Mr. Thompson, will you take the witness stand?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, may I just note for the record that it is now ten minutes of 11:00?

GUY A. THOMPSON,

a witness of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified on behalf of the Objector, Andrew W. Comstock, as follows:

Direct Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Thompson, I show you Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification, and ask you to look at that, if you please.

(The witness examines the said document.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Thompson, as Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, whether you regard the claim presented in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification as a valid claim.

A. I think so. You are speaking of the form of the claim?

Q. No. I am dealing with the substance of it. Now I am going beyond the form. Now I ask you whether you regard the claim asserted in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification as a valid claim?

The Court: Let him explain.

Mr. Brandwen: Surely.

A. The Missouri Pacific?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it should be regarded as a valid claim.

Q. Do you regard—

A. (Interrupting) And treated as such.

Q. And do you regard the claim—do you, Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, regard the claim contained in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification, or identified by Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification, as part of the assets of the estate of Missouri Pacific Railroad?

A. Well, in a sense, it is a part of the assets, yes, but I think it is washed out in the Plan, and would be washed out in any plan.

Q. Well, I would like to ask you for a definite statement, if I can get that from you, Mr. Thompson, please, as to whether the substance of the claim asserted in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification constitutes part of the assets of the estate? A. Yes, I should say so.

Q. And that in substance you regard the claim, you, as Trustee of Missouri Pacific, regard the claim asserted in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification as a valid claim?

A. I have already stated that I think it should be so regarded.

Q. In substance? A. Yes.

Q. I am not dealing with the form, do you understand, with the substance?

A. I understood it. That it should be so regarded and so treated as a valid claim.

Q. As a valid claim. Now, addressing you, Mr. Thompson, as Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway: Do you, as Trustee of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway, have any objections to the claim asserted in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1, described in Comstock's Exhibit No. 1 for identification? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't? Thank you. That is all. That is all, Mr. Thompson, so far as I am concerned.

Cross Examination.

By Mr. Kitchel:

Q. Mr. Thompson, have you, during the course of these proceedings, made any examination or caused any examination to be made of the facts in regard to this claim?

A. Yes.

Q. May I ask you what examination you made or caused to be made?

A. Well, I will have to go back to the beginning of the Trusteeship.

Q. Yes.

A. It was in 1933, I believe the month of January, probably, in looking over the papers which Mr. Johnson, then the Chief Accounting Officer, had sent to my office, I ran across, in a paper relating to the assets of the Missouri Improvement Company, a large amount of Missouri Pacific stock and International Great Northern Adjustment

Bonds, which excited my curiosity and surprise, because I had understood that that company was a fully owned subsidiary organized simply for the purpose of taking title in instances where desired to pieces of real property. So I made inquiry concerning it, and was not satisfied with the information I got, and that suggested to me, as I now recall, that there might be other matters of questionable character, and that the best way for me to discover them, if there were, was to have an audit made of the accounts of the Missouri Pacific and the Gulf Coast Lines and the I. G. N. I conferred with Mr. Baldwin about it, who was then my co-trustee, and he acquiesced, and it resulted in my retaining Price, Waterhouse and Company, who have done a great deal of work for me theretofore, and in whom I had great confidence, and still have, to do the work, and they started in on the work. As the work progressed, I would talk to them about different things that appeared, particularly this so-called "stock investment" I mentioned a moment ago—stock and bond investment, and other investments, expenses of different character, one of them called the Van Ness Company expenses, and advancements made to certain shippers, and also these advances made to the N. O. T. & M.

Q. You mean the ones that are now under consideration?

A. The dividends paid. Sir?

Q. You mean the ones that are now under consideration?

A. Yes. And as to this particular claim—or as to the other matters, they were not satisfactory. As to this particular—I mean in the light, in the judgment of Price, Waterhouse and Company, and myself as well. This particular matter—these advancements and dividends, I was advised by Mr. Gray that they seemed to be all right, that no successful attack could be made on those, and I need not worry about those, and I never did.

As to these other matters, they did become the subject of subsequent investigation, and as to some of them, litigation. Well, when the—I think that answers your questions, so far as investigation—

Q. (Interrupting) It does.

A. (Continuing) —to that point is concerned.

Q. Mr. Thompson, when you started your testimony, you said something about January, 1933. That was a little prior to the institution of these proceedings, wasn't it? They were in March? A. 1934, I should have said.

Q. 1934, you should have said?

A. Yes. I became Trustee, July 1, 1933, and it was January, 1934.

Q. Yes.

A. That I should have said. If I said 1933, that was a mistake.

Q. Mr. Thompson, at one time, did you not have a conference with counsel interested in the case with regard to possible irregularities?

The Court: (Addressing the reporter) Read the question.

(The question was repeated by the reporter.)

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Will you tell us about that?

A. I would like to state that, following the completion of the Price, Waterhouse audits of the Missouri Pacific, I. G. N. and Gulf Coast Lines, and when they were filed in this court, I obtained an order of Court, or Mr. Baldwin and I—we were both Trustees at that time—authorizing me or the Trustees to retain Judge Fred L. Williams as Special Counsel for the Trustees, to review these audits and reports, and to advise the Trustees with respect to their duty as to anything disclosed or referred to in those audits. And pursuant to that authorization, we did retain Judge Williams and turned over to him these audits, and he got to work on them. There were certain specific matters that I directed his attention to at the start, among them those that I have already mentioned, and perhaps some others, and, however, not the matter of these advancements, I did not specifically ever call his attention to that, but the stock purchase transactions, the Van Ness Company matter, the purchase of Brownsville, the purchase of stock in some other companies, and loans made to many shippers, and particularly some of those shippers, and other things I don't at the moment recall.

So he proceeded with his investigation. That was in the fall of 1934, October, as I remember it. On the 29th—or I received while Judge Williams was at work a letter dated January 29, 1935 from Mr. Brandwen suggesting an examination, that there be an examination of the bankrupt under Section 21-A of the Bankruptcy Act; also that Judge Williams investigate the Van Ness account, the circumstances of stock purchases in other companies, this $3,200,000 stock purchase which subsequently became the subject of study, and which I have referred to, and circumstances concerning the purchase, surrounding the purchase of the N. O. T. & M. Railroad. Those were the matters that Mr. Brandwen wrote me at that time he thought should be inquired into. I have his letter here and will be glad, if he desires it, to read it in full, but I am sure I have summarized it correctly. Nothing else.

Q. That is satisfactory with me.

A. That was the 29th of January, 1935. Judge Williams made certain progress with his examination until he was ready to make tentative reports on certain subjects, particularly this so-called "stock purchase," and the circumstances surrounding the purchase of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico stock, and advancements to shippers. And when it reached that point, meanwhile, I might say that I had been receiving repeated letters from Mr. Brandwen, each expressing the opinion that there should be an examination of the Bankrupt under 21-A. For example, there is one letter of February 2nd to Judge Williams; another of February 11th to Judge Williams; this is the year 1935; one of March 13th to me; another of April 3rd to me; another of June 25th to me; another of July 8th to me; and another of July 17th to me; up to July 8th we had received one, two, three, in addition to the very first letter I mentioned a moment ago, in which Mr. Brandwen set forth what he thought should be the subject of inquiry by me—

Q. (Interrupting) Mr. Thompson, will you identify Mr. Brandwen? You have referred to him as Mr. Brandwen.

A. Mr. Brandwen, who is counsel for Mr. Comstock now.

Q. Yes.

A. I received one, two, three, four, five, six letters up to July 8, 1935, all of them devoted solely to the desirability of an examination of the Bankrupt under 21-A, and after July 8th, two more devoted solely to the same subject. So that when Judge Williams had reached this stage of his investigation, I thought it desirable that we have a meeting of all interested parties, and to that end sent a letter to every mortgage trustee, every bondholders' committee, including their counsel, every stockholders' committee, including their counsel, and to Mr. Brandwen, stating that I would appreciate their coming to such a meeting to consider what Judge Williams would report, and to make suggestions. On the 8th of July—

Q. (Interrupting) 1935?

A. 1935, this meeting was held in my office at the Missouri Pacific Building. There were present at the meeting the counsel representing the First and Refunding Bondholders' Committee, counsel representing the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, counsel representing the Committee of the Trustee of the N. O. T. & M. Bonds, and counsel representing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; I am not sure whether the—yes—counsel representing the Trustee and Committee of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern River and Gulf Division Bonds, and others representing other interests, I am quite sure—those are the ones I recall offhand—and Mr. Brandwen. We had a very nice meeting. Judge Williams did most of the talking, because he was reporting on his investigation. He told of the matters that he had taken up, and the conclusions that he had tentatively reached, discussed this stock matter, which looked very bad, discussed the Van Ness matter, I am quite sure, discussed the purchase of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico stock by the Missouri Pacific, he discussed the advances to shippers and told how he tentatively had felt about all those matters.

As to the stock purchases—and this, Your Honor, relates to the matter with which you are familiar, which we settled up here recently, where the Missouri Pacific advanced money to—ostensibly to the Transportation Company, and that it bought Missouri Pacific stock and bonds which resulted in the suit in Cleveland. Judge Williams reported on that. At that time he felt that cause of action lay with the Transportation Company, then he changed his opinion about that later and he thought suit should be brought—thought it was a bad transaction, he felt.

As to the purchase of the Brownsville stock, he felt—the N. O. T. & M. stock, he felt that no cause of action could lie or could be sustained, but that it was a matter that had been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that as to the commissions that were far—which were quite large, that was a matter of contract that the parties had agreed to, and besides the Statute of Limitations had run, anyway, as I remember it.

And as to the advances to shippers, he did not know whether the Trustee should sue the Directors of the Missouri Pacific or not, because largely a matter of policy. Some of these advancements were substantial, but most of them were, oh, several thousand dollars, and they were manifestly made for traffic reasons, in order to curry favor with the shippers, and that they had resulted in the Missouri Pacific getting, making a good deal more than they had lost, by making these advances; so the question was whether or not I should sue the Directors to recover these advancements that had not been repaid and may never have been intended to be repaid when they were made, and he said that if I did that, that there was a legal question, first, the legal question involved was whether or not the Missouri Pacific had sustained damage; secondly, the practical question as to the Missouri Pacific losing business in the future, as the result of such a suit antagonizing shippers, both the shippers who had received advancements and the shippers who had solicited advancements and been turned down, when they found out that other shippers had gotten advancements, how would they feel about it? Well, he was in grave doubt about that.

The meeting felt—and Mr. Brandwen, in that connection, was the most positive of all; he stated that so far as he and his client were concerned, that he felt that unless there was some fraud, that the situation practically was such that there should be no suits filed.

Then we discussed whether there should be an examination, as Mr. Brandwen had been writing, as I have stated heretofore, and I might say in that connection that I was in sympathy with Mr. Brandwen's position on this examination under 21-A. I always thought that we should have had it promptly, but Judge Williams did not agree with me. He was my counsel, and he was a better lawyer than I am, as most people will agree, and he just did not want it at that time, he felt the time had not come; but every time I would hear from Mr. Brandwen, I was so much in sympathy with Mr. Brandwen, that I felt I could diplomatically take Mr. Brandwen's letter down to Judge Williams and say:

"Well, now, here is Mr. Brandwen writing again. Better have an examination."

No, he wouldn't have that. So we discussed whether there should be an examination under 21-A, and Mr. Brandwen again expressed himself positively there should be, without delay. Judge Williams felt that there should ultimately be, but he did not believe that there should be at that time, and he was making progress and with his conferences with the counsel for these Cleveland people, and he felt that it would be a mistake to use 21-A at that time. Well, we discussed all those things, and when we had—oh, I then polled those who were there on two questions: first, should this suit be brought immediately against the Cleveland Directors, whether all Directors were to be sued, and whether there should be a 21-A examination at once. Mr. Brandwen voted "aye" on both. Every other person at the meeting, my recollection, stated that he would have to confer with his client and write me, because they were all lawyers who were at the meeting representing either Mortgage Trustees or Bondholders' Committees, and eventually, following the meeting, I did hear from all the others, and as I recall, the upshot of all was that they said they did not feel that they were the ones to determine that. That was the effect of it on them. The result was that Mr. Brandwen was, I think, the only one, I am quite sure he was, who thought that the examination under 21-A should proceed at that time, and as I stated, I agreed with him, personally.

Now, then we had taken all the vote, everything, I then said to those gentlemen there:

"Now, is there anything else that any of you gentlemen knows of or can think of that you think should be the subject of investigation?"

And none had any suggestion to make of any further matter. That was July 8, 1935.

Q. No one mentioned the advances of the—

A. (Interrupting) Never mentioned it, and as far as I know, never thought of by anyone, never mentioned either at the January 8th meeting or at any other meetings, or in any other manner, by any person, until this proceeding—until Mr. Comstock came into the matter—I think he came in last year, I am quite sure, but very recent. He is a very newcomer in this matter.

Then I thought—after that meeting, I thought of—I kept working on this matter, to discover anything else that should be gone into, as well as Judge Williams, and I would review the report again and confer with people up at the Missouri Pacific and get data.

There was one matter that I developed, I thought we ought to go into, and that was what was called the "G. B. Mills matter." It involved an elevator up in St. Joseph, Missouri, where the Missouri Pacific had lost a good deal of money, and I told Judge Williams to go into that. That was one thing that had not attracted his attention.

And then there was, oh, the purchase of this road down in—oh, the Fort Worth Belt—the Fort Worth Belt. I cannot say that I thought there was anything wrong with these matters, but I thought they had just as well be looked into; so I called that to Judge Williams' attention and asked him to look into that.

Then he, himself, following this meeting here, thought that he should go into an investment of the Missouri Improvement Company in the stock Terminal—I cannot figure out my own writing—it is this Terminal Warehouse down—the Little Rock—Mr. Vollmer, what is the name of that?

Mr. Vollmer: That is the Terminal Warehouse.

Mr. Dearmont: Terminal Warehouse.

The Witness: Terminal Warehouse in Little Rock, where the Missouri Improvement Company had—it seemed, had lost a sum of money, not a great sum of money, on arranging for the Missouri Improvement Company to lend money to this Terminal Warehouse, and had also invested fifteen hundred dollars in bonds of that Warehouse. I might say, as things have turned out, it proved to be a profitable thing rather than a loss, and in this way: that the Improvement Company took stock which was then perhaps worthless, of the Warehouse Company, as security for this loan, and now they are trying to get the stock back at a very—at least the amount of the loan with interest, and I think there is substantial profit, but at that time it did not look that way, and that was another thing that Judge Williams went into.

Well, we milked the matter dry, as far as we could tell, and as far as people had suggested anything to us, so I then came into court with a motion 453, in which I represented to the Court that by Subdivision (c) of Section 77 of the Act relating to bankruptcy, it is provided that the Judge shall direct the Trustee or Trustees and may request the Commission through such of its agencies as it may designate to report to him any facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct, or mismanagement, and so forth, and I stated to the Court that I had done the best I could to learn of all irregularities, fraud, and misconduct, and that the only ones that I had been able to locate were those which were the subject of Judge Williams' various opinions which were filed in this case, and then stated that whether the Interstate Commerce Commission is in possession of facts pertaining to irregularities, fraud, and so on, I did not know, the Trustee is not now advised, but suggests that if any such information is available to the Commission, it should be brought to the Trustee's attention, all such information should be made available without delay, to the end that no bar of limitations may intervene. Wherefore, I asked the advice of the Court. That was on March 2, 1936. And the Court entered an order on that application providing that copy of Trustee's motion, together with copy of its letter, be transmitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that this order shall be considered as a formal request upon the Commission for facts, if any, now in the possession of the Commission, pertaining to irregularities, fraud, misconduct, or mismanagement, as a consequence of which the Debtors or, rather, any of them, may have a cause of action arising therefrom against any person or corporation, other than facts relating to the subject matters of the reports of the Special Counsel, Fred L. Williams, and of the so-called "Terminal Shares Contracts" more fully described in Trustee's motion. That order was entered on the 2nd of March, 1936, and was sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission. I did not know what I should do. I had done the best I could, had done everything I could think of, to find out whether there were irregularities, and asked all counsel to help me, to tell me if they knew of anything. Then I called on the Court and sent this to the Commission. That was just the end of it.

Q. No reply from the Commission in regard to these matters? A. No, sir, there was not.

Q. Mr. Thompson, earlier in your testimony you referred to a Mr. Gray. Will you identify him a little further?

A. Why, he is the senior partner of Price, Waterhouse, being in charge of their office in St. Louis.

Q. And he was the one that had charge of this examination?

A. And the one with whom I made the arrangement, or with whom I conferred as the work progressed.

Q. You mentioned the fact that Mr. Comstock was a rather late comer in these proceedings. Did you receive a letter from Mr. William H. Biggs, his attorney, sometime in October, 1943, I think?

A. Yes, sir. Well, I received letters from Mr. Biggs prior to that.

Q. In regard to this claim? A. No. No, no.

Q. Not in regard to this claim?

A. No. When Mr. Biggs first came into the matter, it was in connection with the payment of—my motions for payment of interest, and his position, or Mr. Quisenberry's—Mr. Quisenberry is, well, their position. In fact, I did not know at that time—I don't think I knew Mr.

Comstock, but my—I see the first letter I have here from Mr. Biggs is August 4, 1943. I am sure that I had known of Mr. Biggs' connection with this prior to that time, because Mr. Quisenberry appeared here in court. It must have been October or November, 1941, because here is a copy of a letter he wrote to Judge Moore, and which he sent to me.

Q. Mr. Quisenberry? A. Yes.

Q. Or Mr. Biggs?

A. Making reference, thanking the Court for the Court's courtesy in permitting Mr. Quisenberry to address the Court from out in the audience there on some matters, and Mr. Quisenberry sent me a copy of the letter. That was in 1941, October, and shortly after that I knew that Mr. Biggs was representing Mr. Quisenberry, but there was nothing about—what they were talking about was paying off, buying in bonds, buying bonds and not paying interest, and when the vote was taken, and I think that was probably when Mr. Quisenberry first appeared, he thought that I should send out to all of the bondholders a letter or a statement of some kind coming from me, personally, as Trustee, so it was those things that were discussed, and then a little later the question of the annual stockholders' meeting of the Missouri Pacific. I know Mr. Quisenberry thought that I should pay for his getting out notices of the meeting, proxies, and things like that. He took that up with me.

Q. In that connection, did Mr. Biggs act as Mr. Quisenberry's counsel?

A. At some stage, Mr. Biggs came in as Mr. Quisenberry's counsel, but it was in 1943—August 4, 1943, Mr. Biggs wrote me.

Mr. Dearmont: August 2nd, isn't it?

A. August 4th. Well, that was about buying bonds. I was coming down, by-passed that. He was representing, as I understood it, Mr. Quisenberry at that time.

Q. Just a moment. May I ask you just this one question on this: Who is Mr. Quisenberry?

A. Well, sir, he is seated in the court room. That is about all I know, except that I have had some conferences with him. I do not know what his business is or anything about Mr. Quisenberry.

Q. Did he disclose what interest, if any, he had in the case?

A. He told me he was interested, but what it was, I cannot recall.

Q. Well, if you will go along with your letters.

A. I don't believe that I knew that Mr. Biggs represented Mr. Comstock until the fall of 1943. I have here a letter from Mr. Biggs dated October 2, 1943, which I will read, if you care to hear it.

Q. Will you read it?

A. (Reading:) This letter is addressed to you in your capacity as Trustee of the N. O. T. & M. Railway Company. As you know, we represent Mr. Andrew W. Comstock and other owners and holders of secured serial 5¼ gold bonds of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company totaling a million, two hundred fifty thousand dollars. Also there is deposited as collateral to secure each of such one thousand bonds ten shares of the capital stock of the said Texas, New Orleans and Mexico Railroad Company. There has been filed with the District Court, and with you in your capacity as said Trustee, claims of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company in the approximate amount of ten million dollars, which together with interest accrued, according to your book, totalled on January 1, 1943, $15,986,895.34. It is our position that said claims as filed are invalid, and we respectfully request that you, as Trustee, take the necessary and appropriate steps to see that same are rejected and stricken from the record of this bankruptcy proceeding. Your prompt response hereto, indicating what action you propose to take in the premises, will be appreciated.

That letter—I was out of the City when that letter came, because I see it was acknowledged—its receipt—by Senator Dearmont, on October 4th. And when I got back to St. Louis on October 22nd, I have a notation on here addressed to Senator Dearmont:

"Senator: Please advise. G. A. T."

Q. Did you ever make any reply to that letter, Mr. Thompson, personally?

A. I never did, but Senator Dearmont, I understand, did verbally. He talked to Mr. Biggs.

Q. Will you excuse me a minute? Mr. Biggs, to whom you refer, is counsel here? A. Sir?

Q. Mr. Biggs is the counsel who is present here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And representing Mr. Comstock. That is all, I think, Your Honor.

A. I would like to supplement, since I have mentioned that Mr. Brandwen wrote me repeatedly, insisting on 21-A examination, that in the meeting that I recall was here July 8, 1935, and I have stated that Judge Williams thought the examination should not be held at that time, but should be before—but should at some time later; that I got an order of Court, with Judge Williams' approval, finally, in November, 1935, for an examination under 21-A, and there were extensive examinations conducted in Cleveland on November 20, 21, and 22, and in St. Louis, the 28th and 29th, I believe, of November. At any rate, a few days later, maybe a week later. I filed petition in court for leave to make that examination, and got an order of Court authorizing the examination under 21-A. Copies were sent, of course, as usual, to all parties in interest, including Mr. Brandwen, and many of the parties in interest appeared in Cleveland when the examination was had, but Mr. Brandwen did not appear. I mention that because I was surprised that he did not come.

Q. Mr. Thompson, at the time that you now refer to, this conference, do you know whom Mr. Brandwen represented?

A. At the time of the conference on July 8, 1935, I think he represented the Beard Committee.

Q. I didn't—don't want to have any misunderstanding that I was insinuating that he was at that time representing Mr. Comstock.

A. No. He represented the Beard Committee. Doctor Beard, the great historian.

Redirect Examination,

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. There is only one question I would like to ask, Mr. Thompson, and that is this: In response to one of the questions put to you by Mr. Kitchel, I believe you stated that sometime after you assumed your duties as Trustee, I believe you were then one of the two co-trustees, you arranged for an audit of the books by Price, Waterhouse, correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Am I not correct in my recollection that the audit furnished you by Price, Waterhouse with respect to the financial situation of these various roads prior to the institution of the 77 proceedings was a consolidated audit of all the companies?

A. Yes, to this extent: my recollection is that the first audit that was furnished here by Price, Waterhouse was a consolidated audit, and I told them that I did not—that I wanted separate audits, and they were furnished.

Q. And were those separate audits disclosed to various groups? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen them?

A. Yes, sir. Haven't you received that?

Q. I have never seen a separate audit. The only audit I have ever seen is consolidated audit. That is the reason that I asked you that question.

A. I am surprised you did not receive them, because they were furnished.

Q. Separate audits?

A. Separate audits. And filed in court, and that we sent to everybody. They were planographed and mailed to everybody of interest.

Q. In a consolidated audit, of course there would be no information about any advances? A. Oh, yes.

Q. In a consolidated audit? A. Oh, yes, I think so.

Q. In Missouri Pacific as well as N. O. T. & M.?

A. I think so, as well as any other dividends in the consolidated audit. I am surprised to hear you did not get the copy.

Q. No. A. Well, did you get the subsequent audits?

Q. They were monthly and annual audits, yes.

A. The annual.

Q. The audits I am referring to are the separate audits.

A. Well, you should have received that. I don't know why you didn't.

Q. I just wanted to know if that was not correct, if all that was submitted at that time was consolidated, that was all. A. You did get the consolidated?

Q. The consolidated.

A. Then you should have received those, because they were filed here in this court, and were planographed and sent to every one, as far as interested.

Q. All right, sir.

Recross Examination,

By Mr. Kitchel:

Q. The Beard Committee which you mentioned a moment ago represented or held, did it not, Missouri Pacific First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. I think the record so shows. A. I don't know.

Mr. Kitchel: That is all, Your Honor.

MARTIN ECKERT,

a witness of lawful age, having been heretofore duly sworn, upon being recalled to the stand testified further as follows:

Direct Examination Resumed by Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Eckert, in connection with the testimony that you have been giving you have had prepared under your supervision a detail of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company vouchers in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, outstanding as of December 31, 1932, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. And that is sometimes also described as family line bills? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 118.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 189.]

Mr. Brandwen: Would Your Honor like to look at this (handing exhibit to the Court)?

Q. Mr. Eckert, with respect to this schedule, these vouchers were outstanding and unpaid as of December 31, 1932; that is correct, is it not? A. That is correct.

Q. You have a category described as "joint expenses": Am I correct in understanding that in that category you have items covering maintenance of way, maintenance of equipment charges, proportion of traffic expense, proportion of general expense, and similar items?

A. Yes. Those items are taken from what we call a pooled bill.

Q. A what? A. A pooled, p-o-o-l-e-d, bill.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Eckert, whether you didn't prepare a comparable schedule of vouchers and family line bills, running from Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, outstanding and unpaid as of December 31, 1932. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence (handing document to the Court).

(The schedule last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 119.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 191.]

Q. Mr. Eckert, there is a category that appears on Exhibit 119, also, designated as "joint expense" and a description of the composition of the items contained within the category of "joint expenses", the same as that which has been described with respect to that category in schedule Exhibit 118?

A. Relatively the same, except as to the line on which the expenses were incurred.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I show you a schedule showing the various bond issues that have been put out by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, beginning with 1924, with some explanatory comments, and ask you whether that has been checked by you.

A. Yes, it has been checked and some information with respect to the purpose of issue shown by us on the right-hand side of the statement.

Q. It is correct, is it not? A. It is correct, yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen (to opposing counsel): I am very sorry I tore this out just a moment ago, after it was photostated.

The Court: What is this?

Mr. Brandwen: Schedule of the bond issues put out by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, beginning with 1924 and covering those after New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was owned by Missouri Pacific.

The Witness: Off the record.

(At this point the witness made a statement to counsel off the record.)

(The schedule last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 120.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 193.]

Mr. Brandwen: Now, Mr. Eckert, you prepared another schedule, did you not, showing the manner in which the various dividends declared by St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, in favor of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, were paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this the schedule which you prepared (indicating)? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The schedule last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 121.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 194.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Eckert, with respect to Comstock Exhibit 121, this is exclusive of the dividends that were recorded on the books of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico as still unpaid as of December 31, 1932?

A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Eckert, you also prepared a statement showing the cash balance and current assets and current liabilities of St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, as of June 30, 1931, and July 31, 1931, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And this is it (indicating)? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

(The statement last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 122.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 194.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Eckert, coming back to Comstock

Exhibit 121, which deals with dividends from St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, you have a series of items which you describe as paid by even offset: Please explain that.

A. Well, I will explain that by saying if the N. O. T. & M. owed the St. L. B. & Mexico $100,000. and the St. Louis, B. & M. owed the N. O. T. & M. a like amount, an even offset would be made, which would mean that it would be almost identical to a cash transaction.

Q. I show you this analysis of profit and loss, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and ask you whether that is not correct. A. As prepared from the records, yes, it is correct.

Q. As prepared from the records submitted by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to the Interstate Commerce Commission on the various years? A. That is correct.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you have an extra copy, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: I only have one here.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer that in evidence.

(The analysis last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 123.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 195.]

Mr. Brandwen: I should like to offer in evidence the following item from the Annual Report of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company, submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ended December 31, 1924. I am reading from Item 396 on page 323. It is under the caption "Miscellaneous Items" in the profit and loss account for the year: "Interest on St. L. B. & M. Railway Company First Mortgage Gold Bonds $2,548,916.40" and the statement immediately below "(See note)".

Below that, on the same page, is the following: "Note line 26. This item represents interest on First Mortgage Gold Bonds from July 1, 1912 to May 31, 1916, previously written off to profit and loss. Payment of this interest was authorized by the Board of Directors of the company at meeting held April 29, 1924."

Q. Mr. Eckert, I show you this document and ask you whether that is not a true copy of what appears in the report submitted by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ending December 31, 1924. A. I didn't check that.

Q. May that be offered, subject to your check?

Mr. Brandwen (to Mr. McConaughy): I don't believe that volume is here. It is being used in the Missouri Pacific office at the moment.

Mr. McConaughy (to the witness): This was not prepared by you?

The Witness: I did not prepare it, no. I would have to verify it. I could verify it if I had the record.

Mr. McConaughy: Does this purport to be a copy, Mr. Brandwen, or is it an analysis?

Mr. Brandwen: I understand there is no figure in there that is not on that page.

Mr. McConaughy: It is copied from the report?

Mr. Brandwen: So I understand. I am going to offer another one—

Mr. McConaughy: Have you a copy of this?

Mr. Brandwen: I don't have a copy of this.

(The document last submitted to the witness was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 124.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 197.]

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Eckert, I show you this document, which purports to be a transcript of items that appear in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year 1924, dealing with items on page 323, and ask you whether that accords with your recollection.

A. Yes; I remember those amounts representing interest payments received on the First Mortgage bonds of St. L. and B. S. & W. Railway Company, if that is what you refer to. I have to verify the rest of the statement.

Q. If my recollection doesn't fail me, I think you testified with respect to these items the other day, when you had the books before you. A. I did.

Mr. Brandwen: And I didn't offer that in evidence at that time.

I offer this in evidence.

(The document last offered in evidence was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 125.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 198.]

Mr. McConaughy: Was Comstock Exhibit 125 prepared by you, or under your supervision?

The Witness: It was not.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen, with respect to Exhibit 125, what is the significance of the pencil line drawn around one of those figures?

Mr. Brandwen: The significance of that is that that is a debit item instead of a miscellaneous credit. That was explained by Mr. Eckert in his testimony the other day.

Q. That was explained by you?

Mr. McConaughy: You understand that, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: Yes, I understand that. I discussed that the other day. I was a little—I floundered around a little on the interest payment, but I since developed the payment as authorized by the Board of Directors. I think that is what Mr. Brandwen had in mind. Those amounts have also been paid.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. All Mr. McConaughy asked was the significance of the circle around the figure $98,715.94, which appears in Exhibit 125, and I stated to Mr. McConaughy since it is circled under the category of "Miscellaneous Credits", that is a debit, as you testified the other day. A. That is the red figure, yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Perhaps it may be better to have that typed out (indicating exhibit which was being examined by the Court).

The Court: It will be a lot easier to read.

Mr. Brandwen: Suppose we have them typed out. Would Your Honor like me to read them, without them going on the record now, so it may help, or would you rather wait until they are typed out?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen: We will have them typed out, and simplify that.

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you have any material with you which would enable you to check the dividend and interest income received by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico from January 1, 1925, to December 31, 1932, from the various subsidiary companies? There has already been testimony on the totals, and I simply want to have it broken up, for the convenience of the Court and the record.

A. I don't think I have that material with me.

Mr. Brandwen: May I offer this in evidence, subject to check?

(The document indicated by counsel was by the reporter marked as Comstock Exhibit 126.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 199.]

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Eckert, Comstock Exhibit 126 was not prepared by you, or under your supervision; is that correct?

A. It was not prepared by me or under my supervision.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Mr. Eckert, I have here a schedule showing the investment by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in affiliated companies, as reported by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the various years, giving details. Do you have any material with you at the moment that will enable you to check the accuracy of these figures? A. I have not.

Mr. Brandwen: May I offer it subject to check? I thought that Mr. Eckert might check these things during the noon recess.

(The schedule last identified was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit 127.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 201.]

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Eckert, was Comstock Exhibit 127 prepared by you, or under your supervision?

The Witness: It was not.

Mr. McConaughy: Did you ever see this before?

The Witness: No.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen didn't discuss it with you at all?

The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, may this record be regarded as including Exhibits 455 and 456 in the proceeding before the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Mr. McConaughy: There is no question about that, Your Honor. That was settled yesterday.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if Your Honor please, Mr. Eckert's assistant was working on a schedule which I thought would be here at this time.

Q. It is not here yet? A. No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't think it will take long, but it certainly should be here any minute.

Now, I want to offer in evidence two companion schedules that I have here.

I have one sheet in my own handwriting, which I would like him to see, with respect to dates of dividends by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, and I thought I would offer them all at one time.

The Court: Then you will be through?

Mr. Brandwen: Then, with some maps, so far as my notes are concerned—there is just an excerpt from minutes of one meeting, and I am through.

The Court: Shall we take a recess until two o'clock to get that?

Mr. Bailiff, announce a recess until two o'clock.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, Mr. Brandwen and Mr. Eckert are checking those exhibits that were introduced this morning.

The Court: How long is he going to be checking them, Mr. Biggs, do you know?

Mr. Biggs: If you want me to venture in the field of prophecy, it will take 15 minutes.

The Court: Then, do you promise you are through?

Mr. Biggs: I don't think it will take us over 10 minutes to finish.

The Court: Announce a brief recess and notify me when you are ready.

(Brief recess)

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Eckert, please.

MARTIN ECKERT,

having been heretofore duly sworn, being recalled to the stand, testified further as follows:

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Eckert, at this morning's session I introduced into evidence Comstock's Exhibit 124, and I have asked you to check that, and will you please look at it and tell me whether that is correct?

A. That is correct, except in the third line reference is made to profit on equipment sold, $163,451.30. That should read, "Profit on Road and Equipment sold". That is the only correction I find.

Q. Otherwise, it conforms exactly with the items in the report submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Substantially so. The wording isn't exactly the same, but as to the figures it is the same.

Q. When this was checked at your office, someone in your office wrote the word "Road and" on the face of the exhibit? A. Yes, sir, I did that myself.

Q. Oh, that is your own writing? A. Yes.

Q. Now, this morning there was offered in evidence Comstock Exhibit No. 125, which also purported to be transcript from the report submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Since that time you have had an opportunity of checking that and will you please state what you have discovered with respect to that?

A. I discovered there were certain items shown in the annual report to the Interstate Commerce Commission which are not intelligently reflected on this statement, more particularly the items of $74,359.56, which is shown on the exhibit as difference between par value and cost of first mortage 6% bonds reacquired and retired. This should be shown as it was shown on this statement here as the difference between the par value and cost of 6% bonds reacquired and retired, $21,759.66, plus 5% premium on $1,052,000 equipment prior lien certificates, $52,600, making a total of $74,359.56. In order that there wouldn't be any misunderstanding about this exhibit as submitted, I thought it would be best to copy right from the page of the annual report to the Interstate Commerce Commission the data as shown on that report, and also that the memorandum relating to the income profit and loss account should be shown thereon, which has been done. I would suggest that this be substituted, if it can be done for the other exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: That is perfectly agreeable to me.

Mr. McConaughy: Agreeable to us.

Mr. Brandwen: If counsel is willing to do that. Then, we will have this numbered Comstock Exhibit 125. Have you got another copy, Mr. Eckert?

A. I will see whether I have. Yes.

Q. The substitution has just been made, Mr. Eckert. The figures are not different in any way at all in the revised Comstock Exhibit 125, the total figures from that which appeared in the exhibit offered this morning?

A. They are no different.

Q. Mr. Eckert, there was offered this morning Comstock Exhibit 126. You had an opportunity of checking that since it was offered. Will you state what the result of your examination is with respect to that exhibit?

A. That exhibit was examined and was found correct.

Q. There was also offered in evidence this morning Comstock Exhibit 127, and you have had an opportunity of checking that also?

A. Yes, sir, I had an opportunity of checking that and found that correct.

Q. Thank you. Mr. Eckert, there was offered this morning Exhibit 120, and you had an opportunity of examining that since it was offered. I ask you what comment you have to make as a result of your examination?

A. The exhibit as submitted we thought purported to show what the outstanding bonds were at the end of 1928. This, however, is not the—apparently was not the wish of the party who prepared it, and it was intended to show, the first three lines, the amount of bonds outstanding, as of December 31, 1943. That would mean that the way that the exhibit was submitted, it wouldn't make the total of $42,970,000, so that the item in the sixth column of the statement, the third line from the top, should read: $14,345,900 instead of $13,676,300. By making that change you bring out the total of $42,970,000 in the last column as a total of the funded debt, third line, last column.

Q. Any other item that should be commented on in order to bring the footings back into reconciliation?

A. Well, I don't remember now.

Q. Well, if you have covered them all, that is all right.

A. Yes, I think that is all.

Q. Just look at that, won't you, please? It is just a matter of addition, that is all. I want to be sure that the footing is correct, that is all. Will you just add that, Mr. Eckert? I want to be sure that the footing is correct. We won't examine the exhibit.

A. Well, the footing as shown in the fifth column—

Mr. McConaughy: What figure are you talking about, Mr. Eckert, in the fifth column?

A. Fifth column, third line, first, second and third lines. Let me see how that foots, just a minute. The first item on the fifth line, I mean the first item on the first line in the fifth column should read $10,164,900.00. The next item is the same as it now reads, $981,000. The next item, $3,200,000, that would bring out the total of $14,345,900 as of December 31, 1943.

Mr. Brandwen: May that correction be noted on that exhibit to simplify matters?

Mr. McConaughy: All right. Why not let's just note it right now.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, it will be simpler. Then, when we have it photostated we can have the corrected one photostated.

Mr. McConaughy: It would be very confusing. The exhibit itself ought to be corrected.

Mr. Brandwen: Would you make these changes on here, Mr. Eckert?

A. I wonder if it wouldn't be simpler to prepare a new exhibit?

Q. That is perfectly all right.

Mr. McConaughy: It is too hard to read if it is photostated. Can't you let Mr. Eckert make it up?

Mr. Brandwen: That is perfectly agreeable. Let Mr. Eckert make it up.

Mr. McConaughy: We will all get enough copies then.

Mr. Brandwen: You have another task, Mr. Eckert.

Mr. McConaughy: That is a mere mechanical job, is it, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, that is all it is.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, I show you three sheets of a document that you prepared dealing with the family line bills of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, as of April 1, 1933. I offer that in evidence. You prepared it, or under your supervision. A. At my office under my supervision.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit 128 and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 202.]

Q. Mr. Eckert, turning to Exhibit 128, in the column headed: "Unpaid as of April 1, 1933," there are certain items that are left blank for which there is no figure given. Am I correct in understanding that you intend thereby to indicate that those vouchers audited for those respective months have been fully paid? A. Yes.

Q. And am I to understand from this exhibit that, for example, in May, 1928, which is the first unpaid voucher, the vouchers audited for the month amounted to $335,834.44, but the amounts unpaid as of April 1, 1933, were $103,587.57; are we to understand therefrom that the difference between the amount of vouchers audited and the amount unpaid as of April 1, 1933, was paid? A. Yes, sir

Q. And that will explain the various other items throughout this exhibit 128?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, I show you the document in three sheets, which I understand was prepared under your supervision dealing with family line bills of Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western; that is correct, is it not?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And that exhibit shows the family line bills of Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, that were unpaid as of April 1, 1933? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer that in evidence.

(Said paper was marked by the Reporter as Comstock Exhibit 129, and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 204.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, here now in the Exhibit 129, there is a column headed: "Unpaid as of April 1, 1933," and there are blank spaces in certain places here. Are we to understand thereby that it means that the vouchers audited for the respective months as of which there are blank spaces, were paid?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And similarly, coming for example to July, 1928, which is the first unpaid, is the first month in 1928, as of which there are any unpaid family line bills of Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western, we find that the family line bills audited for the month of July, 1928, amounted to $149,776.97, whereas the total amount unpaid as of April 1, 1933, was $87,494.15. Are we to understand therefrom that the difference between those two figures represents vouchers that have been paid?

A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And the same explanation we have made with respect to other items throughout this exhibit 129?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, I asked you to have this document which I now hand you, which purports to be the dividends declared by St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, on its top, beginning January 1, 1924, checked, and ask you whether you had an opportunity of having this document checked?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. And have you found it correct?

A. I found in the date of declaration, January 19, 1929, the exhibit first showed $222,497.46. That should read $229,497.46, and I have so corrected it.

Q. And you have so corrected it?

A. Now, in the last column I wasn't able to check the dates as of the specific date shown, because I would have to have the annual reports to the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, and/or those years I understand they are here. Outside of that this statement is correct.

Q. The last column states that dividends were declared as of a certain date? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer this in evidence.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) As I understand it, you don't know whether the last column is correct or not?

A. I do not, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: How could you offer that in evidence.

Mr. Brandwen: Subject to check.

Mr. McConaughy: All right. Do you only have one copy?

Mr. Brandwen: That was being checked.

Mr. McConaughy: All right. Why don't we have this marked, and then hand it to Mr. Eckert and let him prepare a new table correctly and deliver it to—

Mr. Brandwen: What do you mean correctly?

Mr. McConaughy: Prepare a new table, if it is necessary.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, if any should be necessary.

Mr. McConaughy: And put it on the typewriter so we can read it.

(Said paper marked by the Reporter Comstock Exhibit 130.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 206.]

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen, haven't you already put in an exhibit showing these dividends in their amount?

Mr. Brandwen: Not in this manner.

Mr. McConaughy: Not in that form. Are not these figures shown in another exhibit?

Mr. Brandwen: Not in that way. I will tell you why, Mr. McConaughy. This gives every single declaration of dividends. There is no schedule gives every single declaration of dividends, and that is what this is designed to do.

Mr. McConaughy: That column is represented in another exhibit?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, but you see on certain days, as you see, or certain meetings, there were two distinct declarations, and this is the only exhibit in which that is shown.

Mr. McConaughy: All right, but this does include information in other exhibits?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I show you three sheets of a document and ask you whether you have had an opportunity of examining this before? A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. State what that is, will you, please?

A. This is a copy, photostatic copy of an entry which debits the family lines with certain advances made, or, rather, transfers family line bills from St. L. B. & M, B. S. L. & W., O & N W, and N I & N, to the N O T M. It is an extract from the supporting papers on entry No. 56, journal entry No. 56, entered on the N O T M's books as of December 31, 1933.

Mr. Brandwen: I offer that in evidence. And you found this schedule correct, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

(Said paper marked Comstock's Exhibit 131, was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 207.]

Mr. Brandwen: I now offer in evidence excerpt from minutes of the executive committee of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, held in New York on January 10, 1928.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Will your Honor please allow my objection to the offering of the excerpt from the minutes? Counsel has offered an excerpt from the minutes.

The Court: Very well.

(Said paper marked by the Reporter Comstock's Exhibit 132, and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 212.]

Mr. Brandwen: Now, if your Honor please, I would like to offer now a series of maps. These come from a report prepared by the RFC, when they made a very careful study of the road. They deal only with the Gulf Coast lines, that is, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, its subsidiaries, and I G N, and there is a map in the back of the 1925 annual report that shows the whole link of Missouri Pacific and N O T M. I just want to show the relationship of the property. I say these four comes from the RFC reports. Mark it one exhibit. It was a report prepared by Mr. Sullivan of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation dealing with a very elaborate study made of the whole railroad.

Mr. Homire: This report, I assume, was prepared by an Examiner for the RFC, Mr. W. W. Sullivan?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Mr. Homire: Does it appear on here that he prepared it?

Mr. Brandwen: No, but that is where it comes from, a series of volumes.

Mr. Homire: I don't recall seeing them. I have never examined them. I don't know anything about them at the moment.

Mr. McConaughy: Is this a published report, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: This was a report prepared in these proceedings by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. I don't think it was ever put [it] in the records. They were reports of about six or seven volumes that Mr. Sullivan made and he made them, prepared them, in connection with testimony that was given before the Commission.

Mr. Homire: I know the railroad examiner in the railroad division prepared a good many maps of this sort, but just what they are I don't recall.

Mr. Brandwen: Will you look at them? They speak for themselves, they show what they are.

Mr. Homire: I take your word for it that they were prepared.

Mr. Brandwen: Look at them.

Mr. Homire: I can't tell anything by looking at them. I am not objecting to them. If you say that is what they are, I have no objection to them.

Mr. Brandwen: This map shows exactly where each road goes from place to place. We have been using a lot of names with respect to various systems. I thought it might be convenient to have them in graphic form just exactly where the system goes and just exactly how they connect up, and the RFC has done a splended job with respect to getting this in the form of a map.

Mr. Kirschbaum: May I point out, your Honor, that these maps are not a year to year map, but cover certain periods of time.

The Court: 1925, as I remember it?

Mr. Kirschbaum: Yes, 1925, is this year, but I think some of the information that he has listed covers other years. Your Honor may remember, for example, some testimony went in as to 1912, I think, and 1916, and we had 1917 the other day. Now, there is no map here for the year 1917, but there is a map from 1915 to 1924.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, here is the first map, 1905 to 1914.

Mr. Kirschbaum: These maps cover ten year periods, presumbably.

Mr. Brandwen: And here is 1915 to 1924.

Mr. Kirschbaum: But they do not reflect the condition of the lines at any particular year. It seems to me we should have a series of maps for every year. If counsel has only 200 exhibits up to now, why not clutter up the record with more maps?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I merely want to show it is in graphic form, just what it is, and what places the roads traverse, that is all.

The Court: How many maps do you want to put in?

Mr. Brandwen: I put in these four from the RFC, which we have found, based on our study, were the best maps prepared on the subject. I would like to pay RFC that compliment, they did a splendid job.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to the maps because they haven't been properly authenticated, and I also point out that Exhibit No. 7 contains all the information that purports to be shown there.

Mr. Brandwen: May we look at Exhibit 7? And if Exhibit 7 contains all the information that is already there, I don't want any duplication. I haven't seen Exhibit 7. May that be kept in abeyance just for that one purpose?

The Court: May what be kept in abeyance?

Mr. Brandwen: The offer of the maps, just that one thing?

Mr. McConaughy: I will do this with you—no, I will let my objection stand. I have made an objection.

The Court: Do you want the court to reserve ruling on the objection?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor would be so good.

Mr. Homire: If the court please, I would like the record show that I offer no objection to these maps, but unfortunately, I am not in a position to vouch for them of my own knowledge.

The Court: They will have to be authenticated some way, or the court will have to sustain the objection.

Mr. Brandwen: Meanwhile, might they be marked for identification, if your Honor will reserve his ruling?

Mr. McEwen: I have a special objection to one reading at the top: "New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company".

The Court: It hasn't even been marked, has it?

Mr. McEwen: Hasn't it been marked? If I might have that marked for identification I would like to take objection to it.

Mr. Brandwen: They will be marked.

(Said maps marked by the Reporter Comstock's Exhibit 133-A, 133-B, 133-C and 133-D, for identification, respectively.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 213-219.]

Mr. McEwen: If your Honor please, I object to Comstock's Exhibit 133-A upon the ground that with respect to line between Galveston and Houston, although the exhibit correctly states that that line belonging to the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad is owned jointly by the International Great Northern and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, each owning 50% of the stock, which is somewhat inaccurate, yet—

The Court: Each one of three has 50%?

Mr. McEwen: Each one has 50% of the stock. In other words, it says: "This line owned jointly by International Great Northern and Missouri Kansas & Texas, each owning 50% of the stock," whereas it really showed, of course, as the fact the Galveston, Houston & Henderson owns that line and it is operated, as I understand it, exclusively, by the International Great Northern, and I should like the concession of counsel to that effect.

Mr. Brandwen: I am not in a position to say anything at all about it. I just don't know that with sufficient detail.

Mr. McEwen: May I then inquire of the trustee's counsel if I correctly stated the fact into the record?

Mr. Dearmont: Mr. McEwen, I just stepped into the court room.

Mr. McEwen: May I ask your Honor's permission to have the Reporter read my objection to the counsel for the trustee?

The Court: Read Mr. McEwen's objection.

(Record read)

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to any concession here on the ground that the trustee's counsel is not in a position to make concessions, as far as I can see. The security holders are interested in that property. If he has a claim to it, all right, let him state it.

The Court: Counsel for the trustee is not in a position to make any concession, but I thought he was asking for a concession of fact here.

Mr. McEwen: A concession of fact, yes, not anything else.

The Court: Read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read)

The Court: He did ask for a concession.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, he has a question addressed to counsel for the trustee. I object to it because the document is not in evidence, and there is nothing that can impair the position of the I G N bondholders, because of a document not in evidence.

Mr. McEwen: The document refers to the admission in evidence, yes.

Mr. Dearmont: May I be helpful, your Honor, please?

The Court: I don't know whether you can or not. You can try.

Mr. Dearmont: I won't make any concessions, or any statement of fact with reference to these railroads, but I might state that I am sure there is in evidence here, it was in evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission, an absolute and exact and correct description of this property, the International & Great Northern Railroad and the Galveston, Houston & Henderson, exactly where they run and what they own, and I believe maps also are in evidence.

Mr. McEwen: Then, I object to Comstock's Exhibit 133-A upon the ground that it is not the best evidence.

The Court: Your objection is sustained, and Mr. McConaughy's is sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: I have nothing further.

The Court: You mean you rest?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

The Court: I just want to make sure.

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Eckert is furnishing the court with some copies of exhibits that are being corrected.

Mr. McConaughy: May I proceed to inquire?

The Court: Yes.

Cross Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Eckert, you were asked some questions on your direct examination with respect to the treasury department of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and Missouri Pacific. Do you know of any Interstate Commerce Commission accounting rule or regulation which prescribes the number, form or character of the books to be kept by the treasury department of a railroad? A. I do not.

Q. There aren't any, are there?

A. I don't think there are.

Q. Are the cash books of the treasurer of the railroad under the supervision of the auditor of a railroad?

A. Ordinarily they are not under the supervision of the auditor. They usually have a separate treasurer.

Q. Let's take the N O T M.

A. The N O T M had a separate treasurer.

Q. The N O T M had a separate treasurer and the auditor of the N O T M was not under his jurisdiction?

A. Not under the auditor's jurisdiction.

Q. And that would apply to a local treasurer down in Houston, wouldn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that situation was true as long as you were acquainted with the affairs of the N O T M, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Eckert, does the I C C, I mean by that the Interstate Commerce Commission, send auditors to audit the books, have they sent auditors to audit the books of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and the N O T M and its subsidiaries? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How frequently are those audits made?

A. Well, they are made quite frequently. I think at one time we had a bunch of about 15 men there for the greater part of a year and a half, and then we had them there again—

Q. You are speaking now of the Houston offices?

A. Of the Gulf Coast line, yes.

Q. Of the N O T M and its subsidiaries?

A. Various audits were made. I can't give you the exact years when they were made, but I know that about the time I came there until, well, for four, or five or six years we had auditors there practically all the time.

Q. What would you say about the period from 1924, through 1932, were there frequent audits during that period of time?

A. There were frequent audits made at that time, yes.

Q. Of the books of the N O T M and its subsidiaries?

A. Yes, that is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the auditors—you might tell us also how many men would attend upon such an audit?

A. Well, we had as many as 16 in one audit that I remember, and we had some with only 4, some with 6 and some with 8; it varied according to the time that they were going to put in on it.

Q. How much time would they spend on an audit?

A. Well, I think I stated that we had one audit there that went almost a year and a half.

Q. And other times it would be considerably less than that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the auditors went over the books of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and its subsidiaries, what would happen next, usually?

A. Well, they would point out certain exceptions to the accounts. Some of them we would assent to, as to others our objections were sustained.

Q. In other words, you objected to the exception, and you were sustained in your objection?

A. In some cases we were, yes, sir.

Q. In other words, a good deal of that depends upon an interpretation of the I. C. C. accounting rules; is that right?

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that.

Mr. McConaughy: Is that right? A. That is correct.

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Mr. McConaughy: There is an objection.

Mr. Brandwen: I object to the question, if Your Honor please, that a good deal depends upon the interpretation. I don't know whether that is so at all. That question is too general. After all, the fact that an exception is made and that is assented to, that doesn't depend upon interpretation. If an exception is made and there is objection, and there is argument before the Commission, it may not depend upon interpretation at all. There may be a variety of reasons.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception. And then it calls also for Mr. Eckert's opinion whether it is a matter of interpretation or not.

The Court: The court has ruled.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. I understand you to say, Mr. Eckert, that the exception and your objection to it, is an indication that you and the auditors of the Missouri Pacific and the Interstate Commerce Commission have different views about some rule or regulation of accounting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And sometimes you agree with them and make no objection? A. That is correct.

Q. And on other occasions you have made objection and the Interstate Commerce [——] has sustained you in the objection? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. As of March 31, 1933, Mr. Eckert, what was the total principal sum of the advances from the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad Company? A. $10,565,227.00.

Q. Those advances were represented by, largely by three promissory notes, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What principal sum was not represented by promissory notes? A. $400,000.

Q. Are you sure about that, Mr. Eckert? A. Yes, sir.

Q. $400,000? A. Oh, wait a minute, it was $210,000.

Q. That is right. When was that advanced, at what time or times was that advanced, that $210,000 by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. I think it was made in February, 1933, but I will have to look at the papers I have, if I have any.

Q. Would the date February 1, 1933, refresh your recollection? A. Yes, I said it was February, 1933.

Q. I want the exact date, if you have the information?

A. Just a minute, I will see if I have it. I don't have the exact date. It is February, 1933, though.

Q. Well, it was made in February, 1933, and you wouldn't say that February 1, 1933, was wrong, would you? A. I would not.

Q. Mr. Eckert, at page 280 of the transcript you testified concerning a sum of $2,548,916.40, representing interest on first mortgage bonds of the Brownsville Company, which was "written up", as Mr. Brandwen described it. Do you remember that sum? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was another sum of $440,409.32, representing interest on bonds of Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that Mr. Brandwen said had been "written up". Do you recall? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us what happened to that written up interest?

A. That interest on behalf of the St. L. B & M covered—

Q. I am not asking you what it was, Mr. Eckert, but just what happened to it after it was written up. Mr. Brandwen has showed resolutions here of the three corporations restoring that interest? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what happened after that was done?

A. That interest was paid.

Q. That interest was paid, was it?

A. Paid to the N O T M, yes.

Q. How was it paid? A. Family line settlement.

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you happen to have copies of exhibits 118 and 119 with you? I want to speak with you a minute about them. A. 118 and 119, I have them, yes, sir.

Q. Now, on Exhibit 118, I think your Honor might be interested in seeing this, column headed "Joint expense there, joint expenses". Another one: "Material and supplies". Now, some of those items represent—

The Court: Which are you looking at?

Mr. McConaughy: I am looking at 118, your Honor.

The Court: I don't find that column. Oh, yes, I have it.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Some of those items represent additions and betterments, don't they, shown in those two columns?

The Court: Joint expenses, and what is the other column?

Mr. McConaughy: Material and supplies.

The Court: All right.

A. Yes, some of them cover equipment trust notes.

Mr. Brandwen: What is that?

The Court: Read the question and the answer.

(Question and answer read.)

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) What about joint expenses, there are A's and B's in that, aren't there?

A. Might be road and equipment, a proportion that would be chargeable to betterments, might be included in that.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Eckert, that this family line account was the one through which any of advances to the subsidiaries of the N O T M for the A's and B's would show up? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And the same thing applies to [exhibits] 118, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I have nothing more, your Honor.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Brandwen:

Q. Mr. Eckert, you testified in response to Mr. McConaughy's question that once the Interstate Commerce Commission Examiners were in for a year and a half. When was that?

A. It was beginning sometime in 1932, I think, 1931, perhaps, and they were there for about a year and a half. Now, I haven't any definite—I couldn't get the definite schedule, but when the examiners came to my office they presented a letter from the bureau head in Washington, and those letters I haven't been able to locate; otherwise, I could give you the exact information on it, but they were there pretty regularly, in fact, I will say quite regularly, and sometimes they were there for a year and a half.

Q. Was there any other time when they were there as long as a year and a half?

A. No, probably not as long as that, but they were there for a period of about four, five or six months.

Q. But the only time they were there as long as a year and a half was, you say, around—

A. Checking these 1931, and 1932, accounts, I recall it now.

Q. And they were there one year and a half?

A. Yes, sir, about a year and a half.

Q. And a large staff of men were there?

A. Yes, sir. They started off with probably four or five and then would build up until they would have as many as we had room for.

Q. Were there any changes that were made in your records pursuant to anything—any suggestions made by the examiners during the course of their examination?

A. Oh, yes, there were some changes.

Q. There was some changes made, while the examiners of the Interstate Commerce Commission were examining the books of account and records of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, during that period of time that you gave that were there, there were changes made by officials and employees of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and its subsidiaries in conformity with the suggestions that the examiners made during the course of the examination?

A. I might qualify that by saying, I will say yes, that the examiner that came there now, Mr. L. F. Ormond, was a very high grade examiner and he is now comptroller of the Atlantic Coast Line, and he came there, and I think it was the first time that the commission ever permitted an examiner to point out what exceptions should be made, of course, subject always to the approval of the director of the bureau of accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that year we made certain changes and assented to them, and probably two or three years later, after we had assented—

Q. (By The Court) You mean changes suggested by Ormond?

A. By Ormond. Perhaps two years later, when the audit was all complete, there was a stack of papers that was probably two feet [through] before he got [high.]. They were all approved, those that were assented to, were approved by the bureau of accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) You mean those that were assented to during the course of the examination? A. Yes.

Q. I see.

A. And some others we had correspondence with the Interstate Commerce Commission direct with the director of the bureau of accounts of the Commission, at Washington, we had correspondence direct with him, but we couldn't agree with Mr. Ormond, or, as far as that is concerned, with any of the other examiners that came clothed with that authority.

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you want us to understand that the only time or the only occasions when the Interstate Commerce Commission took exception to specific matters in the books of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and its subsidiaries, were times when there was simply a difference of interpretation as to regulations between Interstate Commerce Commission and you and your staff?

A. You mean that was the only time they ever made an examination of our accounts?

Q. No, no.

The Court: Read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read.)

A. That is a pretty hard question to answer, counsel, because they came there and made these examinations, and pointed out some things. Sometimes we would get letters from Washington direct without these examiners being there that pointed out some things to us that they said we were wrong, and when we found we were wrong we agreed to the exceptions taken.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) All I want to ascertain from you, Mr. Eckert, is this, that when you say when you found you were wrong, you don't mean to have us understand that it was simply a matter of interpretation, but that you didn't observe the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to that particular item?

A. You mean by that, Mr. Counsel, that we wilfully—

Q. Not wilfully. A. Made a false entry in the accounts.

Q. I didn't use the term wilfully, and I didn't use the term false, I simply said that you didn't observe—I am not referring to you personally, Mr. Eckert, that the staff did not observe the regulations of the commission and the commission called that to the attention of the people there, and that was corrected. I am not saying it was done wilfully, or I am not saying it was done falsely.

A. Well, I don't know exactly what you are getting at, but I think that we had occasions where we probably, like any other human, we erred, and, of course, by erring we corrected it, so that people when they came there and told us you mustn't do this, you mustn't do that, you are wrong here, you are wrong there, we corrected our records accordingly.

Q. And when they stated to you that you were wrong and that you corrected them, you did not feel it was simply a matter of interpretation by the Commission of the regulations versus your interpretation?

A. I don't know whether you are a railroad accountant, or not, but I can find—I can't find two railroad accountants that agree on some of the very complex accounting regulations that we had.

Q. (The Court) They don't agree like lawyers?

A. No, they don't always agree like lawyers.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) I haven't any doubt as to what you say on all those matters, but there are certain matters that don't lie in the realm of the complex or the difficult to construe, but certain things that are in the realm of the much clearer, and with respect to those matters I find it difficult to believe that you would want us to understand that the only time that corrections were made were only with respect to difference of interpretation on complex matters. Am I not correct in that belief, Mr. Eckert?

A. I don't know that I am sure what you are trying to ask me, counsel.

Q. Mr. Eckert, sometimes when you were advised by the Commission that a certain amount was in error, wasn't it a fact that on some occasion at least, it wasn't a matter of interpretation, and that is all I am trying to get.

A. Probably so. There might have been occasions where it wasn't a matter of interpretation.

Q. Yes. Now, coming to exhibits 118 and 119, let's address ourselves to 118, which deal with the family line bills of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, in the item of joint expenses. That, as you testified, included among others maintenance of way expenses, didn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that an addition and betterment? A. No, sir.

Q. That also included among other things that item of [of] joint expenses, maintenance of equipment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that an addition and betterment?

A. No, that is not an addition and betterment account, but there may be some items in there that might be chargeable to equipment account.

Q. But maintenance of equipment is not addition and betterment? A. No, sir, it is not.

Q. I just want to get that straight, so we understand now that to the extent that this category, joint expenses, listed in our exhibit 118, includes items dealing with maintenance of equipment and maintenance of way, those items at least, do not involve any additions and betterments, that is correct, isn't it?

A. Not always. You might find an item that is charged to your maintenance of way and maintenance of equipment expenditures that would later be in the revision of the accounting, and perhaps you might find some that should have gone to repay equipment accounts.

Q. But generally, that is not so?

A. Generally, this covers what I said this morning, it covers the operation of the railroad.

Q. Those that are not related to additions and betterments, is that correct?

A. Yes. You might find some additions and betterments in there, though, that would later be called out.

Q. But they would be the exception?

A. Oh, yes, they might be the exception.

Q. The exception in this category of joint expenses in exhibit 118? A. Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Now, you also stated this morning, did you not, that among the expenses, among the items covered by the category of joint expenses was a proportion of traffic expenses?

A. Yes, I assume there was some traffic, because this charge is made up, as I stated, of what we call our pooled bill. That includes the matter of expenses mainly, as you stated, chargeable to transportation and the maintenance of roadway, maintenance of equipment, and traffic in general.

The Court: What do you mean by transportation?

The Witness: Transportation is operating the trains, your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) And certainly the transportation expense should not be regarded in any way as in the category of addition and betterment?

A. No, unless there was some adjustment made where there might be something charged to the R. & E. account later on.

Q. But that would be an exceptional case?

A. That might be an exceptional case, yes, sir.

Q. And you also had a proportion of traffic expense?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that normally would not be allocatable in any way?

A. All in the same category with the other expenses. For instance, in that traffic expense you might have purchase of a lot of new furniture for some fine office that they have established down there, and that would be chargeable, in the first place, to operating expenses, and then later on found that should have been capitalized, and in that way you would get the R. & E. expenditure out of it.

Q. But those would be exceptional items, would they not? A. Yes.

Q. Exceptional in this group? A. Yes.

Q. You are dealing with a schedule here—

The Court: What do you mean by R. & E.?

The Witness: Road and equipment.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) And in dealing with these items that appear here on Schedule Exhibit 118, they would be exceptional cases at most? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Am I not correct in having it understood that in the table of family line bills of St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, contained in Exhibit 118, that are in the category of joint expenses, that the overwhelming bulk of them represent operating items?

A. The major part of it is operating expenses.

Q. Now, then, with respect to the category of fuel oil, that, I think, is quite—that is self-explanatory?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That clearly is an operating matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Per diem, reclaims and mileage, that would be a clearly operating item, wouldn't it?

A. Yes, sir, except insofar as work equipment used in connection with the building of new projects.

Q. Would that come under per diem, reclaims and mileage?

A. Yes. If you would make your adjustment there, Mr. counsel, you would find that a part of that would have to go to road and equipment expenditures.

Q. But that would also be an exceptional item?

A. That would also be an exceptional item, yes, sir.

Q. And equipment rents is clearly an operating item, isn't that so?

A. Not clearly. You might have equipment rents that would be charged to road and equipment, too.

Q. But that would also be an exceptional item here?

A. Yes, it would be exceptional.

Q. So that by and large anything in this entire schedule of this $10,211,337.00 of family line bills, that would not be chargeable to operating matter, to an operating account, would be exceptional, isn't that true?

A. It would be exceptional. I couldn't tell you how much it would be.

Mr. McConaughy: May I hear the last question, please?

The Court: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

A. I said, I think I said I couldn't develop the amount, if that is what you are getting at, so I can make the general statement that I would agree with you that it is exceptional.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) And what you have just testified to with respect to Exhibit 118, that is, as to St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, would apply similarly to Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I don't think the other items on this schedule require any particular questionirg.

A. I think the same answers would apply.

Q. And the Beaumont schedule is Exhibit 119?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: Will you excuse me just a second, your Honor?

Mr. Brandwen: I didn't hear that.

The Court: He asked to be excused for a second.

Mr. McConaughy: Oh, I thought you were finished. Excuse me.

Mr. Brandwen: No, no.

Q. Mr. Eckert, you testified in response to Mr. McConaughy's question that the amount of advances due from Missouri Pacific, N. O. T. M. to Missouri Pacific, was $10,565,000.00? A. $10,565,227.00, I said.

Q. Now, do you have any figures supporting that answer of yours? A. No, I haven't anything but the memorandum.

Q. The memorandum. May I see what memorandum you have, please?

A. I have a memorandum here that shows—

Q. May I see the memorandum, please?

A. I took this figure here and this figure—

Q. May I see that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that is, you refer to—you said you took what and what? A. I took these two figures.

Q. Show me which ones? A. Right here, $10,355,227.00, and added that to it.

Q. I see. Now, will you state to me, please, what there is in this memorandum to indicate that there were advances of $10,565,227.00 from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. McConaughy: What period are you talking about?

Mr. Brandwen: He just testified that the advances of the Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. M. were $10,565,227.

Mr. McConaughy: I beg your pardon, I asked him as of March 31, 1933.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) All right, as of March 31, 1933?

A. You want to know how that is made up by years?

Q. Yes. Do you have a schedule?

A. I don't have the schedule. I have got to prepare that for you if you want it.

Q. No, I am not asking you to prepare anything for me on that, I am just asking you, I would like to know the details of how you arrived at your answer to Mr. McConaughy's statement that as of—his question that as of March 31, 1933, Missouri Pacific had advanced to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico $10,565,227.00, if you do not have any information?

A. I don't have the full information here to give it to you, but I can get up a statement to show you how that was made up and what dates they were advanced, dates the amounts were advanced.

Q. You don't have with you any memorandum to enable you to state when advances were made, with you, when advances were made from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, do you?

A. No, I don't have a statement here that I could tell you exactly.

Q. You don't have any memorandum with you that would enable you to tell us in what form the advances were made? A. No, sir, I don't have that statement.

Q. You don't have any information with you to enable you to say what repayments were made by N. O. T. M., by Missouri Pacific? A. I don't have that, no, sir.

Q. You don't have any records?

A. That can be gotten up.

Q. With respect to dates.

A. I can get it up with respect to dates showing the complete and full information, but I don't have it here.

Q. You don't have any of that information? A. Not here.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, if your Honor please, I would like to examine Mr. Eckert with respect to the details of how he arrives at that statement, and inasmuch as he doesn't have his records and books here, with your Honor's permission I am willing to—

Mr. McConaughy: I think we can supply the omission, Mr. Brandwen. There is an exhibit in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: Do you want to give that to Mr. Eckert? I am asking for information.

Mr. McConaughy: Could you refresh your recollection from that, Mr. Eckert? Was that prepared from the books and records? That is an Exhibit, your Honor, filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and now in this case.

The Witness: Exhibit No. 226.

Mr. Brandwen: I object to that statement now in this case.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, I show you Comstock's Exhibit 1 for identification. Would you look at that carefully, please? That is the proof of claim which is the subject matter of this hearing. Will you look at that, please, and after you have done that, if you let me know I would like to question you about it.

Mr. Kitchel: May I object to the statement that this claim is the subject matter in this hearing, this statement. The subject matter of this hearing is the objection which counsel has filed with [rhe] report of the Commission insofar as it affects these advances. The hearing is not on this claim as filed with the Special Master.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: I also object to this last question, because he didn't let Mr. Eckert finish the first question, the previous question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: I thought the previous question was answered.

Mr. McConaughy: You asked him if he had anything to refresh his recollection as to the detail of that ten million dollar amount that we are talking about, of advances. Now, you didn't let him finish that question.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Finish that. Have you?

A. I have Exhibit 226, which is already in the proceedings.

Mr. Brandwen: I move to have that statement stricken out, if your Honor please.

The Court: Why?

Mr. Brandwen: Because I object to the fact that is in these proceedings.

Mr. Homire: Your Honor ruled on that yesterday and ruled that matters before the Commission were in the record.

Mr. Brandwen: I understand. I would like to have my exception on that, that is all.

The Court: Very well.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) You have just been handed by Mr. McConaughy a document which has been described as Exhibit 226 in the proceedings before the Commission?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that will refresh your recollection as to how the figure of $10,565,227.00 is arrived at? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Have you looked at Comstock's Exhibit 1 for identification?

A. You just passed it over to me. I looked at it, yes, sir.

Q. You looked at it. I wish to call your attention to this statement in the Comstock Exhibit 1, for identification, proof of claim, I will read verbatim. "Cash advances for operation, interest payment, and so forth, at various times, from March, 1929, to February, 1933, both inclusive, in the amount of $10,565,226.78." Now—

Mr. McConaughy: Let Mr. Eckert have that, will you?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, surely. Do you see what I am referring to Mr. Eckert, there? A. $10,355,000.00?

Q. No. May I show it to you? A. Sure.

Q. Right here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the first advance in March, 1929?

A. On this statement?

Q. No, I asked you what was the first advance from Missouri Pacific? A. The first advance for operation?

Q. From March, 1929, that is what the claim states?

A. Interest payment, et cetera, at various times from March, 1929, to February, 1933, both inclusive.

Q. Now, I ask you, Mr. Eckert, will you please tell me what was the date of the first advance from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in March, 1929?

A. The first advance in March, 1929, was five hundred thousand dollars.

Q. Five hundred thousand dollars? A. Yes.

Q. Now, then—

Mr. McConaughy: What are you going to do, go down the list?

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) I am going to ask you to give the list of all the advances from March, 1929, to March 31, 1933.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that, your Honor. Here is the list in evidence, already. There is no need of taking all of that time to ask the witness to [repeat] figures that are right on that exhibit.

Mr. Brandwen: I beg your pardon.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I join in the same objection made by counsel.

Mr. Brandwen: Would your Honor please look at this exhibit?

Mr. McConaughy: What he wants to do is to show that there is a slight error in the statement in Exhibit No. 1.

Mr. Brandwen: Oh, you say slight error? Here is the proof of claim.

Mr. McConaughy: The proof of claim is filed on promissory notes.

Mr. Brandwen: The proof of claim speaks for itself.

The Court: Read me the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) What is the total of the advances made beginning with March, 1929, to February 1, 1933, both dates inclusive?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that as immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Will your Honor note my objection as well? I feel there must be a total stated on the exhibit.

A. I can make a mathematical calculation.

Mr. McConaughy: Wait, Mr. Eckert, the Court hasn't ruled on my objection yet.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, do you know now whether all these items in the column "Advances made", represented cash advances made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. M.?

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, I object to the question, the exhibit speaks for itself.

The Court: He may answer.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Do you want to look at it?
A. Whether the cash was actually advanced?
Q. Yes. A. I think it was.
Q. You think it was? A. Yes, sir.
Q. May I ask you this: I call your attention to an item, October 31, 1932, of $1,261,010.00, and ask you whether there was any cash advance with respect to that item?
A. Yes, sir; I think the cash was advanced to the N. O. T. M. by the Missouri Pacific.
Q. You [thin] so. Do you have any books that would enable you to answer that question directly and fully?
A. I have a memorandum here, I think. If I may read this, I will read the memorandum.
Q. That memorandum is from where?
A. It was prepared on July 5, 1935.
Q. Prepared July 5th by you?
A. No, by the then chief accounting officer. If I may read it into the record I think it will clear this up.
Q. Don't you have any memorandum or journal entry that was entered at the time of this transaction?
A. I don't have the entry, no.
Q. There was a journal entry made as of that time, wasn't there?
A. As between the N. O. T. M and the I. G. N, I think there was one.
Q. Was there any journal entry made as of October 31, 1932, between Missouri Pacific and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, as of that time?
A. I couldn't answer that without looking in the record.

Q. If, as you say, an advance was made by Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. M. as of October 31, 1932, in the amount of $1,261,010.00, and if it were the subject matter of a journal entry, that would be the best evidence as to what actually took place at that time, isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, based on my question, and based on refreshing of your recollection, which may have been facilitated by my question or by any memorandum that you have, can't you now state that there was a journal entry involving the Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. M., dealing with $1,261,010.00?

A. There was a journal entry as between the Gulf Coast Lines and I. G. N., N. O. T. M. and I. G. N., but I think that the money was advanced to the N. O. T. M.

Q. You mean to say—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute. Please let him answer the question.

Mr. Brandwen: I thought you answered.

Q. Yes, go ahead. Have you finished?

A. No, I haven't finished. I could clear this up if I could be permitted to, if your Honor would permit me to read this memorandum.

The Court: Go ahead.

A. "Indebtedness of the various Gulf Coast Lines to the I. G. N., represented by bills, interest and unfunded debt and miscellaneous advances increased from time to time by reason of the inability of the Gulf Coast Lines to pay the amount in cash until in October, 1932, the amount involved was $1,261,009.84.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please—

The Witness: "At the same time International-Great Northern was indebted to the Missouri Pacific for advances made in an amount in excess of the indebtedness of the Gulf Coast Lines. It was impossible for the Gulf Coast Lines to pay the I. G. N. in cash, and in order to simplify the accounting and to satisfy the criticism of the Railroad Credit Corporation, arrangements were made for the Missouri Pacific to advance the N. O. T. M. an amount of $1,261,009.84, and to credit the I. G. N. with a like amount representing advances to that company. At the same time the Gulf Coast Lines made journal entries upon their books cancelling the debt of their various companies to the I. G. N. and taking up the additional advance for Missouri Pacific of a similar amount of money. While the I. G. N. adjusted its account between the Missouri Pacific and the several Gulf Coast Lines, which in reality transferred the debt of $1,261,009.84, being received from the Gulf Coast Lines to the I. G. N., from the latter company to the Missouri Pacific, this adjustment was made by journal entry, no cash changing hands." That, as I understand it, was the transaction between the Gulf Coast Lines and the I. G. N., but this indicates, I have no personal knowledge, because I wasn't here at that time, that this money was actually advanced to the N. O. T. M.

The Court: This is your own statement, prepared by you, is it?

The Witness: No, it was prepared by Mr. Johnson.

Q. Prepared by Mr. Johnson?
A. Yes, in explanation of the item.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Are you through? A. Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I move to have this answer stricken out entirely. I want to come back to the journal entry which was made at the time this transaction was dealt with.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, Mr. Eckert is Mr. Brandwen's witness.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, this is an attempt to get at what the facts are. I don't think that we ought to be bound by such doctrines, whether this is one man's witness or another man's witness.

The Court: Motion sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception—I am sorry; it was my motion; I beg your pardon. I didn't know whether there was a motion made.

The Court: It was your motion that was sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Thank you. I just want to take a second. I think I have got a copy of that journal entry. It may take me a minute to find that.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, I show you a document and ask you whether you have seen this or a copy thereof anywhere in the Missouri Pacific Railroad books of account?

Mr. McConaughy: Is that an exhibit?

Mr. Brandwen: That is not an exhibit. I would rather have the books here, but since the books aren't here, and in the interest of saving time—

The Witness: This indicates this was a transfer, or, rather, charged as an advance to the N. O. T. M.

Mr. McConaughy: Before you testify, may I look at that paper? Do you object, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: No, no. I just asked him whether that refreshed his recollection.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you want to hear the question again, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: Yes.

(Question read.)

A. No, I haven't seen this entry.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) You have never seen this entry?

A. No. I wasn't here in 1932.

Q. You haven't seen it since this entry was made?

A. No, I didn't see it then because I wasn't connected with the Missouri Pacific at that time.

Q. I understand. But you didn't or you hadn't seen this before you testified with respect to the amount of advances? A. I had not.

Q. From Missouri Pacific? A. I had not, sir.

Q. To N. O. T. M. as of March 31, 1933? A. No.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to have meeting of the Board of directors of the Missouri Pacific as of October 11, 1932, if we have that here. Would your Honor excuse us just a minute.

Mr. McConaughy: Now, where are we going to get with that? Mr. Eckert says that he wasn't here. Mr. Johnson supervised that. What will that do?

Mr. Brandwen: I want to show what the Board did with respect to it.

Mr. McConaughy: Isn't that in evidence already?

Mr. Brandwen: No, that is not in evidence as yet. If the Board did something with respect to this item, I think it is very material with respect to what its effects may be. I should like to offer this journal entry No. 33 from the Missouri Pacific books, detailing, according to the Missouri Pacific book, material connected with this Item of $1,261,009.84. I cannot say at the moment whether everything that is in these three pages is on the actual journal entry or whether the journal entry is contained in here and refers to the other things that are contained on the journal entry, and I show this to you and ask you whether these three pages, whether they refresh your recollection in any way?

Mr. McConaughy: Before you answer, Mr. Eckert, I would like to see that. Go ahead and look at it.

The Court: Don't answer until you show it to counsel.

(Witness hands same to Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. McConaughy: That may be put in evidence subject to check. We have no objection.

(Said Comstock's Exhibits 134-A, 134-B and 134-C, was thereupon marked by the reporter, and received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 221-225.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Does this Exhibit 134 refresh your recollection in any way?

A. It does not, because I hadn't seen it before.

Q. You had never seen it before? A. No, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I have a written copy of this that might facilitate matters.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, I call your attention to a statement appearing in the Exhibit No. 134.

Mr. McConaughy: Let him see it.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Q. Which has a memorandum from Mr. Wyer to Mr. Baldwin, as part of this exhibit, and among the things that it states, and I can point that out at the beginning of the second paragraph of Mr. Wyer's memorandum, Mr. Eckert, may I help you with it, Mr. Wyer states to Mr. Baldwin—may I just [pause] there? I think that I can make this question a little clearer if I read the preceding paragraph, it isn't long at all, and it will throw, I think, considerable light. May I do that, please? This is addressed by Mr. Wyer to Mr. Baldwin: "The Missouri Pacific has, as you know, advanced to the I. G. N. various amounts on which the latter company is currently paying interest at the rate of six per cent per annum. On the other hand, the I. G. N. has also advanced substantial amounts to the N. O. T. M. and subsidiaries on which the latter companies are not paying interest." Let me pause there for a moment. I want to ask you now, whether from an examination of that journal entry you can state what, if anything, was advanced by the I. G. N. to N. O. T. M. itself?

A. I couldn't make any statement on that, counsel, until I looked at the entry itself. As I said a while ago, I haven't seen any of these entries at all, this is all news to me, I would have to look at it more closely before I could answer that question.

Q. I see. You couldn't from an examination of that answer that? A. I couldn't tell, no, sir.

Q. You couldn't tell from that?

A. No, sir, I couldn't answer it. I wasn't here at that time. You are asking me questions about 1932 when I was in Houston; I wasn't here.

Q. But you were with New Orleans, Texas & Mexico at that time?

A. Yes. These are Missouri Pacific entries. This is a Missouri Pacific Railroad entry.

Q. But this memorandum of Mr. Wyers purports to deal with dealings between New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and I. G. N.

A. Then I would have to look at their entries before I could tell you what transpired down there. I couldn't make any statement from that entry here.

Q. You couldn't? A. No.

Q. Even accepting this entry as it outlines the amount, you couldn't answer that?

A. I wouldn't want to do it without looking at the books themselves.

Q. You wouldn't want to do that without checking it?

A. No.

Q. Then we will pause with respect to that for a moment. Mr. Wyer continues: "The Chairman—" this is written on Missouri Pacific [stationary] or a Missouri Pacific entry, written October 31, 1932. "The Chairman has requested me to arrange this matter and in this connection has suggested that the policy of a subsidiary loaning to its parent company be discontinued," and then he proceeds with this statement, then Mr. Wyer proceeds with this statement concerning which I should like to ask you. "This could be done if Mo. P. will advance amount required, $1,400,000.00 to the N. O. T. M., which will then pay its bills to the I. G. N. and the I. G. N. will use the money to reduce its advance from Mo. P." I now, ask you, Mr. Eckert, to look at this statement, which is Exhibit 226, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and see whether you find any time from October on an advance from Missouri Pacific to N. O. T. M. of $1,400,000.00?

A. There is one here in 1932, $1,261,010.00.

Q. That is the item, the specific amount contained in this journal entry, isn't that, which is Exhibit 134, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, this $1,261,009.84, debits the N. O. T. M. and credits the I. G. N.

Q. Now, I renew my question to you, whether you find any item or any record on that Exhibit 226 before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which shows any advance, as Mr. Wyer stated, of the amount required, $1,400,000.00, by Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. M.?

A. No item of $1,400,000.00 on this statement here.

Q. Or outside of this $1,261,009.84, or as stated there,

$1,261,010.00, the cents being omitted, is there any other group of items that amount to $1,400,000.00 after that?

A. No. In December—rather, November 28th, 1932, there was $35,000.00 advanced, and December 30th, 1932, $79,000.00.

Q. But you don't find anything there at or about that time or any time after or at about the time of the execution of this journal entry of $1,400,000.00?

A. No item of $1,400,000.00.

Q. Do you agree with this, Mr. Eckert, as Mr. Wyer stated, in this memorandum to Mr. Baldwin, contained in this journal entry, namely, that is Missouri Pacific advances to N. O. T. M., $1,400,000.00, as Mr. Wyer stated, and then N. O. T. M. paid bills to the I. G. N. and I. G. N. would use that money to reduce the advances from Missouri Pacific or to I. G. N., if those steps were done that Mr. Wyer outlined, would you agree with Mr. Wyer's statement which follows as the last sentence in that paragraph, I. G. N. will be left owing the same net amount as before, but all to Mo. P. instead of having this loan to Mo. P. offset probably by its loans to the Gulf Coast Lines?

Mr. Kirschbaum: If your Honor please, I object to the question, it is a suppositious question not based on facts, calls for the witness' opinion and conclusion.

Mr. Brandwen: It is an accounting matter.

Mr. Kirschbaum: He asked him what he would do if such and such were the case.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Except.

A. The money could be advanced to the N. O. T. M.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) What is that?

A. The money could have been advanced to the N. O. T. M.

Q. It could have been? A. Yes.

Q. But you looked for it and didn't find it on this Schedule 226, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, I didn't find it on there.

Q. You didn't find it on there?

A. I didn't find the amount of $1,400,000.00, but there was $1,261,000.00.

Q. You found $1,261,010.00, which is the precise amount except for the cents contained in this journal entry?

A. Yes. I was under the impression, counsel, that that money was actually advanced to the N. O. T. M. when I testified a while ago, but I wasn't here, and I don't know much about it. There are other people here that know more about it than I do.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I appreciate all that, but I want to make it perfectly clear all I was trying to do was to get information with respect to it, but you can very well understand that since you testified with respect to the advances, I had no alternative other than to ask you about them. I want to make it clear that's the only purpose of my asking you.

A. I read a letter from my predecessor in which he indicated, and that is all I knew about it, that the advances had been made by the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. M.

Q. But based on all this, you have a question about that at the present time? A. Some question about it.

Q. Had you examined—I assume, then, that you had not examined into the details that preceded this statement of your predecessor before coming here?

A. I did not, no, sir.

The Court: How much longer are you going to be with this witness?

Mr. Brandwen: I think I will be through with him in probably a few minutes. I would like to offer in evidence a resolution of the Board of Directors of Missouri Pacific of October 11, 1932, that has some relationship to this subject.

Mr. McConaughy: We won't object to it if you will read from this down to there (indicating).

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Griffin would like to see it. (Hands same to Mr. Griffin.)

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, Mr. McConaughy has asked me whether I wouldn't consent to the offer by him of other portions.

Mr. McConaughy: To include them in the minutes you offer.

Mr. Brandwen: I haven't any objection if Mr. McConaughy will treat that as his offer, I will have no objection.

Mr. McConaughy: We tried that yesterday and it didn't work.

Mr. Brandwen: But I have no objection.

Mr. McConaughy: This is your case and you can either put in all the minutes or not, or I will consent to you eliminating the parts I have indicated, just to save time.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I would like to study the other more. I don't want to take the time of the Court to do that.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, he certainly must know what is in the minutes that he is offering here.

Mr. Brandwen: But I haven't studied these. There were things here that I wasn't interested in. (After reading same.) I will be agreeable to that.

(Said paper was marked by the reporter as Comstock's Exhibit 135, and was received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 226.]

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Mr. Eckert, I ask you to look again at Exhibit 226 that Mr. McConaughy produced earlier this afternoon and ask you to look particularly at an item which is designated in this exhibit "plus special advance for miscellaneous physical property." Will you look at that? I want to inquire about that.

A. Yes, sir, that is an item for $109,179.00 advance in March, 1929, of which there was repayment on March, 1931, of [$8800,00.00], bringing the net down to $100,379.00. That money was advanced. That is your question?

Q. Yes.

A. For the purpose of acquiring some property at Corpus Christi, Texas.

Q. Acquired by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Acquired by, as I recall it now—the money was advanced to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, but I believe the property was purchased in the name of the Missouri Improvement Company.

Q. Would you undertake to produce as soon as you can any entry, record or check which would show that New Orleans, Texas & Mexico ever received a dollar in connection with this property by way of advance from Missouri Pacific?

A. I would have to look at the records on that.

Q. Yes, look at the records. A. Sure.

Q. And I would like, also, if you please, to see whether you can get a copy, if you can't get the original of a deed to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, of this property, if there is any such deed in existence?

Mr. McConaughy: Well, I think this is a fine time to be asking for that sort of material. That has been in the [recore] right straight along.

The Court: The Court suggested yesterday it might entertain a motion not to permit anything else to be called for that hadn't been called for up to that time.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor, please, this is an exhibit that has been put in here, that we have never put in. There may be other exhibits that may be put in that it may be important to question on. We have never in our material ever assumed that there was any advance for the acquisition of any property in Corpus Christi, and the witness himself says that the title to that property never went to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Am I correct there?

The Witness: I said that is what I thought.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, in the circumstances, if your Honor please, that if, for example, someone else got the property, I think it is important to know.

Mr. McConaughy: Why don't you ask him who got the property?

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Do you know who was the—to whom the property was conveyed?

A. I don't know who the property was conveyed to, but I know the railroad is using it.

Q. But you don't know who owns it legally?

A. I couldn't tell until I develop that.

Q. I see. Do you know whether any part of this property was sold? A. Yes.

Q. And by whom was it sold, do you know?

A. Sold by one of the companies down there.

Q. Sold by one of the companies?

A. Perhaps by Missouri Improvement Company.

Q. The Missouri Improvement Company is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Brandwen: I think, if your Honor please, it is very important whether this is advanced by Missouri Pacific Railroad to Missouri Improvement Company for the purpose of buying some property, and I don't see how there can be a determination of this matter unless we get more information about it.

Mr. Kirschbaum: If the Court please, if counsel is to be permitted to go into this entire schedule, Exhibit 226, and examine in particularly with respect to each one of these items, we won't get finished here until next Christmas, and I doubt whether we will get done then. Here we are for the first time getting into something that seems pertient or relevant, as I see it, your Honor, and counsel has now picked certain items and is asking this witness to produce a deed to property on a transaction that happened twenty or twenty-five years ago, twenty-eight years ago, and to tell of his own knowledge whether he remembers specifically of a particular item, a particular transaction that occurred, when it is all down here, from a company, an official company business and records.

Mr. McConaughy: May I say a word, your Honor? That document about which Mr. Brandwen is inquiring is Exhibit 226, which has been in the record in these proceedings since 1935 or 1936.

The Court: What is before the Court?

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Brandwen is asking the witness now at this late moment to get a deed.

The Court: That has all been before the Court.

Mr. McConaughy: And I object.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. (By Mr. Brandwen) Have you yourself made a computation of the interest that has been charged on this Exhibit 226? A. I did not, sir.

Q. And you don't know, therefore, whether—you don't know, therefore, at what rates [interst] has been charged at various times? A. I do not.

Q. I call your attention to this item, Mr. Eckert, in the [schecule] 226; under the column "Interest paid" there appears, April 30, 1931, payment by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico of $249,917.00. I will show it to you, under interest paid. A. Yes.

Q. I now want to ask you a question with respect to that. Do you know under whose authority or by what authority that was credited to Interest Paid?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. And I want to call your attention, Mr. Eckert, to two items, one in Advances Repaid and one in Interest Repaid, on the same date. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. And on August 27, 1931, this Exhibit 226 indicates that $200,000.00 was repaid, of which $7,612.00 was applied on account of advances principal, and $192,388.00 on account of interest?

A. Counsel, I don't have that detail here, I couldn't tell you offhand what happened back there that long ago.

Q. I see. And you don't have, therefore, any information with respect to any of these other items dealing with repayment of principal and interest and the application of one amount to principal and another amount to interest or an amount only to interest, or by whose authority and under whose directions those allocations were made?

A. No, sir.

Q. You don't have any such information at all?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, then, I will not ask you any more about this Exhibit 226.

Mr. Brandwen: And I am through with the witness.

Re-cross Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Eckert, will you look at 118 and 119 again, exhibits? I will just show it to you. What I want to ask you is, there are some items in there which go in originally as additions and betterments, isn't that right, not included originally as maintenance, but they represent originally A's and B's, isn't that right, in both of those exhibits? A. They are equipment trusts, yes.

Q. That would be? A. Yes.

Q. Any other items, any other types of items?

A. Materials and supplies might go into additions and betterments, and as I stated a while ago, there might be equipment rents allocated to R. & E.

Q. I am not speaking about that kind of an item.

A. You mean in the joint expenses?

Q. Yes, original A's and B's.

A. I don't think you would find any very material A and B charges in your joint expenses, most of it would be your regular operating cost.

Q. But there might be more under Material and Supplies?

A. And Material and Supplies and that equipment, yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I have no further cross examination.

Mr. Brandwen: That is all.

Mr. Kitchel: Does that close your case?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, that closes the case. May I just ask one question of Mr. Kitchel, please?

The Court: One, yes.

Mr. Brandwen: I understand Mr. Stedman is in the courtroom. Does he plan to be here during the rest of the week, do you know, because there may be some question I would like to put to him?

Mr. Kitchel: I thought you closed your case.

[Mrl] Brandwen: I mean in connection with the Plan of Reorganization and the other objections.

Mr. [Mitchel]: I doubt that he will be here all week.

Mr. Brandwen: Not in connection with this inter-[complany] claim; on the plan. I just wanted to know if he is going to be here, that is all.

Mr. Kitchel: Well, I don't know.

The Court: Announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(At this point the Court announced an adjournment until tomorrow, Wednesday, January 17th, 1945, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., at which time the following proceedings were had, to-wit:)

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 17, 1945, whereupon the following proceedings were had:

The Court: You may proceed with the Missouri Pacific matter.

Mr. Kitchel: May it please the Court, yesterday afternoon Mr. Brandwen advised me that he would like to examine Mr. Stedman, Chairman of the Institutional Group, in connection with one of his objections other than Objection 19 which has been heard before Your Honor.

Mr. Stedman has been here for eight or nine days and is very anxious to get back on the job. With considerable difficulty, he has obtained a reservation on the twelve o'clock train today. I would suggest that Mr. Stedman be examined now on this other objection, or objections, that Mr. Brandwen had in mind, and then let him go, because, otherwise, I don't know when he will be able to get back.

The Court: Counsel are agreeable to that?

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, I have a serious objection to having any interruption of the proceedings with respect to the hearing on the claim. I think it is very important that that be kept intact. Furthermore, the testimony that I expect to elicit from Mr. Stedman will not be concluded by the time he leaves for the train. I have a number of questions in connection with the Plan that I would like to inquire about, and I am quite sure that he would not be able to conclude that in time to make the train.

In view of the fact that Mr. Stedman is the Chairman of the principal proponent of the Plan, and in view of the fact that there are many questions in connection with the fairness and equity of the Plan, and in view of the fact that Mr. Stedman's ideas and information with respect to a number of aspects of the Plan will be very important on the question of fairness and equity, it would seem to me that he ought to be available for such reasonable time as may be necessary.

I am not able, I regret exceedingly, to acquiesce in Mr. Kitchel's suggestion.

Mr. Homire: As to this proceeding being a proceeding on the claim, the Court has ruled on that over and over again, and Mr. Brandwen keeps on insisting this is a hearing on the claim.

This is a hearing on objections to the Plan of Reorganization and a hearing on claims for equitable treatment. There was never any hearing noticed about the claim; there was never any order of this Court directing that such hearing be set down. It seems that counsel should be admonished to stop repeating that assertion, that this is a hearing on the claim, when everybody knows it is not.

Mr. Kitchel: In regard to Mr. Stedman, Mr. Brandwen says he wants to get Mr. Stedman's ideas. His ideas on the Plan are not relevant, so far as facts are concerned, and the mere fact that it would interrupt the hearing on Objection 19 for a little while is not going to hurt anybody. We can take that up immediately after that. I ask that Mr. Stedman be put on the stand now.

Mr. Kirshbaum: Mr. Brandwen made some remarks and it seems to me that he parenthetically injected the thought that he was not quite through. I understood he was to ask only one question, last Friday. He is still asking that one question.

I was hoping that this morning Your Honor was going to be prepared to listen to motions on the objections and that we could then go forward with whatever business Your Honor had in mind, but I think it is out of order for counsel to infer that he is going to go ahead, or attempt to produce additional proof to support that same objection. Your Honor sat last night and held court until past five o'clock, to give counsel an opportunity to finish up. Now we hear that he has something else.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, if the English language is not understood by counsel who just spoke, I am sorry.

Mr. Kirshbaum: I object to counsel's remarks as to what I understand about the English language. I will match my understanding of the English language with learned counsel. And I further object and except to counsel's long and protracted manner of the presentation of his claim.

I think he has imposed on Your Honor's grace. I think he has imposed on counsel who are here; I think he has imposed on the time of the Court, and on the estate, on the Trustee, on the President of this company, and on the Court.

Mr. Brandwen: I think, if Your Honor please, the record will speak for itself on each one of those points.

The Court: I think, Mr. Brandwen, that you should hear Mr. Stedman's statements and give him an opportunity. He has been here for some time, and I think we will meet the suggestion of counsel by putting him on at this time.

Mr. Brandwen: All I can say on that is that, if Mr. Stedman can not be here after twelve o'clock, I will forego the examination of Mr. Stedman at present. If he is back, I will take it up at that time. If he is not back, I will do the best I can in his absence. I want to make it perfectly clear that the material I want to ask Mr. Stedman about had nothing at all to with this inter-company claim. I thought I made that perfectly clear.

Mr. McConaughy, You are all through, Mr. Brandwen, are you?

Mr. Brandwen: Mr. Eckert was going to make up, at the request of counsel yesterday afternoon, some documents. He has brought one document in and I think the other has not been finished.

Mr. Homire: May I be heard at this time upon some suggestions that I think will be helpful to the procedure here?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Homire: May it please the Court, in view of the manner in which this hearing has so far progressed, I have been giving some consideration to the question whether there is any method of procedure which would avoid delay in the consummation of this reorganization and allow it to progress while at the same time Comstock's contentions can be threshed out.

In view of the fact that the hearing on Comstock's Objection 19 (which objection is similar in all respects to the objections that are sought to be raised to the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company claim on promissory notes made by N. O. T. & M.) has now taken up more than a week of the Court's time and has resulted in frequent adjournments to enable Comstock's counsel to prepare his attempted proof, and has avoided utilization of the full time which the Court would normally sit each day, and in view of the fact that the methods of Comstock's counsel, if persisted in, whether or not calculated to block the reorganization, will nevertheless unnecessarily delay the reorganization, and in view of the further fact that Comstock's counsel has asked for a separate hearing on certain aspects of these matters, counsel for Reconstruction Finance Corporation now desires to move for the adoption of procedure to enable the Court to approve the Plan in all other respects (if it be so disposed) and allow certain of Comstock's objections to be considered separately.

It is apparent that there are several courses of action open to this Court, dependent upon the Court's view of various aspects of the case. These are as follows:

(1) The Court can overrule all objections to the Plan and approve it. This would involve a determination that Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections had failed for lack of proof or because barred by laches on his own showing or possibly on some other [graounds]. But it might be appealable, in that case, only on an appeal from an order approving the entire Plan itself, which would delay the whole Plan unnecessarily. (2) The second course of action that seems to be open would be for the Court to overrule all objections (if it be so advised) except Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections, and hold the Plan under advisement with an interlocutory opinion requesting the Interstate Commerce Commission to make and file a further supplemental report determining allocations in the alternative, dependent on whether this Court shall sustain or overrule Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections. (3) The third course which seems to be open would be for the Court to sustain any objection to the Plan including Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections (if the Court be so advised) and return the Plan generally to the Interstate Commerce Commission for further proceedings. In this event also the Court might well suggest to the Interstate Commerce Commission that in any supplemental report it include alternative allocations as described above.

In determining which of these alternatives is to be followed, we feel that the controlling consideration should be the expedition of the reorganization, consistent with the due protection and preservation of the rights of all parties in interest. From that standpoint our position is that either the second or the third of the foregoing alternatives should be adopted, and in the argument on the objections to the Plan other than Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections, we hope to convince the Court that the second alternative is the one which should be actually adopted.

In the first place, this procedure would be but an enlargement in the application of a principle which the Interstate Commerce Commission has already applied in part in its Third Supplemental Report.

In this connection, attention is called to the provision of the Commission's Third Supplemental Report, page 20843 of the printed record.

Our suggestion is that on the Court's request the Commission, by a further supplemental report, shall make in the same manner further alternative allocations to meet the requirements of any ruling which this Court, or any appellate court, might hereafter make in the controversy which Comstock has raised in his objections on behalf of the Secured Serial 5¼% bonds.

This procedure, that is to say, the request for a further supplemental report by the Commission, has been approved in the case of the New Haven reorganization in the District Court for the District of Connecticut—(In re New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, Debtor, 54 F. Supp. 595, decided December 21, 1943). In the course of his opinion there Judge Hincks, District Judge, said on page 630:

> "* * * After studious review of the entire subject-matter, I can at least say that I am satisfied that the Plan in its entirety—with the corrections which are indicated in this opinion—should be approved.
> "The corrections, which I have indicated to eliminate what I conceived to be the unobserved impact of illegal standards and to reflect material changes occurring since the Plan came forward, since all based upon findings of the Commission and consistent with its limitations, are all, I believe, within the power of the judge to make. Likewise, as to the constructions which I have put upon the Plan."
> "But having in mind the thought that the task of the court is brigaded with that of the Commission, let me express the hope that our combined efforts may not suffer from the lack of suitable liaison at this critical stage in the proceedings. And to provide appropriate opportunity for such liaison I will say that if the Commission after reading my opinion shall wish, of its own motion, to file any supplemental report or order, whether adapted to confirm my proposed action or to require action in another direction, I shall be glad to shape my decree accordingly. The procedure which I have suggested looking toward a possible disposition of the Bank claims I view as well adapted to facilitate and expedite the reorganization. But if the Commission shall have contrary views, I should welcome their counsel at the hearing which I expect will be held to consider any application by the trustees for authority to pay these claims in cash."

That case came before the Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Second Circuit ruled, under date of January 2, 1945, that Judge Hincks was entirely correct in his ruling on that question.

The Circuit bench, in this matter, was composed of Judge Swan, Judge Augustus N. Hand and Judge Jerome N. Frank, who at one time was very active in connection as Special Counsel for the Trustee in certain matters in connection with the Missouri Pacific.

Judge Swan in his opinion in the Circuit Court of Appeals, heartily endorsed the procedure which Judge Hincks had adopted. Judge Swan said this, in regard to the procedure which was adopted:

"Numerous appellants complain of the procedure adopted by the district court and the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to the fourth and fifth supplemental reports of the Commission. Its fourth supplemental report was filed with the court on July 13, 1943. After hearings upon objections to the plan approved by the Commission in its fourth supplemental report the district judge filed an opinion, 54 F. Supp. 595, expressing his approval of it in general but stating that in a few particulars the plan did not comply with legal standards, and indicating certain corrections that should be made. The opinion also invited the Commission, if it saw fit, to file a further supplemental report while the judge was holding the matter under advisement. Acting upon this suggestion the Commission, without further public hearings, filed its fifth supplemental report on February 8, 1944. The court ordered that all objections to the fourth supplemental report should be treated as objections to the fifth, permitted the filing of additional objections and, after hearing all objectors, rendered an opinion approving the plan, 54 F. Supp. 631, and made a formal order of approval.

"Appellants urge that upon the certification of a plan by the Commission to the court, section 77 (e), 11 USCA Section 205 (e), requires the judge either to approve it or to dismiss the proceedings or to refer them back to the Commission for further action. We do not think that the statute compels a procedure so inelastic. Subdivision (d) of the section provides that after public hearings the Commission may either approve or refuse to approve any plan, and 'may thereafter, upon petition for good cause shown filed within sixty days of the date of its order, and upon further hearings if the Commission shall deem necessary, in a supplemental report and order modify any plan which it has approved, stating the reasons for such modification'. Under this provision we can not doubt that until the court has acted upon the plan certified to it, the Commission has power, upon the timely petition of a party in interest or upon its own motion, to clarify, perfect or modify the plan on the basis of evidence already before it and without further hearings, if it deems such hearings unnecessary. Nor has the Commission doubted its power to render on its own motion a supplemental report modifying a plan previously certified to the court.

"In the case at bar the court took under advisement the plan of the Commission's fourth supplemental report; it had entered no order of approval or disapproval before the fifth supplemental report was received. The fact that the court wrote an opinion inviting the filing of a fifth supplemental report and suggesting certain corrections in the plan of the fourth report certainly did not deprive the Commission of its statutory power under subdivision (d) to improve the plan by a supplementary report. We regard it as a commendable instance of 'properly coordinated action' between the court and the Commission, the importance of which was noted in Ecker v. Western Pacific R. Corporation, 318 U. S. 448, 475."

In the second place, it is our position that the procedure suggested in the second of the foregoing alternative procedural proposals is entirely consistent with the due protection and preservation of the rights of all parties in interest who are affected by the controversy which we have referred to. It is quite apparent that the Secured Serial 5¼% claim for equitable treatment, if ultimately held to be sound, can be met by placing in escrow an amount of the securities allocable to the various junior creditors affected by the controversy sufficient to satisfy their claims as ultimately determined. The securities so placed in escrow would later be disposed of by order of the Court, after the controversy has been litigated and determined. Meanwhile, the plan of reorganization—in so far as it affects the other security holders, who, after all, are entitled to the great mass of the new securities and who have waited so many years for the settlement of their claims—can go forward. Thus the public interest, which demands—as the Supreme Court has stated more than once—a prompt reorganization of these great railroad properties, can be preserved, or at worst not be subjected to further injury by delay. We submit that if, as we contend, this controversy among the junior creditors can be severed from the rest of the reorganization, a great public interest will be served and a great step forward will be made in disposing of this prolonged and expensive reorganization litigation."

The procedure that we have suggested is consistent with a type of procedure which counsel for Comstock advocated.

It seems to me that Mr. Brandwen has continuously confused the question of separate trial at this time of the claim of the Missouri Pacific vs. the N. O. T. & M., as a separate matter, as a claim in bankruptcy. He has confused that with a claim for equitable treatment under the Plan of Reorganization based upon his Objection 19 and related objections. To a certain extent, the issues overlap—I think they overlap almost entirely, but Mr. Brandwen's continuous mistake has been in attempting to distort this proceeding into a proceeding on the claim, which, of course, it is not.

But I think much of what he desires to accomplish would be accomplished by separating this controversy from the rest of the Plan, or the comments and objections—

The Court: Does that contemplate any change in the method of hearing the case?

Mr. Homire: I have one or two more words of explanation, and then I have written out a form that I will hand Your Honor, so you can follow it precisely, exactly what I suggest.

The procedure I suggest would permit of separate findings of fact and conclusions of law and a separate order disposing of the controversy raised by Comstock's Objection 19 and his related objections.

If this procedure meets with the approval of the Court, it will now be in order to proceed with the hearing of objections to the Plan (other than Objection 19 and related objections raised by Comstock), which would be dealt with as we have suggested in the foregoing.

Following the conclusion of those matters, the separate hearing on Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections would be resumed, so that no delay would be involved.

Upon the conclusion of the hearing of all objections of the parties the question of approval of the Plan would be taken under advisement by this Court and an interim or interlocutory opinion could be written, inviting Interstate Commerce Commission to make a supplemental report of the character previously described. In the meantime, the hearing on the Plan generally would be adjourned at the conclusion of arguments here at this time, to a later date, pending receipt of the Commission's further supplemental report.

With those words of explanation, which I hope have not been unduly extended, and with one further reference that Rule 42 (b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure is the basis upon which my motion is made—all Rules of Civil Procedure are made applicable to bankruptcy proceedings, by General Order 37, so far as they are consistent with the proceedings otherwise described by the Act.

My motion, which I have here written out—and I would like to present a copy of it to Your Honor—is as follows:

"Accordingly, on the entire record and proceedings heretofore had in this Court and in the Interstate Commerce Commission in these proceedings, I now move, on behalf of Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as follows:

(1) That hearing on Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent on Objection 19, and his claim for equitable treatment based thereon (said related objections being numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13, and 26) be separated from hearings on all other objections and claims for equitable treatment, and that they be heard separately from other objections filed by Comstock and separately from objections filed by other parties, all pursuant to Rule 42 (b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure, which Rules are made applicable to proceedings in bankruptcy by General Order #37;

(2) That this Court proceed to hear all objections to the Plan which are not included in Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are not dependent on Objection 19.

(3) That this Court defer further hearings of any evidence on Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections, as above defined in Subdivision (1) of this motion, until after hearing on objections not included in Comstock's Objection 19 and related objections as defined as aforesaid; and

(4) That this Court, at an appropriate time, if it be so disposed, and in order to co-ordinate its function with that of the Interstate Commerce Commission at this critical stage of these proceedings, invite the said Commission to issue such further supplemental report as this Court and the Commission may deem appropriate or necessary to provide for such alternative allocations of securities as may be required to meet the necessities of any ruling which this Court or any appellate court vested with power to review these proceedings may hereafter make in respect of the controversy raised by Comstock's claim for equitable treatment of the Missouri Pacific Secured Serial 5¼% Bonds, based on his Objection 19 and related objections, as defined as aforesaid."

The Court: The first paragraph of your motion is pretty much along the line of Mr. Brandwen's own request.

Mr. Homire: I think it does accomplish what he apparently wants to accomplish. In view of the manner in which the case is proceeding, it seems to me that to a degree that ought to be done, but where I differ from Mr. Comstock is in this respect: I maintain that this proceeding that we have been concerned with since January 8th is a hearing on objections to a plan. It is not a hearing on a claim in bankruptcy. Now, that claim in bankruptcy may have a bearing on the Secured Serial 5¼% claim for equitable treatment, but the notice is perfectly plain. This hearing is held pursuant to notice and order of court. It is a hearing on the Plan. There has never been any notice on this matter.

Mr. Kitchel: At the opening of the proceeding Mr. Brandwen moved that the hearing on the claim filed with the Special Master be heard as a separate proceeding. I objected to that and called the Court's attention to the fact that this was an objection to the Plan, and insisted that it should be heard as such. As to Mr. Homire's motion, if his motion is granted, it still would be a hearing on objections to the Plan. One of those objections would be in a little subdivision, in a separate hearing, but that would still be an objection to the Plan, and my position is not inconsistent with the position I first took. I join in the motion Mr. Homire has made in behalf of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Court: Mr. Kitchel, have you any recommendation as to which of these alternatives should be followed?

Mr. Kitchel: It shapes itself in my mind in this fashion: If Your Honor, after hearing all the objections, except Objection 19, should come to the conclusion that you should overrule all those objections, the theory of Mr. Homire is that then you could write a little opinion stating that you approved the Plan in general, and inviting the Commission to make its alternative allocations of securities. On the other hand, if Your Honor determines that the objections are valid objections then, of course, Your Honor would write an opinion stating the Plan was objectionable and would have to be sent back, but at the same time you can make an invitation for the same alternative allocations to be put in the next report.

Of course, our preference would be that you should find the Plan generally approved, with the exception of this thing, and then invite the Commission accordingly. But I don't wish to foreclose Your Honor from finding that some of these objections are sound, if they should be so.

Mr. Kirshbaum: May I say to the Court that I most respectfully except and object and oppose the motion made here this morning by Mr. Homire. I have no copy of the motion papers, so I haven't had any time to examine or consider the motion, but from the reading of it, as given to Your Honor this morning—

The Court: If you want to read it first, I have another matter to take up and I will give you an opportunity to read it.

We will take a recess.

(After the recess the hearing was resumed as follows:)

Mr. Kirschbaum: Your Honor, I have read this motion which Mr. Homire has handed me, and I must respectfully state to the court that I object to the motion as presented for the following reasons:

In the first place, your Honor, the granting of this motion at this late date would not simplify the hearings, but would only confuse them. The Circuit Court of Appeals of this District, as I understand it, has ruled that Comstock is not entitled to any separate hearing, nor to any stay of these particular hearings on objections to the plan, in order to have his claims heard, and I therefore feel that this court is, to that extent, bound not to further postpone the hearing, or to—

The Court: How is the Court of Appeals to decide that?

Mr. Kirschbaum: I understand, your Honor, they ask for a stay of these hearings on objections to the plan in order that they may have a separate hearing on their claim, and to that extent I understand that the Circuit Court of Appeals denied the motion. Now, if it please the court, your Honor very patiently sat through for eight days listning to Mr. Comstock's claim, and yesterday your Honor will recall that they rested, they are finished so far as that claim is concerned, and it is now proposed, if it please the Court, to sever this hearing to the extent that Mr. Comstock's claim may be heard in futuro, at some later date. Now, I have no objection, and it is perfectly true, and it is the law so far as I understand it, as announced here by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the New York, New Haven & Hartford case, which I told your Honor about in the early stage of this hearing, that your Honor is quite within his province in calling upon the Interstate Commerce Commission for advisory opinions at any time, or supplemental opinions. It is quite true, as Mr. Homire told your Honor, that the courts consider that that is the finest kind of cooperation between the Interstate Commerce Commission and this court; and it is quite true that your Honor may at any stage, as to any manner, ask for such opinions. But I respectfully submit to your Honor that it is not proper to, by this form of order, put, so to speak, words into the mouth of the court that an alternative allocation of securities may be desirable. I think it is, in a manner of speaking, to prejudge this case and claim. I think the evidence, so far as adduced here, shows that the Comstock claim is antiquated, has no possible legal significance, and should be thrown out. I feel that the court will throw it out. I feel that the claimants here have failed to make out any valid objections to that extent. I feel that after the evidence that your Honor has listened to, the evidence adduced here by Mr. Baldwin and particularly by Mr. Thompson, the Trustee, which so clearly shows how carefully the alleged claim of the N. O. T. & M., was examined, how carefully and studiously it was followed and pursued, I feel as one of those who participated in this hearing, and I know I speak for several others, that that entire matter at that point, upon the completion of Mr. Thompson's testimony, satisfies us that there was no legal basis at all for the assertion of any such claim.

I say further to the court that it was the province of Mr. Comstock to come forward here and prove a claim, instead of going, as I told your Honor he would go, on a fishing excursion and a fishing expedition to search out facts, feeling his way as he went along, trying to find out where there may be weaknesses, where possible irregularities or corrections in bookkeeping and what not. I say to your Honor that is all water under the bridge. The claim has been heard, it is finished. Why should we at this late stage now afford a further opportunity and further burden the court with needless repetition of facts and figures and recitals of such facts and figures, all of which are already in the record?

The Court: I can't help think that you misconstrue the effect of the motion if it should be sustained. I don't think it means what you think it does.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Perhaps not, your Honor.

The Court: It is directed more to the effect on the appeal than anything else, isn't it?

Mr. Homire: Yes, your Honor, I think Mr. Kirschbaum understands the purpose and effect of this motion.

The Court: I think he did, or I did, either one, misunderstood it.

Mr. Homire: I am sure your Honor did not. I think Mr. Kirschbaum misunderstood. We don't intimate an expression of views on the merits of this controversy, and by asking that this procedure be adopted—of course, we are not saying there is any merit in the controversy or in the position of the secured 5¼% bond holders. The point is that they have been taking up all this time, and even though a claim may be wholly lacking in merit, if they are allowed certain latitude of activity they can go ahead and carry this thing on for, I don't know how long, and while it is true, as I understand it, if Mr. Kirschbaum is correct, they have finished for the present, there is always the question of the affirmative case, which the opponents might wish to put in, and also the question of rebuttal testimony; and I suppose that could be drawn out in extent the same as the original case was drawn out.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I say this, your Honor is going to have to hear this at one time. Now, you have allocated this time, I should think now would be the time to get rid of this matter.

Mr. Homire: Furthermore, your Honor, there would be no waste of time that has been already absorbed, because the record made would, of course, be transferred to the separate hearing and would stand just as it has been presented. And we are not asking, nobody is asking here for an adjournment at all. It is just a question of which objections your Honor feels now could be best heard first; and we think that these separate objections, or rather these Comstock objections which I have described, are separable and they could now well be severed from the main proceedings, and allow the other objections to be heard.

Mr. Kirschbaum: It is my thought, your Honor, your Honor had more or less outlined the procedure at the beginning of the hearing, as to how your Honor would conduct it. If your Honor will recall, he would ask these to be heard with respect to these objections, to be heard, and your Honor will recall it was preferred first to be heard with respect to the disposition of this particular claim.

The Court: That is my recollection.

Mr. Kitchel: In that respect, I doubt whether your Honor would decide the claims from the bench, I think your Honor would take some little time to pass on the validity of the claim. And there is no reason why, pending that time, we should not hear the other objections.

Mr. McEwen: If your Honor please, I want to say I am not one of the counsel just referred to.

Mr. Kirschbaum: I did not want to wait until your Honor had rendered a decision. I merely wanted to wait until I had heard the evidence to be produced by Mr. Brandwen with respect to Objection 19, and nothing else. And now that I have heard that I am quite prepared to go forward with the argument on my own objections to the plan, either at this moment or at any time your Honor sees fit to hear them; and I therefore respectfully suggest that counsel agree with me now, as I understood them to agree with me during the recess, that questions as to the form of the order to be entered upon this motion now in your Honor's hands, be reserved for an informal settlement of the order to be made by your Honor thereon.

Mr. Homire: Part of it would—I believe this procedure would accomplish it exactly to meet the situation in which Mr. McEwen finds himself; that is, to allow him to be heard so he can go home if he wants to. He is not interested in this controversy.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, at the risk of repeating what I have said on several occasions, and what I have tried to make as clear as I humanly could, not only at the session which began these proceedings on January 8th, but prior hearings before your Honor, that I wanted to have the validity of this claim, inter-company claim, determined. Whatever terminology may be employed there is no magic in the terminology. In the last analysis we are dealing with something that has a basis in substance, and that is, is the claim asserted by Missouri Pacific for advances against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico valid, or isn't it valid? And no amount of terminology and no amount of verbal magic is going to transmute the character of the problem in any fashion. It is that basically, fundamentally, and it is the only way in which the problem can be kept clearly in mind. I recognized the fundamental character of the problem at an early stage, I tried to make that as clear as I possibly could. I pleaded with your Honor to have it separated so as to avoid this very thing. Now, if I had said, "This is what may happen." People might have said to me, "Well, you are reckoning with certain facts that have not yet taken place." I was fearful of it. The last time I tried to do that was at the hearing, the session on the morning of January 8th. I don't think there was any doubt in anybody's mind, certainly, when we were up before the Circuit Court of Appeals, and on this point I want to state that there have been statements made as to what the effect of the Circuit Court of Appeals decision on that day was, that I don't subscribe to, but I don't think it is necessary for me to labor that point at the moment. It was clearly understood that when the procedure was worked out here finally, and my application for the procedure to be adopted was overruled, there was one thing that was completely clear, and that is that the validity of this claim would be determined. That is, I wanted the party that asserted the claim to go forward, because it was my position that legally the burden of proof, the burden of going forward was on that party. Your Honor overruled my application on that point, and I went on. Now, the evidence is in. When they speak of our coming in at the last minute, when envisaging the possibility that this kind of confusion might arise in the course of the proceedings, that there might be a great difficulty in keeping the issues segregated, I did all that I could in advance to avoid that. Now, if these people felt this way, why does this feeling, and this thought, and this decision come, not at the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour, but after the twelve o'clock bell has struck? Why after the case is in does it all of a sudden dawn on these gentlemen that it might be a good plan to wait awhile before the case, if there is any kind of case, is submitted in opposition to the material which we have brought forward? Can it possibly be that after some digestion of the material that has been submitted there is grave concern in their minds that perhaps we really have made out a very good case, showing the claim to be invalid, and, if you will, there isn't the fortitude necessary at the moment to go forward and oppose it? Can that possibly have occurred to them? Because I find it very difficult to understand why, since they have been here all of this time, nothing has developed during the past—yesterday, or Friday, or Monday, or Tuesday, or Wednesday, or Thursday, which might not have made the application which has been submitted by these gentlemen to your Honor at this moment which could not have been submitted at that time? But there is one very important difference, and that very important difference is that our case has been put in.

I think, if your Honor please, that if your Honor does not require whoever wants to go forward has a right to be heard, I think, and I say this with the utmost respect, if your Honor please, we will have been injured very seriously. I believe we were injured in that we were obliged to do what we did; but there will be a piling up of additional injury if, after having gone through with all the travail connected with the presentation of this material, if these gentlemen are permitted in their own sweet time to go forward with the answer, or the material they may have in opposition to the testimony that has already been adduced, I think it would violate all procedure, all requirements of orderly and sound procedure. And, if your Honor please, I should object to it completely. I was afraid at all times, and I so stated on every occasion when I had an opportunity of making that statement, that I was afraid that something might happen, the precise form I could not outline, that there would be some last-minute plan, some Deus ex machina, if you will, at the last minute, that would be pulled out, so that this matter would not be put in a position where your Honor could have the entire case on the validity or invalidity of the claim, for consideration and determination.

I don't think, if your Honor please, it is right for them to do that. I don't think it is fair, and we have heard so much talk about the length of time it has been taking to get this claim heard. We have got to that point where at least our case has been put in. Let us finish it and be done with, so that no one else will have to hear about this claim again. And the effect of this is simply to make this difficult, if not impossible, of accomplishment; and certainly to delay it more. There is no reason why—we have been pressed to go on, we have done everything we humanly could. I have no feeling with respect to people who make comments on the testimony that has been adduced, because unless people have sat down and examined the nature of the material in the documents, as well as the testimony that has been adduced, no one can be in a position no matter what gifts or talents that person may be endowed with, to make any comment with respect to the effect or significance of that material, until he has read it, studied it and pondered it well. And certainly very few people in this room have had an opportunity of doing it.

Now, I say, therefore, that as a matter of proper procedure, as a matter of carrying out, if your Honor please, something that was agreed upon, that I understand was agreed upon as proper procedure, something I labor under by reason of what was stated at the opening session, I think to have this change made not the next day, but made after all our material is in, I think, is not the most appropriate thing to do. And when I say not the most appropriate, I am using—

The Court: What is the particular hardship upon you, Mr. Brandwen, if the motion should be sustained?

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I think we have a right to have this claim determined. Now, why can't they go forward? Why can't they submit their testimony and have this completed? After all, if your Honor please, there are two distinct tasks that—I say that with deference and respect when I speak of tasks—tasks that your Honor is faced with, as the District Judge in these proceedings, and they are two separate and distinct tasks. The performance of one does not render academic the performance of the other. The fact that one has an impact on the other does not and should not obscure the fact that they are two separate and distinct tasks. One, if your Honor please, is the determination of the validity of claims against the estate. That is a separate and distinct task that has to be done, has to be performed. That is one of the bases for my argument I have made on a number of occasions for a separate hearing.

The other, if your Honor please, is the question of the determination of the fairness and equity of the plan. But whether a plan is ever submitted to your Honor, or the nature of the plan, or whatever your Honor does with respect to a particular plan, the fact remains that the task which your Honor is confronted with, of determining the validity of a claim still remains, and it is because I felt that no one can say at this moment what the fate of this plan or of any other plan that may be submitted may be, I felt it was very important to keep those two issues distinct and separate, so you could have this matter determined.

Now, it is suggested, and I didn't know anything at all about this, until I heard Mr. Homire speak this morning, that certain things be done by the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the Interstate Commerce Commission, certain suggestions be made, certain representations be made to the Interstate Commerce Commission. How, when, where, and the details of that have not been made clear. It may be premature; that the matter of the continuance of this be deferred. What is the reason? We can save much more time in having all this testimony submitted to your Honor. It is fresh. We can go right on and have it finished. A great deal of time can be saved thereby. And since when one proceeds with respect to the trial of an issue like this, when all the facts were known—there was not a single thing developed by Mr. Homire in his statement this morning, and I say this respectfully of Mr. Homire, that was not true, Friday, or Monday, or Tuesday, or Wednesday of last week. Why, then, do they wait until after the case is finished?

Mr. Homire: The reason for that was, your Honor, I didn't want to interrupt him yesterday, he was going ahead, and we had been waiting so long, I thought as long as we seemed to be approaching the end we might as well let him finish. We are not asking the affirmative case be deferred at all. As I understand it, Mr. McConaughy is entirely ready to go ahead, and it is not necessary to defer that by merely separating this controversy from the main hearing on the plan.

The Court: The purpose being that on appeal that would determine their—

Mr. Homire: To have a separate appealable order so far as this order affects the allocation—

The Court: You are not attempting to change the course of the order of procedure here?

Mr. Homire: I did suggest this, I did suggest it might be possible to defer a further hearing, so that people like Mr. McEwen could go ahead, that is all.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, if I understand that is all that is involved; namely, an opportunity for Mr. McEwen to present his statement of objections, and I assume that would not take any longer—

Mr. Kitchel: And Mr. Pierce, also.

Mr. Brandwen: And Mr. Pierce.

Mr. Kirschbaum: Your Honor, I asked your Honor at the beginning to reserve time to be able to meet rebuttal remarks on the claim.

The Court: I recall that.

Mr. Brandwen: I will say this, that if, for example, they would like some time to go on with that, and I am not attempting to limit anybody—

The Court: I thought you gained a different impression. It is a long thing, I wanted to be sure I got it all.

Mr. Brandwen: If all the gentlemen want is a brief interruption—

The Court: I didn't see anything to keep him from closing up the hearing on this Objection 19 at this time, and taking it under submission and disposing of it all. It is only the question about the separate appeals, is that it?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, if your Honor please, on the question of keeping this hearing on the claim—I repeat, it is on the claim, not going into the question of terminology, so that we describe what we are dealing with. If that is kept separate, and there are separate findings, conclusions of law, of course, that is something I requested in the early stages, and I am delighted to find approval of the suggestion, even though at this late hour, by these gentlemen.

The Court: I suggested when Mr. Homire first submitted the motion, it seemed to me, from the first paragraph I read, it is along the lines you, yourself, had been contending for.

Mr. Brandwen: Yes. And to that extent I say I am delighted to get approval of my position, even though it is a belated approval.

Now, I say that if, for example, it is understood that for the convenience of certain other counsel in this court room who would like to be heard on their aspects of the plan today, if, for example, it won't interrupt this long, as a convenience to the court I am perfectly willing to do that, but I assume we are not dealing, and again I say I am not asking any one to limit himself by reason of this request, all I say is that if I am correct in understanding that all we are dealing with is a short interruption, I would raise no objection thereto, because I think that is the way in which we can serve the court.

The Court: Is there a misunderstanding from any counsel?

Mr. McEwen: Yes, if your Honor please, I am quite unwilling to accept Mr. Brandwen's condescension. My objections are quite as important as his, and I am unwilling at his hands to accept out of the richness of his time a few moments. I am going to ask at such time as may be appropriate that your Honor may hear me for an hour, and I would not want it to be said that that had been extended to me out of courtesy or consideration of counsel by Mr. Brandwen.

The Court: There will be no question about you being accorded an hour to make your argument.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, I want to say that, I want to make it perfectly clear I have not made any comment or any suggestion that would in any way be to limit the time of anybody else, and I am sorry Mr. McEwen so understood. All I want to say is this, that if that was the understanding of the others, I have no objection. I only want to ask what is the understanding so there won't be any question about that. I want to repeat that so far as I am concerned, and this is not a matter that I am acting in a condescending manner with respect to, I am simply stating my position, that I have nothing to say about that, but I certainly have a right to say whether I understand a certain matter correctly.

The Court: The court understood that also.

Mr. Pierce: Your Honor, I merely want to inquire with respect to the defendants, who will probably argue only one objection to the plan, if counsel will then be permitted to hear the reply of the objectors to his objection, or whether we will wait then until this further evidence is presented, and then these gentlemen who may properly be called the present proponents of the Commission's plan, will go ahead. It is purely a matter of what procedure you intend to follow.

Mr. Kitchel: My suggestion on that, your Honor, is that we hear these other objections, including Mr. Brandwen's objections, which are not embraced in these nineteen, and then that counsel supporting the plan should answer those objections. I will say at the time that my answer to those objections, which I think are all futile, is not going to be a very extended argument, then to take up Objection 19 again in the separate hearing. I propose to move to dismiss. I don't think there is anything in the claim, we are not frightened about it, as Mr. Brandwen has sort of intimated. I am going to move to dismiss it on the ground of laches. And then, if that motion is denied we are ready to go ahead with our affirmative proof.

I might say, however, in that connection, that Mr. Wyer, who is one of our important witnesses is running a railroad in New Jersey, and he has got to leave tonight. We will put on all other witnesses, but after their testimony is in we would have to ask for an adjournment. I want to be frank with the court on that. We will go ahead with our other witnesses, but we will have to ask for an adjournment until we get Mr. Wyer.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, I think if Mr. Kitchel has any motion to make with respect to the dismissal of our objections to the claim, I don't see why he can't make a motion at the present time. There is no further evidence that we are putting in.

Secondly, I think that, if your Honor please, orderly procedure suggests that, dealing with ourselves alone, only, why we cannot have the evidence go forward by the other parties with respect to the inter-company claim before we go on with the other objections that we have to the plan, because our other objections to the plan are going to be fairly extensive, our testimony, and it will take considerable time.

The Court: The motion will be sustained, and the court will proceed to hear all of the number two suggestions.

Mr. Brandwen: I take exception to that.

* * * * * * *

The Court: What is the next?

Mr. Kitchel: Do I understand, Your Honor, that the question of objections has now been completed, except that 19?

The Court: That is what I was inquiring.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, there are certain schedules we are trying to get from the trust estate, that we are not going to have any testimony on. There are just a few schedules, and there is no reason why we may not be able to have them here tomorrow, and there is no reason why we have to have any witnesses in connection with it at all; we can just offer them after they are produced by the trust estate. They are just a few schedules, that is all.

The Court: Will that be the end of your objections?

Mr. Brandwen: I am not going to go any further with respect to objections, with the understanding, of course, that all of the objections relating to the 5-¼s that are dealt with in the proposed order, if not submitted now, may be dealt with in another fashion. That is the reason why I am not going into them, because that was the statement made by Mr. Homire yesterday morning, so that I understand I am not going to go into them at all on that understanding. The only other thing I have, I say, are these few schedules, that is all.

The Court: Mr. Kirshbaum?

Mr. Kirshbaum: I am just curious to know whether it is the Court's intention to proceed with this severed hearing of Mr. Brandwen's, or whether it was to be adjourned to some future date, or whether it was concluded at this point, or upon introduction of these schedules, or what procedure Your Honor was going to adopt with reference to this severed hearing?

Mr. Kitchel: I shall have a motion to make in that matter, Your Honor.

The Court: In the morning or now?

Mr. Kitchel: It will take me some little time.

The Court: Would you care to discuss that in the morning?

Mr. Kitchel: I beg your pardon?

The Court: That will be taken up in the morning.

Mr. Kitchel: This order may be taken up in the morning.

The Court: This order of Mr. Homire's. There is nothing else this afternoon then?

Mr. ————: This question of the Allegheny.

Mr. Leisure: If this is a proper time, and since Mr. Brandwen's contention that the Comstock objections 20 to 23 inclusive may involve the taking of testimony and not merely argument, I should like at this time to move the Court that the Court set down Comstock's objections 20 to 23 for separate hearing. This would be similar to the separate hearing of Comstock's objection 19 ordered by the Court yesterday, but separate from it.

Mr. Brandwen: That will be quite agreeable to us, if it meets with Your Honor's approval.

The Court: Any suggestions as to time on that?

Mr. Leisure: I will have a motion to make tomorrow, if Your Honor pleases, and I will follow Mr. Kitchel, if he is going to make one, then we can determine that, I think, tomorrow morning.

The Court: The Court will reserve its ruling on this, then. I say the Court will reserve its ruling on this at this time, then. That is what you desire, is it not?

Mr. Leisure: No. I think if Your Honor cares to rule on this at this time, I would be very happy to have that ruled on.

The Court: Might we determine as to time?

Mr. Brandwen: Perfectly agreeable, practically any time you can agree upon. No problem with that.

The Court: Maybe counsel can agree on a time.

Mr. Brandwen: Then I think best to wait until tomorrow.

The Court: That motion will be sustained then, that they be set down for a separate hearing—the Comstock objections 20 to 23, and counsel may try to agree upon a time, if possible.

Mr. Kitchel: Then, Your Honor, in this objection 19 separate hearing, there will be an adjournment of that, I take it, and at the same time we can agree on some time when that should be brought on.

Mr. Brandwen: I really had hoped and I really wanted very much to have that matter concluded, since so much effort has already been spent on it, and the matter is fresh in Your Honor's mind, instead of having that matter adjourned. I really would like very much to have that matter disposed of—there has been so much trouble about it, there have been suggestions on the amount of time it has been taking, and I would like very much to have that disposed of, and I am ready to have it go on, I mean have them go on with the presentation of their testimony and have the matter concluded. That would be my very strong preference. There has been such a suggestion of urgency of time every day that we have been here, that I should like to have the matter concluded.

Mr. Kitchel: I will be ready tomorrow morning, Your Honor, to make a motion to dismiss—overrule the objections to the 19, and I am obliged to leave town tomorrow afternoon, on account of some personal considerations. We can settle those things in the morning, I imagine.

The Court: You may announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

At this point, an adjournment was had until 10:00 A. M., Friday, January 19, 1945.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on January 19, 1945, at ten o'clock A.M., at which time the following proceedings were had:

The Court: You may proceed with the Missouri Pacific matter.

Mr. Homire: If Your Honor please, it may be that the first order of business should be to take up the settlement of the order which was submitted on the 17th. I think it would be proper to date that order the 17th, which was the date the Court sustained the motion.

Mr. Kirshbaum: If the Court please, I wish Your Honor would, before considering Mr. Homire's application on this order, consider the motion which Mr. Kitchel said he was going to make this morning, for the reason that if the motion of Mr. Kitchel should be granted, and myself, because I also intend to join in that motion, I think then this order would become unnecessary. For example, the fourth paragraph I think will probably be at least changed, and may be eliminated. So this order may become in a great measure academic, if Mr. Kitchel's motion or my motion, should be granted to dismiss Mr. Comstock's objections. Therefore, if it please the Court, I ask Your Honor to hold this matter in abeyance, at least until after you hear Mr. Kitchel or my application to dismiss.

Mr. Homire: Paragraph 4 of the proposed order, that Mr. Kirshbaum referred to, is nothing more than a reservation of jurisdiction, and it seems to me—

The Court: I think that is all I saw.

Mr. Homire:—it doesn't operate until Your Honor sees fit to, if the reservation of jurisdiction—

Mr. Kirschbaum: I thought if the objection should be stricken, as I feel it will be after argument of counsel, then this order becomes unnecessary.
I will defer to Mr. Kitchel.

The Court: Is it your desire to be heard first, Mr. Kitchel?

Mr. Brandwen: I don't quite understand all this talk as to what is up right now. Mr. Homire referred a question to Your Honor, and then there is colloquy of counsel here, off the record. I don't know what it is about.

The Court: Mr. Homire suggested that perhaps we could settle the order first. Mr. Kirshbaum asked that that be deferred until we heard Mr. Kitchel's motion.

Mr. Brandwen: Is that the order of procedure, that it is to wait until Mr. Kitchel makes his motion?

The Court: I am waiting to see.

Mr. Brandwen: I didn't know. I didn't want to be in default.

Mr. Kirshbaum: If Mr. Kitchel will not proceed with his motion, may I make my motion at this time, to strike?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Kirshbaum: I move, if it please the Court, to dismiss, and ask the Court to strike out Objection 19 and related Objections numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 13 and 26, and the claim for equitable treatment based thereon, on the following grounds:

1. That this objectant is not the proper legal party to assert said objection.

This objectant does not state that he represents the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in presenting this claim, nor has he obtained a prior order of this Court permitting him to do so; nor has he obtained the consent of the Trustee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to bring, or assert this claim, which by law this objectant is obliged to do as a prerequisite. He does not, by his own admission, stand here in this Court in any representative capacity for all New Orleans, Texas & Mexico stockholders.

I respectfully call to Your Honor's attention the decision which was handed down in this case by the Circuit Court of Appeals. A number of parties interested in this proceeding attempted to appeal from a decision of this Court which determined to refuse to pay the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan, and it is my recollection in this case that the Court of Appeals said that these parties in this proceeding had no interest in that appeal, because the only one who had an interest in it was the Trustee.

So I say to Your Honor that, on the ground that this party is not the proper legal party to assert this objection, this claim or objection must be dismissed. Unless this objectant obtains these prerequisites he has no standing in this Court. Otherwise, Your Honor can very well see how Your Honor would be constantly besieged by a multiplicity and multitude of claimants coming in and claiming to represent this stockholder, or that or the other interest, and coming forward at all times with a number of claims.

I may call to Your Honor's attention that this same claim has been before this Court twice, once on behalf of some so-called Beard Committee, and now it crops up in the form of Comstock. Who knows, if this claim be adversely determined, that this man may not be here again, or some other attorney may be here again asserting this claim for somebody?

I say to Your Honor that orderly procedure requires that a prior order of this Court, giving permission to bring or assert such claim, must be obtained, or the consent of the Trustee must be obtained, and the remedy, if any, must be had against the Trustee.

I move to dismiss and strike out these claims on the ground that this objectant has mistaken his remedy. The alleged objection which this objectant asserts is in reality a claim and not an objection which, if legal, should have been asserted, or may be asserted against the Trustee in a final or a separate accounting.

Before that claim may be asserted against the Trustee, this objectant or claimant must observe and must conform to the provisions of law and to the decisions mentioned in the first ground on which I have moved to dismiss this objection and claim.

3. This objectant has no legal interest in this claim. The objectant purchased his securities in 1942, years after the allowance of the claim against the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and he has therefore failed to show his good faith in the presentation of said claim. He has failed to show that as to him, as an individual, he has been damaged in any way or has sustained any loss as a result of his investment or speculation.

I move, sir, on the further ground, to dismiss and to strike out these objections, that the objectant is guilty of laches, that the time within which this objectant should have applied to the Court with reference to that claim is long past due, and this claimant is therefore barred from asserting that claim for those reasons.

I move you to strike that claim and that objection on the ground that this objectant has acquiesced in the allowance of the claim as a matter of law. I say, that he has acquiesced in the allowance of this claim, as a matter of law.

This objectant has affirmatively established, by his own witness, Guy Thompson, Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, whom he called as a witness, that he knew the merits or the demerits of the Missouri Pacific claim against the N.O.T. & M. as long ago as 1935; that he was then given an opportunity to contest the claim, and that he made no objection thereto at any time until now. Security holders of the Missouri Pacific, and those who bought securities of the Missouri Pacific after the allowance of the claim, have obtained as the result thereof certain vested property rights. The previous determination of the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific to allow that claim can not now be upset by this objectant, because to do so would be to deprive those Missouri Pacific stockholders and security holders of vested property rights, which they obtained since the allowance of the claim, all without due process of law and without just compensation. You are taking away certain rights which they became entitled to as a result of that determination.

I further move to dismiss the claim and strike it out, on the ground that the evidence adduced here upon the claim failed to make out a case.

Besides the separate grounds for dismissal and striking out, which I have enumerated here, I now ask that these objections be stricken on the ground that the evidence sought to be adduced by the objectant's witnesses covered transactions of the Debtor which occurred thirty-two years ago. Under the ancient document ruling, such transactions can not be disturbed or questioned in any way. Any oral evidence sought to be elicited thereon, or any inference of improper conduct sought to be drawn from evidence that old is legally incompetent. The objectant has failed to make out a claim by clear competent proof.

I therefore ask that Objection No. 19, and the related objections should be stricken out.

Thank you.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I should first like to move, in order to do away with any misunderstanding, that there be on the record in this separate hearing on Claim 19 and related claims, the entire record in this proceeding from its inception, both before this Court, in the Interstate Commerce Commission and in the Court of Appeals.

I think it is properly in this case. This is a hearing on objections to the Plan, and it is properly a part of the record. I so move.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Your Honor, I should like to say, if Your Honor please, that I object to this application on the part of Mr. Kitchel, unless he limits it to those portions of the record and prior proceedings that have a relevant or material bearing on the issues presented in the controversy in connection with the inter-company claim.

Mr. Kitchel: The whole record would be before the Court. Counsel can pick out such portions as are relevant and, of course, if there is any appeal only those portions would be made in the record that goes up.

But for the purpose of this, the whole record is in?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Mr. Kitchel: In the second place, I have two rather related motions, the first of which is the following:

I move to strike out all the testimony and evidence heretofore given and produced in connection with the hearing on Comstock Objection 19 and related objections, to the extent that they are dependent upon Comstock Objection 19 and his claim for equitable treatment in that connection.

This testimony and evidence could, and should have been produced before the Interstate Commerce Commission before it closed its last hearing, in October, 1943. My authority for this contention has already been stated to the Court by Mr. Leisure in the motion which he made, I think, on the first day of this hearing, on January 8th, on his motion to dismiss the objection so far as related to Alleghany. At that time he cited, and I now cite, a ruling made by Judge Hincks in the New Haven reorganization, at the hearing when additional evidence was attempted to be offered. The matter I am quoting appears in Volume 13, pages 8587-9 of the Printed Court Record in that New Haven case.

There, some people, Sartorious and Ganz, moved, upon the hearing of approval of the plan—and now I quote:

"The Sartorious and Ganz motions to be heard * * * and though counsel who now press this motion seeking permission at this late stage to offer proof that the claimant is entitled to certain security, was present at the hearings heretofore had before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Plan * * * clearly it will frustrate all progress in matters such as those * * * to wait until after the Commission has reported a plan upon the assumption that a claim is unsecured and then for the first time seek an adjudication upon a claim of security belatedly raised."

Again, Mr. Leisure cited, and I now cite, a ruling of Judge Davis of this Court, in the matter of St. Louis-Southwestern Railroad Company, Debtor, No. 8497. This ruling was made on October 27, 1942, after argument by counsel on the question whether there would be admitted at the hearing by the Court on the approval of the plan previously approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission any additional evidence on matters heard and determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

On page 206 of the minutes the following appears:

"The Court: Additional evidence on matters heard and determined by the Commission will not be admitted on this hearing. All testimony and evidence submitted on this hearing will be confined to matters occurring subsequently to the consideration of the Plan by the Commission."

On those authorities, I move to strike out the testimony that was heretofore had on this separate hearing.

Now I move to overrule Objection 19 and the related objections, to the extent that they are dependent upon Objection 19 and the related claim for equitable treatment, on the ground of laches, and in support of that motion I submit an affidavit of Mr. Railey, which enumerates the death of a number of parties who were formerly connected with the Texas Lines and the Missouri Pacific. I put this in affidavit form to save the time of the Court. Mr. Railey is in Court.

I have given a copy of this affidavit to opposing counsel, and if they so desire, they may cross-examine Mr. Railey.

Mr. Brandwen: If the Court please, Mr. Kitchel in the court-room this morning, handed me a copy of this affidavit. It was the first time I saw it. I will cross-examine Mr. Railey.

Mr. Kitchel: I think that would be appropriate, before I start my argument, Your Honor.

THOMAS T. RAILEY,

being called for cross examination by Mr. Brandwen, testified as follows:

Q. Mr. Railey, please state your name and address to the reporter.

A. Thomas T. Railey; St. Louis, Missouri.

Q. And what is your occupation?

A. I am Assistant Counsel for the Trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, and subsidiary Debtors.

Q. How long have you been associated with the Missouri Pacific Railroad and/or its subsidiaries?

A. I have been in the General Solicitor's office since 1915.

Q. During the period from 1915 to 1944 you have performed a miscellaneous variety of legal activities?

A. Yes. Most of that period I was Assistant Counsel for the Trustee.

Q. You were what?

A. Assistant General Solicitor, I should say.

Q. During the course of these twenty-nine years you have been generally familiar with the legal matters that have arisen in connection with the Missouri Pacific and its related roads?

A. With certain of them. I would not say all of them, by any means.

Q. I don't suppose with all of them, but with a great number of them? A. Correct.

Q. Please, Mr. Railey, give us the circumstances leading to the preparation of this affidavit which has been submitted this morning.

A. Mr. Kitchel asked me if I would not prepare an affidavit in line with the testimony I gave here on the stand at the presentation of one of your motions, about a month or more ago.

Q. About a month or more ago?

A. Yes. I undertook to put in affidavit form the testimony I gave at that time.

Q. You state in the early part of your affidavit, on the first page, that you are familiar with the issues raised in connection with the objections of Mr. Comstock, bearing on the inter-company claim? A. Yes.

Q. You are familiar with the issues? A. Yes.

Q. You are familiar with the facts connected therewith?

A. To a limited degree.

Q. You have made a very careful examination, have you not, of the facts and issues in connection with the objections to the inter-company claim, within recent months?

A. I have read your exceptions to the Plan. I have refreshed my memory, to some extent, as to what took place previously before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in connection with the Plan and particularly with this issue—

Q. With what?

A. The issue that you have, the inter-corporate claim. I have read portions of the Wheeler Committee Report that was attached to one of your motions, together with some of the testimony that was offered before that Committee, and I have talked to some of our employees. To that extent, I am familiar with it.

Q. You have been in attendance at practically all the hearings that have taken place since the morning of January 8th, have you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What employees have you talked with?

A. I have talked with employees of the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Q. What employees did you talk with?

A. I talked with Mr. Eckert, with Mr. Peet, and I have talked with some of the mechanical people.

Q. You have talked with some of the mechanical people?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean, mechanics?

A. People who had supervision over engine hire, and matters of that kind.

Q. Whom have you talked with about those matters?

A. I have talked with Mr. Christie and Mr. Rogers very briefly, and I have talked with Mr. Kirkpatrick, of our Texas Lines, and I have talked to Mr. Brown, and perhaps others. I don't recall now.

Q. Did you talk with Mr. Wyer? A. No, I have not.

Q. You have not talked with Mr. Wyer?

A. I haven't gone over the facts in this case at all with Mr. Wyer. I have spoken with him, and sat down at a table with him the other day at the restaurant, but I haven't gone over the facts with him.

Q. You haven't talked, on a number of occasions, with Mr. Wyer about the issues in this case? A. No, I have not.

Q. You have not? A. No.

Q. Have you talked with any of counsel for the First and Refunding Committee?

A. Yes, to the extent of telling them where they can find certain witnesses, or certain information.

Q. They asked you where certain witnesses could be found. Did they give you the names of the witnesses they wanted?

A. No. I told them where they could find certain information.

Q. How did you happen to tell them that?

A. In response to their request.

Q. What was the nature of the information that they asked you about?

Mr. Kitchel: I object. The only testimony that Mr. Railey has given here in his affidavit is as to the death of certain parties. It is not proper cross examination.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, one of the basic features here, one of the [basis] problems—and I don't want to anticipate myself at the moment, because I am going into this question later in the morning, or today—deals with the relationship of employees and members of the staff in connection with this inter-company claim. I think it is very important to have that clear, for everybody's sake.

Mr. Kitchel: That is no reason why he should ask him who he talked with.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. You say you talked with Mr. Christie: Mr. Christie is who?

A. Mr. Christie is one of our mechanical men, and about all that I have gone over with him is to introduce him to Mr. McConaughy, and let them discuss the question of engine hire as they saw fit. I haven't sat in on those conferences.

Q. Is Mr. Christie connected with the N. O. T. & M. at Houston?

A. He was at the time of the transaction in question.

Q. Now he is in St. Louis?

A. Now he is connected with the Missouri Pacific.

Q. In St. Louis? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Rogers, who is he?

A. The same thing is true with respect to Mr. Rogers. He was with the Texas Lines and is now with the Missouri Pacific.

Q. Also interested in mechanical matters?

A. Yes. I introduced him to Mr. McConaughy, and I haven't sat in on their conference.

Q. And Mr. Kirkpatrick, is he connected with the Missouri Pacific or the N. O. T. & M.?

A. Mr. Kirkpatrick is connected with the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Q. And his offices are in Houston? A. Yes.

Q. He was here the other day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know who sent for him?

A. I can explain why he came here. At the time this matter was set it was anticipated that possibly Mr. Baldwin might be called as a witness, and he would refresh his memory on some things. Mr. Kirkpatrick was called in for that purpose.

Q. You don't know who called Mr. Kirkpatrick?

A. Mr. Vollmer.

Q. How long had Mr. Kirkpatrick been here?

A. He got here a day or two before the hearing, and he has been here during part of the hearing. I don't know whether he is gone now or not.

Q. He also deals with matters of mechanics?

A. He is more familiar with the conditions of the road.

Q. Physical conditions of the road?

A. Physical conditions of the road.

Q. And Mr. Brown?

A. Mr. Brown was formerly the Chief Traffic Officer of the Missouri Pacific, now retired.

Q. Did you hear any testimony with respect to engine hire, in connection with this inter-company claim? A. No.

Q. You didn't? A. No.

Q. Nothing of that kind was introduced, or adduced?

A. You mean at this hearing, in the last two weeks?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. None at all? A. No.

Q. You say you talked with Mr. Eckert: What did you talk with Mr. Eckert about?

A. I have talked with Mr. Eckert briefly about some of your allegations in your petition. I have looked at the comparative balance sheet that you prepared, but I haven't gone into any of the details with Mr. Eckert.

Q. You didn't discuss the figures or facts contained in any of the schedules?

A. Not enough to form any independent judgment.

Q. Did you discuss with him the figures and financial facts contained in any exhibits?

A. So casually that I would not be able to tell you what I have discussed.

Q. Have you examined the exhibits that have been introduced in evidence here in these proceedings?

A. I have examined some of them. We had them photostated, and I looked at them casually.

Q. Did you study them? A. I looked at them casually.

Q. Casually? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you look at all of them? A. I doubt that.

Q. Did you examine the minutes that were offered in evidence? A. No, I haven't.

Q. So you do not know, at the moment, what is contained in the minutes that were offered in evidence?

A. No, I do not.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. You do not know who was present at the meeting—at the meetings of which minutes were introduced in evidence here?

A. I heard the testimony and you have brought out on several occasions the members of the Board who were present. Outside of that, I don't recall.

Q. So that we understand, Mr. Railey, from you—and I want to get this completely clear and straight—that you, yourself, have not examined either the minutes or the excerpts from the minutes that have been introduced in evidence here?

A. No, I don't believe I have. I may have looked at a few of them, but I don't even recall the substance of those.

Q. Except for a reference that may have been made in oral testimony you, therefore, do not know who was present at any of the meetings from which extracts of minutes were produced; is that correct?

A. I have a general knowledge of the members—some of the members of the Board of Directors, but I can't answer your question directly.

Q. But you would not know, from your general knowledge or your general recollection, who may have been present at a particular meeting, when particular action was taken, would you?

A. No. I have, for example, in mind reading a letter about Mr. Frank Andrews being present at a meeting.

Q. About his being present at a meeting?

A. About his being present at a meeting, but just an occasional matter of that kind has come to my attention. I have not examined the minutes to ascertain who was present.

Q. Will you let us know whether there were any minutes introduced in evidence here, of Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, at which it was suggested or stated that Mr. Frank Andrews was present?

A. I can't tell from the—

Mr. Kitchel: The record speaks for itself.

Mr. Brandwen: One of the purposes is to question the credibility of this witness. This witness made some very—

The Court: He may answer.

A. I think I recall in the files a letter that Mr. Andrews was present, or at least that he was a member of the Board of Directors, and had approved the resolution passing the dividends for the three million and a half from the Brownsville, in 1931, I believe it was.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. You, yourself, do not know whether any evidence was offered that Mr. Andrews approved or disapproved any resolution bearing on that dividend, do you?

A. A letter was attached to one of your motions, to that effect, and is referred to in your petition—to your objection. I don't recall whether it was offered in evidence or not. I rather believe it was one of the letters you had photostated, but I am not sure of that.

Q. You had a number of exhibits photostated in the office of the Missouri Pacific, had you not? A. Yes.

Q. You said before that you simply looked at them casually?

A. Rather casually. For instance, with the comparative balance sheet, I looked to see how the surplus was running.

Q. Which comparative balance sheet?

A. Of the New Orleans, and the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railway Company.

Q. For what period?

A. For the period about 1924 to 1933, I think they ran.

Q. You say you wanted to determine what?

A. I was curious to see how the surplus showed up on those balance sheets.

Q. What was your interest therein?

A. General interest in this case.

Q. General interest in this case. You say here that certain individuals might be in a position to offer substantial testimony on one or more of the issues involved in said controversy? A. Yes.

Q. The first one you mentioned is Mr. William H. Williams: He was Chairman of the Board of the Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M., prior to May, 1930?

A. That is correct.

Q. You say in this affidavit that Mr. Williams presided over certain Board of Directors and Executive Committee meetings, extracts of which have been offered in evidence, respecting the transactions in question. I ask you to name any meeting, from your own knowledge, of any Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific and/or New Orleans, Texas & Mexico at which Mr. Williams presided.

A. I understood you to so state on the record when you were reading some of the minutes of the meetings. I haven't, as I stated, examined those minutes personally. I may be in error in that, but I understood you to so state. He was Chairman of the Board and I naturally presume that he would be present at some of those meetings.

Q. You assume that because he was Chairman of the Board of the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M. that he would be present?

A. And I recall, if I am not mistaken, that you stated in the record, that he was present.

Q. You state here that if living he would be in a position to offer substantial testimony on one or more of the issues: Now I ask you whether you know, whether there is any issue presented in any of the excerpts from the minutes that have been introduced in evidence—that Mr. Williams was present at any of those meetings.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, I object. Counsel brought out the fact that Mr. Williams was Chairman and was present at some of the meetings—

Mr. Brandwen: You mean me?

Mr. Kitchel: —and that mere fact that he was presiding at some of the meetings would show that he had knowledge of what was presented at that meeting, and it seems to me that is sufficient.

Mr. Brandwen: If Your Honor please, when Mr. Bailey, who was acting as Assistant Counsel to the Trustee, submits this kind of affidavit, where he says that Mr. Williams, if living, would be in a position to offer substantial testimony on one or more of the issues involved, and that he presided over certain of the Directors and Executive Committee meetings of the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, extracts of which have been offered in evidence, respecting the transactions in question, certainly an affidavit made by a lawyer, and by an Assistant Counsel to the Trustee, that is simply based on a suggestion made in the course of this testimony, that he may or may not have been present at one of those meetings, is certainly no basis for this kind of statement in a sworn affidavit. I think it is a very serious matter.

Mr. Kirshbaum: I object to counsel's argument. I think counsel should be confined to the examination of the witness. I ask that those remarks be stricken.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. I ask you this question: Can you state now whether there was any meeting, any meeting at all of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific or New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, from which excerpts were introduced in evidence here, at which Mr. Williams presided? A. I think so.

Q. You don't know whether there was one such meeting or more?

A. That statement, Mr. Brandwen, goes further [then] merely presiding at Board meetings. Mr. Williams was Chairman of the Board. You have some allegations in your objections to the Plan, that there was an over-reaching by the Missouri Pacific [——] New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. Mr. Williams, as Chairman of the Board, would be the man who would be largely responsible for any financial policies of the Missouri Pacific. All that I meant to bring out in my affidavit was that Mr. Williams is dead, and to the extent that either parties might desire his testimony on those questions, he is not available. He was Chairman of the Board. He undoubtedly had a good deal to do with the policies of the Board, but I haven't had a sufficient interest in this matter to check each of these Board of Directors minutes to see whether he was or was not present.

Q. That is not what you stated in your affidavit. You stated Mr. Williams presided over certain Board of Directors—

Mr. Kirshbaum: I object to counsel arguing with the witness. I ask that counsel confine his talk to questions.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Have you a copy of your affidavit before you? A. No, I do not.

Q. When you stated—

(At this point Mr. Kitchel handed to the witness a copy of the affidavit.)

Mr. Brandwen: Q. When you stated that Mr. Williams presided over certain Board of Directors and Executive Committee meetings, extracts of which have been offered in evidence, respecting the transaction in question, you meant something quite different from that; is that what we are to understand?

A. No, I can't say that I do. I have told you the source of my information. If it is not accurate I am sorry. But as Chairman of the Board, I have no doubt that he presided over meetings, and I haven't examined the minutes of particular meetings that you have offered in evidence, but his name has been mentioned in connection with those, and I assume that he presided over them.

Q. You don't know how many meetings his name was mentioned in connection with?

A. No. That can be checked.

Q. But you don't know? A. No, I don't.

Q. And you didn't know when you executed this affidavit—

The Court: I think you have gone far enough on that.

Mr. Kitchel: If Mr. Brandwen is curious, I refer him to Comstock Exhibits 91, 92, 93, 94, 95 and 96, being minutes of various Board meetings and Executive meetings at which Mr. William H. Williams is recited as being present; also Exhibits 98 and 99, and 97 and 104. I want to refresh his recollection.

Mr. Brandwen: I have a recollection of those. I was not the one who submitted the affidavit. I think that is most irregular. I didn't submit this affidavit, Mr. Railey submitted it. I know what is in the record. I want to know, when Mr. Railey submits an affidavit, that he knows—not what is in evidence. If Mr. Railey doesn't know about that, that is the thing that is important. There can be no question about the soundness of what I said.

Mr. Kitchel did not submit the affidavit, or Mr. McConaughy.

Q. I ask you this question: You state that if Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen were alive, he would be in a position to offer substantial testimony. He was the Chairman of the Board of Directors of said companies after Mr. Williams. Do you know whether any minutes of meetings were offered, or excerpts, at which Mr. Van Sweringen presided?

A. I do not recall that any minutes were offered, although he may not have been Chairman of some of those meetings. He was Chairman only a limited period before the reorganization proceedings; I believe, May, 1930—

Q. He was Chairman for only a limited period?

A. Yes, and of course had comparatively little to do, as the dividends were not paid after 1931, and he did not take office until May, 1930, but he did direct the financial policy of the Missouri Pacific and to that extent he was involved very definitely in your exceptions to the Plan.

Q. In what? A. In your exceptions to the Plan.

Q. How so?

A. You take the position that the Missouri Pacific, through its officers, took undue advantage of the N. O. T. & M. and operated it for their financial gain. If that is true, Mr. Van Sweringen was the head of the Missouri Pacific in so far as financial matters were concerned. I don't know to what extent you intend to go into that, or that the other parties may go into it, but it is conceivable that Mr. Van Sweringen's testimony would be relevant, if he were living.

Q. In what way would it be relevant on the question as to whether advances were made by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Kitchel: I object to that. This case is not finished. We may have a number of things to put in which Mr. Van Sweringen and these other witnesses—

Mr. Brandwen: As I understand, the motion to dismiss is being made now.

Mr. Kitchel: It is not granted yet.

Mr. Brandwen: If Mr. Kitchel, by his remarks, would like to have this motion deferred until after the other testimony that Mr. Kitchel wants to put in, I have no objection, but it is being made now, and if it is being made now it is being made on a state of facts that exist.

The Court: Proceed.

A. I can only surmise, from your exceptions to the Plan, that you are charging the Missouri Pacific as overreaching and operating the N. O. T. & M. for the benefit of the Missouri Pacific. If that was done, Mr. Van Sweringen, as Chairman of the Board, would probably have had a voice in that action. Whether either of you would desire to take his testimony and determine the extent to which he had a voice in that matter, I do not know, but I can readily conceive of his testimony being relevant.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Now let me ask you this; let us deal with some of the matters that have been adduced in these hearings. Have you ever examined the cash books of the Missouri Pacific or the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. Not enough to carry anything in my mind.

Q. Do you know whether the cash books reflected advances of Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

Mr. Kirshbaum: I object to the question. I believe the cash books would be the best evidence of that. I believe it is improper cross examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: May I make this comment as an explanation of why? I am not trying to prove by this witness anything that is contained in the cash books. I am just trying to question the credibility and weight to be given to this witness's affidavit. That is all I am trying to do.

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. The advances from Missouri Pacific to New Orleans, Texas & Mexico are matters of record, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. They are matters of record? A. Presumably so.

Q. Dividends paid by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico are matters of record, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. We have full books of accounting, original entries on that, have we not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Surplus items are matters of record, are they not?

A. They are matters of record, but you go into controversies that you have raised here which would affect the amount of that surplus, and those controversies which go back as far as 1916, of course involve records—I don't know to what extent, and I have not seen those records myself and, of course, can not attempt to testify as to what they contain.

Q. So you are not in a position to say that the items of surplus are not fully recorded in journal entries, books of account, balance sheets—

Mr. Kitchel: I object to this line of questioning. It is irrelevant.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. Would Mr. Safford be in a position to testify with respect to financial matters?

A. Mr. Safford was the Chief Executive officer of the Texas Lines, reporting, of course, to Mr. Baldwin, who had general charge over them. He was undoubtedly well informed on most of the questions that you have raised, and the facts that would be involved, and I would say "Yes".

Q. You are not questioning Mr. Eckert's familiarity or knowledge of all these transactions?

A. Not in the least, but Mr. Safford was not an accounting man. Mr. Safford's testimony would be particularly valuable to cover the same matters, in more detail, that he covered at the hearings before the Commission, namely, the condition of the property, the alleged diversion of traffic.

Q. You mean physical condition, when you say that?

A. Yes, physical condition.

Q. I didn't mean to interrupt you.

A. (Continuing) He would also know why dividends were paid, for example, by the Brownsville to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. He would know whether, in cutting wages of employees and economizing, in response to a letter written to Mr. Baldwin, how far he could safely go without in any way impairing the stock interest in the railroad. He would be the best witness who would be available, if living, to cover those questions.

Q. Primarily, the physical conditions of the property?

A. He would undoubtedly be the best witness on that question. He would also be an important witness on other questions, or, at least, it is conceivable that he would.

Q. You said before, Mr. Eckert had full knowledge, and has full knowledge, of all the financial and auditing matters?

Mr. Kirschbaum: I object. The witness has already answered the question. Any further questions by counsel will not serve any useful purpose.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Q. Now, you mentioned Mr. Cannon, Mr. J. Cannon? A. Yes.

Q. You say here that, if living, his testimony might be of value in explaining operating arrangements between the Gulf Coast Lines and Missouri Pacific.

A. On those, I assume that Mr. Cannon would probably be less necessary, or his testimony could be more easily supplied by other witnesses, because he was located on the Missouri Pacific and not on the Gulf Coast Lines, but I have read in your exceptions that the Texas Lines were operated for the advantage of the Missouri Pacific, and with respect to the alleged diversion of traffic, or matters of economic operation, Mr. Cannon might or might not become an important witness.

Q. Have you heard any testimony on that subject?

A. No, sir, I haven't, but Mr. Cannon sat in a conference that I happened to attend, at the time of consideration of the motion for the appointment of a separate trustee, which involved the same questions—Mr. Cannon was well informed on some of the matters that were discussed there. It is for that reason that I mention his name here as a possible witness, who has since died.

Q. Now Mr. F. P. Johnson. Let us deal with Mr. Johnson. What could he have testified to, in your opinion, that would constitute substantial testimony here?

A. Mr. Johnson was Chief Financial and Accounting Officer for both the Missouri Pacific and the Texas Lines. He was the man to whom Mr. Eckert testified he went occasionally for instructions. Mr. Johnson had charge of the Missouri Pacific books. One of his letters was attempted to be read and objected to by Mr. Eckert explaining the adjustment of certain accounts—

Q. What accounts?

A. You had an alleged advancement of Missouri Pacific of something over $1,200,000., that you asked Mr. Eckert about, and Mr. Johnson, before he died, had explained that matter in a memorandum, or letter, that was in his files, that you called Mr. Eckert's attention to the journal entry which, I assume, from what you said, did not agree with the explanation Mr. Johnson had made in his letter. In a matter of that kind Mr. Johnson's testimony would be of great importance. Mr. Johnson, I have no doubt, handled some of these matters with the Interstate Commerce Commission, where there was some substantial readjustment. I am not positive that they were handled directly with Mr. Johnson, but he was undoubtedly in on those conferences.

Q. Do you know of any matter that was handled by the Interstate Commerce Commission with Mr. Johnson?

A. I am not sure whether any of the letters were written to Mr. Johnson, that you referred to, or written direct to Mr. Eckert, but I have no doubt that there were several conferences between Eckert and Johnson.

Q. You only say you have no doubt, because you assume that was the practice?

A. Because I know that was the general practice. I operated very closely with Mr. Johnson and I know how he handled matters.

Q. Mr. Johnson's offices were in St. Louis? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you mention Mr. L. A. David. That deals with condition of equipment and engine hire? A. Yes.

Q. Have you heard any testimony on that subject?

A. No, I have not heard any testimony on that subject, but the matter is referred to in your exceptions and I have assumed that before this hearing is over that some testimony of that kind would probably creep into the case.

Q. But up to the present there has been none offered?

A. That is correct.

Q. So, his testimony on that, so far as the present situation is concerned—

The Witness: I make this further explanation as to how I happened to know what Mr. David might know on this subject. At the time we had the conference considering the motion to appoint a separate trustee, filed by the Walker Committee back in 1917—1937, Mr. David was the man best informed on this question and was the man then expected to take the witness-stand if it should become necessary to put him on the stand.

Q. On the condition of equipment and engine hire?

A. Yes.

Q. You mentioned Mr. Booth: What testimony might he have offered?

A. Mr. Booth was one of the oldest employees of the Texas Lines; he had been with them all his life, and was Chief Traffic Officer of those lines, and would have an intimate knowledge of whether those lines had been deprived of revenue by diversion of traffic, or whether there had been any improper division or adjustment of division that would prejudice or impair the stock of the Texas Lines, and to that extent his testimony, if available, would be beneficial.

Q. When you speak of "improper division", would you clarify that a little?

A. I mean any undue reduction of the division that the Texas Lines were receiving, particularly from the Missouri Pacific after the Missouri Pacific took over the Texas Lines.

Q. You mean, the division of freight?

A. I mean division of freight revenue and passenger revenue, but particularly freight.

Q. You referred to Mr. White: He was General Solicitor?

A. Mr. White was General Solicitor from 1915 until the time of his death, in 1935. He was directly connected with the Missouri Pacific and not with the Texas Lines, and would have a rather restricted knowledge of the questions involved here, but it is conceivable that he would have some information that would be desired by one or both parties. Like Mr. Cannon, I frankly confess that the necessity of him being present is nothing like as imperative as the necessity for men like Mr. Johnson and others who handled the Texas matters.

Q. Who are the others whom you include with Mr. Johnson? A. Well, Mr. Frank Andrews.

Q. Do you say that Mr. Johnson and Mr. Andrews are the most important?

A. It depends on the particular issues. Mr. Safford was probably the most important of all. Mr. Johnson was here in St. Louis, as were Mr. Cannon and Mr. White, and as between the three of them, I would say that Mr. Johnson's testimony would be much more essential than either Mr. White or Mr. Cannon.

Q. Mr. Johnson would testify on what specific issues?

A. Mr. Johnson would testify on matters of accounting, on the accounts and why the accounts were handled in certain ways. He was the Chief Accounting officer; had vast experience in that respect, and was very decided in his opinions.

Q. I think you once testified that the Accounting Department of the Missouri Pacific is a very large department? A. That is correct.

Q. Having employees numbering perhaps as many as a thousand?

A. I believe I said over a thousand, but I don't recall.

Q. That still is a very large department, having employees of such amount?

A. Yes, we have—if I may explain briefly—the general office accounts, the general accounts such as you have been referring to here; and then we have separate divisions of the accounting department, such as Auditor of Freight Receipts, Auditor of Passenger Receipts, Auditor of Station Accounts, and different divisions of the accounting department that specialize in particular matters that may not be directly involved in this proceeding.

Q. I wonder whether you wouldn't explain and clarify a little more fully what you would have expected Mr. Safford to testify to.

Mr. Kitchel: I object to that. There have been letters put in evidence from Mr. Baldwin to Mr. Safford asking about certain things, and it doesn't make any difference what this witness—

Mr. Kirschbaum: We join in the objection that the question has been fully answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

Q. What would Mr. Niven, general officer of Missouri Pacific, how would his testimony affect this matter?

A. I imagine Mr. Niven—I mentioned Mr. Niven and Mr. Huntsman casually, Mr. Niven was Mr. Johnson's assistant, just as Mr. Peet is today Mr. Eckert's assistant, and it is conceivable I might have been on some of these transactions, but I know of none personally, and only mentioned his name casually. Mr. Huntsman was vice-president and assistant treasurer and secretary in New York, and his name, I believe, was mentioned once or twice during these proceedings, and I therefore added it here rather casually. I don't know to what extent he would be an essential witness. Probably all he could testify to could be covered by Mr. Wyer and other witnesses that were in the New York office.

Q. May I ask you one further question. Did you have anything at all to do with the preparation of Comstock's proof of claim, identified as Exhibit No. 1?

Mr. Kitchel: I object to that, your Honor. It is not proper cross examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Brandwen: Exception.

That is all.

(Witness excused)

Mr. Kitchel: Now, my motion to dismiss, or rather to overrule the objection and claim for equitable treatment, so far as it deals with Objection No. 19, is based on the following. In the first place, the transactions complained of occurred during the period 1924 to 1932. That is to say, from eighteen to twelve years ago. This proceeding under Section 77 was started in March, 1933. Trustees were appointed in that year. In the year, I think, 1935, Mr. Thompson on the stand testified that he held a conference with the various counsel who were interested in this proceeding, and when Mr. Brandwen was present. At that conference there was discussion as to various irregularities, or rather the discussion was as to whether there were any irregularities. Some things were discussed at length, and at the conclusion of the controversy Thompson asked whether anybody had any other points to raise of irregularity, and none was mentioned except the two that were under discussion, two or three that were under discussion.

In March, 1936, the records of this court will show that the Trustee filed a motion stating that he had discovered no irregularities, except one or two therein specified, and suggesting that request be made of the Interstate Commerce Commission for any information they had as to irregularities. Request was made, and no result from the Commission. That motion and order were matters of record, common knowledge, could be ascertained by any one interested in this case.

In 1936 and 1937, during the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed plans then pending, the question of these advances was testified to at length. Referring to the transcript of testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Wyer, in Volume 3, pages 529 to 538, gave direct testimony in regard to the advances made, and my recollection is that it was at that time that he put in the Exhibit No. 226, which has been discussed in this case already, later on, being cross examination, in Volume 20, pages 3367 to 77, he testified as to what the advances were spent for, what the money was spent for; controversy continuing in Volume 21, pages 3583 to 3592, he testified that these advances were not used for the payment of dividends, but for expenditures for betterments and improvements. All through that period there was a great deal of testimony as to various points as to which evidence has not been given here, but points which are raised in Comstock's specifications of objections as to diversion of traffic and a number of things that are specified in subdivision "J" of his specifications, beginning on page 18 of his specifications—of his objections. Testimony of that was given at length, and the matter thoroughly threshed out.

Again, in 1937, a motion was made by either the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico committee, or the trustee under that mortgage, or both of them jointly, for a separate trusteeship, and there again the question of these advances was spread on the record at great length.

In January of 1940, the Interstate Commerce Commission handed down its report approving the original plan, and I am reading from what is known as the "Submission Book," that is to say the papers that were submitted to voters on the submission of that plan; on page 46 of that report it is stated as of January 1, 1940, the New Orleans owed the Missouri Pacific $10,565,227.00, on advances by the latter company to the former. They go on to explain about the notes that were given. They don't say they assume it; they say the New Orleans owed it. That plan came before this court on objections first in July of 1940, and then the hearing was adjourned to October, after taking some testimony. Your Honor will recall that there were quite a number of objections filed to that plan, but you will search in vain for any objection in regard to this inter-company claim. After considering the whole subject the court approved that plan. I do not mean to say at that time the court examined into the advances, because there was no objection, there was no reason why it should; but I am just calling attention to the fact that this matter has been rather rampant for quite a long time.

Then the next thing that happened was in August, 1933. Mr. Thompson testified to the receipt of a letter from Mr. Biggs, as Mr. Comstock's counsel, suggesting that he, Thompson, should take some proceeding in connection with this inter-company claim, evidencing the fact that in August, 1943, counsel for Mr. Comstock was quite familiar with the situation.

The next thing that happened was the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in October of 1943. There counsel for Comstock raised this point: He attempted to put in some proof by cross examining Mr. Wyer. The Commission correctly held, or the Examiner who was presiding, correctly held that that was not proper cross examination. He then should have, and could have, if he had prepared himself, put in his proof, which was the proper time for him to do it. He did not do it. He simply read an offer of proof, called no witnesses, putting in no documentary evidence.

The Court: What occasion was this, Mr. Kitchel?

Mr. Kitchel: This was the hearing before the Commission in October of 1943.

In August, he had written to the Trustee a letter which indicated that he knew what it was all about, but he made no attempt at that hearing to put in any proof.

After that hearing was closed he submitted a brief in which he questioned not only this inter-company claim, but the Alleghany situation, just put in a brief. Then he didn't do anything until after the Commission submitted its report of July 4th. Then he produced another client, the same counsel, Mr. Biggs, produced another client named Foley. And on July 21st, last, he asked leave to have Mr. Foley intervene for the purpose of contesting this claim. I was here and argued that at some length. Among other grounds for moving to dismiss was the ground of laches. That petition was denied. That was in July.

Then he waited until after this court had made its order of October 31st, setting this hearing, and calling for objections. After that, if it please your Honor, he brought on a hearing before your Honor on December 1st, asking leave to intervene and to prosecute, to contest the claim which had been filed with the Special Master in the name of the Trustee. That probably was denied because the Trustee opposed it, but we also interposed then the defense of laches.

Now, Comstock and his counsel have waited eleven years before they really bring this point to an issue. I again refer to, stealing more of Mr. Leisure's thunder, Mr. Leisure, in his argument, cited a decision by Judge Hinks, in the New Haven case, where the court said, "Clearly it will frustrate all progress in matters such as these to wait until after the Commission has reported the plan and then for the first time seek an adjudication upon a claim."

Now, one of the elements of laches, the doctrine of laches, is detriment to the opposing party. I have submitted Mr. Railey's affidavit, and Mr. Brandwen has very kindly brought out the point on which some of these deceased gentlemen could have testified, if they were here. For instance, Mr. Eckert, the other day was asked about some entry on the books. He attempted to explain it by a memorandum which Mr. Johnson had prepared, and that was not admitted in the evidence. Mr. Johnson could have testified as to his explanation had he been alive. Safford, being the chief executive officer of the Texas Lines, received numerous letters from Mr. Baldwin, calling upon him to take certain action. He could testify on matters which are extremely relevant to this case. I won't go through all. Mr. Brandwen has done it for me. But the fact that those witnesses are not now available to those who are defending this claim, is a decided detriment, and makes the defense of laches almost imperative.

I could, however, in that connection mention the absence of Mr. Frank Andrews. Testimony was given here that he had approved the payment of certain dividends, a very important question upon which light might be thrown if he were alive. Some of the parties mentioned in the affidavit would not have had knowledge in regard to the financial transactions which have been testified to here, but they certainly would have had knowledge in regard to the allegations contained in a number of the specifications of Objection 19, particularly the one of subdivision "J", to which I have previously referred, based on the subject of these parties. I say the delay in bringing these matters to the attention of the court, furnishes a detriment which makes our claim of laches complete.

Now, as to the party who is making this objection. It appears from the record of the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in October, that Mr. Comstock acquired his ten secured serial bonds sometime late in 1942 or early 1943. His wife acquired her seventy bonds at about the same time, both of them at about ten cents on the dollar. Now, although he had only recently acquired these bonds, he is bound by the action, or lack of action of his predecessor in title. Notice of the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, of all the hearings on the plan, notice of hearings before this court were duly published. His predecessors in title were charged with that notice, and as their successor, he is likewise charged therewith.

There is a general principle of equity that a party who desires to complain of corporate action must have been the holder of a security of that corporation at the time of the transaction complained of. That principle has been embodied in one of the rules of civil procedure; I think it is Rule 23-B, in the case of an action by a stockholder who questioned some corporate action. Now, although Mr. Comstock is a holder of a bond of the Missouri Pacific, he is an equitable holder of the stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and he is complaining as such equitable owner of that stock. It does not fall directly within the language of that rule, because it is not strictly derivative. But the situation is comparable. The same rules of law should apply to it. And I submit that he is not the proper party to raise this point.

Now, in his objections Mr. Comstock states that he is objecting for himself on behalf of himself and fourteen owners of at least $900,000.00 additional secured bonds. But he had not taken the trouble to advise the court who these parties are, when they acquired their holdings, or how much each had. He should not be heard in their behalf.

Now, your Honor, we contend that it is inequitable and unjust to permit the reorganization to be delayed by a party who only recently acquired an inconsiderable amount of bonds, and who has at stake a negligible amount of money, and who waits until after the plan has been approved by the Commission, before he offers any evidence in support of his claim that the inter-company claim is invalid. It is unfair that the distribution of millions of securities to bona fide investors should be held up in this matter. It is subversive of the public interest in two respects; first, because it compels the management of this great railroad system to constantly come to this court for authorities, for almost every important step it wishes to take. The court has always been helpful, but this procedure necessarily takes up the time of the officials and employes of the road who, during this war time have the most unprecedented job that has ever been presented to railroads.

It is detrimental further to the public interest in that it compels this court to be—to continue to be burdened with a constant stream of motions that will cease as soon as this plan of reorganization goes through. On all these grounds, your Honor, I move that the objection be overruled and the claim for equitable treatment denied.

My attention is called to the fact that on page 2839, referring to the parties holding Missouri Pacific secured bonds, represented by this counsel, they purchased the bonds as a speculation in the latter part of 1932, and early in 1943, at a price of about ten, and acquired the stock in the latter part of 1942 at about five dollars or six dollars a share.

Mr. Kirshbaum: If your Honor please, I simply wish to renew my motion and move to dismiss on the grounds stated.

Mr. Homire: If the court please, I would like the record to show that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation joins in the motion of Mr. Kitchel to dismiss on the ground of laches, and the motion to strike out, also.

Mr. Pierce: If your Honor please, the debtor would like to join in the same motion.

Mr. Brandwen: I assume everybody who wanted to join in that motion has already spoken?

The Court: I think they have all joined.

Mr. Brandwen: I just wanted to be sure that no one is left out.

The Court: I think Mr. Kirshbaum joined in the motion of his own, is that correct?

Mr. Kirshbaum: Yes.

Mr. Brandwen: And I don't know whether Mr. Homire was joining in any particular motion, or making his own independent motion.

Mr. Homire: I joined in Mr. Kitchel's motion. I do not join in Mr. Kirshbaum's motion particularly. I want to say I do not join in his motion insofar as it is based on the first two grounds he advanced in support of his motion, and I don't join in those.

The Court: What were the first two grounds, Mr. Kirshbaum?

Mr. Kirshbaum: That this objector was not the proper legal party to assert the objection, on the ground he had not obtained the permission of the court, or the Trustee, on which to present this claim, on the ground that otherwise this court would constantly be besieged by a number of similar suits brought by people owning a few securities who might come in here at any time and say they represent this group; and so that was the first ground; the second ground was that this objector has mistaken his remedy; that his remedy was not in the form of an objection, but was in the form of a claim; that if he had any claim he had to assert it against the Trustee after first complying with the rule of law which requires him to obtain permission of this court to assert an objection to that claim, or to obtain permission of the Trustee to assert that claim. And I don't wish to tell the counsel what he should do, but it is my humble opinion, your Honor, that he should have appealed from any refusal of the Trustee, or of the court to grant him permission to assert his claim. That, I think, is the proper procedure, and not to stall this plan of reorganization by bringing in a claim.

I am going to say here, your Honor, when I say stall this plan of reorganization, I want your Honor to understand that we want the plan thrown out, but as I said in the beginning, we don't believe that this is the way to do it.

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I am glad to know, at least, that Mr. Kirshbaum—Mr. Kirshbaum's distinction on that point.

If your Honor please, I am not going to take much of your Honor's time with respect to answering the motions made by the various parties. I think that what has appeared this morning has demonstrated beyond peradventure of doubt that what we have to deal with on a great number of considerations is lack of information with respect to what is going on. If at this stage of the proceedings any one can argue seriously that what we should have done is ask this court for leave to file objections, and in the name of the Trustee, when we did everything we humanly could to do that, indicates the certain lack of information with respect to what is going on. I am just amazed. One of the suggestions made was that we should have appealed therefrom. There is an appeal pending now. And when I argued this matter before the Circuit Court of Appeals, to have the other matter disposed of, I got the very clear impression of course, there would be a full hearing on this matter before this court, and at this late stage to suggest that we have no standing because we did not ask this court for leave to file objections in the name of the Trustee, is simply incredible, and these matters are being presented, I assume, seriously. You find people blowing hot and cold here; hot when it is to their interest, and cold when it is to their interest on another matter. After all, while perhaps it may be that in certain situations, as Emerson says, that consistency may be the [hobgobblin] of vain minds, certainly I think in a matter like this, a certain amount of consistency might be in order. But after listening to the arguments in these mat-ture since I have been here from January 8th, I have given up any hope of finding any such thing.

The same way, for example, one day when Wyer is against one, he indulges in arithmetical [legerdemain] and pencil magic. The other way, when Wyer is with him, then he testifies very fully and the greatest expert. Now, that is what we are dealing with here, very general movement, very fine opportunism, use anything and anybody as long as we can get a certain result. Now, when they speak of Mr. Wyer's full testimony on this claim—now, this has been referred to time and time again, this claim has been fully dealt with before the Commission, and this is what Mr. Kitchel said this morning. I have got the pages, so I don't have to rely on the record at the moment, because I made notes of what Mr. Kitchel says. This is the extent of Mr. Wyer's testimony with respect to this whole problem of advances involving over ten million dollars. He testified on pages 529 to 538, in the claim; that was his direct testimony, on all the advances, and he testified beyond pages 3367 to 77, on what the money was used for, and 83 to 92, that it was not used for dividends, a total testimony of twenty-eight pages, and there was one exhibit, the one that was shown the other day. No facts, just a lot of figures put on, and that is all the testimony. And that is the much-vaunted development presentation of an eighteen million dollar claim, that was made before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that is the testimony on which they ask this court to rely.

Now, if that itself is not as convincing a demonstration of how little the Commission went into this matter, or knew about this matter, I don't know what else is necessary. Balance sheets, figures, when advances were made, what was done with them, allocations of all sorts of matters, I am not going to go into these matters, frankly, if your Honor please, because I am not going to indicate what significance may be given to certain information and testimony that is already in the case. Because, if your Honor should rule, should deny their motion, I am not going to indicate at this moment just how certain matters should be dealt with, certain matters of testimony, or what the significance is of certain matters, and what relationship they have to very important legal principles. That I am going to do at some later time.

Now, that is all there is in this record before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Now, then, they referred a good number of times to Judge Hinks' statement. When Mr. Biggs appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 19, 1943, at the very, very first hearing, after your Honor returned the plan to the Commission, the very first hearing, he raised the question about the validity of the claim. The reason why the Commission did not go into it is not because it was not proper cross examination, or should have been direct examination. It was because the Commission took the position as stated at that time, giving the statement given to Mr. Biggs, "If there is something wrong with that claim, you go to the court about it and don't bother us and the Commission about it."

Now, then, what is the pertinence, what is the relevance of all of these cases that say, well, now, if you had something why didn't you take it up before the Commission, when, in an attempt to take it up before the Commission, at its very, very first opportunity, when this matter was returned to the Commission, the Commission said, "Why, this is a matter for the court; don't bother us about it." What to expect, Mr. Biggs, or what could have anybody expected Mr. Biggs to do under those circumstances? That was a ruling. Of course, he did the next best thing, he just made an offer of proof under the circumstances; what else could he have been expected to do? There was nothing else that he could have done, and one thing is clear, the Commission states in its report of July 4th, it has not passed on the validity of the claim, just made an assumption. But that is a matter for the court to determine.

Now, in this connection, and I mean no offense when I say what I am about to say, that when Mr. Kitchel said that he would like to steal a little of Mr. Leisure's thunder —I mean no offense, Mr. Leisure—I prefer to follow that light from the Supreme Court, and this is the light thrown in this matter by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court says, and says so in language that there can be no question of doubt in anybody's mind, it says, "For example, there may arise controversies over the priority or the validity of claims." This is a matter involving validity of claims. And the Supreme Court goes on, this is in the Western Pacific case, the recent case, "The Commission finding involving such problems would require an independent examination and affirmation by the court." So that here you have a situation where the Commission itself said, "We are not even going to examine it." So, of course, it has to be examined by the court. But the Supreme Court says that even if there were a finding by the Commission this court would still have to make its own independent examination, and the words, "independent examination," are quoted from the Supreme Court's opinion.

Now, you cannot have any clearer language than that. When they referred to what Judge Davis ruled some years ago, if they meant to suggest when they quoted Judge Davis' opinion that if it is not taken up before the Commission you cannot deal with it afterwards, then all I can say, with all due respect to the late Judge Davis, that his decision was handed down long before this recent Supreme Court decision in the Western Pacific case. That is the law. And certainly, if there should be any conflict between the late Judge Davis' understanding of the law, and the Supreme Court's understanding of the law, and statement of the law, why, there is no question as to what your Honor has to be bound by. That is why it is either Judge Davis' opinion is material, or is not. If it is material it is overruling, if it isn't material, why, let's not waste any time about that.

Now, the Supreme Court of the United States sent back to the court, when the court refused, or failed to resolve a dispute as to whether certain properties were covered by a mortgage, or not, and there is just no way, if your Honor please, that when a matter is called to your Honor's attention, that may [effect] the rights of the parties, I go so far as to say that irrespective of how it is called to your Honor's attention, who it is who calls it to your Honor's attention, the source of that is utterly unimportant. But if it is called to your Honor's attention, and that is an issue that may affect the priority or the validity of a claim, I say your Honor must, as a matter of law, under the decision of the Supreme Court, resolve that dispute.

Now, I want to say this further, a good deal has been made, a good deal is being made of the fact that Mr. Comstock bought these bonds at a late date, and as though that made any difference. Or they say that Mr. Comstock bought them at a low price, as though that made any difference. I don't see any objection being raised to the New Orleans Bondholders Committee, when I stated yesterday afternoon what they did. I rely on the fact that once this issue is raised, and I plead with your Honor, that the only way in which the Supreme Court mandate can be observed is by the resolution of this dispute; otherwise, this estate will not have had the benefit of that kind of administration to which it is entitled.

But I want to go beyond mere reliance on these broad principles that have their origin in the legislative history behind Section 77, that are expressed in Section 77, and that are express Supreme Court decisions. I should like to point out first, that no matter how small the interest is that opposes any other interest, the Supreme Court has ruled very definitely on that in the case against Los Angeles Lumber Company. I think their interest was as low as one percent, and all the others agreed it just didn't matter. It is a recent case.

Now, with respect to the date of purchase, or the price of purchase, with respect to the doctrine that Mr. Kitchel referred to, I should like to call your Honor's attention to a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. We do not have to rely upon interpretations. In Consolidated Rock Products, 312 U. S., is my recollection on that, it was probably in 1941, in that case, if the record is examined, and that is referred to in the opinion of the court in those proceedings, that the objector bought the securities after the bankruptcy proceedings, and said expressly that he only paid a small amount of money for them, and the court says, I am now reading from the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals, but it deals with the facts on the matter: "Some suggestion is made that because Dubois, the objector in that case, paid only a small amount of money for his bonds, we should approve the plan." Just paid a small amount of money; has no right to be heard, that is what people in position of the first refunding bondholders group said in that case. What does the court say with respect to that? "We cannot accede to that view. First, because the court must of necessity give an informed independent judgment as to the fairness of the plan, and because whatever Dubois paid is immaterial to the consideration of the real question, is the plan fair and equitable."

Now, that is the latest word on that subject. And it is a very sound word, although that comment is not necessary from me, because that is what the Supreme Court has ruled.

Now, I don't want to argue this point in any extended fashion with respect to Mr. Bailey's affidavit, which was cross examination. A very careful examination of the testimony adduced, and particularly of the exhibits adduced from books and records submitted by officials of these roads to the Interstate Commerce Commission, disclose what the situation is. We don't have to have Mr. X's testimony to prove, when the books show and it is admitted by everybody that on certain days New Orleans, Texas & Mexico paid dividends. That is an admitted fact. We don't have to have either Mr. Safford, or Mr. Johnson to establish that fact. What the legal effect thereof may be, what significance should be attached thereto is certainly something that they could not testify with respect to. Nobody is questioning the fact that on June 17, 1931, two dividends were declared in the same meeting, and for certain amounts. Nobody is questioning the fact that within twenty days thereafter, on July 11th, another dividend of $3,500,000.00 was declared; nobody is questioning the fact as to how much of that was ever paid. Suppose they say, suppose they would have said that is what they wanted to do. What of it? The law steps in at that point and takes over. Principles of equity step in and say, "From that point we will take over," and say, give the answer to "What of it?" "We will show whether that should have been done or should not have been done."

I don't want to go into any further detail on this, not because a great deal may not be said, but because in view of the fact that I do not know how this court may rule, I do not want at the present moment to argue the significance of this testimony.

If your Honor please, Mr. Kitchel, in his conclusion stated that delay of distribution to security holders is not fair.

The Court: You say what is not fair?

Mr. Brandwen: Delay of distribution to security holders is not fair. Well, that can be discussed at great length. I don't think that security holders have been hurt at all by the administration of this estate in court. The records show their position has been substantially improved, very, very materially improved. But realizing that kind of argument might be made, we did not confine ourselves to a single issue. If your Honor please, I wish to state for the record now that just as sure as today is January 19th, Friday, if your Honor should approve the plan that is before this court, the reorganization managers will come back to this court at some later date, years from now, and say they made a mistake and the plan cannot be executed. And in years to come they will have to come back to this court, and ask this court to return this to the Commission at that time. I state that that is inevitable, and it just cannot be escaped from.

Mr. Kitchel: Mr. Brandwen seems to me to have avoided the question of laches rather thoroughly. He calls attention to decisions which say that a certain claim, or counter-claim should be disposed of by the courts. Well, we don't deny that, provided it is brought before the court at the proper time. Now, when he refers to the Western Pacific and Milwaukee cases, where they sent certain questions back to be decided by the court, but in those cases the issues as to those particular matters had been raised seasonably before the Commission. The Commission had passed on them, but the court did not. There was not any question of laches there. It was very different from this case. If this matter had been brought before the court in proper season we would have quite a different question. But it is too late now. The fact that the Examiner, when Mr. Biggs was before the Commission in October, 1943, told him to go to the court, well, why didn't he go to the court? That was in October, 1943. That does not excuse his laches.

Now, then, departing from that, Mr. Brandwen has stated that the case can be proven from the books, and no doubt that dividends were paid on certain days, and things like that, take the books, they speak for themselves. Page 15, of the specifications of his objections, paragraph (h): "In order to permit the payment of such dividends, Mott causes the debtor to keep improper records, and books of account, so as to conceal the true state and conditions of the properties, finances, and affairs of the debtor and its subsidiaries."

Well, we need the testimony of the men who dealt with those books, and are now departed, on that question.

Mr. Brandwen makes the further point that there are a number of other people in the office who dealt with these various questions, and I assume he means that they can give us the proper testimony. Perhaps they can give some, but we want the testimony of these head men who handled the things. I renew my motion.

Mr. Leisure: May I say, your Honor, I have waited patiently here for two weeks, hoping every day that we would be reached, and the time has now come when I must go back, at 12:30; and your Honor said yesterday, on my motion, that our case be set over to a separate hearing that perhaps Mr. Brandwen and I could agree upon a day. If that is satisfactory we can leave it that way, or I am willing to have your Honor set a date after this hearing is concluded, at any time your Honor thinks proper.

Mr. Brandwen: That is perfectly agreeable.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Leisure: I suppose your Honor has in mind that I have a motion pending, and I would just like to renew it at this time on all the proceedings in this matter since 1933.

The Court: You made an oral motion?

Mr. Leisure: I made a motion at the beginning of the proceedings.

The Court: Did you file a written motion? Oh, yes, you did, that is right.

Mr. Leisure: And I will just renew it at this time, on all the proceedings had herein.

Mr. Brandwen: I have the same objection in, too.

Mr. Kirshbaum: I will just take a moment, you know, to answer Mr. Brandwen's remarks with regard to the points which we raised for the dismissal and striking out of his objection 19, and related objections, to point out to your Honor, to point out that it is not all to simply raise an issue. A man must be properly before the court before he can raise a particular claim in a particular way; otherwise there is nothing to stop anybody from walking in at any time in the proceeding and at the eleventh hour go out in the market and buy a bond and say, "Your Honor, I hold one bond, I am going to hold up this reorganization. I don't care that there are hundreds of millions involved here. I bought a bond; I am a stockholder, and you will pay my price or else."

Now, I am sure your Honor will agree with me that neither the case against the Los Angeles Lumber Company, nor the Dubois case, ever intended to hold any such thing, that anybody could waltz into this court room at any time and say, "I own a security and therefore I must be paid." I respectfully submit to your Honor that the law presumes that any security holder who comes before your Honor to hold up a plan of reorganization must be a holder in due course of that security. And any security holder who comes before your Honor with a security that he has bought with knowledge of the infirmities, if any, that exist in that security is deemed to have taken it with knowledge of those infirmities.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, the Supreme Court decisions speak for themselves. There is no point that I could see would be served by arguing the Supreme Court decisions. They made them.

If your Honor please, it is true I have not dealt with these matters as fully as they could be dealt with. I could deal with each one of these matters very fully. But I think your Honor has heard a great deal of argument already, not merely this morning, but on other days, and I don't want to go into it very fully.

I find it very difficult to understand some things here. On the one hand there is a suggestion that because in 1936 the Trustee wrote the Interstate Commerce Commission, and asked the Interstate Commerce Commission whether it had any information as to irregularities by the Trustee, and because the Commission did nothing about that—I don't know whether it is argued that disposes of the matter or not—I don't know, they are not spelled out, they are not articulated.

There is a petition filed by the Walker Committee, and by the Irving Trust Company, in 1937, that sets out some of these things. There were no hearings on them.

The Court: The motion made by the Walker Committee was never pressed. It is still before the court, I think, never pressed.

Mr. Brandwen: Never pressed. No, it wasn't.

The Court: Is that correct?

Mr. Brandwen: That is correct; it was never pressed. There was an order entered by this court continuing the hearings on that application and the order recited it could be redocketed with thirty days notice.

Now, if your Honor please, I suppose the reason why it was never pressed by those parties was because the dispute that existed between them, the first refunding committee, and others on the one hand, and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico committee on the other hand, were being worked out, and since they were being worked out, there was no need, so far as they were concerned, to have that pressed. But the mere fact that parties in interest can work out an accommodation amongst themselves, does not exorcise the existence of an issue or a problem; the problem still remains. If a wrong was done, if the claim was invalid, the [merely] fact that these parties were able to arrive at an accommodation among themselves, on other grounds, does not in any way remove that fact that that claim is still there; that claim has to be determined. And the fact is that at this present moment that matter is still before this court.

Now, I am not going to argue at this point, frankly, what should have been done in 1937, or what should have been done by the various parties thereafter, not because there wasn't a great deal that should not have been done, not because they didn't have it in their power all the time to have something done that would dispose of the matter, and the problem, and the task was theirs; and when they did not do it they cannot now complain. I say a great deal can be said about that, I don't want to do it at this moment, but I do think that any one who has an interest in the administration of this estate would want to see that problem disposed of once and for all, and if there is a judicial determination, then these fantastic fears conjured up in the minds of certain people would not come into being, because if there is a judicial determination of this claim nobody else can deal with it, it becomes res adjudicata, and that is the thing that we want to have determined.

Now, the problem of laches: It is, oh, I suppose, a good rod to use to beat certain people with sometimes. Sometimes it applies, sometimes it does not. It is a very general term. I don't understand what Mr. Kitchel means that after Mr. Biggs did everything he humanly could to get the matter heard by the Commission, and the Commission said, "We won't hear it," and that was the very first hearing, I will repeat. When you speak about a seasonable presentation of a position, how can anything be more seasonable than the presentation of the matter at the very first hearing? And still the Commission said, "No, we want you to take this up with the courts." Now, Mr. Kitchel complains, "Why didn't he do it right away?" It was done six or seven months before these hearings began; and I think the record will disclose very clearly that one of the motives in having it done six or seven months before these hearings began, was that this matter might be out of the way before the hearings began. But at that time it was the order of the day to blo ; hot, now it is the order of the day to blow cold.

Now, coming to this very, very interesting affidavit that was submitted this morning. As an illustration, if your Honor please, of how utterly unworthy of effect that could be given to this, now, I want to call your Honor's attention to the fact that Mr. Railey says, "If these men were living today they would be in a position to offer substantial testimony," and because they are not living today they may be laches. Who is the first man whom he mentioned? Mr. William H. Williams. Do you [——] when Mr. Williams died And I am reading from Mr. Railey's affidavit, in 1931, two years before these proceedings, 77 proceedings, began. At the suggested—

Mr. Kitchel: Seven years after the transaction started.

Mr. Brandwen: When you are dealing with time, if your Honor please, the Deep Rock, Taylor against Standard Gas & Electric, decided in 1939, the transactions dealt with were in 1919, twenty years before the decision by the Supreme Court.

Mr. Williams died in 1939. What could we have done then? Got the deposition of Mr. Williams in 1931, on the notion—before he died, that he might die, and that in 1933 there might be bankruptcy proceedings, and that later on there would be a claim asserted? And still, that is the first name given here. The man died October 14, 1931. And we are guilty of laches now because Mr. Williams is not alive, and that if we had been more active we might have gotten Mr. Williams' testimony.

The Court: Oh, I don't think there is anything to that.

Mr. Brandwen: Now, with respect to these other people, no matter when we would have started these proceedings, the effect of this affidavit really is no matter when we would have started these proceedings, we would not have been able to use these men and they could not have used the argument of laches. Therefore, I think, if your Honor please, the argument of laches has no place here, for a variety of reasons, factual and legal.

Mr. Kitchel: It isn't a question, your Honor, whether my opponent should have used those witnesses, it is a question of whether I could use them. They are not here.

The Court: That is all on this question then, gentlemen?

Mr. Kitchel: That is all I have, your Honor.

The Court: No one else that wants to be heard at this time?

The only other matter then is in regard to the form of this order, is it not?

Mr. Homire: And fixing of the date for the resumed hearings.

The Court: Yes. Well, I would be glad to hear any suggestions from counsel on the date.

Mr. Kitchel: One of our chief witnesses, your Honor, will not be available until February 19th.

The Court: What about Monday, February 26th? Would that be an agreeable date to counsel?

Mr. Kitchel: I was just trying to figure the time, your Honor, of March 5th, the Missouri Pacific hearing on allowances in Brooklyn.

The Court: I suggest Monday, February 26th.

Mr. Kitchel: I think that will be satisfactory.

Mr. Brandwen: If your Honor please, as I said yesterday, I was very anxious to have the hearings continue right now, but in view of the fact that Mr. Kitchel stated there were certain personal considerations of his, that made it necessary for him to return, I am agreeing to it on that basis.

The Court: I could make one further suggestion if you want to place it after the March 5th hearings. I can give you a date right after that without any difficulty.

Mr. Kitchel: It would be a little more convenient.

The Court: How about Monday, March 12th?

Mr. Kitchel: That is all right.

Mr. Dearmont: I have no concern about when the gentlemen set their case, but if they think the hearings in Brooklyn will only last two or three days they are optimistic, because, representing the Trustee, I know it will take time. The last time I was there a whole week, and then adjourned to Washington for two or three days more.

The Court: Will March 19th be agreeable to everybody?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. Kitchel: Yes, that is all right.

The Court: All right, it will be March 19th, then. And those motions will be taken under submission.

Mr. Brandwen: I don't know what arrangement your Honor would like to have with respect to briefs.

The Court: Do counsel wish to file briefs? This does not give much time for briefs.

Mr. Brandwen: No.

The Court: What are the views of counsel about filing briefs on these motions, do you desire to?

Mr. Kitchel: I don't think so, your Honor.

Mr. Brandwen: Then it is understood on this motion made by Mr. Kitchel this morning there will be no briefs?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Kitchel: How about Mr. Kirshbaum and Mr. Leisure?

Mr. Brandwen: They have gone.

The Court: I know they have gone.

Mr. Homire: Mr. Kirshbaum asked me to explain that he has gone, and he left these motions pending. He didn't ask me to add anything further to what he said.

The Court: They will be taken as submitted.

Mr. Homire: Now, if your Honor please, on the order of procedure, I have heard no objections.

The Court: There is no objection to the order as made, is there?

Mr. Brandwen: Yes, there is, if your Honor please. What I have objected to is paragraph 4, particularly, I am not going to deal with the formal part of that. I will come back in a moment. I think, if your Honor please, that it is not orderly procedure to suggest to the court that if the court is so disposed to invite the Commission to issue such further supplemental report on an "if" situation. I think that when this matter, now this matter is before the court, it doesn't seem to me appropriate to ask, or to suggest to the Commission, now, if I decide this matter, or the appellate court decides the matter one way, I will provide one allocation, and if they decide another way there will be another allocation, I think this might be appropriate—

The Court: It might save a great deal of time.

Mr. Brandwen: But you might have this problem, the question of the determination of what should be done, may be made a little more difficult with the Commission in doing it on an alternate basis, and I think that there is no warrant for it. If, for example, this matter were judicially determined—let us assume for the moment a hypothetical situation; let us assume for the moment that it had been judicially determined, and let us say it was judicially determined, I say hypothetically, that the claim was not valid, then at that time I could see how this kind of procedure might very well be in order, and that would be the kind of procedure that there is authority for in the New Haven case, but since this is an "if" situation, I think that is a little—I think more than little, I think it is not sound procedure, not orderly procedure. I don't think it is right in view of the fact that we have gone so far as to suggest to the Commission to do it.

The Court: It seems to me it is very appropriate.

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to make one further suggestion. I would like to say this on the first page of the order, about the thirteenth line, after the words, "joined in said motion," I would like to say, "and counsel for Andrew W. Comstock having opposed the motion," I would like that inserted. Mr. Homire said there was no objection.

Mr. Homire: No objection to that, if they oppose it.

Mr. Brandwen: Do you want Mr. Homire to write it in there?

The Court: Write it in there in your handwriting, that is all right.

(Mr. Homire thereupon inserted the above mentioned phrase, as requested by Mr. Brandwen.)

Mr. Homire: I have made the one change Mr. Brandwen asked, and the other one I think is out of order.

Mr. Brandwen: The one change as to form.

The Court: What is the other suggestion?

Mr. Brandwen: I was going to ask, and I asked Mr. Homire, I would like to state, that is in the next line after the words, "and the Court having considered the arguments of counsel," "And counsel for Andrew W. Comstock having rested after presentation of evidence in opposition to the claim heretofore filed in these proceedings against New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and no evidence having been presented in support of said claim against N. O. T. M."

Mr. Homire: I think, that is objectionable because it describes this hearing as a hearing on the claim, which is not a fact, and I think so far as when they rested is concerned, the record will speak for itself, and it is unnecessary to make a recital. I don't think it is necessary, and the way he has worded it, I think is erroneous.

The Court: Can I understand the order is signed the day it was rendered? The 17th, was it not?

Mr. Homire: Yes, the 17th.

The Court: Only the one amendment then, as interlined by Mr. Homire, will be allowed in the order.

Mr. : There are some of these exhibits submitted by Mr. Brandwen, which are subject to check, and in which we wish to make some changes. I thought I would try to get together with him in New York on that, the same as on any changes in the transcript, so that may be all ironed out before we come back the next time. Is that agreeable, Mr. Brandwen?

Mr. Brandwen: That is perfectly agreeable.

Then I understand the matter of filing briefs with respect to all this will be deferred to after the resumption of the hearings on March 19th, is that so?

The Court: No briefs filed on these motions?

Mr. Brandwen: On these motions this morning, but briefs on the plan itself, and on the resumption of the hearings after they are resumed.

Mr. Homire: I would like to be clear, if your Honor please, I don't know that any one has asked that briefs be filed in respect to any questions other than these matters that still have to be heard further, but if any one desires to file a brief on any of the other questions, I should think it would be a saving of time to have those briefs in before March 19th.

The Court: What questions do you refer to?

Mr. Homire: The question Mr. Comstock argued at some length yesterday, that is, where the plan is fatally defective on account of cash options, and the question of whether it is fair and equitable in respect of the designation of the reorganization managers and the mortgage provisions, etc. If those are to be briefed, and I don't know that anybody has asked they be briefed—

Mr. Brandwen: I am asking we have an opportunity of submitting a brief on those matters. It seemed to me that in the interest of having all this done at one time it might be most appropriate to have it done after the hearings, for example, on the resumption of the claim hearings, and the Alleghany matter, which follows the resumption of the claim hearing, be heard.

Mr. Kitchel: We are rather anxious, your Honor, to have this hearing on the plan as distinguished from the separate hearings proceed as rapidly as possible, and if anybody wants to file a brief the time should be fixed. As a matter of fact, the order calling this hearing said the briefs should be filed on November something or other, November 25th, I think it was, the answering briefs, on January 2nd. Of course, your Honor can change that.

Mr. Brandwen: I think, if your Honor please, it would be most appropriate, and I suggest with the utmost respect that I think it might be helpful if additional briefs were submitted. In view of the fact this matter is going over until March 19th, and in view of the fact until after the hearing on the claim is concluded, then, further matter is to be taken with respect to the Alleghany objection, it would seem to me all those things would have to be before your Honor, before your Honor might want to deal with the whole problem. I don't see how there would be a disposition of this matter until all those matters are in, and it seems to me that it would be helpful, and I think it would be more simplified and more unified if it were all done at one time.

Mr. Kitchel: Those two matters in separate hearings can proceed on their own course, but the other objections to the plan, so that your Honor can make up his mind what he is going to do with those, ought to be accelerated. If briefs are to be filed I think the objectors should file their briefs, it is their contention we are opposing it. We should have an opportunity to reply.

Mr. Homire: It seems to me, your Honor, otherwise it would be a waste of time, would delay the matter.

Mr. Brandwen: As far as that goes it is entirely agreeable. If we file briefs they should have time to make reply. I thought there would be time for that, and I thought in the interest of helping the court, in view of the fact that all these matters converge at one point, recognising, of course, the phase of the matter, perhaps your Honor would want to consider all these briefs, and let your Honor have a full picture of everything that is submitted.

Mr. Kitchel: The idea was that they should not converge at one point. The plan was that independently these hearings should go ahead.

The Court: There is no time set or agreed upon in the Alleghany matter.

Mr. Brandwen: That was to follow at the conclusion of the hearing on the claim.

The Court: The setting on March 19th—

Mr. Brandwen: On the inter-company plan, and when that is concluded we are to go on with the Alleghany, and we will just have to do the best we can, Mr. Leisure, and I, about fixing the time of the other matter.

The Court: I am a little confused about this suggestion on the briefs. Under what particular grounds do you ask to file the brief?

Mr. Brandwen: On the plan, the objections to the plan, such as, for example, the points made in recent days, what I call the financial fatal defects of the plan, problems of control, problems of the so-called escape clause.

The Court: I think that ought to be filed as soon as possible before the hearing.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor ordered the briefs to be filed back in November, and our brief in January.

Mr. Homire: You didn't argue these points at that time.

Mr. Kitchel: Did not even raise them.

Mr. Brandwen: I raised them. But if your Honor please, I think it would be helpful for the Court if these were put forth in brief form, so they would be before the Court.

The Court: How soon can you do that?

Mr. Brandwen: I would like to have a number of weeks for that because we have been here in St. Louis for two weeks and we have been under tremendous pressure, and a number of things have accumulated.

The Court: Well, what time do you think you ought to have?

Mr. Brandwen: Well, I think we ought to have a month at least. If we have a month at least that would bring it up to February 19th, or 20th, and after all the other matter is not coming on until March 19th.

The Court: What time does counsel want to answer the brief?

Mr. Homire: Two weeks.

Mr. Brandwen: That is agreeable.

The Court: You will be given to February 19th to have your brief in, and answering brief on March 5th.

Mr. Homire: All right.

The Court: Is there anything else to take care of?

Mr. Kitchel: We have nothing more.

The Court: You may announce the recess.

(At 12:45 p. m., the Court adjourned, the hearing to be resumed at 10:00 o'clock a. m., March 19, 1945.)

Mr. McConaughy: The Group of Institutional Investors is prepared to proceed.

Mr. Biggs: Comstock is ready to proceed.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, in order to save time I should like to hand Your Honor a copy of the exhibits which this witness will use in his testimony; also, an enlarged copy of one of the principal exhibits, showing the advances, on which I have noted the Comstock Exhibits upon which we rely as to proof. That is Exhibit 226 that was filed before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Court: Very well.

MARTIN ECKERT,

having been heretofore duly sworn, resumes the witness stand and testifies on behalf of the Group of Institutional Investors, as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Eckert, have you prepared an exhibit showing corrections in Comstock Exhibits 24, 25, 26, 37, 39, 41, 44, 46, and 131? A. I have, sir.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I object to any evidence being offered by the Institutional Investors Group in this matter. This is a claim by Mr. Thompson, as Trustee of the Missouri Pacific. If any evidence is to be offered in substantiation of that claim it should be offered by Mr. Thompson as Trustee. I believe he is the only competent party to offer evidence in substantiation of the claim.

If evidence is allowed to be introduced by the Institutional Group we are in a position of not knowing whether that evidence is vouched for and adopted by Mr. Thompson; if it is not, it is certainly not competent evidence in this matter.

I should like at this time to object to any and all evidence that is to be offered by the Institutional Investors Group.

Mr. Kitchel: If Your Honor please, this is a hearing on objections to the Plan, and all parties have a day in Court on that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Biggs: May the record show that we are making this objection to each exhibit and to each offer in evidence?

The Court: The record may so show.

A. I have prepared an exhibit showing the corrections in Exhibits 24, 25—Comstock Exhibits 24, 25, 26, 37, 39, 41, 44, 46, and 131.

Mr. McConaughy: Upon what is that exhibit based?

A. Based on company records.

Q. May I have it, Mr. Eckert?
A. Yes (handing exhibit to counsel).

Mr. McConaughy: I should like to offer that in evidence.

(The exhibit was thereupon marked Group Exhibit 1.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 234.]

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you have a group of cancelled checks and original letters, relating to the advances shown on ICC Exhibit 226? A. I have, sir.

Q. Those are all of the checks and letters relating to those advances, which were not shown by Mr. Brandwen, or not produced by him here; is not that correct?

A. They were not produced by Mr. Brandwen.

Q. I think there are three checks on the whole list that have been lost, is that correct? A. That is correct, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I am not going to offer them in evidence, because they are all listed in the exhibit to which they are appended (handing documents to Mr. Biggs).

Q. Mr. Eckert, have you prepared an exhibit listing all of the advances shown on ICC Exhibit 226, and all payments made in connection therewith?

A. I think you are referring to Exhibit 26—

Q. No; I am referring to ICC Exhibit 226. A. Yes.

Q. What is the source of that exhibit?

A. Company records.

Q. That was prepared under your supervision?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: Do you offer that?

Mr. McConaughy: Not yet.

Q. I ask you if that is the exhibit? A. That is correct.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that, for identification only at this time, marked as Group Exhibit 2, for identification.

(The exhibit last indicated was marked accordingly.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 239.]

Q. Mr. Eckert, the first advance on that Group Exhibit 2 is in the amount of $300,000., and the advance was made on November 30, 1928; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have just exhibited a check showing that payment? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: I move that the evidence be stricken out, because the claim of the Missouri Pacific begins March, 1929, and this check is dated November 30, 1928, and the exhibit shows that it is an alleged advance in November, 1928, which is before the beginning of the claim.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, before we are through that will all be explained, and I ask Mr. Biggs to kindly reserve his objection until he has heard a little more. We are going to explain that completely and show how it is tied in.

The Court: It will be admitted.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Your next is $100,000., December 31, 1928, advance of the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. December 30, 1928.

Q. You have exhibited a cancelled check for that?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: My objection will run along to this?

The Court: It may be so understood.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. The next item is $150,000., of January 31, 1929? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have exhibited the original cancelled check for that? A. I have.

Q. The next item is $250,000., February 28, 1929, and you have exhibited a cancelled check for that one?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the next item, and all the others down to October 31, 1932, have been accounted for by Comstock Exhibits. The next item is $1,261,010. on October 31, 1932. That is referred to in Comstock Exhibit 134, is it not, Mr. Eckert? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you looked over Comstock Exhibit 134?

A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. Is that exhibit a correct reflection of the books and records of the Missouri Pacific?

A. It is not a correct reflection of the books.

Q. Will you kindly tell us what is wrong with that exhibit?

A. The text of the Missouri Pacific journal entry 33, of October 31, 1932—

Q. Will you wait just one second?

(Mr. McConaughy here handed exhibit to the Court.)

Now will you start again with your comments on that?

A. The text of Missouri Pacific journal entry 33, of October 31, 1932, appears on the first half of sheet 1 of Comstock Exhibit 134.

Q. How far does that go down?

A. To the words "Memo of Journal Entry 5".

Q. All the rest is not a part of the journal entry?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Now what is your next one?

A. The remainder of Comstock Exhibit 134 is excerpted from the journal entry file which supports journal entry 33, and is referred to therein.

Q. What do you mean by journal entry file?

A. Journal entry files usually consist of papers, letters, or other instruments which might be attached to it.

Q. Which explain the journal entry?

A. That explain the entry itself, but do not have a bearing on what is entered in the books.

Q. They are kept separate and apart from the journal, in a file? A. That is correct.

Q. What is your next comment?

A. The quotation at the foot of sheet 1 of Comstock Exhibit No. 134 is only one paragraph of a memorandum which Mr. Delaney found in the file. When I was questioned about this matter by Mr. Brandwen I read a letter written by the late Mr. Johnson, sometime in 1935, I think it was, in which he explained the entire entry. I read the letter, but I understand it was stricken from the record on Mr. Brandwen's objection.

Mr. McConaughy: May the record note, that that occurred at Transcript pages 519 to 523?

Q. Have you a copy of that memorandum that was stricken out? A. I have, sir.

Q. And the last paragraph appearing on the first page of Exhibit 134 is an excerpt from that same letter?

A. That is correct. In other words, the man didn't copy the whole letter; he just copied that part of it.

Q. Is that a true copy of the memorandum (indicating)?

A. It is a true copy of the memorandum, prepared by Mr. Johnson.

Mr. McConaughy: I should like to offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute.

(Mr. McConaughy here handed exhibit to Mr. Biggs.)

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I wish to renew the objection that Mr. Brandwen made, and on which objections this letter was stricken. I also object on the additional basis that the claim of the Missouri Pacific is based on cash advances to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and Exhibit No. 3 clearly shows on its face that this does not involve a cash advance.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, this which has been marked Group Exhibit 3 is not the whole file on the matter. This is just one item. I contend that it is admissible in evidence for the reason that he put in an excerpt of one paragraph not the entire letter, and Your Honor is entitled to see the whole letter.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(The memorandum last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 3.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 240.]

Mr. McConaughy: Q. What is the next item on Comstock Exhibit 134?

A. The heading on the second and third sheets of Comstock Exhibit 134 is misleading, as the matter on these sheets is taken from journal entry files to which I have referred and the total of the—

Q. Wait a minute, Mr. Eckert. I would like the Court to see this, if you don't mind.

What is the heading there, do you have it?

The Witness: The heading on the second sheet reads—

Q. Of 134?

A. "Transcript from journal entry 33, October 31, 1932, files of Missouri Pacific".

Q. That same heading appears on the third sheet, too, doesn't it? A. Yes, it does.

Q. Not any of that page comes from the [hournal] entry; that is correct? A. That is correct.

Q. All that matter on those two pages comes out of journal entry files?

A. Out of the files, yes. Now, there is a—

The Court: What does this mean (indicating)?

Mr. McConaughy: J. E.? It gives an indication that it is from the journal entry, where it is merely the—

The Court: It has "J. E." at the head of each page.

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

Q. What is your next point, Mr. Eckert?

A. The next point is that a total was made of the advances, unpaid bills, interest on unpaid accounts, a set of totals which did not appear in the journal entry file.

Q. That is the last line under the heading "Gulf Coast Line"? A. That is correct.

Q. Those totals are not to be found anywhere in the journal entry file or the journal entry; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is there anything missing in that line?

A. He missed a very important part of that entry.

Q. How does that read, the omitted part?

A. "Credit advances from Missouri Pacific Railroad, $1,261,009.84."

Q. What is the meaning of that line as it is set up there?

A. The omission shows the Gulf Coast Lines became indebted to the Missouri Pacific as a result of this transaction. I think it a very important omission.

Q. That is the one item that shows Gulf Coast Lines became indebted to Missouri Pacific? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Show it to me.

Mr. McConaughy: You can't find it, Your Honor, because it is not there.

Q. That is the one item that would have shown, among these papers in the files of the Missouri Pacific and Gulf Coast Lines, that the Gulf Coast Lines became indebted to the Missouri Pacific in the amount of one million, two hundred thousand and odd dollars? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. What is your next point?

A. Well, attached to that journal entry was a letter referred to by Mr. Brandwen, from Mr. Wyer, relating to the amount of $1,400,000.

Q. Copy of Mr. Wyer's letter appears as the last item on the third page of Comstock Exhibit 134? A. It does, yes.

Q. That letter referred to $1,400,000. and Mr. Brandwen inquired of you where you could find $1,400,000. in advances from the Missouri Pacific: Do you recall that?

A. Yes; that was—

Q. Can you account for why $1,400,000. was mentioned at the date of that letter; do you recall the date of the letter?

A. The letter was—I don't recall the date of the letter.

Q. Do you have a copy of Comstock Exhibit 134?

A. The letter is dated August 22, 1932.

Q. When was this transaction consummated?

A. In October, 1932.

Q. Go ahead with your explanation.

A. There was a difference between the $1,400,000. and the amount that was finally agreed upon for settlement, because between that time and October 31, 1932, some offset settlements were made between the Gulf Coast Lines and the I.-G. N. which brought the amount down to $1,261,009.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, with the corrections which you have noted in your testimony, would you say that Comstock Exhibit 134 correctly sets forth the transactions as shown by the books of the companies involved, the three companies?

A. Yes; with the changes that I referred to I think it reflects the true situation.

Q. Now, then, will you kindly summarize? There has been a lot of talk about that transaction. Kindly summarize what happened there. First start out by describing who owed who, and what was done.

A. The Gulf Coast Lines owed the L.-G. N. money which they couldn't pay, and the L.-G. N. also owed the Missouri Pacific money. It was decided then that the L.-G. N. would be relieved of that debt; in other words, by passing it over to the Gulf Coast Lines, and the Missouri Pacific would receive credit from the L.-G. N. for the amount it owed it. In other words, it was to my mind as good as a cash transaction, because it represented amounts that were really due as between the roads and if offset settlement could have been made it would have been considered the same as cash.

Q. These items represented advances by the L.-G. N. to the Gulf Coast Lines, is that right?

A. Not advances; they covered bills against the various Gulf Coast lines covering various and sundry items, and that was not in cash advances, it was material and supplies.

Q. In other words, the L.-G. N. was carrying the Gulf Coast Lines in this amount of money; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Therefore, in effect it was borrowing from the Missouri Pacific to lend it to the Gulf Coast? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So those transactions adjusted that and made the Gulf Coast Lines liable to the Missouri Pacific directly?

A. That is right.

Q. For its own obligations? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Going back to Group Exhibit 2, for identification: The next item I want to take up is an advance on February 1, 1933, of $210,000. You have exhibited an original letter from Mr. Wyer to Morgan Company to cover—

A. I have, sir.

(Here ensued private colloquy between the witness and Mr. McConaughy.)

Q. The next item is an advance in March, 1929, of $109,000.: Do you have some original document that describes that advance and a repayment thereon of $8,800.?

A. Yes, I have an original memorandum I prepared while I was still located in Houston, May 12, 1933, which shows this entire transaction.

Q. What else have you got?

A. I have also a draft drawn by Mr. A. T. Cole, Treasurer of the N. O. T. & M., against the Missouri Pacific Railroad, for $109,178.60, and voucher of Missouri Pacific covering that advance.

Q. Wait a minute; let us complete the list—

A. I also have a statement prepared by me, under my supervision, at Houston, which reads—

Q. It shows the transaction, doesn't it? I just want to get that. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that prepared?

A. It was prepared in May, 1933.

Q. It was forwarded up here to Mr. Johnson at his office in the general course of business, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is all I want for the record. I am not going to offer those documents in evidence, but I would like to have you now tell us what those documents show, very briefly; make it as brief as you can.

A. They show that the Missouri Pacific advanced the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico—

Q. I forgot one item. Have you prepared a copy of an instrument by which the Missouri Improvement Company declared itself a trustee, in favor of the N. O. T. & M.?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a true copy of that deed (indicating document)? A. That is a correct, yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to offer that in evidence.

(The document last offered in evidence was thereupon marked Group Exhibit 4.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 241.]

Q. Now proceed with your explanation, please.

A. The documents show that the Missouri Pacific advanced the N. O. T. & M. $109,178., which the N. O. T. & M. applied to the purchase of about thirty acres of land at Corpus Christi, Texas, in the name of the Missouri Improvement Company. However, a Declaration of Trust was prepared for the land, leaving the ownership actually with the N. O. T. & M.

Q. The Declaration of Trust to which you referred is Group Exhibit 4, is that right?

A. Yes. In connection with that Declaration of Trust it refers to certain—

Q. Exceptions?

A. Exceptions of property, and the record shows that Cage Hardware Company purchased 17,500 square feet of this land, for the sum of $7,500., payable to the N. O. T. & M. in monthly installments. As I now recall it, that was finally paid off. Norvell Wilder Supply Company purchased 15,400 square feet at a price of $8,800. in cash.

Q. What happened to that $8,800.?

A. Missouri Pacific and N. O. T. & M. ledgers show that this sum was applied by N. O. T. & M. in payment of an equal amount of principal of the above mentioned advance of $109,178.60.

Q. And the third parcel?

A. The third parcel was 3.266 acres, sold to the S. A. U. & G.

Q. That acreage is 3.266; right?

A. 3.266 acres for $11,832., payable to the N. O. T. & M., which at December 31, 1932, remained unpaid.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, that completes, together with the proof that was offered on behalf of Comstock, the proof of each and every of the advances shown on ICC Exhibit 226.

Q. Mr. Eckert, we now come to the repayments. Group Exhibit 2 shows the first repayment, in the amount of $500,000. on June 4, 1930; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you anything to show how that repayment was applied? Look at that, is that it (indicating)?

A. Yes. That is $500,000. applied in payment of advances.

Q. What is this document you were just looking at?

A. This is a letter from F. P. Johnson, the late Mr. F. P. Johnson, addressed to me at Houston, dated June 11, 1930.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that.

Mr. Biggs: I object to the offer of that in evidence, and move that Mr. Eckert's evidence in substantiation of same be stricken. The claim in this case begins March, 1929. This payment of $500,000. was made after March, 1929—sometime in 1930. They are now trying to offset that against alleged indebtedness prior to March, 1929, and therefore it is inadmissible.

Mr. McConaughy: I might as well explain this now, Your Honor. I think if you will turn to ICC Exhibit 226, which is the basic exhibit covering these advances, you will see there are listed there at the top advances beginning November 30, 1928, $300,000.—1, 2, 3, 4 items—and the last of those four items is February 28, 1929, $250,000.

(Here ensued private colloquy between the Court and Mr. McConaughy.)

The first items are $300,000., $100,000., $150,000. and $250,000. The first began November 30, 1928 and the last of the four is February 28, 1929.

This ICC Exhibit is set up this way because the repayments shown here are applied, as I am about to show to those earlier items, and they thus leave a balance at the foot of the page of $10,565,226.

Your Honor will recall that Mr. Delaney testified concerning these advances and he applied all of these repayments to advances beginning in March, 1929, whereas they should have been applied—and that is what I am trying to prove now—to earlier advances. These earlier advances and repayments against them must be brought in in order to straighten this out.

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor, this involves a very simple proposition. The claimant says he has an account beginning on January 1st and running through June 1st—this is a hypothetical case—and that as a result the defendant owes blank dollars. All right. If the defendant comes in and shows that during the period from January 1st to June 1st $500,000. was paid on account that is certainly offset against the claim, and that is exactly what we have shown in this case. The Missouri Pacific says their claim begins March, 1929, and is for cash advanced—

The Court: March, 1929?

Mr. Biggs: That is the beginning of this claim. Now, here is an item of $500,000. after the beginning of the claim started to run, after March, 1929. Mr. Delaney set up in an exhibit this $500,000. as a credit against advances since March, 1929, and it certainly should be in as long as their claim starts March, 1929—this item is an offset item, because it was paid in 1930. Now they are trying to offset this $500,000. against alleged advances made before March, 1929.

Mr. McConaughy: Here is perfectly plain proof contrary to Mr. Delaney, that this $500,000. did not apply to advances about which Mr. Delaney talked, or to advances which are the basis of their claim. Therefore, we have got to put this in to disprove Mr. Delaney's testimony.

Mr. Biggs: We further object, because that is evidence got up in this way, not by an officer on behalf of the N. O. T. & M., but by an officer on behalf of Missouri Pacific, and is self-serving.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Mr. Eckert, you held the office of auditor of the Gulf Coast Lines and you received that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do when you got that letter?

A. Applied the amount as indicated.

Q. You made a check of it first to find out whether it was right? A. That is correct.

Q. Being right, you entered it in the account that way?

A. Entered it in the books that way.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(The exhibit was thereupon marked Group Exhibit 5.)

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have this memorandum from Mr. Johnson to Mr. Eckert, of June 11, 1930, showing a payment on account of advances in the amount of $500,000., marked as an exhibit, and offer it in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: We object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

(The exhibit last offered was thereupon marked Group 5.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 243.]

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Will you kindly state how that $500,000. repaid on June 4, 1930, was applied?

A. Applied to payment on advances theretofore made, as follows: November 30, 1928, $300,000.—

Q. Applied to principal? A. Applied to principal.

Q. $300,000. applied to principal of the November 30, 1928 advance?

A. That is correct. December 31, 1928, $100,000.—

Q. That means the advance made on December 31, 1928, was paid to the extent of $100,000.: Right?

A. That is correct. January 31, 1929, payment on account of principal of $100,000.

Q. Making a total of $500,000.?

A. Making a total of $500,000.

Q. What was the next repayment on account of these advances? A. The next repayment was $250,000.—

Q. Wait a minute. What was the date of that?

A. The letter from Mr. Johnson to me at Houston, May 4, 1931, in which he advised that the remittance of $250,000. made by the N.O.T. & M. had been applied in partial payment of interest due the Missouri Pacific on advances, reducing the amount to $117,430.56, as of April 30, 1931.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the memorandum that you just referred to (indicating)? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was thereupon marked Group Exhibit 6.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 243.]

Mr. Biggs: For the same reasons I move that the evidence be stricken out as Group Exhibit 6.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Now, the next payment was as of what date? A. It was a letter—

Q. Wait a minute, Mr. Eckert. Do you have ICC Exhibit 226 there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is an eighty-three dollar error in computation of interest, which I would like to have you point out in that exhibit.

Mr. Biggs: 226?

Mr. McConaughy: Yes.

The Witness: The fourth item under the column headed "Interest charge", the fifth item, leaves $4,217.00.

Q. What should it be? A. It should be $4,300.

Q. There is another one there, isn't there?

A. Brought down in the amount of $249,917.00.

Q. What column?

A. In the column "Interest Paid" should be corrected to $250,000.

Q. In other words, on each side of the column the same error in the amount of eighty-three dollars was made, is that right?

A. That represents approximately one day's interest.

Q. Everything in both those columns, below the date May 31, 1931, is correct again? A. Is correct.

Q. Below that item? A. That is correct.

Q. All right. That is all on that.

The Witness: This letter—

Q. Wait a minute. The next one is repayment on August 27, 1931, $200,000.; is that right? Have you anything to show how that was applied?

A. I have a letter from Mr. Johnson dated August 27, 1931, addressed to me at Houston.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the letter?

A. That is, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

(The photostatic copy of letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 7.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 244.]

Mr. McConaughy: Q. How was it applied, the $200,000.?

A. It was applied, $192,387.93 to payment of interest to July 31, 1931 and $7,612.07 in part payment of advances made January 31, 1929.

Q. The next repayment was October 19, 1931, in the amount of $75,000.: Right? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Do you have anything to show how that was applied?

A. I have a photostatic copy of a letter from Mr. F. P. Johnson, addressed to me at Houston, dated October 19, 1931.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the letter to which you refer (handing document to the witness)? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence as Group Exhibit 8.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: The same ruling.

(The photostatic copy of the letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 8.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 244.]

Q. The next item is December 28, 1931, $100,000 repaid.
A. I didn't give you how that was applied.
Q. How was that $75,000 repaid on October 19, 1931 applied?
A. Part payment of advance made January 31, 1929, $23,594.26.
Q. That was applied to the principal of that advance?
A. That was applied to the principal of that advance and in payment of interest to September, 1931, $51,405.74.
Q. The next repayment was December 28, 1931, $100,000. Have you anything to show how that was applied?
A. I have photostatic copy of a letter from Mr. Johnson addressed to me at Houston, dated December 28, 1931.
Q. Is this the photostatic copy of the letter (indicating)?
A. It is, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

(The photostatic copy of the letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 9.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 245.]

Q. How was it applied?
A. In payment of balance of principal, made January 31, 1929, $18,793.67; to payment of principal, made February 28, 1929, $21,208.58; to payment of interest November, 1931, $59,997.75.
Q. With that payment of $18,793.67 against the advance of January 1, 1929, the first three items of advances on ICC Exhibit 226 are completely repaid? A. Yes.
Q. The next repayment was on February 27, 1932, in the amount of $525,000. Have you anything to say how that was applied?

A. I have a letter from Mr. C. B. Milson.

Q. Who was he?

A. Assistant Auditor of the St. Louis office.

Q. Of the Missouri Pacific Railroad?

A. Of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The letter is dated March 10, 1932.

Q. That is addressed to you?

A. That is addressed to me at Houston.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of it? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

(Photostatic copy of the letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 10.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 245.]

Q. How was that applied, that $525,000.?

A. Applied in payment of balance of principal, made February 28, 1929, $228,791.42; in part payment of principal, made March 30, 1929, $232,083.51.

Q. That payment of $228,791.42 of principal against the balance due for the advance of February 28, 1929, completes the first four items on ICC Exhibit 226?

A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I refer you to Comstock Exhibit 1 for identification, which is copy of proof of claim. That states that it is based on advances for operation, interest, and so forth, from March, 1929, to February, 1933, and that Proof of Claim was made out on August 28, 1933; is that right? A. Yes, sir; that is correct.

Q. Therefore, on August 28, 1933, the first four of those items of ICC Exhibit 226 had been completely repaid?

A. They had been repaid prior to that date.

Q. Thus, the Proof of Claim properly refers to advances made from March, 1929, to February, 1933, both inclusive? A. That is correct, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to offer in evidence now—it has only been marked for identification—Comstock Exhibit 1.

Mr. Biggs: We, of course, object to their right to offer it.

Mr. McConaughy: I am not sure it is needed. The original Proof of Claim has been filed, but whether or not—I should like to have it offered in evidence.

The Court: You may do so.

(The document heretofore offered as Comstock Exhibit 1 for identification, was thereupon marked Group Exhibit 11.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 246.]

Mr. McConaughy: Q. To what was the remainder of that $525,000. applied?

A. The remainder of that $525,000. was applied in payment of interest.

Q. You gave that, I think, $64,125.07?

A. No, I don't think I did.

Q. All right. A. $64,125.07 to January, 1932.

Q. There was a further principal application, was there not?

A. Yes, part payment of principal made March 30, 1929, $232,083.51.

Q. On ICC Exhibit 226 that advance of March 30, 1929 was referred to as March 31, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They are obviously intended to be the same advance?

A. March 31.

Q. The next item is repayment on July 26, 1932, of $100,000.; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have anything to show how that was applied?

A. I have a letter from Mr. J. E. Anderson.

Q. Who was he?

A. Assistant to the Executive Vice-President at Houston.

Q. Officer of the N. O. T. & M.?

A. Yes. It was addressed to Mr. E. F. Barnes, Jr., who was at that time office assistant in Mr. Baldwin's office in St. Louis.

Q. He was an employee of the Missouri Pacific? A. Yes.

Q. Is this a photostatic copy of that letter?

A. It is, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

(The photostatic copy of letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 12.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 246.]

Mr. McConaughy: Q. That shows the full $100,000. was applied to interest, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next repayment was on August 1, 1932, in the amount of $60,000. Comstock Exhibit 27 shows that that was applied to principal? A. Yes.

Q. And you agree with that, don't you?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. The next item was August 26, 1932, in the amount of $225,000. Have you anything to show how that was applied?

A. That was applied—I don't have any letter on that.

Q. Is that the letter of August 30, 1932?

A. Oh, yes. I had a letter from Mr. F. P. Johnson, photostatic copy of a letter from Mr. F. P. Johnson.

Q. To you; right?

A. Addressed to me, dated August 30, 1932.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the letter (indicating)?

A. It is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(The photostatic copy of letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 13.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 247.]

Q. Referring to Group Exhibit 13, how was that sum of $225,000. applied?

A. In part payment of principal made March 30, 1929, $56,828.15, and in payment of interest to August 31, 1932, $168,171.85.

Q. The next repayment was on January 3, 1933, in the amount of $79,000. Comstock Exhibit 27 shows that that was applied to principal; is that right?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Can you identify the repayment a little more precisely than Comstock Exhibits do?

A. Well, there is an entry made on that at the time, Missouri Pacific book, showing application of principal, of December 30, 1932—

Q. In other words, it was applied to the December 30, 1932, advance of $79,000.? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific ledgers show that?

A. They do, yes, sir.

Q. The next repayment of March 29, 1933, was in amount of $100,000.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you anything to show how that was applied?

A. Photostatic copy of letter from Mr. F. P. Johnson, addressed to me at Houston, March 29, 1933.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of it (indicating)?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

(The photostatic copy of letter last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 14.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 247.]

Q. How was that applied?

A. It was applied in payment of interest on advances.

Q. Your next item of repayment is on March 29, 1933, in the amount of $75,000.; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you anything to show how that was applied?

A. I have a photostatic copy of a letter from Mr. F. P. Johnson, addressed to me at Houston, March 29, 1933.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the letter (indicating)?

A. It is, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(The letter last indicated was marked Group Exhibit 15.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 248.]

Q. How was that $75,000. applied?

A. It was applied in payment of interest on advances.

Mr. Biggs: I make the same objection to that.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Going back to Comstock Exhibits showing the application of the amounts that you have just testified to as repayments, or certain of them, what was wrong with his method of applying them?

A. He applied them all, repayments all to principal, and he didn't include them all.

Q. The ledgers of the Missouri Pacific and of the N. O. T. & M. show each of these repayments applied in the manner in which you have just described; isn't that correct? A. They do, sir, yes.

The Court: You say he applied them all to principal, but he didn't apply them all.

The Witness: He didn't list all of the amounts, all of the repayments. He didn't list them all.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. In other words, he omitted certain of the repayments, and others he applied all to principal whereas some of them were applied in whole or in part to interest, as you have just testified? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Mr. Delaney could have seen that if he had looked at the ledger; isn't that right? A. Yes, he could have.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Delaney also mentioned the Treasurer's cash book, where he found some of these items: Would the Treasurer's cash book control the accounting here, or the ledger?

A. It would not. The cash book would simply show the lump sum advanced and the ledger would show the accounting.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I would like to offer Group Exhibit 2 for identification, in evidence, since we have proved it. [See Vol. of Exs. p. 239.]

Mr. Biggs: We object to the offer of Group Exhibit 2, for the reason that the first four items on Group Exhibit 2 show clearly by their dates that they were prior to March, 1929, and also purports to try to allocate certain repayments between principal and interest, and as all of the exhibits in this case dealing with that which I have objected to, are exhibits in the form of statements from the officers of the parent company, the Missouri Pacific, directing Mr. Eckert, in most cases, how to make these advances, they are all, in my opinion, self-serving, and as the information contained in this exhibit coincides with those prior—

The Court: Are directions given in the letters of transmission?

Mr. Biggs: That is right.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I want to make sure each and every one of the items—I want to make sure about this—are each and every one of the items of advances from the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M. and of the repayments from the N. O. T. & M. to the Missouri Pacific shown on the ledgers of those two companies respectively?

A. They are, sir.

Q. Each and every one is supported by a ledger entry?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you got a memorandum from Mr. Johnson, such as those, photostatic copies of which have been offered here, did you just accept Mr. Johnson's word for it, or did you check it? A. We checked them.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute. I object to Mr. McConaughy leading this witness.

The Court: Overruled.

A. We checked them.

Q. In other words, you made sure yourself whether they were right before you entered them in your ledger?

A. I think if you would look at the last two photostatic copies of letters that were submitted, I think they are exhibits.

Q. Let's get the numbers agreed on. You are referring to Group Exhibits Nos. 14 and 15?

A. 14 and 15. You will find a notation thereon from the general accountant in the Houston office, Mr. Banks, who was then my chief clerk, in which he indicates that remittance was so applied, and the amounts agree with our accrual on both, as well as two letters that notation appears, and that was done in each case.

Q. In each case your office checked the items?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all I have for Mr. Eckert.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to have a five-minute recess before examining.

The Court: Five-minute recess.

(Recess, five minutes.)

Cross Examination,

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Eckert, these papers which were handed to you by Mr. McConaughy, but have not been offered in evidence, which pertain to the Missouri Improvement Company transaction: I will ask you to examine those papers and tell me at what date the property in question was deeded to the Missouri Improvement Company?

A. That was dated March 23, 1929 on this.

Q. Is that from records of the Missouri Pacific, or where are those records? A. N. O. T. & M.

Q. Those are N. O. T. & M. records? A. Yes.

Q. What is the date of the advance check?

A. Oh, dated March 25, 1929.

Q. March 25, 1929.

A. That is the date of the draft, yes, sir, drawn on the Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Biggs: Where is your Exhibit No. 4?

Mr. McConaughy: Shows the same date.

(Handing a document to Mr. Biggs.)

Q. What was the date of the execution of Group—that is Group Exhibit No. 4?

A. Well, the date the Missouri Improvement Company executed this declaration of trust was February 3, 1932, but—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) That is all.

The Witness: I would like to explain that, though.

The Court: You may.

The Witness: The Missouri Pacific at that time was buying a lot of property in the name of the Missouri Improvement Company.

Q. At what time, Mr. Eckert?

A. Well, probably prior to this matter, probably prior to February, 1932, probably about 1929, and a lot of that property was purchased.

Q. Just one minute, Mr. Eckert. Were you at that time connected with the Missouri Pacific?

A. I was connected with the N. O. T. & M., yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: I object to any testimony on the part of Mr. Eckert in regard to what the Missouri Pacific was doing.

The Court: Depends on how he knew it.

Q. You were not an officer or employee of the Missouri Pacific? A. Not at that time.

Q. And your offices were down at Houston at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific offices were in St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Continue with your testimony.

A. Well, I simply wanted to say that a lot of this property was bought in the name of the Missouri Improvement Company for the express purpose of keeping it out from under the mortgage in the event later some of this property should be sold.

Q. Are you testifying now of your own knowledge, Mr. Eckert?

A. Well, I know since I have been here; I have been here since 1938; I know something about it.

Q. This is since acquired, since 1938? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not at that time?

A. Not at that time. And these declarations of trust were made at different times. This was probably made at the time they rounded these things up and made these declarations. The property, however, never was—Missouri Improvement Company never was the beneficial owner of this property.

Q. Did the N. O. T. & M. have any interest in the Missouri Improvement Company? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Who is Mr. F. P. Johnson, Mr. Eckert?

A. He is the late chief accounting and financial officer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. He passed on November 11, 1938.

Q. Was he an officer, director, employee of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad Company?

A. He was chief accounting and financial officer of all the lines, yes, sir.

Q. He was an officer of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Duly elected?

A. I think he was. Also vice-president later on.

Q. Was he in 1930?

A. 1930, yes, sir. I think he was vice-president at that time.

Q. Of the New Orleans, Texas? A. Yes.

Q. In 1929?

A. I don't recall the exact date, but I think he was.

Mr. McConaughy: Look at Comstock Exhibit No. 17-B.

Q. Whose signature is this, Mr. Eckert? I overlooked it when you testified about that.

A. C. B. Milson. He was assistant auditor of the St. Louis office at that time. Now retired.

Mr. McConaughy: What number is it?

Mr. Biggs: Ten.

Q. Was he connected with the N. O. T. & M. in any way?

A. No, sir. He was assistant auditor in the St. Louis office.

Q. Mr. Johnson had his office in St. Louis, though?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. He was the chief accounting officer of the Missouri Pacific? A. Chief accounting and financial officer.

Mr. Biggs: I believe that is all for the present. I would like an opportunity—I may want to recall Mr. Eckert.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. McConaughy: I would next like to call Mr. D. R. Rodgers.

D. Rucker Rodgers,

a witness of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified, on behalf of the Institutional Group of Bondholders, as follows:

Direct Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Will you state your name, Mr. Rodgers?

A. D. Rucker Rodgers.

Q. Where do you live?

A. University City, St. Louis County, Missouri.

Q. Will you kindly state your railroad experience?

A. My railroad experience is approximately 42 years.

Q. And what has been your experience, where did you start in? A. The mechanical branch of the railroad.

Q. Are you now connected with the Missouri Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. And what office do you hold with the Missouri Pacific? A. Assistant to the chief mechanical officer.

Q. And as such, what are your duties?

A. In general charge as assistant to the chief mechanical officer, maintenance.

Q. What matters are within your jurisdiction?

A. Appropriate matters, general conduct of business for the chief mechanical officer.

Q. And that covers freight cars, passenger cars, locomotives? A. Yes. And shop equipment.

Q. And shop equipment. Mr. Rodgers, have you prepared an exhibit giving certain data on equipment for the Gulf Coast Lines for the period, 1920 to 1923, 1924, and for a period, 1925 through 1931, inclusive, showing averages?

A. Yes; I have had those prepared from the records in the Houston office.

Q. That exhibit—what did you say was the source of that exhibit? What is the source of the exhibit?

A. The records in the Houston office.

Q. Have you some extra copies of that exhibit?

A. Yes. (The witness produces some copies.)

Q. Now, by Houston office, you mean the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Gulf Coast Lines' office, yes, sir.

Q. Now, freight cars and locomotives, and passenger cars on the Gulf Coast Lines come within your jurisdiction? A. Yes.

Q. Do they not? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have this exhibit which you handed to me, Mr. Rodgers, marked as an exhibit in evidence.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 16.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 249.]

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I think it well at this time to state, I wish to object to interrogation along this line, that we assume Mr. McConaughy is going to have this witness testify as to the figures of this exhibit. I would like to be heard on that, because this objection will run to a considerable line of testimony I am sure these parties are going to endeavor to introduce.

The theory on which we are resting this case, if Your Honor please, is this: that the officers and directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company acted and were in fiduciary relationship to the property. Now, there is no question that that is fundamental law that all officers or directors are in effect trustees, and our charge is that they have breached their trust, as in the Deep Rock case the Supreme Court has held that where in the relationship of parent and subsidiary, the officers, directors of the subsidiary breach their trust, that then if the subsidiary is in bankruptcy, that the parent corporation has no right to participate in the bankruptcy proceeding, and any claim that the parent corporation may have against the subsidiary is at the bottom of the ladder, so to speak.

Now, if Your Honor please, we introduced in the January hearing a great deal of evidence as to various breaches of trust upon the part of the officers and directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad Company. However, our evidence on one facet of this case is limited to two exhibits—Exhibits Nos. 83 and 84-A and B. I do not believe Your Honor saw these exhibits when they were introduced. Exhibit 83 is a letter dated April 16, 1931, and is addressed to Mr. Safford from Mr. Baldwin, and dated at New York.

The Court: There was some letter from Mr. Safford to Mr. Baldwin.

Mr. McConaughy: There are a lot of those in the exhibits.

Mr. Biggs: "Mr. Safford: I want to impress upon you again"—

The Court: (Interrupting) Is that a letter from Mr. Safford to Mr. Baldwin?

Mr. Biggs: No. From Mr. Baldwin to Mr. Safford.

> "I want to impress upon you again the fact that although it may necessitate a much more drastic curtailment of expense than you have ever had or anticipated, the NOT&M must earn and pay its dividend this year"—

The Court: (Interrupting) Yes, I read that letter, or heard it read.

Mr. Biggs: I may be wrong about that, Your Honor. I mean, I am stating this in good faith. I don't remember it myself, very frankly.

> "must earn and pay its dividend this year and have $100,000 left in addition.
> In this connection I want further to impress you with the necessity of curtailing expenditures chargeable to Additions & Betterments and only submit or authorize such items that cannot possibly be deferred."

In reply to that letter, Mr. Safford wrote Mr. Baldwin on April 28, 1931:

> "Mr. Baldwin:"—

This is Comstock Exhibit No. 84-A and B. All one letter. Just two pages.

> "Replying to your letter of April 16th written at New York setting a goal for Gulf Coast Lines net income for the year 1931.

We have made a survey of the situation and have prepared statements indicating what we believe is a conservative estimate of the probable gross earnings, and showing operating expenses and other charges as now programmed and which are very close to the irreducible minimum unless we make some further drastic reduction in service.

The realization of the goal indicated by you is largely dependent upon gross earnings. Actual results for the first [tree] months of the year reflect a decrease in total railway operating revenues of $1,324,505, and present indications are that April will show a further decrease of something like $350,000, making the total decrease for four months $1,674,000 as compared with the same period last year. The general conditions effecting this decrease will no doubt continue but will be offset in a measure by the special movement of East Texas oil to Baytown, Atreco, and Pt. Arthur, which traffic incidentally takes a very low rate per car, and by increased movement of citrus during the latter part of the year. The major trends in our freight traffic are shown in a separate statement attached. Passenger revenues are showing a very substantial reduction under last year and there are no prospects for improvement in the near future.

Taking all these factors into consideration, we are estimating gross revenues for the year at $12,889,034, a reduction of $2,539,387 or 16.4% under 1930. As stated above, for the first four months our gross revenue will be $1,674,000 or 26% behind the same period last year.

Our Maintenance of Way and Structures expenses are now programmed at $1,801,507, a reduction of $591,622 or approximately 25% under last year. We have reduced our operating expenses in connection with improvements from $382,600, as originally budgeted, to $55,100; this involves deferring all rail and ballast work. We plan on using 150,000 cross ties as compared with 212,000 last year.

Our present program for Maintenance of Equipment means that we must hold our expenditures for the year to $2,102,409, a reduction of $621,756 or 22.8% under last year. This will be the lowest expenditure for Maintenance of Equipment since 1924 and provides running repair money only for locomotives and cars, except that we will be able to turn out about 15 Class 1, 2 and 3 repairs as compared with 49 last year. At the end of 1931 there will be about 30 engines which will have run out their assigned mileage.

Transportation Expenses are estimated at $3,654,538, a reduction of $508,189 under last year, the estimated transportation ratio being 28.35, as compared with 26.98 last year. This estimate gives effect to the reduction in passenger service on the Kingsville Division in January, amounting to approximately 242,000 train miles per annum; also, takes into consideration a substantial improvement in freight train performance as a result of placing 1200-class engines on the Kingsville Division. The estimate further involves a very close check of our supervisory, yard, and station forces which is now being done. The increase in transportation ratio anticipated is entirely due to the low level of earnings.

We will not be able to show much reduction in hire of freight cars because of the fact that such increases as we anticipate in freight traffic will be largely in oil and vegetables, involving increase in private line mileage.

Net income for the year on this basis is estimated at $457,519, a reduction of $644,382 under last year and $680,581 under the goal set by you in your letter mentioned above.

The net result falls far short of what you want to accomplish and I realize this is disappointing and am still hopeful we can improve it and we shall make every possible effort to do so. Our present program for MofW and MofE is materially under last year"—

That is Maintenance of Way and Maintenance of Equipment—

"and we have felt that we have gone as deeply into these expenditures as we could without impairing, the standard of service, but we will continue to check this further to see what more can be done, in recognition of your request."

Now, pardon me for reading that, but I think it is very fundamental.

The Court: Is there something in that indicates breach of trust?

Mr. Biggs: Absolutely. I think it very clearly indicates that the drastic reduction in all expenditures for the maintenance of this railroad, and as these drastic reductions are directly made in order to earn enough money in accordance with the orders of Mr. Baldwin, that is, there had to be sufficient to pay the dividends and have a hundred thousand on top of it, and as the dividends amount to over a million dollars a year—that is what they call the regular seven per cent dividend.

Now, as I stated, that is the evidence that we have offered on this one facet of this case, but any evidence the Institutional group wishes to offer contrary to that is, I think frankly, pertinent, subject, of course, to our general exception to their right to produce any evidence, but any evidence other than that is, I believe, irrelevant to the issues here before the Court.

Mr. McConaughy: I just call the Court's attention to the fact that Mr. Safford was writing about Maintenance of Equipment, and that is one of the things we are discussing right here.

Mr. Biggs: But it goes back to Maintenance of Equipment in 1920. Do you want to go back to 1931 alone?

Mr. McConaughy: This exhibit goes from 1920 up to 1931.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. Now, Mr. Rodgers, this exhibit, Group Exhibit No. 16—

Mr. Biggs: Well, the record shows I object to all this line of questions?

The Court: Yes, the record may so show.

Q. (Continuing) and compares two periods, 1920 to 1923 and 1925 to 1931, and it gives the averages for those two periods for purposes of comparison. Now, Mr. Rodgers, I would like first to discuss locomotives with you. What are the significant factors shown by this Group Exhibit No. 16 with respect to condition of locomotives in the two periods?

A. I would say, first, locomotive failures, which indicates the ability of the locomotive to perform its service. For the first period, we had an average of 125 failures per year, or 21,000 miles per failure. In the second period, we had an average of 43 failures per year, or 111,000 miles. Included in that average for the second period was the year 1931, in which we had 17 failures, or 204,000 miles.

Q. That is 204,000 miles per failure? A. Per failure.

Q. In other words, for the two periods, your locomotives were running 21,000 miles per failure in the first period, and 111,000 miles in the second period? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that is an indication to a railroad man of substantial improvement of locomotives, isn't that correct?

A. Very substantial.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute. I object to leading the witness.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I would like to explain the reason why I asked Mr. Rodgers to prepare this exhibit comparing the two periods. You will recall that Comstock proved that the Missouri Pacific acquired control of the Gulf Coast Lines by a contract signed in May, 1924, and that the officers of the Missouri Pacific took over on the 1st of January. That is the reason why I am taking this independent operation period and comparing it with the later period.

Q. Now, is there any other factor that is an indication of condition of locomotives?

A. Yes. We have under the Federal law inspectors of the Bureau of Locomotive Inspection of the Interstate Commerce Commission who inspect locomotives at various times through the year. They check all defects, report defects to us and to Washington. And for the first average period, 1920 to 1923, inclusive, the average of 83 locomotives was inspected, 50 or 60.3% were found defective.

Q. That would indicate a very substantial improvement in the condition of locomotives between the two periods?

A. Indicates a very substantial improvement to us.

Q. Favoring the second period? A. Yes.

Q. As regards locomotives, would you say that at the end of 1931 the locomotive condition was good? A. Yes.

Q. On the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say it was better than it was at the end of 1924? A. Yes.

Q. Much or little? A. Substantial.

Q. Substantially better. Now, what does your exhibit, Group Exhibit No. 16 show with respect to freight cars of the Gulf Coast Lines in the two periods, what are the significant features shown there?

A. During the second period, the Gulf Coast purchased or built, 1,455 new freight cars, which represented 33% of the freight car ownership as of December 31, 1931. During the same period, 1925 to 1931, 1,295 old cars were retired. These were of light construction, wooden underframe or light steel underframe. 30-ton equipment, largely obsolete, and in a worn-out condition.

Q. Now, what about repairs?

A. Commencing in 1925 and continuing throughout 1931, we extended our program of general and heavy repairs and we averaged per year repairs to 1,250 cars.

Q. Per annum. That is for the seven years?

A. That is for the 7-year period.

Q. Well, now, what would you say as to freight car condition, comparing it at the end of 1924 with the end of 1931? A. Substantially improved.

Q. Substantially improved. Now, how about passenger cars?

A. Passenger cars, during the 1925 to 1931 period, we purchased 26 new all steel passenger cars, representing 22% of the ownership, December 31, 1931.

Q. Now, what about retirements?

A. 1925 to 1931, we retired 56 light wood body, including underframe and wood superstructure, obsolete cars, which were in a worn-out condition.

Q. Now, those were largely cars that were inherited from the previous period? A. Yes.

Q. All right, go ahead. How about repairs?

A. On repairs, we extended general repairs during this 7-year period to an average of 41 cars per year.

Q. Now, those were heavy repairs you are talking about, weren't they?

A. Yes, general and heavy.

Q. Did you say how many cars? A. 41.

Q. Now I would like to have you compare the condition of passenger cars at the end of 1924 with passenger car condition at the end of 1931?

A. Substantially better.

Mr. McConaughy: Substantially better. That is all I have.

Mr. Biggs: How about taking the noon recess?

The Court: Recess until two o'clock.

At this point, 12:25 P. M., a recess was had until 2:00 P. M.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I have one or two more questions to ask Mr. Rodgers.

D. Rodgers,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand, testified further as follows:

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Rodgers, when I asked you about the improvement of passenger car conditions, one period over the other, I don't think we made quite clear which period showed the improvement. Will you kindly state which period did show the improvement? A. 1925 to 1931.

Q. Now, will you kindly state what your official title was with the Gulf Coast Lines Companies?

A. Assistant to the chief mechanical officer.

Q. And this data that is shown in Group Exhibit 16 is taken from Gulf Coast Lines books? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in connection with your description of the improvement in passenger car condition, was there anything done about facilities for making passenger car repairs during the second period shown on Group Exhibit 16?

A. During the second period we constructed a new passenger car repair shop on the Gulf Coast at Kingsville, Texas.

Q. Would you say Mr. Rodgers, that the condition of the Gulf Coast Lines freight cars, passenger cars and locomotives was adequate in 1931, for the traffic needs of the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes.

Q. That is all.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Rodgers, have you got this Exhibit No. 16?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you please tell me how many locomotives, if any, were purchased by NOTM or the Gulf Coast Lines in the year 1929? A. None.

Q. In 1930? A. None.

Q. In 1931? A. None.

Q. Now, as to freight cars, what does your exhibit show as to the number of freight cars purchased by the Gulf Coast Lines in 1929?

A. 120 cars were built new at company shops in 1929.

Q. Were those cars all built in 1929, as a result of orders in 1929, or were they the result of orders in 1928, or other years, if you know? A. 120 cars?

Q. That is right.

A. I would have to look at the records to answer that question.

Q. Will you please look at the records?

A. I don't have them with me.

Q. Will you let me know about that? A. Yes.

Q. During the course of this trial? A. Yes.

Q. How many freight cars were purchased in 1930?

A. None.

Q. In 1931? A. None.

Q. Now, as to the passenger cars, the same question.

A. Passenger cars?

Q. How many were purchased in 1929? A. None.
Q. 1930? A. None.
Q. In 1931? A. None.
Q. Now, Mr. Rodgers, in regard to your testimony in regard to locomotive failures, is this evidence as set out in this exhibit based on locomotives owned by the Gulf Coast Lines, exclusively; or does it include IGN locomotives, Missouri Pacific locomotive, or any other locomotives used on the Gulf Coast Lines?
A. It includes all locomotives that were in use on the Gulf Coast.
Q. Includes all locomotives? A. Yes.
Q. And that includes IGN locomotives?
A. They were not in use.
Q. Well, weren't there some in use during that period?
A. I couldn't say.
Q. Does it include any Missouri Pacific locomotives?
A. I couldn't say.
Q. It does include all locomotives?
A. It does include all locomotives.
Q. But you don't know whether it does include IGN and Missouri Pacific locomotives?
A. It includes all locomotives operating during those years.
Q. Will you find out for me when you are finding out the information on this other question as to whether or not IGN locomotives were operating over the line, or whether or not Missouri Pacific locomotives were operating over the lines of the Gulf Coast, and if so, how many of each?
A. I will have to get that information from Houston.
Q. Now,—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to that last request for information. The direct examination pertained to freight car, locomotive and passenger car condition. We are not going into the questions of title at all here. I don't think that is appropriate cross examination.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, the witness has testified that the locomotive failures were an index as to the condition of the locomotives. Now, the evidence is that the Missouri Pacific bought this company as of about January 1, 1925. Now, if they were operating their own locomotives over it, or I. G. N. locomotives, whereas back in the first four year period they were N. O. T. & M., Frisco or something else, that is a definite factor in the picture.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have Mr. [Rodges] explain what the request means.

The Court: He may do that.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. How would you go about getting that information?

A. You would have to go to the car accountant's records in Houston.

Q. You would have to check every day during the period, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. (By the Court) How long would it take to do that, how many men and how long?

Mr. McConaughy: How many men do you think, and how long do you think it would take to answer that question?

Mr. Biggs: I am limiting it to locomotives.

The Court: What?

Mr, Biggs: I am limiting it to locomotives.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Make it locomotives; how long do you think that would take?

A. I would say one man three or four days.

Q: (By Mr. Biggs) Wasn't it a fact, Mr. Rodgers, that certain locomotives of the Missouri Pacific were being used regularly over the Gulf Coast Lines and certain IGN locomotives were being used regularly over the Gulf Coast Lines, and the reverse was true, certain Gulf Coast Lines locomotives were being used over the IGN as a regular proposition?

A. I would have to check the records for those particular years to answer that.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, the record in this proceeding shows that the Gulf Coast Lines was leasing locomotives from the IGN and the Missouri Pacific. That is already right in the record before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Biggs: Shall I proceed, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Now, will you turn to that exhibit again, Mr. Rodgers? (Witness does so.)

Q. According to your exhibit, in regard to locomotive failures, you had one to every 302,000 miles in 1930, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you had one to every 204,000 miles in 1931?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that any definite evidence that the locomotives were not kept and maintained in as good condition in 1931, as 1930?

A. 204,000 miles is good performance in any year.

Q. I know, but compared to 1930. A. Not as good.

Q. Not as good? A. No.

Q. Does it indicate that the locomotives were not in as good condition in 1931, as they were in 1930?

A. From a failure standpoint they did not make as good a record.

Q. They did not make as good a record. Also taking the years 1930 and 1931, your exhibit shows that $1,150,000 was spent in repairing locomotives in 1930, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And only $811,000 was spent in repairing locomotives in 1931? A. Yes.

The Court: How much in 1930?

Mr. Biggs: $1,150,000, and $811,000 in 1931.

The Court: There was a good deal less traffic, wasn't there, in 1931, than there was in 1930?

Mr. Biggs: Yes, but the percentage of engine failures was much higher in 1931.

Q. Now, going down to freight car repair costs: In 1930, you spent $647,000 on freight car repairs? A. Yes.

Q. And in 1931, you spent $486,000, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. In passenger car repairs you spent $247,000 in 1930, and only $114,000, or less than 50% as much in 1931, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In maintenance of equipment you had 2,353 man hours in 1930, and only 1983 in 1931?

A. That is in millions.

Q. In millions? A. Yes.

Q. It has got thousands here.

A. All we have is thousands, and that figures out millions.

Q. And in maintenance equipment expenditures in 1930, you spent $3,083,000. and in 1931, you spent $2,269,000?

A. Yes.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Biggs: I believe that is all for the present.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. The court inquired as to whether or not traffic had fallen off in 1931, is that correct, on the Gulf Coast Lines?

A. Yes.

Q. And your maintenance program was geared to the traffic requirements, isn't that true? A. Yes.

Q. That's all.

Mr. McConaughy: I next might call Mr. Kirkpatrick.

C. S. Kirkpatrick,

a witness of lawful age, being first duly sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, testified on behalf of the Institutional Group as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Will you state your full name, Mr. Kirkpatrick?

A. C. S. Kirkpatrick, Houston, Texas.

Q. You reside in Houston, Texas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you kindly state your railroad experience?

A. I have been engaged in railroad location, construction and maintenance since 1900. I have occupied various positions from rodman to chief engineer of the Gulf Coast Lines, and International Great Northern, which I now hold. I have been chief engineer of the Gulf Coast Lines since 1916, and International Great Northern since 1925.

Q. Your authority to act in that capacity for both lines was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you now occupy the office of chief engineer of the Gulf Coast Lines and its subsidiaries? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you prepared an exhibit comparing maintenance data for the period 1920 to 1933, inclusive, for 1924, and for the period 1925 to 1931? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That relates to what railroad?

A. The Gulf Coast Lines, and subsidiaries.

Q. This is the exhibit to which you refer; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that exhibit is prepared from books and records of the Gulf Coast Lines Companies that you mentioned?

A. Yes, sir, and on reports made to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer this [is] in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I wish to object to that on the same basis that I objected to the testimony of Mr. Rodgers.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Biggs: That it is irrelevant to any issue before the Court.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. McConaughy: For the reasons I stated before, your Honor, we have selected the period 1920 to 1923, because that was prior to the Missouri Pacific control; we have set out 1924 separately, because Mr. Comstock has proved that in May of that year a contract was signed for the purchase of control of the Gulf Coast Lines; then we have taken as the second period on the second sheet of this exhibit, the years 1925 to 1931, which were the period of Missouri Pacific control.

(Said papers were thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group's Exhibit 17, page 1, and Group's Exhibit 17, page 2, respectively, for identification, and the same were received in evidence.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 251-253.]

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) That exhibit consists of two sheets. That is Group's Exhibit 17? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kirkpatrick, I would like to have you tell us a little about the condition of the Gulf Coast Lines properties, that is, the right-of-way, repair shops and things of that kind, beginning around 1920, what had gone just before 1920 that affected maintenance matters?

A. Well, the Gulf Coast Lines, like other railroads, was in federal control commencing in January, January 1, 1918, and ending March 1, 1920, and during that war period, maintenance was deferred in the way of ties, ballast, bridges.

Q. How about rail?

A. And some rail, quite a lot of rail.

Q. So that the Gulf Coast Lines emerged from federal control with a lot of deferred maintenance, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And how about additions and betterments?

A. Well, I haven't the figures directly in front of me but as I remember, additions and betterments averaged during that period around $250,000 a year.

Q. How would you generally describe the Gulf Coast Lines properties at that time?

A. Well, at the end of federal control we were in need of ties and ballast, and we had had a substantial amount of labor during the war, but we had been awfully short of material.

Q. Now, Mr. Kirkpatrick, I would like to have you take year by year the years 1920, 1921, 1922, and 1923, and describe very briefly what was done to the Gulf Coast Lines in the way of maintenance and improvements. Take the year of 1920, first.

A. 1920, there was laid 4,389 tons of new rail, and 1,857 tons of re-lay, and in 1921, there was 2,716 tons of new rail.

Q. I don't think you need to go into the— A. Details?

Q. Detail of that. I would rather have a more general description.

A. Well, at the end of 1923, and the average for the years 1920 to 1923, there had been 3,594 tons of new rail laid and 3,313 of re-lay. Cross tie renewals averaged for that same period 287,000 per annum, and patch ballast averaged 63,000 cubic yards per annum.

Q. What do you mean by patch ballast?

A. This ballast that you haul out to repair weak places in the track where the ballast shoulder has been used up, and in servicing the track.

Q. I notice your exhibit also mentions creosoted ties.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us what the use of creosoted ties does?

A. The use of creosoted ties increases the life of ties double, or more, saves labor in renewal in subsequent years.

Q. What kind of ties were in the Gulf Coast Lines track largely on the emergence from Federal control?

A. 95% of the ties were untreated.

Q. Untreated ties. How had that untreated tie situation improved up to the end of 1923?

A. Up to the end of 1923, there was 16.6% of the ties creosoted.

Q. Only 16%, roughly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what was the condition of bridges when you came out of Federal control? What sort of bridges were they? A. They were untreated pine structures.

Q. And that sort of bridgework is subject to more rapid deterioration than the creosoted, is that right?

A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. What is the relative life of an untreated bridge structure, and one that has been treated?

A. I would say untreated would be around 12 or 14 years; creosoted would be around 25.

Q. Now, creosoted ties and bridgework are considerably more expensive, aren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What would you say in general about the condition of the Gulf Coast Lines at the end of 1923?

A. The Gulf Coast Lines at the end of 1923, needed ballast, needed ties, needed lining and surfacing.

Q. Was the roadbed capable of handling the fast speeds at which your trains were operated which carried that vegetable traffic north in later years, was the roadbed capable of handling that kind of traffic at the end of 1923? A. No, sir, it was not.

Q. In fact, did you have an experience down there at one time when the cars used to run off the track because of the roadbed condition?

A. Yes, sir, we had a good many derailments.

Q. Now, then, beginning in 1924, your exhibit shows that some more was expended on maintenance, is that right?

A. Yes, sir, at the beginning of 1924, it was necessary to make heavy expenditures on the railroad.

Q. And quite a bit was done in that year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I would like to take up the second period, 1925 to 1931. I am going to have you describe in general terms what was done to improve, if that was the case, the condition of the Gulf Coast Lines roadbed?

A. Well, during that period there was an average of 5,760 ton of rail laid, new rail laid, and 1700 tons plus of re-lay. One of the large items was an average renewal of cross ties of 482,400, and maintenance patch ballast was used at the rate of 103,000 yards a year, and during that time there was substantial amounts spent chargeable to additions and betterments on ballast.

Q. Now, what about the creosoted ties now in this period? I would like you to compare the condition at the end of 1923, with the condition at the end of 1931?

A. Well, at the end of 1931, 88.7% of the ties were creosoted.

Q. In other words, from 1923, with only 16% of creosoted ties, you had moved up to, what did you say, at the end of 1931? A. 88.7%.

Q. 88.7%? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What about bridgework done during that period, the second period?

A. During that period there was a total of 72,000 plus of feet of bridge renewed with creosoted material, an average of 10,300 feet a year.

Q. How did that compare with the condition at the end of 1923?

A. At the end of 1923, there had been a total of 31,000 feet of bridge renewed, during the period of 1920 to 1923, creosoted material. We started using creosote in 1920.

Q. Now, Mr. Kirkpatrick, have you prepared a statement showing additions and betterments made to the Gulf Coast Line 1925 to 1932, inclusive? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the source of the material there, is that taken from the books and records of the Gulf Coast Lines?

A. The books and records of the auditor and the engineering department.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I object to the offer of this evidence for the reasons previously given, and also because it is a self-serving statement.

The Court: Overruled.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group's Exhibit 18 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 255.]

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Now, if we take the track condition at the end of 1931, you have testified that that improvement program, that it was expensive to put in that new rail and the creosoted ties and bridge material. What was the effect of that on subsequent operations of the Gulf Coast Lines?

A. Well, the fact was that we were able to spend less and needed less.

Q. In other words, you had gone through this heavy program in these years, and by about 1931, you were just beginning, you were just ready to realize the benefits of that program? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Kirkpatrick, before you answer this question will you give Mr. Biggs a chance to object? Do you recall a conversation which you had with the late Mr. Safford about maintenance matters in 1931? In the first place, will you tell us who Mr. Safford was?

A. Mr. Safford was executive vice-president and had charge of the lines of the Gulf Coast and International Great Northern, and its subsidiaries.

Q. He was the chief executive down on the property, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, will you answer the question?

Mr. Biggs: What was the question?

Mr. McConaughy: I asked him if he recalled—

The Court: Read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read)

Mr. Biggs: That is just a yes or no answer.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) All right, do you?
A. Mr. Safford—

Q. Just answer it yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. Will you give us the substance of the conversation? Now, just wait a minute.

Mr. Biggs: I object to that. The witness has stated that Mr. Safford is dead, and his giving this would be hearsay, purely and simply as to what Mr. Safford said, and would be self-serving upon the part of the witness.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Well, I will ask you this question, Mr. Kirkpatrick: After that conversation occurred did you undertake to cut maintenance severely?
A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time, as you recall, in the period 1925 to 1931, inclusive, do you recall any time in that period that you could say that railroad, the Gulf Coast Lines, was under-maintained?

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute, I object to that; calling for a conclusion on the part of the witness and a self-serving statement.

Mr. McConaughy: It is shown he is an expert, your Honor.

The Court: Overruled. You may answer. Want to hear the question again?

The Witness: Yes.

The Court: Read it.

(Question read)

A. No, sir.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) As a matter of fact, Mr. Kirkpatrick, didn't the Gulf Coast Lines establish fast freights schedules between the valley and Kinder, Louisiana, during this period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was a very large shortening of the freight schedules in that period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you had to have a much better railroad to maintain those schedules, isn't that correct?

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I hate to continually object, but he is certainly leading this witness, putting the answers in his mouth.

The Court: Yes, I think so. Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: I don't like to be objecting all the time.

Mr. McConaughy: These things are matters of record in this case.

The Court: I know, but sometimes it doesn't make any difference whether they are leading or not, but some of these questions, they shouldn't be leading.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I frankly haven't had a chance to look at Exhibit 18, just a casual looking over it.

The Court: Want the court to take a recess?

Mr. Biggs: No, I have some definite questions I want to ask Mr. Kirkpatrick. I may ask leave to call him back.

The Court: All right.

Cross Examination,

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Did I understand, Mr. Kirkpatrick, that during the period 1925 to 1931, there never had been any cut in maintenance of the Gulf Coast Lines, did I understand that was your answer to Mr. McConaughy's question?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. There never had been? A. Yes.

Q. There never had been any cut in maintenance during that period of time? A. He didn't ask me that.

The Court: What period of time, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: 1925, through 1931.

A. I said there never had been any cuts that hurt us.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) There never had been any cuts that hurt you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But there had been cuts in maintenance?

A. Yes, sir, that is what we spent all that money to do; that was to save money.

Q. Now, your second page exhibit, in 1930, you laid 6,254 tons of new rail? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1931, you laid only 2,494 tons of new rail, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Why the tremendous difference?

A. Our decline in use, the fact that we greatly improved the railroad, and laid a great deal of rail, a lot of rail previously, enabled us to do that. That is the reason it was done.

The Court: Q. The more you laid one year, the less you would probably have to lay the next, isn't that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) That is less rail than was laid at any time between 1920 and 1931, is that not true?

A. I haven't checked that, but if it is so, it is so. That is one of the reasons we didn't need so much.

Q. Will you look at the exhibit and see if that is not correct? 2,494 tons is less rail than was laid at any time during the 1920 to 1931 period?

The Court: Where do you find that?

Mr. Biggs: It is right at the top line of this exhibit 17.

The Witness: Yes, sir, I believe that is less rail than was laid in any previous year in that period of time.

Q. How much re-lay rail did you lay in 1931?

A. Didn't lay any.

Q. I think it is safe to assume that that is less rail than you laid at any other time between that period, is that correct?

A. Well, re-lay rail had declined, the use of re-lay rail was declining.

Q. (By the Court) What do you mean by re-lay rail?

A. That is where that is taken up on one end of the railroad and put on some other part of it where the traffic is lighter.

Q. I supposed that was so, but I wanted to be sure.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Now, we come down to the next item, that is cross ties. How many did you lay in 1930?

A. 1930, 386,364.

Q. How many did you lay in 1931? A. 225,583.

Q. Is that not less ties than at any time during the whole period that we are talking about?

A. Well, we increased the creosoted ties from—

Q. Just a minute, answer the question, Mr. Kirkpatrick. Isn't that fewer ties than any year you were familiar with?

The Court: Answer the question, Mr. Kirkpatrick, then, if you want to make an explanation, you may do so.

A. Yes, that is fewer ties.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Now, if you have an explanation, all right. I just want to keep the record straight.

A. That is what we put in the creosoted ties for, so that we could stop tie renewal. Now, we didn't put in but 268,000 in 1942.

Q. (By the Court) How much in 1942?

A. 268,000. It shows you the value of creosoted ties, and why we spent this money.

Q. You don't have to explain that to me. I eat lunch every Wednesday with Dr. Herman Von Shrank.

A. I know him. He creosotes our ties, looks after them, a very good man.

The Court: I am not setting myself up as an authority on ties, but I have heard a lot about them.

A. He is the best authority I know of.

The Court: That is what I thought.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Now, in 1930, you had 85,000 cubic yards of maintenance, patch ballast? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1931, you only had 60,000? A. Yes, sir.

Q. A difference of 25,000 cubic yards? A. That is right.

Q. And in regard to bridge renewal, in 1930, you had 5500 feet, and in 1931, you had 3,176 feet?

A. That is right, and by the same token,—

Q. Just a second, Mr. Kirkpatrick. And that 3,176 feet is less than any other year from 1920, through 1931?

A. Yes, sir, and it is in the same category as ties. Now, by the same token, in 1942, we just renewed 897 feet, showing the value of creosoting material in reducing the cost of operation, and maintaining a railroad.

Q. Now, in 1930, you had 1,907 maintenance of way employees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1931, you had 1,332, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir, that is right. 1942, we had 1,167.

Q. And in 1930, you spent $3,269,999. on maintenance of way, and in 1931, you spent only $2,150,000, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Mr. Biggs: That is all the examination at this time. I may wish to call Mr. Kirkpatrick later.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Kirkpatrick, is roadway maintenance affected in any way by the amount of traffic? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How? Explain how, just briefly?

A. Less use of track reduces the cost of labor, the amount of labor and the wear on the rail, and all other items that are affected by use.

Q. Your maintenance programs are geared to traffic requirements? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Biggs: That is all.

Re-Cross Examination,
By Mr. Biggs:

Q. They are geared to other requirements, too, aren't they, Mr. Kirkpatrick? A. I didn't understand.

Q. You just testified that the maintenance program was geared to traffic requirements. They are geared to other requirements besides traffic, isn't that true?

A. I don't know of any.

Q. The financial condition of the company has a lot to do with how much you spend on maintenance, doesn't it?

A. Yes, sir; traffic would have a lot to do with that.

Q. And the dividend requirements and a lot of other requirements enter into the picture?

A. I don't know anything about that.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that, your Honor.

The Court: Wait; counsel is objecting.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that. Mr. Kirkpatrick has not been qualified to talk about dividend requirements.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: But there are other requirements outside of traffic that are taken into consideration in determining—

The Court: He answered that already, hasn't he?

Mr. Biggs: I believe the answer is in the record. I just want to be certain it was clear.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Biggs: Q. There are other requirements besides traffic that determine how much you expend on maintenance, isn't that correct, Mr. Kirkpatrick?

A. I can't think of any; I don't know of any.

Q. You are stating that the only reason why you spent on maintenance is traffic, and it is dependent solely on traffic to determine how much you spend on maintenance; is that your testimony.

The Court: This man is an engineer, isn't he?

Mr. Biggs: That is right.

The Court: He don't know about that.

Mr. Biggs: He testified, if your Honor please, the only reason I asked him about it was he testified that traffic was the sole basis of determining how much was spent on maintenance. That is the basis for determining how much maintenance you ought to have, that may be perfectly true, Mr. Kirkpatrick; I am not arguing that.

The Court: It seems to me you are wasting time taking that up with an engineer. Why don't you get a financial man on here and ask him about that?

Mr. Biggs: The only reason I am asking him—

The Court: He testified because you asked him.

Mr. Biggs: No, he testified on direct examination of Mr. McConaughy, not because I asked him.

The Court: I am confused about it, then.

Mr. Biggs: He testified, so the record is clear, he testified that traffic was the sole basis of determining how much was spent on maintenance.

The Court: The Court is mistaken. Go ahead.

A. If you didn't have any traffic you wouldn't need any maintenance and you wouldn't have any money, so it is a vicious circle, it looks to me like. If you have a lot of traffic you need a lot of maintenance.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) But how much you actually spend on maintenance is determined by other factors and other considerations besides traffic, is that not true?

A. I wouldn't say that. In the first place, railroad track is kind of a bank where you put a lot of money, you put a lot of good ties, a lot of ballast in it, and you can level down the rough spots with it. That is the reason you use creosoted ties, [planty] of ballast, and good ballast, and good bridges. It is kind of a place you put money. You don't get it out tomorrow, but you get it out in the next few years; maybe twenty years.

Q. I understand that; I am not quarreling with that testimony, Mr. Kirkpatrick. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What I am quarreling with is, I want the record clear, is this, and I think that you didn't intend to make this impression in the record, that the sole consideration for spending money for maintenance was traffic?

A. Well, I would say in our case the sole consideration for spending money was the amount of use and business that we are doing. It is yet, and always has been and always will be.

Q. And isn't the primary consideration the amount of money on hand?

A. I don't know anything about that. I am trying to keep the railroad up.

Q. All right. Thank you.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to call Mr. J. A. Brown.

J. A. Brown,

of lawful age, being first duly sworn, to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, testified on behalf of the Institutional Group as follows:

Direct Examination,
By Mr. McConaughy:

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I have here a copy of I. C. C. Exhibit 1. It is made from the same tracing as I. C. C. Exhibit 1. I would like to show it to your Honor. It will be pertinent to this testimony.

Q. Please state your name, Mr. Brown.

A. J. A. Brown; reside at Houston, Texas.

Q. Will you please state your railroad experience?

A. I entered the service of the I. G. N. as a stenographer in the Traffic Department in 1897; worked in the rate department after about three or four years. In 1903, I was sent on the outside as commercial agent of the I. G. N. at Dallas. In 1907 I left the I. G. N. to go with the Gulf Coast Lines as Chief Clerk in the General Freight Office of the Gulf Coast Lines at Beaumont, Texas. I was with the Gulf Coast Lines until 1910. About fifteen months or a little more I was with the Trinity & Brazos Valley, which was then a separate subsidiary of the Frisco Gulf Coast Lines, coming back to the Gulf Coast Lines as General Freight Agent in 1912, and thereafter, with the exception of Federal Control I was General Freight Agent and Freight Traffic Manager of the Gulf Coast Lines until after the Missouri Pacific took over the Gulf Coast Lines in 1924, December, 1924. Thereafter, on January 1st, 1927, I was made Assistant Vice-President of Traffic at St. Louis, and I held that position until Mr. Perkins retired as Vice-President of Traffic. After the road went into trusteeship I was, of course, Assistant Chief Traffic Officer. In 1941 Mr. Perkins retired as Vice-President and Chief Traffic Officer, and I was selected in his place, held that position until last June, and I retired under the Pension System of the Missouri Pacific. During Federal Control I was General Freight Agent of a group of railroads, and moved to Fort Worth only about five months until I was returned to Houston with the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. You are thoroughly familiar with traffic conditions on the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are the duties of the Chief Traffic Officer?

A. He has the supervision of the freight and passenger traffic, rates and solicitations. In the case of Chief Traffic Officer of the Missouri Pacific, he has jurisdiction also of industrial development and agricultural development.

Q. Now, from time to time I am going to refer, Mr. Brown, to the Rio Grande Valley. Will you kindly tell us where that is located? I think that is sometimes called the Lower Rio Grande Valley?

A. The Lower Rio Grande Valley consists of about eight hundred thousand acres of land in Cameron and Hidalgo Counties, in Texas, with a little bit also in Willacy County, it is about twenty-five miles wide, perhaps, at its widest point, and about fifty to sixty miles long from Brownsville out to Mission, and a little beyond Mission now. The Valley is irrigated and cultivated and produces revenue freight.

Q. That is down at the southernmost tip of Texas?

A. Southernmost tip of Texas, which is just about the same parallel of latitude as—

Q. Key West? A. Key West, I think.

Q. And it has a very mild climate, isn't that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are the chief products of the Rio Grande Valley?

A. The chief products of the Rio Grande Valley are winter vegetables and citrus fruit. A lot of nice cotton is produced down there, also, but that is between seasons.

Q. Are the climate and soil down there well suited to the growing of winter vegetables? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Brownsville; St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad Company, which I will refer to as the Brownsville, when was that line completed into the Valley?

A. The line was completed between Algoa, Texas, which is about twenty-two or twenty-three miles south of Houston, and the Rio Grande Valley, in 1909. They started to build that railroad, I think they started at Robstown about 1904.

Q. You say it reached down into the Valley, the construction was completed into the Valley when?

A. Well, it was completed in 1909, at the same time the line was completed between the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge and Houston.

Q. Now, when was the first movement of—well, what was the first product, what were the first products moved out of the Valley?

A. The first products moved out of the Valley consisted of onions and cabbage and a very small volume of mixed vegetables. There was no railroad in the Valley and they could move nothing out except by wagon haul in those days.

Q. How far was that from the nearest railroad?

A. Well, it is one hundred and forty miles to Robstown from Brownsville, and it is perhaps a little shorter from some parts of the Valley.

Q. Now, did the citrus amount to anything back in those years at all? A. No, sir.

Q. Had any trees been planted at all at that time, citrus trees?

A. Only, I think, in the early stages. A very inferior quality of orange had been planted. The first record we have of any movement at all was in 1907, when we moved, the season of 1907-08, when we moved 761 cars, of which 166 were cabbage and 372 were onions and 86 were mixed vegetables.

Q. Mr. Brown, have you prepared a table from the books and records of the Gulf Coast Lines showing the citrus and vegetable loadings for the period 1921 to 1924. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the exhibit? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection as I made before.

The Court: Overruled.

(Said paper was [thereuon] marked by the reporter as Group's Exhibit 19, for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 263.]

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Mr. Brown, what are the principal destinations of the perishables that move out of the Valley?

A. The principal destinations, the principal destination of the vegetables, as well as the fruit, is the Eastern territory north of the Ohio River and East of the Mississippi River, and by principal I mean perhaps sixty-five or seventy per cent of it moves there. It moves everywhere, Texas and other places.

Q. And isn't there a considerable movement to Kansas City, also, for the Missouri River area?

A. Yes, sir, there is considerable movement there.

Q. That movement to Kansas City began about what year?

A. The movement to Kansas City was—it first became a factor and something that we had to reckon with along between 1925 and 1930.

Q. Now, then, going back to the period prior to 1925, I would like to have you tell us the experience which the Gulf Coast Lines had in dealing with other railroad systems in the moving of this Valley traffic out of the Valley. Firstly, will you describe the nature of that traffic, I mean as freight, what kind of freight is it?

A. Well, it is perishable freight, it is vegetables and citrus fruits.

Q. And how about the rates collected for that kind of freight? A. The rates selected?

Q. Collected, the rates charged for that freight?

A. Well, the rates charged for that—

Q. I don't care for what the rate is, but relatively, is it high or low?

A. Well, it is relatively high per hundred pound, but per car it is not so high, because of the low loading, the light loading.

Q. Will you please describe the experience which the Gulf Coast Lines had in the period prior to 1925, in dealing with other railroad systems in moving that traffic up to St. Louis and beyond?

A. This railroad was built by the Frisco, that is—

Q. The Gulf Coast Lines?

A. That is the way I will refer to it. It was built by Mr. Yoakum as the pioneer of that territory, who at that time was at the head of the Frisco System.

Q. When you said this railroad you meant the Gulf Coast Lines? A. The Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Go ahead.

A. Naturally, the business, the railroad was built with the idea of feeding the freight that would be originated to the Frisco System. The Frisco had a line as far as Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas. The Frisco was also affiliated in those days with the Rock Island; the Frisco was either supposed to own the Rock Island or the Rock Island own the Frisco, and the Rock Island built a railroad to come down and connect with the Gulf Coast Line at Eunice, Louisiana. Mr. Yoakum or his associates built a railroad originally known as the Trinity & Brazos Valley now known as the Burlington-Rock Island, from Dallas to Houston to connect with these systems so as to form a well rounded railroad system that would have an outlet from the valley through Houston, and another outlet through Eunice, Louisiana.

Q. Tell us about the experience that the Gulf Coast Lines had with the Frisco in moving that traffic.

A. Well, there was so little of it that no particular attention or no great attention was paid prior to, 1913, say; there was only 761 cars, as I stated a while ago, during the season of 1907-08, and I will state that when I say season on this perishable fruit or perishable freight I mean from about September 15th, I think the date we began, to about the middle, first or middle of June of the next year. 1908-09 we had 990 cars. The next year it went up to 1,378 cars. 1910-11 it was 1,198 cars; in 1911-12 we had 1,738 cars, of which 1,218 were cabbage and 335 onions, 157 were mixed vegetables. During all that period I have mentioned, the business was, as far as we could control it, routed so as to reach the Frisco and give the Frisco the haul on it. The Frisco was furnishing the equipment.

Q. What do you mean by equipment?

A. Refrigerator cars.

Q. Perishable traffic had to move in refrigerator cars, is that it?

A. Yes, sir, it moves in refrigerator cars, and they had some cars, I don't recall what their ownership was, what the total was, but, of course, that is a small amount of business at best, and I don't suppose they had a lot of equipment, but the equipment was mechanically imperfect, and in 1912, a very bad winter, late winter and early spring season, a lot of rain, the St. L. B. & M. was pretty well down in the mud, with no ballast. They couldn't handle very heavy equipment over it, no motive power or equipment either, they were having a lot of derailments, a lot of trouble, and all of a sudden, owing to a scarcity of cabbage in the Northen market, the price of cabbage jumped up and everybody wanted to ship his cabbage at once. There were 1,218 cars of that cabbage which at that time was considered quite a lot of business, and we had almost an utter failure of supplying equipment, couldn't get the connections to handle the equipment down from North Texas to the Gulf Coast Lines, they didn't want to handle those cars because they wouldn't ride the track, jumped the track all the time, they scattered all over the right-of-way.

Q. Right there, what were those cars called, those refrigerator cars supplied by the Frisco?

A. They were Frisco refrigerator car line.

Q. What did you call them?

A. Someone very aptly named them, "White Hopes", they were known generally at that time as "White Hopes". Well, we just failed to furnish equipment, and these people in the Valley had grown cabbage and had pioneered this business, and they had been proud to have a railroad come down there. They were pretty much up in the air and they became pretty angry and they hauled their cabbage to the railroad, dumped it on the right-of-way and said, "This is your cabbage, you have got to pay claims on this, pay us for it, you may load it or what-not". That was the first car shortage experienced by the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Now, how long did that relationship with the Frisco last?

A. The following year, in June, 1913, the Frisco went into receivership, as did the St. L. B. & M., the N. O. T. & M., the Gulf Coast Lines, and the relationship between the Frisco and the Gulf Coast Lines officially, I take it, was severed. They had separate receivers, a receiver for the St. L. B. & M. at Houston, and a receiver for the Louisiana Line, the N. O. T. & M., at New Orleans; we, however, continued to favor the Frisco to the extent that we had, and we didn't know what was going to become of the railroad when it came out of receivership, and worked along with it until 1916.

Q. 1916?

A. That is when we had the reorganization.

Q. Well, then, was it in 1916 you undertook new relationships with another railroad?

A. Earlier than that, as a matter of fact. During the summer of 1913, fall of 1913, we negotiated with the Santa Fe to handle our perishable business out of the valley. The Santa Fe had a branch line extending, crossing the St. L. B. & M. at Bay City. We wanted to handle the business all the way to Houston, get the long haul for the St. L. B. & M.

Q. Wait a minute, Mr. Brown. Where did that branch line of the Santa Fe connect with the Brownsville Line?

A. At Bay City, which is eighty-eight miles west of Houston.

Q. Bay City is not on this I. C. Exhibit 1. What town shown on that map is close to Bay City?

A. Well, I think Buckeye would be. I think it would be Buckeye. It is bigger in name than anything else. I think it is a signboard down there, but I think it would be between Buckeye and Angleton.

Q. And you are talking about Texas?

A. Yes, sir. The Santa Fe had their main line ran down to Galveston through Algoa and had a main line through Houston, and we wanted to handle it to Houston, but they were unwilling to work with us through Houston, they wanted that business to build up their branch line, and we had to, being in the nature of beggars at that time, we had to take the best we could get, so we could deal with them and handle the business through Bay City.

Q. All right. A. Which they did for three [aseasons.]

Q. Right there, what was the effect on Gulf Coast Line's revenues of your making deliveries at Bay City instead of up at Houston or some point further along?

A. The division up to Bay City was ten per cent less than the division would have been to Houston, which would have been a considerable amount of money.

Q. Now, I believe you stated where you made your deliveries to the Frisco. Was that in Houston?

A. No, we had to deliver them to a connection, we delivered them to the Trinity & Brazos Valley at Houston.

Q. That is what I mean, they went off your line?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At Houston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the Santa Fe what was next?

A. In 1916 the Gulf Coast Lines were re-organized; in the Spring of 1916, as an independent railroad, and during that summer we made arrangements with the M. K. & T., which had a main line and which runs right through Houston, and we handled them that one year over the M. K. & T.

Q. Now, just a second. Your deliveries to the M. K. & T. were at Houston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, go ahead.

A. That continued only one year, it was reasonably satisfactory from many standpoints, but the M. K. & T. had no equipment, I mean no refrigerator equipment, and we hoped to handle the business through, the long haul over the N. O. T. & M. We built a railroad east of Houston to handle business there and it was in such shape that we were unable to handle this perishable freight over it for a long time, and we were unable to make satisfactory arrangements for quite a while, but in 1916 or 1917, that is the season 1916-17, we handled it over the M. K. & T. The year 1917-18, of course, was Federal control, the major part of that season was Federal control, beginning January 1st, 1918, and in 1918-19 the Federal Government controlled the railroads. The Administrator, the Director General through his organization arranged to handle this business over the Missouri Pacific, using the I. G. N. from Houston, still, of course, short-hauling the system lines of the Gulf Coast Lines, and during the year, the season of 1918-19-20, I mean 1918-19 and 1919-20 they were handled that way without any particular contract or arrangement having been worked out. Federal control ended with February or, I believe, March 1st, 1920. When we came out of Federal control we were confronted by another big movement of business, the largest we had ever had. We had 6,307 cars that year, and 4,692 of them was cabbage, and again the price of cabbage jumped up sky high and everybody wanted to move the cabbage at once, and on March 1st, when we came out of Federal control we had no definite arrangement with anybody, sort of an understanding it was maybe going to move over the Missouri Pacific, and the people who were placed in charge of the Missouri Pacific, I mean of the Gulf Coast Lines, made a very hasty arrangement with the Missouri Pacific and the A. R. T. and made a contract which they made retroactive to September, 1918, to handle the business over the Missouri Pacific through the I. G. N. again, still short-hauling the System line. They moved that season that way, but we had another great shortage and a lot of claims and a lot of complaint and trouble. 1920-21 is the next season. Starting September, 1920 we moved the business over the Missouri Pacific again, but the following summer, 1921, we consummated an arrangement which we had been endeavoring to make for many years or for a number of years with the Illinois Central. We got them to agree that they would handle, they would furnish the equipment and handle the business and we were to deliver it to them at Baton Rouge, which gave us the haul for the full length of our railroad from the Valley, approximately six hundred and fifty miles, to the end of the actual railroad at Baton Rouge to the connections with the Illinois Central.

Q. All right. Now, two points I would like to make: you said "we" here several times in your testimony. You were speaking of the Gulf Coast Lines, that is what you meant by we? A. Yes, sir. Well, "we" handled the business.

The Court: He used "we" in the same sense that Col. Lindbergh did.

Mr. McConaughy: That is right.

A. "We" again, the Gulf Coast Lines, handled the business during the seasons of 1921-22, 1922-23, 1923-24, via Baton Rouge and the Illinois Central. (this statement we have here shows, this exhibit that was put in) shows the number of cars that we handled there.

Mr. Biggs: Which exhibit is that?

Mr. McConaughy: I haven't offered that one yet.

The Witness: Exhibit 19.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) You were talking about Exhibit 19?

A. Yes, sir. I say, that shows the number of cars.

Q. Oh, yes, I see.

A. Of vegetables and citrus that moved during those seasons. I had mentioned it in connection with the movements up to then.

Q. Now, then, that takes you up to about the time of the acquisition of control by the Missouri Pacific?

A. Yes, sir, which was, I believe, in December, 1924.

Q. Now, Mr. Brown, I would like to stop right there and have you describe what the requirements for the handling of this perishable traffic are and were at the time. As I understand you to say, you had to have an [adequare] supply of refrigerator cars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was a seasonal demand, it came in those months, September to March, I think you stated?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what about train schedules? I am not asking you what they were at any particular time, we will come to that a little later, but what was important from the standpoint of train schedules in the movement of this perishable traffic?

A. It was important to supply fast schedules.

Q. Fast service? A. Fast service.

Q. And to supply fast service, what kind of a roadbed did you have to have?

A. Well, we had to have—we had service at that time—

Q. I am not asking you to describe it, I am asking you to specify the necessity for the service.

A. Well, you had to have a good roadbed.

Q. Right. Now, toward the end of 1924, what were your train schedules from the Valley via Baton Rouge?

A. The schedule was 102 hours into St. Louis.

Q. Now, you stated that in moving these perishables over to Baton Rouge, into St. Louis, you used the Illinois Central. I would like to have you describe that operation, what was involved there, going via Baton Rouge.

A. We handled the business to a point called Anchorage, on the west bank of the Mississippi River opposite Baton Rouge, where we had this car ferry, still have for that matter, and we had to handle it across on that car ferry, deliver it to the Illinois Central in trains on the other side of the River, and they handled it north through Cairo to this territory.

Q. How many times did the ferry have to cross to get the train over to Baton Rouge? It would, of course, depend on the length of the train, but generally.

A. I think they had to make three—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Your Honor please, just a minute. This witness is not competent along these lines. He is a traffic man. Mr. Kirkpatrick might have been competent.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't know why a traffic man does not, could not know about that.

The Court: Read the question.

(The question was repeated by the reporter.)

The Court: It is a traffic man's job to know, as a matter of fact, about traffic.

Mr. Biggs: I don't see that it is relevant, either. I object also on the ground of relevancy. I don't see where it is relevant to the issue.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Those ferries handle—shall I answer? Those ferries handled 20 cars, and of course had to make three round trips.

Q. Three round trips to take the train across?

A. Fifty minutes to cross and fifty minutes back, of course, would be almost—less than six hours to get the train across.

Q. The ferry crossing was—

A. (Interrupting) One trip.

Q. Was an important factor in this 102 hours from the Valley to St. Louis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Via Baton Rouge. Now then, after the Missouri Pacific's acquisition of the Gulf Coast Lines' control, what happened, as far as the handling of that perishable traffic is concerned?

A. As a matter of fact, it was known that the Missouri Pacific was—at least we thought we knew that the Missouri Pacific was going to handle this business, was going to own the Gulf Coast Lines, and in September or October, when the new season started, we started to use our influence to route this business through Kinder and the Missouri Pacific, via the Kinder-Alexandria route to St. Louis.

Q. Will you state the States in which Kinder and Alexandria are?

A. Kinder, Louisiana, which is a hundred miles west of the Mississippi River.

Q. That was the point at which the Gulf Coast Lines delivered the perishable traffic to the Missouri Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that was a shorter haul for the Gulf Coast Lines than Baton Rouge, but considerably farther than Houston, is that right?

A. Yes, sir. It is a hundred and seventy-eight miles, I think, from Houston, I think, from Houston to Kinder.

Q. Now, was it during the period after 1924 that the perishable traffic to Kansas City became important? I think you stated that it was. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us a little bit about the establishment of schedules out of the Valley to Kansas City? When did you first attempt to handle that traffic to Kansas City?

A. Well, the traffic, of course, as it grew, and as you have observed from this Exhibit No. 19, was getting to be materially greater than it had been prior to the World War One, and somewhere in the neighborhood of fifteen or twenty per cent of the business would go to that territory, and as the business increased, fifteen or twenty per cent would be a greater—would amount to considerable business. With the Southern Pacific building into the Valley in 1927 and having a much more direct route to Kansas City than the Missouri Pacific—and the Gulf Coast Lines, plus the I. & G. N. and Missouri Pacific, either through Kinder or through Houston, it became quite a problem as to what to do with this business going to the Missouri River or going to the Missouri River and beyond, and by that, I mean Kansas, Colorado, Minnesota, and Iowa, so that we were confronted with the problem of what to do about it. If we did not provide a schedule that would meet the competition with a competitive route of the Southern Pacific, a shipper who was located on our line and did all of his shipping over our line would be inclined to move over to the Southern Pacific and ship all of his business over the Southern Pacific.

Q. What did you do about it?

A. It was one of those situations that was forced on us, it was necessary to meet it or—

Q. (Interrupting) Lose the business?

A. Or admit that we were not a going concern to that territory, and we had to meet it.

Q. And did you meet it?

A. And we did meet it, yes, sir.

Q. You met that competition? A. Through Houston.

Q. Through Houston up to Kansas City?

A. Up to Kansas City, and that business has since moved on a very fast schedule over the I. & G. N., T. & P. to Texarkana, and Missouri Pacific.

Q. Where was it delivered to the I. & G. N.?

A. At Houston.

Q. At Houston. Now I would like to go back and discuss this change which occurred at the time the Missouri Pacific got control of the Gulf Coast Lines, and have you tell us about the divisions between, comparing the divisions at Baton Rouge and at Kinder; in other words, tell us what proportion of the through rate the Gulf Coast Lines got when the traffic went via Baton Rouge, and then via Kinder? A. Well, when the—

Q. (Interrupting) Begin with the divisions at Baton Rouge.

A. Well, the divisions via Baton Rouge were, of course, the best that the Gulf Coast Lines had ever had to handle this business. Mr. Baldwin, who was president of the Missouri Pacific—

Q. (Interrupting) Wait a minute. Before you start on describing the Kinder route, I would like to know roughly what proportion of the rate was given to the Gulf Coast Lines for the hauling of that perishable business to Baton Rouge.

A. The Gulf Coast Lines earned up to Baton Rouge on the citrus freight—citrus fruit—approximately 74% of the proportion up to Cairo, Illinois.

Q. All right. Now then—

A. (Interrupting) That is on the citrus.

Q. On the citrus?

A. On the vegetables, they earned figures that ranged from 72.8% to 74.8%. Those divisions were made in a rather complicated manner.

Q. I don't care to know the details, don't want that.

A. Figured out with section percentage.

Q. Now then, when the business started moving through Kinder, after the Missouri Pacific acquired control, tell us about the making up of those rates and what was finally done.

A. Making up of those divisions?

Q. Divisions I mean, yes, sir. A. Well, Mr. Baldwin—

Q. (Interrupting) First, did you have any connection with the making up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of those divisions through Kinder? A. I did.

Q. Did you have a talk with Mr. Baldwin about making up the divisions? A. I did.

Q. Did he give you any instructions about it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what were they?

A. His instructions to me, as representing at that time—

I was on the Gulf Coast Lines, Mr. Perkins was on the Missouri Pacific, and he said to us, he wanted us to agree on divisions that would be fair, and that he did not want to do anything that would in any way prejudice—let's see—that would in any way detract from the earnings of the Missouri Pacific, he wanted to be liberal with them.

Q. Do you mean Missouri Pacific there?

A. I mean Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. He said he wanted the arrangements to be made liberal in favor of the Gulf Coast Lines?

A. Yes, sir, and they were.

The Court: (Q.) Who told you that?

The Witness: Sir?

The Court: (Q.) Who told you that?

The Witness: Mr. Baldwin.

The Court: (Q.) When was it he told you that?

The Witness: 1924, in the fall, just at the time he bought the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Now, you and Mr. Perkins worked out those divisions via Kinder? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what result did you achieve as the result of that?

A. We approached it in this way: We figured to try to make the divisions to result in about ten dollars a car less money to Kinder than to Baton Rouge, figuring this way: That it was a hundred miles—that there was a car rental charge, car rental loaded and empty of two cents a mile, it would be four dollars a car. That there was a crossing charge, which at that time averaged $3.50 each way, which made $7. a car.

Q. You are [taling] about the River crossing?

A. River crossing at Baton Rouge. That made $11. and we thought that if we said that the line haul perhaps was $4. for that hundred miles, that that would be a very liberal arrangement to the Gulf Coast Lines, and it so proved to be. We figured that that would mean it cost to have handled it from Kinder to the Illinois Central about $15 a car, and that if we made the division via Kinder about $10 a car less than to Baton Rouge, it would give the Gulf Coast Lines about a five dollar advantage. Roughly, that is what we undertook to do, and we accomplished that.

Q. That was on the vegetables?

A. Yes, that was on the vegetables. That actually figured out—I would like to say here that we did not have to do much figuring about citrus; there wasn't any to amount to anything at that time.

Q. That is right, at that time. Well, now, the divisions that you put in effect you say resulted in a saving to the Gulf Coast Lines, the new divisions, of $5—is that right? In other words, it was $5 more profitable to Gulf Coast Lines to deliver that to the Missouri Pacific at Kinder than it was to deliver it to the Illinois Central? A. Yes.

Q. At Baton Rouge under the rate, or basis that you described before that?

A. Yes, sir. That is what we undertook to do.

Q. All right. Anything more about making up those divisions? Is that the story?

A. Well, subsequent events proved that we were more than liberal to the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Well, now, do you recall a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission known as the Southwestern Rate decision handed down in 1936? A. 1928.

Q. No, 1936. A. On rates?

Q. The decision was handed down in 1936, wasn't it?

A. Well, in 1928, I think you—

Q. (Interrupting) Did I say rates? I meant to say divisions again. A. Yes, sir.

Q. A decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1936 affecting divisions? A. That is right.

Q. You recall such? A. Very definitely, yes, sir.

Q. What was the effect of that decision on the divisions via Baton Rouge, as compared with Kinder?

A. Using the year 1936, some actual figures were made, and under that order the saving to the Gulf Coast Lines on the citrus, Kinder as against Baton Rouge, amounted to $17.63 a car, to which should be added the $15 I mentioned as the cost of operating that additional mileage, or a saving to the Gulf Coast Lines via Kinder as against Baton Rouge of $32.63 a car on citrus. On the vegetables, it amounted to $12.82, again plus the $15 mentioned, made $27.82 a car on the vegetables.

Q. Now, have you prepared an exhibit showing the proportion of total perishable business moving through Kinder for the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes, sir. Oh, yes.

Q. That is your exhibit, is it? A. Yes.

Q. What is the source of the information shown on it?

A. That is our records, our interchange, records.

Q. Gulf Coast Lines' records? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 20.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 264.]

Q. Now, have you also prepared an exhibit comparing the interchange at Kinder and Baton Rouge? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Freight traffic? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is your exhibit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is the source of the information shown thereon? A. That is our records, also.

Q. Gulf Coast Lines'? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Missouri Pacific, or just Gulf Coast Lines?

A. Well, both.

Mr. McConaughy: Both. I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection that I made to other exhibits of the same kind and character. Let the record show the same objection to Exhibit No. 20.

Mr. McConaughy: That is marked Group Exhibit No. 21.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 21.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 265.]

Q. Now, going back to that decision to which I referred of the Interstate Commerce Commission, what effect did that decision have on the divisions as between the Gulf Coast Lines and lines beyond?

A. It had no effect on the divisions between—on the percentage divisions between the Gulf Coast Lines and the Missouri Pacific or its direct connections, except where they went through the Mississippi River.

Q. But didn't it have an effect on the amount of money the Gulf Coast Lines would get out of the total freight?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, will you just describe that a little bit more in detail? I did not quite—I don't believe I quite understood it.

A. Well, I think perhaps you—would you like me to say—

Q. What was the effect of that?

A. Like me to go back a little. The Interstate Commerce Commission in the Southwestern Rate case, effective in June, 1928, fixed the rates that were applicable on this traffic between the East and the Southwest, fixing the rates, but said nothing about the divisions, and the Southwestern Lines immediately got into a controversy, or we had a controversy about what the divisions would be—that was in 1928, but we undertook, over a period of years, in fact until 1931 the Eastern Lines were taking the division, taking the settlements on all this traffic, some of them one way and some of them another, and via different junctions, and different ways, claiming they had no divisions, and that the divisions had been unfair to them, so that in 1931 the Southwestern Lines filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission, asking them to fix divisions. It took from 1931 until effective September 22, 1936 the Commission issued an order. The effect of that order was to materially reduce the divisions that were applicable via Baton Rouge.

Q. Right. A. And of course it reduced—

Q. (Interrupting) And as compared with Kinder, the situation which you described before was considerably exaggerated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isnt that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, Kinder became much more the favorable route, isnt that right? A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Now, in establishing the fast train schedules, a part of the savings in time was effected on the Gulf Coast Lines itself, isn't that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And another and larger part was effected on the Missouri Pacific, is that right?

A. I don't know how much, how large a saving it was. There was a saving in time both north and west of Kinder on the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Now, for purposes of comparison, we start with 102 hours from the Valley to St. Louis via Baton Rouge. Now, was there a change in schedules for these perishable trains on January 1, 1925? A. Yes, sir. Made 97 hours.

Q. And was there another change—now, wait a minute—97 hours, that was via—

A. (Interrupting) Via Kinder.

Q. Via Kinder. And on October 1, 1927, there was another change? A. Yes, sir. 72 hours.

Q. And there was another one on October 30, 1929?

A. 64 hours and thirty minutes.

Q. These are all between the Valley and St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Via Kinder? A. That is correct.

Q. Except the first one which I mentioned. Now, another one October 22, 1932?

A. That is correct. 61 hours and 30 minutes.

Q. In other words, that schedule had been shortened from 102 hours in 1924 to 61 hours and 30 minutes by October, 1932? A. Yes, sir, beginning with the 1932 season.

Q. Subsequent to that time, the schedule has been shortened even more? A. No.

Q. It has not been?

A. No. That schedule has remained the same ever since, except that at present they have a war time schedule a little bit longer.

Q. Now, did the Missouri Pacific maintain an agricultural expert down in the Valley? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what were his duties, what did he do? I don't want to get them all, but what were the chief things?

A. Well, his duties were to supervise the growings of various crops.

Q. Did he maintain an experimental farm or farms down there?

A. Yes, sir; he has two of them in operation at the present time. He had some all the way through, all along.

Q. And he undertakes to advise with the growers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has the Missouri Pacific done anything to advertise the products of the Valley? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What?

A. Well, they have advertised it all over the various—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute, please.

Mr. McConaughy: All right. I think we already have the items.

Q. Was the agricultural agent maintained there during any part of the period, 1925 to 1932?

A. All of the period, yes, sir.

Q. All of that period. And my question now concerning advertising the products of the Valley is confined to that period, 1925 to 1932. What did the Missouri Pacific do during that period?

A. Well, it advertised it in various publications. We also—the Missouri Pacific also had exhibit cars of citrus fruits and vegetables sent out all over the Country, I think they used two cars, had two cars equipped with exhibits of the various products, and carloads of mixed fruits sent along there to catch up with them at various points, such as, for instance, at St. Louis, Chicago, or perhaps Cincinnati, or East, and to renew them, to keep them fresh, to show them to people all over the United States.

Q. Now then, you have mentioned the A. R. T. several times in your testimony. Will you please tell us what the A. R. T. is?

A. That is the American Refrigerator Transit Company, owned by the Missouri Pacific, with part ownership on the part of the Wabash.

Q. And what is the business of that corporation?

A. Supply refrigerator equipment, and spend a great deal of their time and efforts in building up the movement, and their contract with the Missouri Pacific goes a long way toward—they do all the tracing, or a great deal of the tracing, and they handle the diversions, they handle the diversions for Gulf Coast Lines, and they furnish the cars and see that they are cleaned and supplied, and adequate supply maintained.

Q. Now, did the A. R. T. enter into an arrangement with the Gulf Coast Lines for the supplying of refrigerator cars for this perishable traffic around some time in 1924 or 1925? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And has the A. R. T. furnished an adequate supply throughout the period, 1925 to 1932, of refrigerator cars to meet traffic needs of the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us briefly the financial arrangements that were made with the A. R. T.?

A. Oh! Under the contract that we made with the A. R. T., the Gulf Coast Lines was to—the refrigeration charge was to accrue to the Gulf Coast Lines. For instance, to illustrate, we will say it cost a hundred dollars to supply the refrigeration from the Rio Grande Valley to New York. That would be the charge that we would make to the shipper. That hundred dollars would be collected in New York by, we will say, the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that hundred dollars would be given to the Gulf Coast Lines, and they would to pay all of the re-icing charges and all of the charges, the incidental charges of getting that car refrigerated all the way to New York. We will say that it did not cost actually $100 but $75, and so that there was a profit.

Q. What has that meant in dollars and cents to the Gulf Coast Lines over the period?

A. That meant, over the period, 1924 to 1932, a profit of $6,171,876.

Q. From that one factor alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Brown, do you feel, is it your opinion that the Gulf Coast Lines would have been in a position to handle this perishable traffic from the Valley in the way you have described, without the assistance of the Missouri Pacific?

A. They could not have done nearly as good a job with any other railroad as they have done.

Q. Now, have you prepared an exhibit showing carloadings of all Class I. railroads for the period, 1922 to 1931, and comparing those figures with carloadings received by the Gulf Coast Lines from various other roads?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the exhibit (indicating)?

A. That is it, yes, sir.

Q. Now, what is the source of the information shown on that exhibit?

A. These carloadings figures are from the A. A. R. reports.

Q. Now, what is the A. A. R.?

A. Association of American Railroads.

Q. That is the place a railroad man looks for that sort of information, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Customarily? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right.

A. The other figures are from our own records of interchange, that is, the Gulf Coast Lines' records of interchange with its connections.

Q. Now, what conclusion do you draw from that exhibit as to the effect of Missouri Pacific control?

A. I would say that it has been very advantageous to the Gulf Coast Lines.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that exhibit in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Same objection I made to the other.

The Court: Very well.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 22.)

Mr. McConaughy: That is marked Group Exhibit No. 22.

(The said document identified as Group Exhibit No. 22.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 266.]

Q. Mr. Brown, would you say that the Gulf Coast Lines at all times during the period, 1925 through 1931, had an adequate supply of freight cars, passenger cars, and locomotive equipment to meet its traffic requirements?

A. With the assistance of the Missouri Pacific, it did, yes.

Q. Mr. Brown, you have mentioned that the Southern Pacific built down into the Valley in 1927? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much of the perishable traffic, what proportion of the perishable traffic was divided between the Gulf Coast Lines and the Southern Pacific as the result of constructing that line down there, and following?

A. We have maintained a ratio of about 80-20. The Gulf Coast handled about eighty per cent, the Southern Pacific about twenty per cent.

Q. In other words, right from the start the Gulf Coast Lines has maintained its position of about eighty per cent of perishable traffic moving out of the Valley?

A. Yes, sir. That should be qualified to this extent—

Q. The freight traffic moving out of the Valley?
A. Of the trucks.
Q. I say, railroad.
A. Of the railroad, yes, that is correct.
Q. Mr. Brown, do you think, in your opinion could the Gulf Coast Lines have maintained that position of eighty per cent, if it had not had sponsorship by the Missouri Pacific? A. No, I don't think they could.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all, Your Honor.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I believe it is customary to take a short adjournment. I should appreciate it.

The Court: Your motion, Mr. Biggs. Announce a brief recess.

(Brief recess.)

Mr. McConaughy: That is all I have, Mr. Brown.

Cross Examination,
By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Brown, did you personally prepare these exhibits, or were they prepared under your supervision?
A. They were prepared under my personal supervision, and I can almost say I personally prepared them.
Q. Now, you testified that there was a profit of about six million dollars as the result of the Gulf Coast Lines' receiving this hundred dollars charge for icing on freight cars. A. Yes, sir.
Q. Over what period of years did that cover?
A. That is for the calendar years, 1924 through 1932.
Q. Through 1932. And that is a profit accruing to the Gulf Coast Lines as a unit, I mean that takes in all of the various Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where in the books of account can we find those figures, if we want to check into them?
A. I don't know that I can answer that. It is credited to operating revenues—operating expenses.
Q. Operating expenses. Wouldn't it be credited to operating revenue, rather than operating expense?

A. Let me say that I just don't know that.

Q. You don't know? A. I cannot answer that.

Q. Well, who gave you those figures?

A. I got the figures in Houston from the auditor.

Q. From the auditor. Now, will you look at Exhibit No. 21, please?

(The witness examines the said document.)

The Court: What is 21, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: Exhibit No. 21, if Your Honor please, shows the carloads delivered and received from the Missouri Pacific and Gulf Coast Lines and other connections.

Q. Now, I first call your attention to these first two columns, carloads received by Gulf Coast Lines and carloads delivered by Gulf Coast Lines, up to 1928 they were approximately the same, that is, the amount received and the amount delivered at Kinder, Louisiana, isn't that correct, from 1922 to 1928? A. They were in 1928, yes, sir.

Q. Well, 1928, 1922, and 1921, well, there were some disparities before, but going, taking from 1928 on, in 1929 the Gulf Cost Lines received 23,412 cars from the Missouri Pacific at Kinder? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And delivered to the Missouri Pacific 27,916, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1930, they received from the Missouri Pacific at Kinder 23,441 and delivered 34,838? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1931, they received 19,215 and delivered 30,450? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So for the last three years on that exhibit, there were substantially more cars delivered to the Missouri Pacific than were received from the Missouri Pacific at Kinder, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, I believe you testified that in regard to what is called the Missouri River movement. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is through Kansas City, that that was delivered to the I. & G. N. at Houston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the Gulf Coast Lines have a connection with the Kansas City Southern at Alexandria or some place in that neighborhood?

A. It has a connection with them at Beaumont, yes.

Q. At Beaumont? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: (Q.) Beaumont, Texas?

A. Beaumont, Texas, yes, sir.

Q. Beaumont, Texas.

A. Also at De Quincy, Louisiana.

Q. At De Quincy, Louisiana. That is with the Kansas City Southern? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell me what would be the division of rate for a carload of, say, citrus, between—that was bound to Kansas City, if shipped via Gulf Coast Lines to De Quincy, and then to Kansas City over the Kansas City Southern, in contrast to the division in rate if shipped over the Gulf Coast Lines to Houston, and then via I. & G. N. and other connections to Kansas City?

A. No, I don't have those figures in my head. It is a very slight difference, though.

Q. Well, what is it?

A. The division up to Houston is so liberal to the Gulf Coast Lines that the Kansas City Southern is unwilling to offer a very attractive figure to get that haul on to De Quincy to be delivered to them there.

Q. There are about 156 more miles of haul over Gulf Coast Lines if it is delivered to the Kansas City Southern at De Quincy, isn't that correct?

A. There would be, yes, but if it had been delivered at all to the Kansas City Southern, they would demand it at Beaumont, which is 90 miles longer haul, but they offered a very, very slight increase in divisions over the divisions via Houston. We tested that out before the Missouri Pacific ever got control of the Gulf Coast Lines, because we were continually seeking to get the longest haul possible for the Gulf Coast Lines, and the greatest revenue, the longest haul commensurate with the revenue, provided it would have any greater revenue.

Q. Well, there is a great deal of horse trading in the divisions between railroads, isn't that true?

A. Considerable trading. Maybe it is horse trading. I don't know.

Q. Well, that is an Ozark expression. I don't know what your expression is down in Texas for the same thing.

I believe that is all at the present time, Your Honor. I may wish to recall the witness after I have had an opportunity to more carefully examine these exhibits.

Redirect Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. I just have one question. The L. & G. N. was a subsidiary of the Gulf Coast Lines, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the period.

Mr. Everett Paul Griffin: May I ask the witness a question or two, Your Honor?

The Court: Very well.

Cross Examination,

By Mr. Griffin:

Q. Mr. Brown, you stated that the Missouri Pacific, of which you were a traffic officer, had favored the N. O. T. & M. in the division of the rate, that you made them a very favorable rate, that you wanted to help them and make it profitable to them and give them a very favorable position, isn't that right? A. Very favorable division, yes.

Q. Yes. A. Division of the rate.

Q. Now, the L. & G. N. taps a territory somewhat similar to Gulf Coast Lines', doesn't it, the winter fruit produce near Laredo and that vicinity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific divided the rate with the L. & G. N., didn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time you were traffic officer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did the Missouri Pacific give to the L. & G. N. the same favorable rate that they gave to the Gulf Coast Lines on the winter vegetables?

A. The Missouri Pacific—

Q. (Interrupting) Did they give as favorable a rate to the L. & G. N.?

A. Favorable a division, I suppose you mean.

Q. Yes, as they did to the Gulf Coast Lines.

A. From Laredo, are you speaking of?

Q. Yes, sir. A. From Laredo.

Q. To the connection with the Missouri Pacific?

A. I don't know what that division is, offhand. I cannot—

Q. (Interrupting) Well, would you say it is your impression that it was not as favorable a division?

A. Well, I would rather not say, because I don't know. I would have to look that up. I rather think it was a pretty favorable division; it was a long haul.

Q. But you do not think it was as favorable as that with the N. O. T. & M., do you?

A. No, I don't think that it was as much up to Longview as—from Laredo to Longview as it is from the Rio Grande Valley to Kinder.

Q. Now, even the grapefruit, that is, the citrus fruit and the winter vegetables from around the Brazos Valley, that was shipped partially over the International-Great Northern at one time, wasn't it?

A. From what is known as the winter garden of the South in Southwest Texas.

Q. Yes, sir.

A. That moves via Gardendale and the I.-G. N. and Missouri Pacific.

Q. And they took that away from the International—pardon me—do you want to make an objection (addressing Mr. McConaughy)?

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to object to this line of questioning, because I don't see that it has any bearing on the issues presented at this hearing.

The Court: I don't think so, either.

Mr. Griffin: Sir?

The Court: What have you got to say? I cannot see where it has any.

Mr. Griffin: I was developing the rates, and that is involved in these objections, Your Honor, that we have to the plan. The rate that was given to us. There have been contentions made that there was a deficit in the I. & G. N. during certain years, and I want to show that the I. G. N. received unfavorable treatment during certain years as against Gulf Coast Lines.

Mr. McConaughy: I think that statement makes it clearly irrelevant. We are not considering at this hearing whether the L. G. N. was favorably or unfavorably treated.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Griffin: I understood we were hearing everything relating to the plan and this claim against the N. O. T. & M. at this time. That is why I am asking these questions.

Mr. McConaughy: I have nothing further, Your Honor, with this witness.

The Court: Step down.

Mr. McConaughy: I would suggest, Your Honor, that this might be a proper time to have a recess for today. My next witness is Mr. Wyer, who will take quite a while.

The Court: How long?

Mr. McConaughy: Oh, I would guess probably tomorrow.

The Court: Announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

At this point, 4:35 P. M., March 19, 1945, an adjournment was had until 10:00 A. M., March 20, 1945.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on March 20, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

Appearances: Same as heretofore noted.

The Court: You may proceed with the Missouri Pacific case.

Mr. McConaughy: I should like to call Mr. William Wyer.

WILLIAM WYER,

a witness of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified on behalf of Group of Institutional Investors as follows:

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, here are the exhibits, which Mr. Wyer will refer to.

Q. Kindly state your name, Mr. Wyer.

A. William Wyer.

Q. And where do you reside?

A. East Orange, New Jersey.

Q. Will you kindly state your qualification, or qualifications, to give the testimony which you will give here?

A. I graduated from Yale and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and also studied all of the railroad courses given by the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

In the first World War I was First Lieutenant in the Engineer Corps, and was engaged principally upon the construction and the operation of a railroad owned by the War Department, serving Camp Humphreys, Virginia.

After the war I was in the United States Railroad Administration in Washington during the period of Federal Control, and after the close of that period in various positions in the Division of Operations, the Division of Accounts, and the Director General's Office. My last position with the Railroad Administration was Assistant to the Comptroller in charge of the maintenance account section, which had to do with the settlement between the Government and all of the railroads of the United States, their under or over-maintenance of their properties during the period of Federal Control.

I left the Railroad Administration in the fall of 1920 and went to the Southern Railroad Company at Norfolk, Virginia, as Assistant Superintendent of Transportation. I was there about a year and went to Denver, first as statistician on the staff of the president of the Denver, Rio Grande and Western Railroad. I was there about seven years and during the latter part of my residence in Denver I was assistant to the president in charge, principally of operating matters, although I had to do with all of the departments of the railroad.

In February, 1929, I went to New York as assistant to the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific.

I might say that during the last four years of my stay in Denver the Denver, Rio Grande and Western was fifty per cent. owned by the Missouri Pacific, so it was considered a part of the Missouri Pacific System.

In February, 1929, I went to New York as Assistant to the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, who was also Chairman of the Board of the Gulf Coast Lines, all the various companies—International-Great Northern, Texas and Pacific, and other Missouri Pacific companies. Later in that year I was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Missouri Pacific and an officer on, I think, all of the subsidiaries except the Texas and Pacific.

In 1930 the Alleghany Corporation secured control of the Missouri Pacific and Mr. Williams, who had been chairman, resigned and our offices were moved to Cleveland. I then continued as an officer of the Missouri Pacific companies, including the Texas and Pacific, for about six years.

While I was in Cleveland I handled, under the supervision of the chairman of the board, a great many of the financial matters involving the Missouri Pacific and the Gulf Coast Lines and other Missouri Pacific subsidiaries, and in 1933, after the Missouri Pacific went into bankruptcy, I started the studies which furnished the foundation of the Plan of Reorganization and had quite a part in drafting the Debtor's original plan of reorganization, and presented it to the Interstate Commerce Commission at the first hearings in the reorganization proceedings, and presented several hundred exhibits in support of that plan. Although there have been later plans, the basic studies made at that time provide substantially all of the studies upon which the various plans have been based.

I later participated in the negotiations leading up to the Debtor's Modified Plan, and still later was asked by some of the different parties in the reorganization proceedings to serve as a [negotiater] in connection with the plan that is now pending before this Court, so that, I have been pretty thoroughly in touch with the Missouri Pacific reorganization proceedings from the beginning.

In 1938, I think it was, I went into business for myself as a consultant on railroad matters, and shortly thereafter formed the firm of William Wyer and Company, which has been employed in a good many railroad reorganizations. I might mention the Wabash, Alton, Chicago &

Northwestern; of course, the Missouri Pacific, the Denver, Rio Grande & Western, the Erie, the New Haven, Seaboard Airline, Central of Georgia, Florida East Coast, and several other railroads.

In the course of our work the firm was also employed in the Central Railroad of New Jersey reorganization and after several years of work there I was appointed chief executive officer of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which is now the job which takes most of my time. I am still, by arrangement with the Trustees, permitted to continue work in the several cases in which I had been involved and to devote a limited amount of my time to consulting work, but my main job today is running the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Q. Mr. Wyer, in the course of your testimony you are going to submit testimony as to some exhibits; at the foot of each of those exhibits is stated the source of the information contained thereon: Is that statement as to the source, on each of the exhibits, true and correct? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Wyer, will you kindly give us a statement concerning the properties and locations of each of the Gulf Coast Lines companies and explain the relative importance of each?

A. My first exhibit which bears upon this subject, which is a portion of Exhibit No. 1 in the proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, is enlarged to make it easier to see the different companies involved.

Q. And is this the exhibit (indicating)? A. That is it.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 23.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 267.]

A. This is the southeastern portion of the Missouri Pacific System, showing all the Missouri Pacific lines in that territory and especially all of the Gulf Coast lines, and I wanted to put it in this form because I think it is important to an understanding of this entire Gulf Coast Lines situation to see where the different companies lie, and their relation to each other.

The parent company, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, extends from New Orleans on the east to the Louisiana-

Texas state line, and it is the company which is designated in the two solid parallel lines, which are broken in spots. It is designated by two parallel lines, which are part solid and part broken. It runs from New Orleans through Baton Rouge, Anchorage, Livonia, Ports Barre, Eunice, Kinder and DeQuincy, to the Texas State line.

The portions that are solid represent the portions owned by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. The portions that are broken represent places where the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico doesn't own its own railroad, but where it operates by trackage rights over somebody else's; for example, from New Orleans to Anchorage the lines are broken and that represents trackage over the Illinois Central. From DeQuincy to the Louisiana State line the line is broken, representing trackage over Kansas City Southern.

Now, that is the parent company of this whole Gulf Coast System. It owns only one hundred and seventy-three miles of railroad.

The Court: Is that Anchorage to DeQuincy?

The Witness: Yes, from Anchorage to DeQuincy is all that it owns itself, and its trackage from DeQuincy to the state line is eighteen and one-half miles, and then its operation between Anchorage and New Orleans is on, not exactly a trackage, but it is on a basis which divides the revenue earned with the Illinois Central.

Now, that is the parent company of the whole system. At the Texas State line the main line of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico stops and the Beaumont, Sour Lake & Western begins. That is the line which runs from the state line to Houston, and is represented by a single line, with an angular cross-hatching on the north side. That doesn't own all of its operated mileage, either. It owns the line from Beaumont to Houston and it uses the Kansas City Southern between the state line and Beaumont. That has a mileage of eighty-four owned miles.

At Houston the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico begins, and that main line extends all the way from Houston to Brownsville. It is indicated on this map by a solid single line with a V-shaped cross-hatching on the north or west.

The St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico has a number of branches. Some of the branches of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico run from Bloomington, which is between Houston and Odem, and Corpus Christi, but most of its branches are in the Rio Grande Valley, and they are shown on the map by this single line with the V-shaped cross-hatching.

The St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico owns five hundred and sixty miles of railroad. In other words, that is the largest subsidiary—

(The Court was here interrupted by another matter.)

The Witness (resuming): —in the Gulf Coast Lines System. The second largest subsidiary in the system is the San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf. That is shown on this map beginning at Corpus Christi on the Gulf Coast, north of Brownsville, and is shown with a single solid line cross-hatched by a rather long series of dashes solid dashes, on the south or west side of the line. It has a line running from Corpus Christi to San Antonio and then another branch off at North Pleasanton, in a kind of U-shaped swing to the west to Uvalde, which is west of San Antonio. That subsidiary owns three hundred and fourteen miles of line.

The map shows that all of the other subsidiaries—I don't think it is necessary to point out the individual lines, but most of the rest are all pretty small. In fact, nearly every branch line is a separate corporation. For example, there is a line in the very eastern part of Texas crossing the main line at Mauriceville, running from Orange to Newton. That one branch line that crosses the main line at that point is the Orange & Northwestern Railroad Company. That has sixty-two miles of railroad. Similarly, from Houston, extending east and a little south, is a short branch to Goose Creek, which is the Houston North Shore Railway Company, and so on. In other words, most of the rest of the subsidiaries are just branch lines. On any ordinary railroad system they would be just a branch line of the main system, but in the Gulf Coast Lines the setup is that they are separate corporations, separate books of account are kept, and they make separate reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

As we know, most branch lines in the railroads of this country can not make money by themselves; they are only important as feeders to the main lines. Railroads are justified in maintaining them because they produce traffic which will move on the main line. But the branch line by itself hardly ever makes any money on an independent basis. That is why we have, in this Gulf Coast Lines picture, a lot of subsidiaries that don't show any income; they operate frequently at deficits, and the reason is that they are branch lines which by their physical nature and character can not be expected to make money, but their existence is very well justified from the point of view of the traffic that they contribute to the main line.

Now I have a second exhibit, which shows all of these companies listed and their mileage, so that you can—

Q. Is that the exhibit to which you refer, Mr. Wyer (indicating)? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 24.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 203.]

Q. Mr. Wyer, did you mention that portion of the Brownsville line between Algoa and Houston?

A. No, I did not specifically. That is not owned by the Brownsville, but is operated by trackage rights over the Santa Fe. That is the part directly south from Houston to Algoa. I think it is about—I don't have the exact mileage on that; forty-six miles, I believe. That is the only part of the Brownsville main line which it doesn't own, but this existence of trackage rights is an illustration of the kind of hand to mouth method in which these lines originally grew. In other words, they built a piece of line and tried to connect up with somebody else, and get a continuous line through this territory by using their facilities, and saving as much money as they could in construction. That was also to some extent the reason for the existence of these numerous companies.

This Exhibit 24 shows the mileage of each of the different companies and the interesting thing about that is that the total owned mileage of the Gulf Coast Lines is 1,594 miles and, yet, the parent company, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, only owns 173 miles of that, or eleven per cent., and the percentage is the same whether you figure it on the owned mileage or whether you include the trackage rights. Only eleven per cent of this system is owned by the parent company outright and operated by the parent company. That is important for this reason: That none of these companies, except the parent company, has any securities outstanding in the hands of the public except Equipment Trusts. In other words, they have no bonds or stock outstanding in the hands of the public. All of the securities of these fourteen subsidiaries are owned by this parent company, which only owns, actually, eleven per cent. of the mileage. So that the assets of the parent company are preponderantly the securities of the subsidiaries and those securities in each case represent all of the securities that the subsidiaries have outstanding, except Equipment Trusts, so that, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico is not primarily a company whose assets are made up of railroad properties, but is primarily a company whose assets are made up of securities of other operating railroad companies. You have to keep that fact in mind all the way through this picture, in order to interpret properly what is going on here. Actually, this company that only owns 173 miles has forty-three million dollars, approximately, of bonds outstanding in the hands of the public, and that is many times its investment, its actual investment in railroad property, but the bonds represent, in effect, this interest in these other companies, which constitutes eighty-nine per cent. of the mileage of the system.

Q. Mr. Wyer, will you briefly review the chronology of acquisition of control of the Gulf Coast Lines by Missouri Pacific?

A. Well, just so we will keep them in mind, I will give a few dates here. The Missouri Pacific resolutions authorising the acquisition were passed April 19, 1924, and the application was then made to the Commission and the Commission then approved the acquisition in an order dated December 5, 1924. The Missouri Pacific directors and officers were elected to the Gulf Coast Lines companies on January 7, 1925. So that 1924 was kind of a transition year, that is, pretty early in the year everybody felt that the Missouri Pacific was going to acquire control, but the control was not actually consummated, and the Missouri Pacific officers didn't go in, until early in 1925, so that when you are comparing what happened during this period, the years prior to 1924 were clearly old management years. 1924 was kind of a transition year, and 1925 and later were definitely Missouri Pacific years.

The Court: Mr. Baldwin took over in December?

The Witness: January 7, 1925.

The Court: The Commission authorized it when?

The Witness: December, 1924, was the date the Commission authorized the taking over, but it took about a month after that to actually make it effective.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Mr. Wyer, the objections of Mr. Comstock charge that the Missouri Pacific was interested only in getting dividends out of the Gulf Coast Lines and that $6,200,000 dividends were declared by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico from 1926 to 1931, inclusive: Do you agree with that charge? A. No, I do not.

Q. Will you explain your answer?

A. I might point out first that this charge is linked up especially with advances which the Missouri Pacific made, and these advances up to the end of the dividend paying period—

Mr. Biggs: If the Court please, it seems to me that this question is too general. It is going to allow this witness to go all over the thing. I think it should be a more definite question, limiting the witness to certain things.

The Court: Can you suggest the limitation?

Mr. Biggs: It is up to counsel. I object to it.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, we can do this by question and answer and take up two weeks' time. I suggest that Mr. Biggs will have a right to move to strike out if Mr. Wyer makes statements that he has objection to. This is not a jury case so that anyone would be prejudiced by whatever Mr. Wyer might say. It will greatly facilitate this proceeding and shorten the time a whole lot, of Mr. Biggs and every one else, if we are allowed to proceed in this manner. I don't think Mr. Biggs need be prejudiced. He can move to strike out.

Mr. Biggs: Are you suggesting that I interrupt Mr. Wyer every minute or so, to move to strike?

Mr. McConaughy: It is all right.

Mr. Biggs: I stand on my objection. I don't know what Mr. Wyer is going to testify to and it seems impossible for me to move to strike every two or three minutes, or every five minutes or every fifteen minutes. This question is just so general that any answer could be responsive to it. I think he ought to be more definite.

The Court: Overruled.

A. During the period when dividends were still being paid the advances by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico totaled $7,376,000.

The Court: The advances were how much?

The Witness: $7,376,000.

Mr. Biggs: What is that amount?

The Witness: The exact amount is $7,376,541. That is just up to the end of the dividend paying period. There were later advances after the dividend paying period, but those are the only advances made while dividends were being paid.

Mr. Biggs: What are the dates of those advances, between what dates?

The Witness: They are between November, 1928, and November, 1931. I think the first was November 30, 1928, and the last November 30, 1931, so that they cover exactly a three-year period.

During those same three years the dividends received by the Missouri Pacific from the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico totaled $2,899,050, so that the Missouri Pacific was advancing, during the dividend paying period, nearly three times as much as they received back in dividends. Now, obviously, they were not advancing that money in order to get the dividends, because they were advancing nearly three for one.

Mr. Biggs: He is arguing the case. The witness can testify to facts.

The Court: Perhaps he—

Mr. Biggs: I move to strike it out.

Mr. McConaughy: You don't object to the statement that the advances and dividends were in the ratio of three to one; that is a fact, isn't it?

Mr. Biggs: He can state that.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Biggs: Exception.

The Witness: I merely mentioned that because it is one of the reasons why I feel that the Missouri Pacific was much more interested in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for something else besides the mere dividends that they got out of it.

Mr. Biggs: I move that that be stricken out.

The Court: Stricken.

Mr. McConaughy: Right there, I attempted to qualify Mr. Wyer as an expert. I think he is entitled to give opinions and conclusions.

The Court: Yes, he has a right to do that, I presume, as an expert. I don't think he has a right to argue the case.

Mr. McConaughy: Let it go at that.

(To the witness) Go ahead, Mr. Wyer—

Mr. Biggs: On the question of the expert, an expert is supposed to be somebody that is not interested in the picture in the slightest, not interested in the result or anything else. I think if I cross-examine Mr. Wyer the evidence will show that he is interested in this.

Mr. McConaughy: If you want to take that up go ahead. If he is not an expert I want to be straightened out on that.

Mr. Biggs: I am not objecting to him, but as I understand the law in regard to testimony of experts, the witnesses are only witnesses, they are allowed to testify where they have no interest in the controversy before the Court.

Mr. McConaughy: There is no showing that Mr. Wyer is interested. I am inviting him to cross-examine Mr. Wyer.

The Court: He has an opportunity to ask and qualify him.

Questions by Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Wyer, in regard to this present Plan of Reorganization that is now before the Court, whom were you employed by to assist in the working out of that plan?

A. Well, I was requested to—

Q. Whom were you employed by?

A. I am going to answer your question, if you will let me.

Q. I think that is susceptible of a statement of the name of the employer.

A. The answer is not as simple as you apparently think it is.

Q. You can have an opportunity to explain your answer.

A. I haven't even given the answer yet.

The Court: Proceed.

The Witness: I was requested to undertake the job of, you might call it, [negotiater,] in connection with this Plan, by two of the parties in the case, one of them the First and Refunding Committee and the other the Alleghany Corporation. It was agreed between the two parties that I would be compensated for my work by the Alleghany Corporation, but I was not employed by either of them. My part in the case was as a result of a joint request of the two of them that I undertake the work.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Don't you get some extra compensation if this Plan is finally approved and put into being? A. No.

Q. You get no other compensation than what has already been paid you?

A. All of my compensation has not yet been paid me, but the payment of this remainder of it is not dependent upon the consummation of the Plan.

Q. Is it dependent upon approval of the Plan by this Court? A. No.

Q. There is no compensation that is contingent in any way, shape, or form? A. No.

Q. But you are being paid by Alleghany, which is one of the proponents of this Plan?

A. Yes, for my work in connection with the negotiation of the Plan.

Q. Who is paying you for appearing in Court today?

A. The Institutional Group.

Mr. McConaughy: Is that all, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Now will you proceed, Mr. Wyer?

A. Well, I—

Mr. McDonald: May I ask the witness one question with reference to Alleghany, which has been brought in here?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. McDonald: Mr. Wyer, is Alleghany making application for reimbursement of any expenditure to you?

The Witness: I understand so.

Mr. McDonald: There will be an application before the Court?

The Court: Is Alleghany what?

Mr. McDonald: Making an application from the Debtor estate for any funds advanced for his fee.

The Witness: Yes, I understand they are. I think, in view of the ruling, I think perhaps that is as much as I need to say on that last question at this time.

I think the answers to later questions will develop further why I don't think the charges in the objections are correct.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Other objections made by Comstock charge that the Missouri Pacific caused the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to postpone needed improvements in order to pay dividends when the cash was not available; is that a fact? A. No.

Q. Will you explain your answer?

A. I think in order to explain my answer to that question you have really got to consider, or review briefly, first, the entire financial policy of the Missouri Pacific System, because the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was part of that system and these transactions that are under review here can only be considered in the light of the background of what was going on on the Missouri Pacific as a system during these years.

There was [an] new management of the Missouri Pacific in 1923. Mr. Baldwin came to the road as president at that time. Mr. Williams was chairman of the Board in New York and he handled the finances, and he and Mr. Baldwin worked out a very far-reaching policy or, I will say, inaugurated a very far-reaching policy in connection with the building up of the Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Baldwin felt that large sums of money ought to be spent for the Missouri Pacific in the way of improvements to make it a first-class railroad in every respect. Of course, that had to be financed, and that was Mr. Williams' job. Mr. Baldwin's job was to plan the improvements, recommend them, and Mr. Williams' job was to obtain the money to enable Mr. Baldwin to do the job, and then Mr. Baldwin had to do the job. It was a case of teamwork between the executive head and the financial head, and part of this program involved the acquisition of some subsidiary lines which it was felt were necessary to the strategic development of the system and the acquisition of the Gulf Coast Lines and International-Great Northern was one of those acquisitions; the Denver, Rio Grande and Western was one, and that was the way I came into the Missouri Pacific picture when the Missouri Pacific acquired this interest in the Denver, Rio Grande and Western at this same time.

As the result of this program, during the years 1923 to 1930, over two hundred million dollars was spent on the Missouri Pacific alone, in the way of building it up, making a more dependable railroad out of it, making a high speed railroad out of it, and enabling it to give more and better service throughout the entire territory. They had some rather astonishing results—

Mr. Biggs: I move that all of this statement be stricken. It is irrelevant to the issues before the Court; it is dealing with so-called improvements of the Missouri Pacific. The question here is in regard to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Wyer just stated that he is laying the background for what he is going to testify to about the Gulf Coast Lines, the background into which the Gulf Coast Lines fell.

The Court: Objection overruled.

The Witness: One of the major results of this program was the fact that the Missouri Pacific very greatly increased its proportion of the whole railroad business of the southwestern part of this country, which it was handling, and this statement applies to the Missouri Pacific System, including all the subsidiaries.

At the beginning of this expansion period the Missouri Pacific Lines, and I include the lines that were later acquired, so that the figures are comparable all the way through—at the beginning of this expansion period the Missouri Pacific System was only handling about twenty-two per cent. of the total railroad business in the southwest, and in 1930, at the end of this period of expansion—

The Court: What do you call the beginning?

The Witness: 1923. In 1930, at the end of that period of expansion it was handling about twenty-seven per cent. of the total railroad business of the southwest. Now, that increase from twenty-two to twenty-seven per cent. doesn't sound very impressive, perhaps—just an increase of five percent.—but in the history of railroad expansion and development in this country, in the twentieth century at least, I have never heard of a shift of traffic comparable in amount to that. In other words, railroad territories are pretty well fixed and the hold that different railroads have on business is fairly well fixed, assuming that each railroad gives good service and has an active traffic department and solicitation of business. But here was a case where a railroad made itself so much better than the other railroads in its territory, in its ability to give service and conduct business, that it in effect performed a revolution in the distribution of business in the territory which it served, and a major factor in doing that was this [expenditre] of two hundred million dollars for improving the Missouri Pacific Lines.

There has been an intimation here that during all this period when this was going on the New York Office and later the Cleveland Office, were interested solely in earnings and didn't pay attention to the operation of the property, but this expansion couldn't have been carried out without the help of the financial officers in New York or Cleveland in providing the money, and that was the prime objective all through this period, to assist in this expansion of the property; of course, with the view that ultimately it would result in earnings, but it was primarily the first job to build up the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Biggs: I move that that all be stricken out as argument, not responsive or relevant to the issues in this case.

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me that Mr. Wyer has been describing a state of facts.

Mr. Biggs: He has gone way beyond it.

The Court: This man was holding a responsible office. He probably knows as well as anybody what was going on.

Mr. Biggs: Let him state facts, but not conclusions and argument.

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me that that is what he has been stating. He describes what went on in New York and Cleveland offices.

The Court: This man was a very important cog in the wheel. He was in touch with everything that was going on—

Mr. Biggs: I don't doubt that, but I don't see why he should have special dispensation, so to speak, because of that.

The Court: I don't know whether the Court can get a better picture of what their situation was—

Mr. Biggs: If he wants to stand here and state the facts as counsel I have no objection.

The Court: Proceed.

The Witness: I have an exhibit which reflects this development program.

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Is this the exhibit to which you refer, Mr. Wyer (indicating)? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence. That is marked Group Exhibit 25. [See Vol. of Exs. p. 269]

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor please, I wish to object to the offer in evidence of Group Exhibit 25, as on examination I find this exhibit pertains solely to the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company—a statement of the investment in road equipment from 1917 through 1944. There is certainly a tremendous lot of this that is irrelevant under any circumstances, and therefore is irrelevant to the issues in this case, because it deals solely with the Missouri Pacific and not the N.O.T. & M.

Mr. McConaughy: This is a background of what he is coming to on the Gulf Lines.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(The exhibit last offered in evidence was marked Group Exhibit 25.)

Mr. McConaughy: Go ahead, Mr. Wyer.

A. This exhibit starts with June 1, 1917, because that was the beginning of the present Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. It came out of receivership on that date.

The Court: On what date?

The Witness: June 1, 1917. This exhibit starts at the beginning of the corporate life of the present company and it shows the changes—

The Court: Have you a copy of that exhibit?

Mr. McConaughy: You have one there.

The Witness: Underneath that top sheet, I think. This shows the investments in road and equipment during that period, by years. The road figures are shown in the first five columns and the equipment figures in the second five, and the total of those in the last five columns on the right.

The most interesting and significant part of this is in column 12, which shows the gross expenditures, every year, for additions and betterments to the Missouri Pacific Railroad. I have shown the whole period from 1917 to 1944, so that you may get an idea of how much greater the program of improvement was during the years 1923 to 1930, than either before or after that time.

In 1923, you will notice that the gross expenditures were $16,303,720. You will notice prior to that time no year came up to that, and most of the years were very much less than that.

The Court: The only one that approaches it is 1920. Was that after the road was taken from the—

The Witness: That was after the road was taken out of Federal control, and you notice in column 6 that $11,375,000. of that was new equipment, so there was not an awful lot done to the railroad itself, but new equipment was acquired in 1920, or at the end of Federal control. That is what brings 1920 up to that high figure.

You will notice beginning with 1923, it went—with exception of 1923, which was the first year, and 1928 when only thirteen million was spent, there was not a single year where the gross amount of money spent was less than twenty million dollars, and it went up to as high as thirty-three million odd in 1929. 1930 was the last year of the program and that year twenty-five million dollars was spent. In those eight years, 1923 to 1930, over two hundred million dollars was spent. You can see from this that after that program was completed there has never been a time when expenditures have come up to the level of those eight years' construction, which far exceeded what was spent before. Now, that illustrates, I think, very forcibly what a tremendous job was being done in the way of building up the Missouri Pacific during those years.

Mr. Biggs: He is starting to argue again.

Mr. McConaughy: He is stating an opinion based on facts. I think he is entitled to give his opinion.

The Court: It is almost impossible to keep out some of that. Objection overruled.

The Witness: Now, just to show how those years average out from 1917 to 1922—these averages are not on the exhibit but they are based on the exhibit—from 1917 to 1922, prior to the beginning of what I call Mr. Baldwin's improvement program, the average expenditure was $7,118,000. During the eight years of Mr. Baldwin's program the average expenditures were $23,785,000., or more than three times as great as they were before that period, and from the end of Mr. Baldwin's program to the beginning of war—1931 to 1939, that is a nine-year period, the average was $5,988,000., or less than one-fourth of Mr. Baldwin's program. The average during the war period when camps were being built and additional facilities were being constructed for war purposes, 1940 to 1943, inclusive, the average was only $10,293,000., or less than one-half of the Baldwin period.

Mr. Biggs: May I interrupt one minute? Going back to this question of your interest in the Plan, I would like to just ask one more question of the witness, with Your Honor's permission.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I have before me the application of Alleghany Corporation, which consists of the affidavit of C. L. Peckham, in support of the petition of Alleghany Corporation for reimbursement of expenses, which has been duly filed in this Court and filed before the Interstate Commerce Commission. On page 3 of said affidavit of Mr. Peckham is this statement, top paragraph, last three lines, page 3:

> "Alleghany Corporation has already paid Mr. Wyer the sum of $22,465.86 and is obligated to pay him an additional sum of $7,500. upon the consummation of the Plan."

Is that correct, Mr. Wyer?

The Witness: I think the application says that but that is not a correct statement of my arrangement with Alleghany. When that wording was called to my attention —I might say I had no part in the preparation of that— I immediately took it up with Alleghany Corporation, because that was not a statement of my understanding with them, and I asked them why they had set it forth in that way, and they advised me that that was merely a statement as to the time of payment and they had no intention of implying that payment was in any way conditioned upon consummation.

The Court: You are to be paid—

The Witness: I am to be paid whether consummated or not, but the time of payment is consummation. My understanding was quite clear with them as to that.

The Court: If you didn't have consummation you wouldn't be paid?

The Witness: I will have to work out another arrangement with them as to when I am to be paid, but there is no question but that they owe me $7,500. and that I will be paid, regardless of what happens to any particular plan.

Mr. Biggs: But your present arrangement with Alleghany is that you are to receive $7,500. when the Plan is consummated; is that correct?

A. Yes, with the explanation that I have given.

Mr. Biggs: In view of that statement I move that this witness's testimony be limited to statements of facts, and that he is not qualified to testify as an expert in this proceeding.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. McConaughy: Proceed, Mr. Wyer.

The Witness: Of course, as I have said, the Missouri Pacific had to finance this tremendous improvement program. One of the ways which it used to finance this program was to put all its earnings into these improvements, and this was done through 1927. In other words, from 1917 through 1927, the Missouri Pacific did not pay any dividends on either its preferred or common stock.

The Court: What years?

The Witness: 1917 to 1927, inclusive. During this time the company earned approximately forty-nine million dollars available for dividends, all of which they poured back into the improvement program. But, of course, from the size of the program, as I pointed it out, this forty-nine million dollars obviously did not take care of the investment, so that during this whole period the debt of the Missouri Pacific increased about ninety-eight million dollars, or just approximately twice the amount that was put into the improvements from earnings.

The policy which was followed by the Missouri Pacific in borrowing this money is rather important—

Mr. Biggs: I object to this witness stating what the policy of the Missouri Pacific was.

The Court: I think the Court wants to know about it. Proceed.

The Witness: This policy is important to understand, because it set a pattern which was followed not only on the Missouri Pacific but on the N. O. T. & M., and even on the subsidiaries of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico. The Missouri Pacific, as funds were needed to pay for these improvements, these funds were borrowed on short terms, in the case of the Missouri Pacific usually from banks, although in some cases the Missouri Pacific borrowed from its own subsidiaries, but these moneys were borrowed on short terms and when the borrowings were sufficient to justify the floating of a bond issue then application was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval of that issue, arrangements were made with bankers to sell the bonds, and then when the bonds were sold the money would go into the Missouri Pacific treasury to reimburse it for these improvements, and the cycles would start over again.

I have three exhibits to show exactly how this pattern worked on the Missouri Pacific, the parent company.

Q. Are these the three exhibits? A. Yes, they are.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer them in evidence. That will be Series G cycle, Exhibit No. 26; Series H cycle, Exhibit No. 27; Series I cycle, Exhibit No. 28.

(The said documents were marked by the reporter as Group Exhibits Nos. 26, 27 and 28, respectively.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 271, 273, 275.]

Mr. Biggs: What about Series F?

Mr. McConaughy: The first one was G.

The Witness: Now, these three exhibits cover the—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute. If Your Honor please, I object to the introduction of these three exhibits in evidence, as they are irrelevant to any issue in this case, they deal solely with—

The Court: What are these exhibits there now?

(Mr. McConaughy explains the exhibits to the Court at the bench.)

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: These three exhibits refer respectively to the financing culminating in the sale of 25 million Series G First and Refunding Bonds, 25 million Series H First and Refunding Bonds, and $61,200,000 Series I First and Refunding Bonds.

And I would like to take the first one, Exhibit No. 26, which refers to the Series G bonds, and go through it in detail, because it, as I say, it sets a pattern which we find followed all the way through the financing operations of these companies. Now, in March, 1927, 95 million of the Series F First and Refunding Bonds had been sold and a new cycle of financing improvements began after the sale of those bonds.

Now, this exhibit shows in the first column, the top figure, that as of March 31, 1927, which was the end of the period covered by the Series F financing, the Missouri Pacific's investment in road and equipment was $461,813,819; and over in the right-hand column, on the same line, you will notice that the First and Refunding Bonds outstanding as of that same date were $112,840,500, and you will notice that in the intervening columns there are no figures, indicating that there were no short term loans outstanding as of that date.

Now, then, as the improvement program proceeded during the year, it finally became necessary to borrow money, and these borrowings are shown in the third column of figures.

The first borrowing was 5 million dollars from the Guaranty Trust Company, in August, 1927, and then the borrowings went on as shown there, two million dollars more from the Guaranty Trust in September, $750,000 from the International-Great Northern in March, 1928, another million from the Guaranty Trust Company in April, 1928, $150,000 from the Missouri Pacific Hospital Association in May, and then in August, some loans from some of the St. Louis banks: a million dollars from the National Bank of Commerce, 750,000 from the First National, and 250,000 from the Boatmen's Bank, and so on, until at the end of August, $11,400,000 had been borrowed on short term.

Now, you will notice also that at the end of August, in the second column, the increase in capital account since March 31, when this cycle of financing started, had been $29,723,000. In other words, the Missouri Pacific had spent over 29 million dollars for improvements on the property, it had borrowed $11,400,000, and it had reached the point where it was necessary to float another bond issue to take up the short term loans, and start another cycle of financing in the course of this improvement program; so in November, 25 million of Series G bonds were sold and the loans were all paid off, and their repayment is shown there.

Now, that was a well established procedure, and it was definitely planned out in every case, and the procedure even went as far as this: I know in the later years when I was personally handling the floating of these bonds myself, we even went to this extent: that as these capital expenditures were made, we would file with the Interstate Commerce Commission detailed lists of these improvements, listing them one by one, and filing with this list a complete set of what we call the A. F. E.s, which are the Authorities for Expenditures. Now, that is a document which is prepared in the railroad offices when a project to spend money is up for approval, and that document sets forth exactly how much money may be spent, how large the quantities of all the different classes of material are, it specifies even the number of bolts and spikes, and other pieces of track material, and the feet of lumber which are to be used, and every item of material is spelled out in detail, and the labor is spelled out in detail, and that is a document required as to each project. Now, there were budgets, of course, for every project, no matter how small, and we would file in advance, while this work was going on, and before we were ready to apply for authority to sell the bonds, we would file this information, so that the Commission could be checking this over and satisfy themselves that these projects were properly capitalizable, so that when it came time to file the application to sell the bonds, then the Commission would have checked over the projects and would have been able to approve the application quickly and with a minimum of delay.

Now, that just illustrates the planning that went into the handling of this financing, and it was all based upon improvements to the property.

Now, I don't think it is necessary to go over these exhibits 27 and 28; they are simply additional illustrations of this same pattern applying to later bond issues. But this is important, because it does set the pattern for what happened on the Gulf Coast Lines later.

Now, the next exhibit that I have shows the application of this same pattern to the Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Is that the exhibit to which you refer (indicating)?
A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 29.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 29.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 277.]

The Witness: Now, this exhibit shows the financing cycle in connection with the Series D bonds of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, covering $5,900,000. Now, of course the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico was not as big a railroad as the Missouri Pacific, so that it did its financing in smaller bites, and whereas the Missouri Pacific would sell 25 million at a time, or more, the Gulf Coast Lines' cycle in this case was $5,900,000. Now, this shows exactly the same pattern, if you will note—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just one minute, if Your Honor please.

(Q.) Were you connected with the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad in 1926? A. No.

Mr. Biggs: (Q.) With the Missouri Pacific in 1926?

A. I was with the Denver and Rio Grande Western in 1926.

Mr. Biggs: I object then to this testimony, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I would just like to ask a couple of questions in connection with that objection, if I may.

Q. Mr. Wyer, this exhibit is based upon company records? A. Yes, it is.

Q. As you have testified?

A. And it is based upon records which I had access to later on when I became a financial officer of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, he is testifying to policy, conclusions, what was in the minds of the Board and the officers in 1926, of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad, when he has admitted he had no connection with the railroad at that time. I really think that his testimony is subject to objection.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Wyer is using these facts to support his conclusion that that was the policy.

Mr. Biggs: He is testifying that in 1926 that was the policy, when he had no connection with the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad.

Mr. McConaughy: This is evidence of the policy.

The Witness: Well, I can say this, that—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) He can introduce—that is right—records of the company, I have no objection to that, but when he starts to testify what the policy of the railroad was in 1926, when he had no connection with it.

The Court: I don't know, unless that policy could be introduced—

Mr. McConaughy: That is the theory, Your Honor.

The Court: From the pleadings here.

Mr. McConaughy: That this exhibit is evidence of the policy.

The Witness: I might say this, in explanation of that, that when I went to New York in February, 1929, as assistant to the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, this question of financing policy was of course one of the first things that was discussed with me by the Chairman. In fact, the whole work of the Chairman's office centered around this, and I became a part of it immediately, and the policy which was being pursued at that time was explained to me, and I took part in progressing it thereafter.

Now, take for example Exhibit No. 27, which covers the cycle of the 25 million First and Refunding Series H Bonds: that cycle started in November, 1928, three months before I came to New York, and was going on at the time that I arrived there, and I had a part in it all the rest of the way, and I handled the proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission in connection with the sale of these bonds, and I handled the preparation of dockets for the meetings of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific, in connection with that financing, and I know the information that was presented to the Board, and this was all in line with the policy which was in effect at that time and which had covered this previous financing, and which covered the current financing that was then under way.

The Court: The objection is overruled. Announce a three-minute recess.

(Brief recess.)

Q. Mr. Wyer, had you completed your explanation of Group Exhibit No. 29?

A. No. I really had not started on that. I would like to go through Exhibit No. 29 a little in detail.

The Court: What is that? That is the—

The Witness: That is typical of financing the improvements on N. O. T. & M. This particular cycle—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute. Will the record show that I am objecting to any testimony?

The Court: The record will show, Mr. Biggs, your objection lies to all of this.

Mr. Biggs; All right.

The Witness: This particular cycle started on August 31, 1926. In that month, the Series C Bonds of the N. O. T. & M. had been sold in the amount of $4,600,000, and that had cleaned up the financing of improvements on the Gulf Coast Lines up to that time. I should explain that the First Mortgage of the N. O. T. & M. permits the N. O. T. & M. to authenticate bonds or permits the mortgage trustee to authenticate bonds against improvements on all of the Gulf Coast Line Companies, since all of the securities of the subsidiaries are pledged under the mortgage.

Now, the investment in road and equipment of the Gulf Coast Line Companies on August 31, 1926 is the first figure on this exhibit, $61,373,000, and there were outstanding $37,070,000 First Mortgage Bonds at the beginning of this cycle. That is shown in the top of the last column on this exhibit. Now then, as the work progressed and the money was spent, these short term loans had to be borrowed by the N. O. T. & M., and you will notice that the first loan was borrowed in June, 1927, and in that month there were two loans from the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, totalling $1,574,024; that in August, there were advances from the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, $335,000; in other words, the financing of the improvements on the Gulf Coast Lines was in part through advances from the Missouri Pacific—the parent company. In September, there was an additional advance from the Missouri Pacific of $1,465,000, and the loan from the Mercantile Trust Company was repaid, so that from that time on, for the time being, the entire program was financed by the parent company through advances.

Then in October, there was another advance from the Missouri Pacific of $155,000; in November, another advance of $650,000; and in December, another advance of $425,000; and another one of a hundred thousand, and then in December, another loan from the Mercantile Trust of $1,403,739, making a total short term borrowing during this financing cycle of $4,533,739. And then in February, 1928, $5,900,000 of the Series D Bonds were sold, and the Mercantile Trust and the Missouri Pacific were both repaid.

Now, there is an interesting thing here which I think has a bearing on what comes later. The N. O. T. & M. was paying dividends in 1927 when these advances were made, and these advances were made in the same months in which N. O. T. & M. was paying dividends, and yet the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the sale of these bonds and the money was used to repay these advances, and there was never any question raised at that time about advances being made for the purposes of paying dividends.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute, now. If Your Honor please, I believe that that statement should be stricken out, unless he states that there was no objection made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is no evidence in this record that the Interstate Commerce Commission was fully cognizant of all the facts. The mere fact that they made no objection, unless there is a full showing that they knew all of the facts, does not justify the conclusion drawn by this witness.

The Court: They authorized—

Mr. McConaughy: May I ask the witness a question on that?

The Court: (Continuing)—all the bond issues, didn't they?

The Witness: Yes, sir, they did.

Q. What did the reports of the Gulf Coast Lines to the Interstate Commerce Commission show with reference to dividends?

A. They showed that the dividends were paid at the 7% rate during this year.

Q. And they also showed the earnings of the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes.

Mr. Biggs: I move that that evidence be stricken, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: Now, that cycle of financing on the N. O. T. & M., you will notice, came to a close in February, 1928, when these $5,900,000 of bonds were sold. Now, that was the last issue of bonds sold by the N. O. T. & M., so that the next financing cycle began immediately thereafter, and that is the financing cycle that is under discussion in this hearing. In other words, in February, 1928, the N. O. T. & M. sold these bonds, cleared up these short term loans, about two-thirds of which were advanced from the Missouri Pacific, and a new financing cycle then started, just exactly like these other four financing cycles that I have testified to on the Missouri Pacific, one of them on the N. O. T. & M. That is the cycle—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute. I move that this statement "just exactly like these other cycles" be stricken as a conclusion of the witness and an argument.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: And that is the financing cycle out of which the advances accrued which were still outstanding at the time when the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M. went into bankruptcy in 1933.

Now, in connection with this last cycle, which started in February, 1928, and which was never completed, because the N. O. T. & M. was never able to sell bonds because of the condition of the financial markets after the depression started, that last cycle was the cycle which was under way when I was in the New York offices of the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M., and it was the cycle that I participated in. As I have said, one of the things which I did, part of my duties was to prepare information for the Chairman of the Board and for the Board of Directors in connection with matters coming up for consideration, and during this financing cycle, the question of advances to the N. O. T. & M. would come up for consideration, and the point I want to make is that these advances were always tied into the improvement program as they were considered by the Board and approved by the Board from time to time, and I have two exhibits which are typical of the kind of information that was placed before the Board at its meetings when it was considering the question of advances to the N. O. T. & M.

Q. Are these (indicating) the two exhibits to which you refer? A. Yes, they are.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer them in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute. I would like an opportunity to examine these.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. McConaughy: The one marked "Status of Authorities for Expenditures to February 23, 1929" is marked Exhibit No. 30; and the one headed "Detail of Estimated Advances in 1929 by Missouri Pacific to Gulf Coast Lines" is marked Group Exhibit No. 31.

(The said documents were marked by the reporter as Group Exhibits, respectively, Nos. 30 and 31.) [See Vol. of Exs. pp. 279, 280.]

Mr. McConaughy: Just a minute, Mr. Wyer.

Mr. Biggs: All right, you may proceed.

Q. Proceed, Mr. Wyer.

A. Exhibit No. 30 is headed "Status of Authorities for Expenditures to February 23, 1929." Now, that document, you will notice, carries in the corner the initials "WHW: WDS." "WHW" are the initials of William H. Williams, the Chairman of the Board; and "WDS" are the initials of W. D. Steele, who was Chief Clerk in my office in New York.

Q. Now, would you state the source of this exhibit No. 30? It is not recited at the foot.

A. This is taken—this is a copy of the statement in the files in New York of the Missouri Pacific, which were later transferred from New York to Cleveland, and then from Cleveland to St. Louis, and those files are now in St. Louis, but this was a file which was current at the time in New York, and the initials means that it was prepared by Mr. Steele, at the instruction of the Chairman of the Board. Mr. Steele being my Chief Clerk. You will notice that this is a summary of the improvement work in progress on the Gulf Coast Lines, showing how much is still to be spent and how much the financial forecast covering the next twelve months has indicated will be spent during those twelve months, and the important figure on this analysis, which I might say was made up every month in the office of the Chairman of the Board, is the last figure at the bottom of the page, of $1,815,230. In other words, that was the requirement of the Gulf Coast Lines for the next twelve months as estimated in view of the status of the work and the reports from St. Louis as to its progress.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyer, that was typical of a whole series?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Of a whole what?

Mr. McConaughy: Of a whole series.

The Witness: One of these was prepared every month. Now, this exhibit ties right into the next exhibit No. 31.

Q. And before you get to No. 31, will you please state where that came from?

A. Exhibit No. 31 came from another file in the same office, another file which was a current one in the same office at that time.

The Court: What is the heading on that?

Mr. McConaughy: Detail of Advances.

The Witness: 31?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: Detail of Estimated Advances. Now, you will notice that carries in the upper right-hand corner the initials "WHW:WW." The last two initials being mine, and that means that this statement was prepared by me, at the instructions of the Chairman of the Board. And this sets forth all of the cash available or estimated to be available to the Gulf Coast Lines during the next twelve months, and all of the cash requirements, and shows how much is going to have to be advanced from the Missouri Pacific during the next twelve months in order to enable the Gulf Coast Lines to meet these cash requirements, and you will notice that the figure from the preceding exhibit of $1,815,230 is carried into this Exhibit No. 31 as the fifth figure in the column of figures. In other words, what was done in New York during this period, a detail analysis of the state of the improvement program was made, and then that was carried into the forecast of the cash situation, in order to determine how much the Missouri Pacific would have to advance in order to carry on the program. So this was a definite tie-in which was made each month between the improvement work and the advances of money by the Missouri Pacific.

I think that is all I need to say about these two exhibits.

Now, these advances which were being made at the time that these exhibits 30 and 31 were prepared in New York back in 1929, as I said, started with the—the cycle started in February, 1928, the first advance of money was made in November, 1928, because up to that time the Gulf Coast had enough working capital to carry on the work without borrowing. That cycle continued on down to the bankruptcy. The advances divided themselves logically for discussion into two parts. The advances that were made up through the period when dividends were being paid and the advances made after the dividends were being paid.

I have already stated that the advances during the dividend-paying period were $7,376,541, and the advances made after the continuance of dividends were $3,188,686. Those two figures total the $10,565,227 which are dealt with in the reorganization plan.

Now, I have an exhibit which sets forth these advances—

Q. (Interrupting) Mr. Wyer, just before you get to that exhibit, I would like to ask you this question: Were the additions and betterments made on the properties of all the Gulf Coast Line Companies between January 1, 1928 and November 30, 1931, reported in detail to the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. Yes, they were.

Q. And will you explain how and why this was done, and the results which followed?

A. Well, I had in mind doing that a little later.

Q. All right.

A. I think it fits in a little better later on.

Q. All right, if you prefer to proceed with this exhibit, go ahead.

A. Because I want to show just what those expenditures are, and this next exhibit shows that.

Q. Just a moment, Mr. Wyer. Is that (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer?

A. That is my next exhibit, yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 32.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I hate to be interrupting all the time.

The Court: Oh, don't mind that.

Mr. Biggs: Would it be all right for me to reserve my right to object to these exhibits until a later date? As they come up, I do not have time really to examine them.

Mr. McConaughy: That is perfectly all right.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Biggs: Then there won't be any need of my making objections.

The Court: No.

Mr. McConaughy: By later date, I presume he means before this hearing is closed?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 32.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 281.]

A. This next exhibit is an analysis of the advances which had already been presented in the hearing before the Commission, but it adds to it certain information that has not previously been presented, which I think is important from the chronological point of view.

The first two columns show the advances, or the first column shows the individual advances and also the individual repayments to the extent that they were credited to principal; and the second column shows the cumulative amount of the advances up to the different dates shown. In other words, the second figure in the second column of $400,000 adds the $100,000 advance on September 1, 1928, and so it is a cumulative figure.

And then the third column shows the increase in investment, that is, the improvement on the property, on a net basis after deducting retirements between the different periods; and the fourth column is the cumulative figure for the improvements on the property. In other words, as the money was being borrowed, these improvements were being made, and this exhibit shows at any given date how that amount of improvements compared with the amount of the borrowings. For example, if you go down to November 29, 1929, you will see that as of that date, the advances total $3,010,000, and the improvements made up to that date total $5,373,895.

Now, the last dividend was paid on December 1, 1931, and the last advance made prior to that date was November 27, 1931, and you will notice that as of that date the advances—

The Court: (Interrupting) This is November, when?

The Witness: November 27, 1931.

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: And you will note that as of that date the advances total $7,416,544, and the improvements total $7,417,593. Now, of course the Board of Directors of the N. O. T. & M. was not good enough to make those figures come out that closely, because they had to estimate in advance; when they would estimate in advance, they did not know what the accounting figures were going to show; they knew what the St. Louis and Houston reports were as to the progress of the work, and they were, of course, as I have shown, trying to keep the advances within the improvements, so that I think it was perhaps more good luck than anything else that they came out so close on that date; but at any rate, they did stick within their improvement expenditures as of November 27, and that was the basis for the advances all during this period, and it shows that the policy maintained itself successfully up through the date of the last dividend payment. Now, of course, after the dividends stopped, the advances had to continue. They continued, however, for a different purpose, because, of course, there were some improvements still being made, but the main improvement program had stopped, 1930 was the last big year, as I have shown, and the Gulf Coast Lines were running into deficits, and these advances made after the date of the last dividend were made to a considerable extent to meet these deficits, and the same considerations did not hold, but as long as the dividends were being paid, the advances were to cover the improvements to the property.

Now this exhibit also shows in the columns to the right of these first four columns the cash payments made immediately after advances were received, and this shows that in many cases the advances were made shortly prior to the date dividends were paid. There were also in those days payments of bond interest, sinking fund payments, equipment trust payments of interest and principal. This sets forth all of the big payments which the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico or its subsidiaries were making immediately after the dates of these advances.

Now, it is the fact that these advances were made in many cases just prior to the dates of the dividends. That has led to the charge that these advances were made for the payment of dividends. Now, that involves, a discussion of that charge and the facts in this case involve perhaps a reversion to the basic concepts of financing a railroad and in order to understand what I consider the true facts, you have to really get back to bedrock on this question.

A railroad has basically two sets of accounting figures. It has a balance sheet which sets forth its assets and liabilities, including its profit and loss surplus at any time, and it has an income account which sets forth its current operations, the income and expenses, and the net income, and sets forth the amounts that are earned, available for interest and dividends.

Now, actually, however, although it has two sets of accounts in that way, it only has one cash fund. Ordinarily, there is no attempt to separate the cash into two funds, although actually what a railroad is doing is, it is running one cash fund in connection with its assets and liabilities, that is, which is affected by changes in balances, and it is running another cash fund, which is its current operating fund.

Now, when a railroad is making improvements to its property and is financing those improvements through the sale of securities, as the Missouri Pacific and the N. O. T. & M. were doing at this time, the provision of cash to pay for those improvements is a transaction that affects the balance sheet only. That is a phase of the cash fund, if there were a separate cash fund, which would affect only that part of the books.

Now, the payment of interest and dividends, on the other hand, is a transaction which occurs in the other cash fund; that is, which affects only the income account, and the money comes out of the current earnings then, if any shown, or it might come out of past earnings, but in any event, it comes out of earnings of the property, either past or present.

Now then, what was happening on these companies, basically, was this: the improvements were being made, the cash was being provided for those improvements on the one side, the property was being operated, the cash was being provided from those operations for the dividends on the other side. Now, since the two cash funds were intermingled, that was all handled in one fund, and when money was needed for improvements, nobody took particular dollars out of the cash fund and said, "These are the dollars that are provided for the improvement, and we will use those particular dollars for the improvement", but they took whatever dollars were in the fund, and, of course, the earnings go on day by day, the fund increases day by day, and in most instances, in many instances the earnings dollars were taken to pay for improvements, as a practical matter, then when it came time to pay the interest on the bonds, or pay the dividends which had been earned and which should have come out of the earnings fund, that money was gone, had gone, it had been used to pay for improvements, and then the money that the Missouri Pacific stood ready to advance to finance those improvements was advanced, because the N. O. T. & M. had cash requirements to meet in the way of interest and dividends. Actually, there was a commingling of the cash funds. The Missouri Pacific advances were basically for improvements, but if improvements had been paid for only out of Missouri Pacific funds, the Missouri Pacific advances would have had to start earlier and the interest charges paid by the Gulf Coast would have been increased, so that it was in the best interests of the Gulf Coast to use whatever cash was available to pay for these improvements, and then when it came time to use earnings cash for interest and dividends, you could then get the cash from the Missouri Pacific and delay that advance until that date and reduce the interest charges which the N. O. T. & M. had to pay. Now, that is basically what was going on here, and that is why, in this Exhibit No. 32, it looks as if the advances were being made for the payment of dividends. Actually, those were simply delayed advances for the financing of improvements, and the delay was due to the desire to save interest charges to the N. O. T. & M. and make it as economical as possible for them to carry out this improvement program.

The Court: Announce a recess.

At this point, 12:30 P. M., a recess was had until 2:00 P. M.

(Pursuant to recess at 2 o'clock p. m. March 20, 1945, the further following proceedings were had:)

WILLIAM WYER,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand, testified further on behalf of the Group as follows:

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. At the recess you were discussing Group Exhibit 32. Do you have anything more to say about that?

A. Just a little bit. I think there is one minor error on that exhibit which ought to be pointed out. In the first column opposite the—

Q. (By the Court) First column of what, Mr. Wyer?

A. Of exhibit 32.

Q. All right.

A. It is just a couple of letters that were left out inadvertently; opposite the date January 3, 1933, down near the bottom, the figure $79,000 appears and there should be the letters CR, credit, CR for credit, to the right of that. In other words, that item showed repayment and it should be so designated. I think that is all I had on that exhibit.

Now, my next exhibit discussed somewhat more in detail these investments in road and equipment on the Gulf Coast Lines. I talked about them in total so far, but my next exhibit attempts to analyze that expenditure and show—first, prove the figure and then show what it was for.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Is this the exhibit, Mr. Wyer? A. This is.

The Court: Have I got that here?

A. Yes, it follows No. 32 in your set.

Q. All right.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group Exhibit 33 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 283.]

Mr. McConaughy: That is marked Group Exhbit 33.

Q. All right.

A. I have pointed out in connection with the previous exhibit that down through the date of the last dividend the improvements have totalled $7,417,593. and this exhibit shows how that figure is arrived at, from the books of the Gulf Coast Lines. The first two lines show the investment on January 1, 1928, and the investment on January 30, 1931. That should read 1931. I don't know whether that has been corrected.

The Court: Investment on November 30, 1931.

A. 1931, and the difference between those two figures is $7,436,690. Then, there was also an increase of $578,561 in other investments. Those are not investments in physical property, and the detail of that is shown in footnote No. 2, on this exhibit.

Now, then, of this total of $8,015,251, $727,658 had been in effect anticipated in order to support the series D bonds that were sold in February, 1928, so that that amount has to be deducted because to that extent these expenditures were not capitalizable; in other words, $727,000 of these expenditures had been in effect promised to be made out of the money secured from the sale of the Series D bonds, so we can't obviously use that amount over again in supporting new capitalization.

Then, there is the small item of $130,000 of the Series D bonds which we didn't sell; in other words, there was that many more authorized than were actually sold, and expenditures were credited against that, so that that $130,000 is available to be added to the total of capitalizable assets up to November 30, 1931. That is shown just to prove the figure of $7,417,593, representing the capitalizable investments that have not otherwise been capitalized up through the end of the dividend period.

Now, my next exhibit is a detail by classes of the larger items entering into this expenditure of money.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Is that the exhibit, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group's Exhibit No. 34 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 284.]

Mr. McConaughy: That is marked Group Exhibit 34.

Q. All right, Mr. Wyer.

A. Now, this exhibit 34 is the next sheet in that set and that takes the major items; that is, the items that amounted to $5,000 or more and classifies them as to the character of the expenditure. In the case of expenditures of new lines, it shows just what the new lines was, and the amount of money spent, and then below that it shows the character of the expenditure down through all of the various classifications of additions and betterments.

The interesting thing to note here is that over 2¼ million dollars was spent for expenditures of lines or for new tracks or new facilities; in other words, a very substantial part of this amount was for facilities to enable the Gulf Coast Line to expand its business. Then, you have other items such as new ballast, $739,000; new tie plates, rail anchors and other track material, $352,000; new shop facilities, $402,000. They are nearly all self-explanatory as to what they are, but they were all part of this program of developing the Missouri Pacific System and making it a better service institution. This exhibit is simply put in to show what we mean when we talk about improvements in the property, the kind of things that this money that came from the Missouri Pacific was spent for. Of course, there is also a multitude of small items under $5,000 which I haven't attempted to classify, but I just analyzed the major items because they give a picture of the general character of the work.

Now, my next exhibit goes even further and takes these same items shown on Exhibit 34, and gives some explanation as to why they were necessary.

Q. Is this document consisting of 8 sheets, the exhibit to which your refer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute. With regard to this exhibit where did you get these statements? I am not talking about the amounts at the outside, but these statements in regard to estimates of revenue and things of that kind. Where did that information come from?

A. These statements are all abstracted from the material which was presented to the board of directors of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, when they authorized the expenditure of this money, and the statements were made to the board by Mr. Baldwin, the president of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I think those statements are the best evidence. I would like to call for them, and object to the introduction of this exhibit.

Mr. McConaughy: Can't we do this, Mr. Biggs?

Q. Do you know whether those statements are in St. Louis, Mr. Wyer? A. I think they are.

Mr. McConaughy: May we do this, Mr. Biggs, as we did with you frequently?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: Let this go in subject to your objection, and subject to your check, and we will produce the originals from which these were abstracted, and if you find any of them wrong, we will make the correction.

Mr. Biggs: That will be satisfactory.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence subject to the objection.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group's Exhibit 35, for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 285.]

The Witness: I think this exhibit speaks for itself. It doesn't require any detailed comment. It simply shows the reasons that prompted the expenditures of these amounts of money.

Mr. McConaughy: That last exhibit is marked Group's 35.

Q. Mr. Wyer, were the additions and betterments made on the properties of all the Gulf Coast Lines Companies between January 1, 1928, and November 39, 1931, reported in detail to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Will you explain how and why this was done, and the result which followed?

A. I have already mentioned that in connection with the Missouri Pacific financing we sometimes furnished detailed statements of improvements in advance so that the Commission would have a chance to check them over. In the same way detailed statements of all of these improvements of the NOTM were furnished to the Commission, although I think not in advance of the application, I think they were furnished in this case contemporaneously with the application to issue securities. I might mention that this application to the Commission is very voluminous. When you submitted anything to the Interstate Commerce Commission it generally took a big box to support it, so that very great detail was furnished with all these projects, but to summarize the submission, all of the improvements made on the Gulf Coast Line from January 1, 1928, to March 31, 1929, were made in what is known as Finance Docket 7786. That was an application by the NOTM to issue and pledge $1,955,000 of first mortgage Series D bonds, and those bonds were later pledged to Missouri Pacific as part of the security for these advances, and the Commission approved that issue and pledge on the basis in part of the submission of the detail of these improvements.

Q. (By Mr. Biggs) Just a minute, Mr. Wyer, what was the number of that Finance Docket?

A. 7786. Then, the improvements from April 1, 1929, to August 31, 1931, were submitted in Finance Docket 9102, which was a Missouri Pacific application for authority to issue and pledge $35,000,000 of the Series I First and Refunding Bonds. The reason that those were submitted in support of a Missouri Pacific application was because Missouri Pacific had advanced money to pay for these improvements, and the advance to the NOTM was considered a capitalizable asset of the Missouri Pacific by reason of these improvements have been made on the subsidiary line. So the detail of the improvements on the Gulf Coast Lines was submitted in support of the Missouri Pacific application to issue securities, and the security issue was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Then, the detail of the improvements from September 1, 1931, to December 31, 1934, was submitted in reorganization proceedings in the same form as the earlier submission and it is covered in Exhibits 117 and 118 in the reorganization hearings before the Commission.

I have an exhibit which summarizes that and the detail of those three submissions.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Is that the exhibit, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group Exhibit No. 36 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 295.]

A. I don't think the exhibit requires any discussion. I have explained practically everything that shows on it.

Q. Mr. Wyer, do you consider that the advances by the Missouri Pacific to the NOTM after December 1, 1931, were of value to the NOTM stockholders? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Will you please explain that answer?

A. Of course, as I have explained, the advances after December 1, 1931, were after the discontinuance of dividends, and at that time the Gulf Coast Lines were not earning their interest charges, so that in addition to paying for such improvements as were required on the property, these advances met the deficits, and paid the interest and taxes, and without those advances there would have been simply more defaulted interest and a bigger claim ahead of the NOTM stockholders in the reorganization, so I feel that they got the benefit of those advances, even though they didn't go to improvement in the property.

Q. Will you please state, as far as you know, the reasons underlying the dividend policy of the NOTM, supporting your explanation of the facts concerning the NOTM's situation between 1916 and 1931?

Mr. Biggs: Just a moment, if your Honor please, the witness has testified he had no connection with the NOTM up to 1929. Is that correct, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes.

The Court: He was an officer from that time on. He necessarily became familiar with the policy. Objection overruled.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) That is correct, isn't it, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes, that is correct.

The Court: He has already testified to it.

The Witness: Yes, sir, I have some four exhibits which I think show what was happening in the Gulf Coast Lines during this period. The first of these is a statement of the gross additions and betterments on the Gulf Coast Lines properties from 1916 to 1931.

Mr. McConaughy: Is this the Exhibit to which you refer, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group's Exhibit No. 37 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 297.]

Mr. McConaughy: It is marked Group's Exhibit 37.

Q. All right, proceed.

A. This shows by years the improvements made on the individual Gulf Coast Lines Companies during this entire period.

Now, this exhibit starts on March 1, 1916, because that was the first day of the existence of the reorganized New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company. You will notice here that, just by the totals at the bottom of the page, that the heavy expenditures for improvements on the Gulf Coast Lines didn't start until 1925. Notice in 1925, a total of $4,070,050 was spent on the Gulf Coast Lines, which was much more than any previous year, nearly three times the amount spent in 1924, and the only year approaching it is 1921, when $2,844,000 was spent.

Of course, that ties in directly to the fact the Missouri Pacific officers took office on the Gulf Coast Lines January 7, 1925. You will notice in 1926, '27, '28, and '29, very heavy expenditures continued, and $2,029,000 in 1930. Those again were the same years when the big improvement program was going on on the Missouri Pacific property; in other words, this was the manifestation of the Baldwin improvement program as it affected the Gulf Coast Lines.

Now, on the right hand column you will note the totals for the individual companies, and the largest one, as might be expected, is the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, a little over $15,000,000. The New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, over $8,000,000, of which a substantial amount was equipment, and much smaller amounts for the other companies.

There again you see that the Brownsville, which constituted about a third of the mileage, got nearly half of the improvement money, that being the important main stem from the Valley up to Houston.

Some of the companies, of course, don't show any improvement in earlier years. This simply represents improvements put on the properties after they became members of the Gulf Coast Line family, and we don't have the records for the earlier years, in some cases they weren't even in existence, they were built after the beginning of the period covered by this statement.

Now, the total during this period is $32,000,000, and a great part of that, about $22,000,000 out of the $32,000,000 was spent in the years 1925 to 1930, inclusive, and that was a very important factor in the minds of the directors of the NOTM in setting up this dividend policy and maintaining the dividend, because they had in mind that with this expenditure of $22,000,000 in those six years the Gulf Coast Lines were going to be put in a position to gradually increase their business and improve their earnings, and they felt that under those circumstances that was a factor justifying maintenance of the regular 7% dividends which had been started before the Missouri Pacific took control, and this is one of the factors that was in their minds in carrying out that policy.

Now, my next exhibit—

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, I move that be stricken out, that evidence, which he supposed was in the minds of the directors.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: My next exhibit is consolidated income account for all the Gulf Coast Lines covering the period 1916 to 1943.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Is that the exhibit to which you refer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

The Court: That includes all of the companies?

A. This includes all of the 15 companies.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter as Group Exhibit No. 38 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 299.]

The Witness: Now, this shows that in 1925, the first year of Missouri Pacific control, the net income after payment of fixed charges was $2,547,000. That is the last figure in the 1925 column.

And then, as you move to the left you see what the net income was for later years. Now, keeping mind that the annual dividend requirement was about $1,038,000, so that in the first year of Missouri Pacific operation that was well covered, and also in the second year, 1926. Then, 1927 was the year of the Mississippi River floods and a deficit was shown in that year. That situation, of course, was considered non-recurring and it was not felt that it was necessary to break the dividend policy because of that event.

Then, 1928, the consolidated income came back nearly to $1,000,000. It wasn't until 1931 that there was a serious failure to earn the dividend in each year, after the flood and these are the earning figures that the Board always looked at when they were considering dividends. They left to the lawyers the protection of the situation on the point of view of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company proper, as a separate corporation, but the broad pictures that the directors were always looking at was what is this consolidated group of companies earning, because they simply looked at it as one group, with the NOTM being simply the parent company, owning all of the securities of the subsidiaries, and the overall performance of the whole was what governed the directors in acting on dividends, so that these earnings were another factor, as well as the big improvement program which was under way and which was expected to make these earnings greater in the future.

Now, it is very interesting to note that in 1942, you have a real demonstration of what the improvement program enabled the Gulf Coast Lines to do when they were faced with the tremendous volume of business which they had to handle in those years. They were able to handle this business and able to show tremendous earnings. In 1942, there was net income of $6,146,000, and in 1943, net income after all charges of $2,559,000, and you will observe in 1943, that that income of $2,500,000 was after paying over $14,000,000 in taxes.

In other words, the taxes alone of the Gulf Coast Lines in 1943 were more than its entire operating revenues from 1931 to 1936, inclusive, and more than any entire operating revenues in any one of those six years. It was enabled to pay those taxes and still show $2,500,000 net. That shows that the improvement program on the Gulf Coast Lines enabled this property to produce very large earnings when the business finally came back and also enabled it to handle the business, which it might never have been able to handle without the improvements.

Now, I have another exhibit showing the same figures for 1944.

Mr. McConaughy: Is this the exhibit, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter for identification as Group Exhibit No. 39.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 300.]

Mr. McConaughy: Go ahead, Mr. Wyer.

A. This is in a separate exhibit because we didn't get the figures in time to include them with exhibit 38, and speaks for itself. You will note that the net income after all charges was over $4,000,000, and the taxes paid were over $12,500,000.

Now, my next exhibit is a summary of some of the important facts concerning the financial condition of the Gulf Coast Lines as a whole during the period from 1916, to 1931.

Q. Is that the exhibit, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the Reporter for identification as Group's Exhibit No. 40 for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 301.]

The Witness: This shows in the first line the total railway operating revenues each year so that you can get an idea of the volume of business done, and the second group of figures show the additions and betterment gross each year, and that checks in total with Exhibit 37. Then the third group of figures is rather interesting. That shows the percentage which the additions and betterments constituted each year of the gross revenues, and you will note that up until 1925, with two exceptions, the improvements never constituted more than ten per cent of the gross revenues, and up to the end of 1924 they had averaged nine and a half per cent, less than ten per cent.

Now, in 1925, when the Baldwin improvement program started, the percentages are shown there, twenty-five per cent in 1925, nearly seventeen per cent in 1926, and nearly thirty-two per cent in 1927, over fourteen per cent in 1928, twenty per cent in 1929, and nearly eleven per cent in 1930. The difference, of course is quite marked, showing that even though these lines were earning more gross revenue, doing more business during that period, they were also spending a very much larger proportion of their total revenues in improvement. Of course, when you get to the point where you are spending twenty-five and thirty per cent of your operating revenues in improvements, obviously that can't be financed out of earnings, even if you don't pay any dividends at all, you would have to finance that very substantially from outside capital, and this shows the relation of the Gulf Coast Line improvement program to its total revenues, and shows why outside financing was required.

Now, the fourth group of figures shows the net income each year and the cumulative net income, and the last group of figures shows the dividends each year and the cumulative dividends. An interesting fact is that at the end of 1931, at the end of the dividend period, the Consolidated Gulf Coast Line companies had earned, available for dividends, $15,986,390.00. That is in the 1931 column, the third figure from the bottom, and they had paid out in dividends $13,646,191.00, so that they still had a margin of about $1,340,000.00 that they had earned on a consolidated basis, taking all of the companies together, over and above the dividends paid out.

Now, that money had, of course, gone into the property, so that also was a factor; these figures were, of course, known to the directors from time to time as the performance developed, and that was a factor in the dividend policy.

Now, another important factor in their minds was the fact that this very improvement program under Interstate Commerce accounting regulations, carried with it a very large charge to operating expenses each year in connection with these improvements, and my next exhibit shows what these charges were.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Is this the exhibit to which you refer? A. It is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Group's Exhibit 41, for identification.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 303.]

The Witness: Now, this represents the charges to operating expenses in each year which were incurred in connection with the improvement program, and there are some averages at the bottom of this exhibit which are significant. During the six years 1925 to 1930, the average charges to operation each year in connection with this program were $511,923.00. After the program stopped, these amounts fell during the nine years, 1931 to 1939, inclusive, to an average of only $183,715.00, or only a little over one-third of what they were during the improvement program.

Now, this was a definite factor, because by reason of this situation it was known that the earnings of the Gulf Coast Lines were reduced to an unusual extent by reason of these heavy operating expense charges during these six years; in other words, over three million dollars during these six years was charged to operating expenses in connection with this improvement program, and if you took this into consideration, therefore, it meant that the earnings of the Gulf Coast Lines were decreased temporarily by reason of these heavy charges to operating expenses, while the improvement program was going on, and this was another reason why it seemed proper to keep the dividends up to a large percentage of the earnings, because it was felt that during this period the earnings were being reduced by extraordinary circumstances, and the fact that these charges fell from an average of $511,000.00 to an average of $183,000.00 when the program ended, shows the extent to which this affected the income abnormally during the six year period.

This, therefore, was another factor which the directors had in mind in feeling that they could safely declare dividends to the extent that they did. Of course, another factor which the directors had to consider in connection with dividend policy was the fact that the Missouri Pacific owned ninety-three per cent of this stock, and there was a small minority interest outstanding, and the directors felt that they had to bend over backwards not to do anything to prejudice the interests of that minority stock, and I think that was another reason undoubtedly that they were loath to cut the dividends unless they were sure it had to be cut, because of this minority interest that they felt they had to protect.

Now, there is another factor which I think entered into their minds, and that is the fact that beginning in 1926, December 1st, 1926, the most of the stock which the Missouri Pacific owned in the N. O. T. M. was pledged under the secured serial 5¼ per cent bonds of the Missouri Pacific, and it was always felt that these dividends received from the N. O. T. M. were in a sense the income out of which the interest on those 5¼ per cent bonds was paid, and I have an exhibit which shows the amount of interest on those bonds and the amount of dividends received on the stock.

Q. Is this the exhibit to which you refer? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer it in evidence.

(Said paper was thereupon marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit 42.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 304.]

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Proceed.

A. I think this exhibit speaks for itself. The interest on the secured serial 5¼ paid during this period totaled $4,076,774., and the dividends received from the N. O. T. M. during this period totaled $4,624,580., so that the dividends received on the N. O. T. M. stock after December 1st, 1926, did very little more than cover the—

Q. I think you might repeat that, Mr. Wyer.

A. The total of column 2, of $4,076,774. represents the total interest paid by the Missouri Pacific on its 5¼ per cent. bonds under which the N. O. T. M. stock was pledged, and the total of column 4, of $4,624,580. represents the total dividends on pledged stock received by the Missouri Pacific from the N. O. T. M. during this same period, so that the dividends did very little more than simply meet the interest charges on the bonds that the Missouri Pacific had to issue in order to raise the funds to buy the stocks, and very little of the dividends went to other purposes of the Missouri Pacific.

In addition to the amount shown on this exhibit, the Missouri Pacific also paid off $1,016,000 of principal amount of these 5¼ per cent bonds during the same period.

I think that covers the principal factors, as far as I knew them, that were in the minds of the directors in connection with the N. O. T. M. dividend policy.

Mr. Biggs: If your Honor please, now, this witness is finished, and I move that all evidence as to what was in the minds of the directors of the Missouri Pacific in regard to the payment of these dividends be stricken from the record.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: I might add that I was a director of the N. O. T. M. during part of this period.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) Will you tell us what period, during what period were you a director of the N. O. T. M.?

A. I was a director for parts of 1929 and 1930, I don't remember just which months, but I was for several months in one or both of those two years.

Mr. Biggs: This evidence covers a much longer period than the period of his directorship.

Q. (By Mr. McConaughy) You have had access, have you not, Mr. Wyer, to the material which was available to the directors when they considered the action taken here?

A. It was [party] of my duty to prepare that material from February, 1929, on.

Q. And did you sit in on some of these directors' meetings?

A. I attended all of them unless I happened to be out for some special reason, but it was part of my regular duties to attend all directors meetings of the N. O. T. M.

Q. You have read Comstock's Exhibit 84-A and B, that is two sheets of the same exhibit which Mr. Biggs read into the record yesterday, a letter from Mr. Safford to Mr. Baldwin in connection with the 1931 prospective net income of the G. C. L.? A. Yes, I have.

Q. As a railroad executive, what does that letter mean to you?

A. Well, I might say this, that to my mind, one of the severest tests of the ability of a railroad executive comes at the time when business is decreasing, especially when it is decreasing rapidly, and that letter to me means simply this, that Mr. Safford, whom I certainly considered was a good railroad executive, was obviously studying his situation very closely to see just how far he could go in reducing expenses in order to meet the heavy decreases in traffic, and at the same time he wasn't willing to go any further than was necessary for the support of operation of the properties which were under his charge. I have seen dozens of letters on that general subject. It is a well known phenomenon in the railroad business, when your business falls off you have to cut expenditures, and that is simply the type of letter that any good railroad executive would write under those circumstances.

Q. Now, then, there has been a lot of testimony here about the family line bills. Will you explain to us these family line bills? I speak about the Gulf Coast Lines.

A. Yes, I understand. Well, of course, the family line bills go back basically to this situation that I tried to describe this morning, of the fifteen separate companies, many of them short branch lines, and the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico being the parent company, but having only eleven per cent of the mileage involved. Now, it obviously wasn't economical or efficient to set up separate executive departments for every one of these fifteen separate companies or for every one of the five original Gulf Coast Line companies to which the other ten were added as the years went by. You couldn't have a separate accounting department for each company or you couldn't have a separate purchasing department or you couldn't have a separate operating department, it would just be ridiculous to have separate departments for every one of these little companies, so there gradually grew up, and it was in effect when Missouri Pacific got control of the Gulf Coast Lines, a system whereby to the extent that it was economical and efficient to do so, all of the financial activities, the cash collections and payments of the companies were handled through a central clearing house. This clearing house was originally the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and also to a considerable extent, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, the one being the parent company, the other being the largest operating company, and the items that were covered through the clearing house, embraced, I would almost say, the great majority of the items that are handled in day to day financial transactions on a railroad; for example, all of the interline freight revenue was collected and cleared through the N. O. T. M. The N. O. T. M. handled settlements for all of the Gulf Coast Lines with the foreign railroads, and then would divide up the amounts received or the amounts which had to be remitted between the fifteen companies; in other words, it would do the clearing with Missouri Pacific or with the Pennsylvania Railroad or any other connecting line, and then would divide the net amount of the settlement among the fifteen companies.

Now, of course, this didn't start up all at once, it grew up, and as companies were added, they were gradually added into this [wet-up,] so that you can't say that a particular situation existed at a particular date without going back to that date, because the expense of the system varied from time to time as lines were taken into the clearing house, but these items were handled in whole or in part in this way during all or a great part of the period under discussion here.

In addition to freight revenue, the collection of passenger revenue was handled in this way, and also the collection of mail revenue from the U. S. Government, and the collection of express revenue from the Express Company. Purchases of rail, ties, lumber and other maintenance of way material was handled in this way, and to a considerable extent the maintenance of way labor, especially any extra gangs or floating gangs was handled in this way.

In other words, it wouldn't be economical for these small companies to maintain a large extra gang of maintenance-of-way laborers. Such a gang would be maintained by the N. O. T. M. and would be used in the territory east of Houston, and such a gang or gangs would be maintained by the Brownsville and be used in the area west of Houston. And Brownsville would pay these men and then in turn would bill the other companies on whose line these men might work.

Repairs to system equipment, especially the heavy backshop repairs, were made in the shops at Kingsville, and many of those repairs were paid for initially by the Brownsville and billed to other companies. Foreign line bills for repair of freight cars were handled in this way, and lumber for maintenance of equipment were purchased through a central purchasing agency, fuel oil used in locomotives was purchased centrally, and to some extent the train crews were paid for by one company and other companies were billed when these crews operated trains on the small lines.

Loss and damage claims in connection with freight movements were handled in this way, and all of the departmental offices, such as the operating department offices, or accounting department offices, treasurer offices, engineering offices, real estate, tax and purchasing department and the traffic department and the executive department, were all handled as a centralized staff of officers, and the expense of those officers and their departments were distributed over the fifteen companies, and the collection of per diem on freight cars and mileage for tank cars and refrigerator cars was all handled through a central clearing house.

Well, you can see from that that a great multiplicity of bills arose between these different companies, the N. O. T. M. and the Brownsville, especially would continually have heavy bills against the subsidiaries and there would be charges back and forth between all of the companies.

Now, that brought about this net result. Let's take a little subsidiary like the New Iberia & Northern, a small branch line in Louisiana. That is the little branch line that reaches the main line at Port Barre. Now, in that way the New Iberia & Northern would get credit for all of its revenue and would get charged either by paying it directly or through these bills for all of its expenses, but the New Iberia & Northern was also performing additions and betterment work on its property at the same time that these operations were being handled this way or the N. O. T. M. was performing it for it, and would later bill it for it, so the net result was that since N. O. T. M. was handling all of the receipts and disbursements of the New Iberia & Northern, any net difference between those receipts and disbursements would ultimately have to be carried by the N. O. T. M., because the New Iberia & Northern had no source of funds other than the funds which came to it through these clearing house transactions, so that assuming that the New Iberia & Northern operated on an even break and earned its operating expenses, which it didn't always do, there still was the question of improvement on the property of the New Iberia and Northern, and from the point of view of cash transactions, since the New Iberia & Northern didn't have any source of outside funds and didn't do any financing, the extent to which its outgo exceeded its income over the years, gradually built up a balance which was due to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico.

Now, you can't say in the nature of the transaction that that balance represented anything in particular, it simply represented the difference between the outgo chargeable to the New Iberia & Northern, and the income which was creditable to the New Iberia & Northern, and in the final analysis, that difference represented any operating deficit plus any capital expenditures made on the property of the New Iberia & Northern.

Now, it was quite true that these bills were rendered and they represented specific things, but it didn't make any difference to the N. O. T. M. when the New Iberia & Northern got money which bill was paid, they were going to get all the money the New Iberia & Northern had, anyway, and it made no difference to the N. O. T. M. whether you picked out Bill 672 or Bill 811 and paid it, the N. O. T. M. got all there was; there wasn't any more; and there remained a balance due.

Now, the same situation was true with respect to all of these subsidiaries, and the big factor, the big factor in these growing balances in the family line bills was the fact that additions and betterments were being made on the properties of these fourteen subsidiaries and somebody had to pay for them, and in effect they were paid through this gradually accumulating total of family line bills.

Now, that is what they really represent. I have shown how they developed, but the reason that they never were paid and that the unpaid balance kept increasing all the time was that improvements were constantly being made to the properties of these companies. The subsidiaries had no means of financing those improvements. Consequently they kept owing more and more money to the parent company which did have the means of financing the improvements. So you have this chain reaching down into the subsidiaries of the Gulf Coast Line.

I have shown how at the start the Missouri Pacific financed this improvement through short term borrowings, but ultimately sold bonds. Then the N. O. T. M.'s next step down was financing those improvements through advances from the Missouri Pacific and then clearing those up with the sale of bonds. Then the subsidiaries of the N. O. T. M. had their improvement program, and those improvements were financed through the accumulation of these unpaid family line bills, and you were then down to the bottom of the scale, there wasn't any place further to go. Those subsidiaries had no means of financing their improvements so the family line bills were simply accumulated as an unpaid balance and the N. O. T. M., the parent company's financing, had to take care of the improvement on the subsidiaries, so that when the Missouri Pacific was advancing money to the N. O. T. M. for improvements on the Gulf Coast Line it was really financing improvements on these subsidiaries and giving the N. O. T. M. the money so that it could pay for these improvements, and the amounts owing from the subsidiaries remained on the books as family line bills.

Now, the biggest family line bill item was on, of course, the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, because that was the biggest subsidiary, and in 1933 the family line account on the Brownsville was over ten million dollars, and I have an exhibit which shows how that ties into the improvements made on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico.

The Court: We will take a short recess.

(Brief recess.)

Q. All right, go ahead, Mr. Wyer.

A. I was talking about the family lines' bills, and the fact that the largest amount owing to the N. O. T. & M. under that heading was owed by the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, which, of course, would be a natural expectation, and that in 1933 this company owed over ten million dollars to the parent company under this heading.

I have an exhibit which is an analysis of the balance sheets of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico for the years 1924 to 1931, inclusive, which I think sheds light on the reasons for the growth and existence of the family lines' bills.

Q. Is this (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that exhibit in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 43.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 43.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 305.]

Q. All right.

A. This exhibit shows in the first block of figures the investments of the Brownsville, which are almost entirely investments in physical property, from which have been deducted the depreciation carried on the books of the Brownsville, leaving a net figure for the investment less the depreciation, and then that takes the first three lines, and after that we have four more lines of figures showing the other assets of the Brownsville, current assets, deferred assets, and unadjusted debits, but excluding any inter-company items. Then we have five more lines that show the liabilities of the Brownsville, excluding dividends matured, unpaid, and inter-company items, and long term debt. And about nearly one-half the way down page, we have the net excess assets over liabilities.

Now, that is the assets of the Brownsville as carried on the books each year which it had available to cover its long term debt and the amount of money that it owed to the parent company under these family lines' bills. Of course, the principal factor in that net excess of assets over liabilities is the investments in physical property, the first line on the exhibit, and of course, as these improvements are made, that is where they become investments, is in that first line, and then in this net excess assets over liabilities. So the purpose of this exhibit is to show how the growth in net excess of assets compares with the growth of the family lines' bills.

And the next line after the net excess of assets is the long term debt, including equipment trusts outstanding at the end of each year, and then we deduct that from the excess of assets and we have the assets available to support the inter-company debt.

Then the next block of figures shows the inter-company debt, and that is the amount which is owed to the parent company each year, except that we have excluded the $1,400,000 of Brownsville dividends that they declared and never paid.

The Court: $1,100,000, isn't it?

A. One million, one, is here, because that was paid in the following year, so we figured that was a good item, because they paid it after the end of the year, but the one million, four, which they never did pay, and which was finally reversed, we have excluded.

And you will note at the end of 1931, the inter-company debt on this basis is $10,138,000, and deducting that from the net assets leaves $2,721,000 to support the stock. And the stock was only $500,000, so that you had a surplus at the end of 1931 on the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico of $2,221,000. That plus the stock representing the equity over and above all debt and other liabilities.

Now, an interesting thing, most interesting thing in this exhibit is found in the last two blocks of figures. The next to the last block shows increase in the net investment each year, and the last block shows the increase in debt each year.

Now, of course, the principal factor in the increase in debt is the amount of family lines' bills owed to the parent company, N. O. T. & M. You will note that each year the debt increased almost at the same rate, but up until 1931 the increase in net investments was also a little greater than the increase in debt.

At the end of 1930, the Brownsville's increase in net investments was $11,776,000, and the increase in debt, including what it owed the parent company, only $9,010,377. At the end of 1931, the situation had reversed to the extent of about $142,000, the increase in net investments being $11,521,000, and the increase in debt $11,663,000.

Now, of course, toward the end of 1931, the Brownsville was running into deficits, operating deficits, and that is the reason why the switch was made, because the debt was increasing because of these deficits. But this exhibit shows especially that the increase in debt to the parent company throughout these years was more than offset by an increase in the physical assets of the Brownsville, and this is the exhibit, therefore, that shows in effect the same pattern of financing improvements on the Brownsville that we had on the N. O. T. & M., where the Missouri Pacific loaned the N. O. T. & M. money to finance Gulf Coast improvements, N. O. T. & M. eventually sold bonds and refunded it, and the N. O. T. & M. in turn had to loan money to the Brownsville to finance its improvements, but the Brownsville never sold bonds to pay it back. Now, as a matter of fact, the Brownsville could have, because the N. O. T. & M. mortgage would have permitted—the Brownsville mortgage would have permitted additional bonds to be issued and delivered to the N. O. T. & M., but there was no point doing that, and it would have just been a useless paper transaction, and the debt from the Brownsville was just as well represented by these family lines' bills as if the bonds had been issued; but this is the third step in the pattern of financing down the line.

Now, I have a similar exhibit covering the situation of the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western.

Q. Is this (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer?

A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 44.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 44.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 307.]

Q. All right, Mr. Wyer.

A. This is exactly the same pattern as the exhibit of the Brownsville, and I have done it for the Beaumont because it was the only other road for which detail balance sheets were given in the Comstock evidence, and this shows somewhat the same picture, except that, on account of more deficits on the Beaumont, the increase in debt is more, generally speaking, than the increase in assets to support it.

At the end of 1931, the increase in debt was $2,220,000, and the increase in net investments only $1,430,000. That, of course, however, is a much smaller property than the Brownsville.

Now, there is another—there was also, of course, a good deal of discussion of these dividends declared by the Brownsville, about which I would like to say a little. I have shown that the Brownsville has about one-third of the mileage, but the importance of the Brownsville in the Gulf Coast Lines System is even greater than the mileage would indicate, and I have a few figures here that are not in an exhibit, but they illustrate that importance very markedly.

In 1925, the amount available for interest on the Brownsville was 53.6 per cent of the total amount available for interest of all the Gulf Coast Line Companies. In other words, though the Brownsville only had about a third of the mileage, it had 53.6 per cent of the total amount available for interest; and the corresponding percentages for the other years down through 1931 are as follows:

1926 ..... 65.2%
1927 ..... 90.5%
1928 ..... 61.5%
1929 ..... 61 %
1930 ..... 73 %; and
1931 ..... 84 %.

So the Brownsville's net earnings standard is pretty near the whole cheese in the Gulf Coast Lines' picture; so that when you are considering the Gulf Coast Lines from a consolidated point of view, as everybody does, the Brownsville is bound to be the important cog, and being a subsidiary, it has to declare dividends to the N. O. T. & M., in order for the N. O. T. & M. to come anywhere near reflecting in its own earnings the earnings of the consolidated company, although in this picture it is natural to expect the Brownsville to declare and pay its earnings out in dividends. It is really the main [illegible]em of the system, and it has to, in order to let the sy[illegible]m survive.

Now, I have an exhibit analyzing the profit and loss account of the Brownsville during these dividend years of 1925 to 1931.

Q. Is this (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer, Mr. Wyer? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 45.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 45.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 309.]

Q. All right, Mr. Wyer.

A. I think this exhibit is self-explanatory. The important line on it is the last line on the exhibit, which shows that even at the end of 1931, after declaring a dividend of $4,155,000 in that year, the Brownsville still had a surplus which it had not declared out in dividends of $831,392, and during the whole period from 1925 to 1931, inclusive, that is the amount of the earnings which it did not declare as dividends.

In spite of the large dividend in 1931, the Brownsville had not declared all these earnings during this 7-year period as dividends to the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico. That is the point to this exhibit.

Now, I also have an exhibit showing when the dividends were declared by the Brownsville and when they were paid.

Q. Is that (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer?

A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence, marked Gorup Exhibit No. 46.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 46.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 311.]

The Witness: This is a very interesting exhibit, because of the testimony about the $4,155,000 dividend and the expectations concerning its payment, and the detail as to that dividend and its payment are shown at the bottom of the exhibit.

The date of the declaration of the three million and a half of that was July 11, 1931, the last date shown here, and in the third column on this Exhibit 46 is shown the dates that these dividends were finally paid, and then in the last column are shown the time that elapsed between the times the dividends were declared and the time they were paid.

I notice that the Brownsville record has never been that dividends were paid promptly after they were declared. Quite long times have elapsed as more or less a regular thing. You have, for example, dividend declared in 1926, not paid until 1928—a year and five months and six days later. In 1928, you had a lapse of two years.

The Court: About two years and a half.

The Witness: Two years, four months and twenty-five days after the dividend was declared before it was paid. And in 1930, dividends declared on June 19th were paid just exactly one year later. So that there never was any practice of paying these dividends promptly, and when a dividend was declared July 11, 1931, there was no expectation on anybody's part that this dividend would be paid right away, and it was perfectly normal procedure for them to go over until the following year or even later, and I think that has a bearing upon whether this Brownsville dividend was properly carried in the income account of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, because I think the Interstate Commerce Commission classification said that if there was reasonable expectation of payment, they would be carried there, but they should not be if there was not, and this, I think, has a definite bearing on what the reasonable expectation might be. It simply shows past practice in the payment of these dividends.

I think that is about all on this.

Q. What is your next exhibit, Mr. Wyer?

A. Oh, yes. Then I have another exhibit on the Brownsville dividends.

Q. Is this (indicating) the exhibit to which you refer?

A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I offer that in evidence, marked Group Exhibit No. 47.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Group Exhibit No. 47.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 312.]

The Witness: This is a statement of the net income of the Brownsville, by months, during the years 1930 to 1932, and I present it because it shows the information that the directors of the Brownsville had available at the time of the declaration of this dividend of three and a half million dollars. The dividend was declared in July, 1931—July 11, 1931. Now, at that time, the Brownsville directors had before them, of course, all of the earnings for 1930, and the earnings for the first five months of 1931, ending with May, but they did not, of course, know anything about the earnings subsequent to May, 1931.

Now, you will notice that up to the time that the Brownsville directors declared this dividend, there was no indication that the Brownsville was going to operate at a deficit. There had been one deficit in one month of 1930, and there had been one deficit in the first five months of 1931, but the Brownsville was still in the black and substantially in the black, and the Brownsville directors could not have told from any earnings figures that were before them up to that time that the Brownsville was going to produce a deficit. The deficit started in the very month in which the dividend was declared. Of course, the earnings for July were not available until toward the end of August or, say, about six weeks after the Brownsville directors declared that three and a half million dollar dividend.

Now, I have devoted a good deal of discussion to this question of family lines' bills and the Brownsville dividends, not because in my opinion they are very important in the case, but—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute. I move that statement be stricken out. Mr. Wyer is not counsel.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Mr. Wyer, will you kindly summarize the N. O. T. & M. financial picture, as you have brought it out in your testimony, now?

A. Well, as I see this whole picture, the N. O. T. & M. was simply a part of the Missouri Pacific System which was being built up and expanded in a most unusual way and to a degree—

Mr. Biggs: (Interrupting) Just a minute. I move to strike out the words "unusual way".

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Biggs: That is calling for a conclusion of the witness.

The Witness: And to a degree which required intensive financing with outside capital or new capital, and the policy which brought this about was one which called for financing from time to time through the establishment of short term loans and ultimately the sale of debt to repay those loans.

This same policy was used on the Missouri Pacific, the parent company, it was used on the N. O. T. & M., the subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific, N. O. T. & M. got its money through the advances made by Missouri Pacific, the N. O. T. & M. in turn had to supply the money to carry out this program of improvement on its own subsidiaries, and it advanced that money through family lines' bills, and as they are advances from the Missouri Pacific to the N. O. T. & M., they were an important factor in building up the N. O. T. & M. in line with this policy, and it was simply one of several methods which could have been employed to do this, but it was the method which was employed under the circumstances.

Q. Does that complete your testimony, Mr. Wyer?
A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: Before we adjourn, just one second, please—that is all, Mr. Wyer, as far as I am concerned. Are you going to adjourn now, Your Honor?

The Court: I don't know. Do you want to go on now, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: No. sir. Before adjourning, I would like to move that all of Mr. Wyer's testimony be stricken from the record, for the reason that it contains conclusions, arguments, statements that are not relevant to any possible issue before the Court, and it is so interspersed and intermingled with a few facts that are probably pertinent, that it is impossible to segregate the competent evidence from incompetent and irrelevant evidence, and for that reason I move that it all be stricken.

The Court: Before adjournment, I will overrule your motion.

(Here ensued a colloquy off the record, concerning further procedure.)

Mr. McDonald: If the Court please, I have been requested and am authorized by Allegheny Corporation to make a statement for the record with reference to the matter raised about Mr. Wyer's fee.

Our position is that we don't think that the affidavit of Mr. Peckham is capable of misunderstanding. It states on the first page that it purports to set forth with detail the expenses incurred, including those which have been paid directly by the Corporation, those which have heretofore been incurred and paid, and those which have been incurred and are to be paid.

It sets forth in the second page that it seeks only to be reimbursed for expenses which it has incurred and has, for the most part, already paid, in an effort to achieve a plan of reorganization which would be fair to all parties.

It sets forth on the same page that it was suggested to Allegheny at the beginning of these negotiations that Allegheny underwrite the expenses, with the understanding that it would make appropriate application for reimbursement from the Debtor's estate, and then it sets forth on the third page that among the expenses which we have incurred are the fees of Mr. Wyer, of which we have paid $22,465.86, which also includes some expenses, I think.

The Witness: (Mr. Wyer) Yes.

Mr. McDonald: And that we owe the additional sum of $7,500, for which we are asking reimbursement.

If it were possible to misconstrue that, I would like to make it clear now, as I think it was made clear at the Brooklyn hearings, that Allegheny considers that an expenditure incurred, and that the mere fact that it has not been paid is more a coincident than anything else; we owe the money, and we have asked to be reimbursed for it.

Mr. Biggs: The point I raised is correct. You did not read that whole statement.

Mr. McDonald: No, I asked the Court—I mean, I am sure the Court will take judicial notice.

Mr. Biggs: Just stated $7,500 would be paid after the plan has been approved.

The Court: I want to say to you, Mr. Biggs, the Court may have a weakness about forcing you to go ahead the next morning (Thursday), but I want you to go ahead the next morning, if you can.

Mr. Biggs: I will go ahead if possible, Your Honor.

The Court: Very well.

At this point, 4:45 P. M., March 20, 1945, an adjournment was had until 10:00 A. M., March 21, 1945.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on March 21, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

Appearances: Same as heretofore noted.

The Court: You may proceed with the Missouri Pacific hearing.

D. Rucker Rodgers,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand testified as follows:

Further Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Rodgers, when I was examining you—I think it was on Monday—I asked you to find out certain information for me: Have you found that out? A. Yes.

(Here ensued private colloquy between Mr. Biggs and Mr. McConaughy.)

Q. In your exhibit, Mr. Rodgers, it shows that there were 120 freight cars purchased during 1929? A. Yes.

Q. I asked you whether those cars were all actually purchased in 1929, or had been ordered prior to that date and only delivered in 1929.

A. They were built in the company shops at Kingsville in 1929. They were authorized in June, 1929; the material was ordered in July and August, 1929, and the cars were built in November and December, 1929.

Q. So that they were actually—from the beginning to the end, ordered and the material purchased, and built in 1929? A. Entirely.

Q. Entirely? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in regard to locomotives. We were discussing the question of locomotive failures and I asked you whether the figures pertaining to locomotive failures applied to all locomotives using Gulf Coast Lines or applied only to Gulf owned locomotives: Did you find that out for me? A. Yes.

Q. What is that information, please?

A. My answer was that the failures applied to all locomotives.

Q. How many of those locomotives that were actually Gulf Coast Lines, how many were rented locomotives in 1929?

A. During 1929 the Gulf Coast Lines owned locomotives were 139. At sometime during the year 49 Missouri Pacific locomotives were used on the Gulf Coast and 54 International-Great Northern were used, or a total of 103.

Q. 103 so-called foreign locomotives, and how many—

The Witness: 139.

Q. 139? A. 139 Gulf Coast owned locomotives.

Q. I don't know whether I asked you for this: Have you got that information for 1930?

A. Yes. In 1930 the Gulf Coast owned 129 locomotives. They used at some time during the year 39 Missouri Pacific locomotives and 56 International-Great Northern locomotives, a total of 95.

Q. And for 1931?

A. In 1931 they owned 122 locomotives of their own. They used at sometime during the year 41 Missouri Pacific locomotives and 54 International-Great Northern locomotives, a total of 95.

Q. A total of 95. Just Missouri Pacific and I.-G. N.?

A. It includes the mileage made and failures made by any locomotives operating during the year on the Gulf Coast.

Mr. Biggs: Now I move that the evidence of Mr. Rodgers, in his examination in chief, in regard to using the indicia of failures as a test of efficiency of lomocotives for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931, be stricken, because the result of this examination is that for those years nearly one-half the locomotives were so-called foreign locomotives, and he was using these foreign locomotives as a basis of stating that the locomotives during those years were in better condition, better maintained, than during the 1921-1923 cycle where there were only Gulf Coast locomotives and—I will ask just one other question before going on.

Q. A lot of the locomotives that were in use during 1920 to 1923, have been retired; is that correct?

A. There were five locomotives which were in use in '20 and '23 retired in those years.

Q. How many retired in subsequent years?
A. Ten locomotives retired in 1927.
Q. One in 1929?
A. One in 1929, ten in 1930, seven in 1931.

Mr. Biggs: I move that the evidence be stricken, in view of the statement of the witness.

Mr. McConaughy: If Your Honor please, in the first place, the statement of fact made by Mr. Biggs as the basis for his objection is not correct. Mr. Rodgers stated that at sometime during specified years there were L.-G. N. and Missouri Pacific locomotives. That could have been five minutes, or ten miles of running, for one year. Therefore, it is not correct to say that all of the L.-G. N. locomotives listed there were there during the whole year.

In the second place, if those locomotives were leased and operated by the Gulf Coast Lines the ownership is not material from the standpoint of determining the condition of locomotives that were operating on the Gulf Coast Lines. That is the proposition we were attempting to show in the beginning, and ownership is irrelevant.

The Court: Motion overruled.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Rodgers, why did you cut off this exhibit at the year 1931?

A. Well, in preparing this exhibit I discussed it with Mr. McConaughy and he indicated that that was the years that it should be prepared for.

Mr. McConaughy: I think Your Honor will recall that I explained to the Court the reason why that exhibit was prepared in that form. It is in the record.

Mr. Biggs: Q. You stopped in 1931, at the request of Mr. McConaughy? A. Yes.
Q. As I understand it, you are in the St. Louis office?
A. Yes.
Q. This exhibit was prepared at your direction?
A. Yes.
Q. It was not actually prepared by you?
A. This was prepared in the St. Louis office by me and my assistants.

Mr. Biggs: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Rodgers, the information shown there is from the books and records of the Gulf Coast Lines? A. Yes.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Did you personally verify these figures? A. Yes.

Mr. Biggs: That is all, Your Honor.

J. A. Brown,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the stand testified as follows:

Further Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Brown, your exhibits Nos. 20, 21, and 22: In regard to those exhibits, they all were cut off at the year 1931; is that correct?

A. No—I don't have those numbers. Will you let me get your numbers on these? I didn't number them.

Q. These are the three exhibits (handing exhibits to the witness).

These three exhibits all stop at 1931, do they not; they don't include any information past 1931? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you stop at that year, that particular year, Mr. Brown?

A. Mr. McConaughy asked me to prepare these exhibits covering these years.

Q. It was on his request that you did that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your examination you testified that there was a six million dollar—approximately six million dollar profit arising out of this one hundred dollars received by the Gulf Coast Lines as a charge for icing?

A. No—out of this one hundred dollars, did you say?

Q. Received per car by the Gulf Coast Lines as a charge for [ising].

A. I testified there was a profit during the period mentioned, 1922 to 1931, inclusive, of $6,171,876. from the refrigeration, that the shipper paid for having these cars refrigerated from origin to destination. The total refrigeration charge being turned over to the Gulf Coast Lines and they paying for all of the cost of the icing at origin on their line to destination, and at destination, and after paying all of those charges they had that profit left during those years, over that period.

Q. The amount that the Gulf Coast Lines received was one hundred dollars a car?

A. I merely used that, Mr. Biggs, as an illustration that, if the charge might be one hundred dollars a car the shipper paid, and the Gulf Coast Lines had to pay out seventy-five dollars, they would have twenty-five dollars.

Q. That was just an illustration? A. That is all.

Q. That was not a standard charge for the—

The Court: That is what he stated when he first testified.

Mr. Biggs: Q. How did you determine, Mr. Brown, that there was that six million, one hundred and some thousand dollars of profit?

A. I determined it by making inquiry as we went along as to how we were progressing, from the very beginning of the arrangement. There was some possible doubt in our minds, or in the minds of some of our people, as to whether this would be profitable. It might have resulted in a loss, but I felt sure that it would not, and from the very beginning of the arrangement I inquired of the auditor each year, "How did it come out?" and he gave me the figures. He had the figures by years.

Mr. Biggs: Q. As I understand it, this statement in regard to profit is based on what information you received from the auditor of the Gulf Coast Lines; is that correct? You don't have anything to do with the keeping of the books and records of the Gulf Coast?

A. No, I don't keep the books.

Q. That is not within your jurisdiction, so to speak?

A. No, sir.

Q. How much profit or how much loss resulted from this transaction each year, or over the period of time, you personally, or people under your direct jurisdiction, knew nothing about; it would depend on what the auditor told you, is that right? A. Yes; that is correct, yes.

Q. Now, you also testified in regard to the shortening of the schedule time for trains between the Valley and St. Louis? A. Yes.

Q. Is it a policy, or do railroads in peace times, ignoring the present war time where there is a lot of special rules and restrictions, but in peace times during the 30's or 20's, do railroads in this part of the country, the Missouri Pacific, have the right to fix a schedule purely in their own discretion, without any restrictions?

A. That is a broad statement. Yes, they have a right to fix—

Q. They have, as an actual practice?

A. Without any restrictions, you say? Certainly, we sit down and figure a schedule and I don't know of any restriction against it.

Q. Don't you submit all schedules to the Western Conference; is there not an organization called the Western Conference of Railroads, or some similar title?

Mr. McDonald: May I be permitted to object to that question, Your Honor? It is wholly irrevelant to any issue in this case. It involves issues now pending in Lincoln, Nebraska. There is no showing that this witness has any knowledge of it, and it can serve no purpose in the determination of the objections to this Plan.

The Court: He may answer, subject to the objection.

The Witness: You say I may answer it?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: I have not been directly on the payroll of the Missouri Pacific Lines since June—

Mr. Biggs: I am not talking about war time.

The Witness: I don't know what the situation is—

Q. Let us go to prior to 1942.

A. Prior to 1942 we had conferences in which we would discuss schedules, because no single schedule can be made without affecting other territories and usually it was rather far-reaching, so that we take a look at what the schedules of other lines are, and rarely would we make a schedule without taking into consideration what effect it may have on all of our schedules at other points, and on other commodities. So that, we do have these conferences with other lines and we—

Q. What is the name of that association?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to this line of testimony. It seems to me it is utterly immaterial to the main examination here. It is not cross examination. He is trying to bring out something entirely different that has no bearing. We didn't introduce anything of that kind in the direct examination. The direct examination pertained to the manner of establishing schedules, to show the efficiency of this management. The fact that they may have consulted with some other railroad who participated in the conference has no connection whatever.

Mr. Biggs: The evidence in chief in this case is directed to the point that, as the result of the Missouri Pacific coming into the picture the schedule between Houston, or some other point, and St. Louis, was tremendously cut on account of the efficiency and operation of the Missouri Pacific and the efficiency and operation of the Gulf Coast Lines, as the result of the Missouri Pacific taking over control. There is no question that there was that testimony in the record.

Mr. McDonald: May I ask one question to support this objection?

The Court: Very well.

Mr. McDonald: Q. Isn't it a fact that the Western Association of Railroad Executives was not organized until 1932?

The Witness: I think that is the year, yes.

Mr. McDonald: We object to any testimony with reference to what the practice between 1932 and 1940, was because it is wholly irrelevant to the successful operation of this railroad from 1924 to 1930.

Mr. McConaughy: I join in that objection.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. We will limit it to 1932. Prior to 1932, was there any conference between the Missouri Pacific and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, or the Frisco, in regard to schedules between competing points?

Mr. McConaughy: If Your Honor please, I object to that on the same ground that I made the objection before. It is not proper cross examination.

Mr. Biggs: It is proper. They say that because of this efficiency these schedules were lower.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Biggs: I want to bring out that unless the three competing companies agree to a change in schedule the schedule is not changed, no matter how efficient or how fine the operation is.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't see what bearing that has on it.

The Court: I don't know that I am prepared to answer your question.

Mr. McConaughy: It seems to me it has no bearing. If the schedules were shortened that is something the Missouri Pacific did.

Mr. Biggs: They might have been shortened because of the fact that the other railroads agreed to the shortening.

Mr. McConaughy: What difference does that make?

Mr. Biggs: If the shortening was the result of an agreement rather than operating conditions then it certainly doesn't indicate an improvement. Your evidence was offered on the basis that the change in schedules was an indication of improvement in operation of the Missouri Pacific trains. If these schedules were not based on that, but were based on an agreement between the Missouri Pacific, the M. K. & T. and the Missouri Pacific, it is certainly pertinent and relevant.

The Court: The Court has ruled. He may answer.

(Last previous question read as follows: "Q. We will limit it to 1932. Prior to 1932, was there any conference between the Missouri Pacific and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, or the Frisco, in regard to schedules between competing points?")

A. I don't recall any conferences, but I know that there are conferences of all railroads—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I would like to make another objection to that, because the testimony he gave pertained to traffic out of the Valley and schedules to Kansas City. He merely mentioned that he met the Southern Pacific competition at Kansas City. He didn't state the hours at all.

The only questioning pertained to schedules to St. Louis. Now his question doesn't specify he is talking about the same thing. In other words, it is not appropriate to ask questions generally about agreements on schedules.

Mr. Biggs: I will submit to that, but I would like to call Mr. McConaughy's attention to the far afield testimony that was given yesterday by one of his witnesses. We will limit it, then, if the objection is made.

Q. Mr. Brown, were there any conferences between the Missouri Pacific and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas in regard to schedules between Houston and St. Louis?

Mr. McConaughy: That is not quite it, Your Honor. The Valley traffic came from Brownsville.

Mr. Biggs: There was traffic from Houston. Houston certainly is on the Brownsville Railroad and is certainly on the Gulf Coast Lines. That is right direct.

The Witness: I don't know of any conference—

The Court: Wait a minute, Mr. Brown.

Mr. McConaughy: The testimony was that the perishable traffic moved from the Valley to St. Louis. Those are the schedules he testified about.

Mr. Biggs: Are you stating for the record that no perishable traffic was moved out of the Houston area?

Mr. McConaughy: You can ask him, if you want that.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Did you ever ship a car of perishable freight out of the Houston area?

A. Oh, I suppose they have, yes.

Q. Are there not some vegetables grown around there?

A. Yes, I think so; some.

Q. Going back to the question, what was your answer?

A. The question I believe was, was there any conference with the M. K. & T. on schedules from Houston to St. Louis. I don't recall any.

Mr. McConaughy: He answered it before I got the objection in.

Mr. Biggs: Q. As I understand it from your answer, Mr. Brown, you do not remember of any conference taking place, prior to 1932, between the Missouri Pacific and the Gulf Coast Lines, on the one side, and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas on the other side, in regard to any schedule between St. Louis and Houston; is that right?

A. Mr. Biggs, we were having conferences with the M. K. & T. and Frisco and the Southern Pacific all the time from 19—as far back as I can remember today, but I don't recall any conference with the M. K. & T. regarding, or relating to the schedule from the Rio Grande, on vegetables, to St. Louis, at any time. I don't recall any.

Q. Do you remember conference with regard to a schedule on other commodities?

Mr. McConaughy: That is objected to. There is no—

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: The witness is not denying that there were such conferences. I think it has evidentiary value if I can show there were conferences between these competing points, on other commodities. I don't think I am limited to the question of vegetables alone.

Mr. McConaughy: The answer to that is that there was no direct testimony on the subject of any other schedules.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Do you remember any conferences with the Kansas City Southern on shipments between competing points and the City of Kansas City, in regard to schedules?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to that because it is too broad. The testimony that was given on direct—

Mr. Biggs: Q. Or any schedule in regard to products of the Valley, fruit and vegetables? A. It seems to me—

Mr. McConaughy: And it is not limited as to time.

Mr. Biggs: Prior to 1932.

A. Your Honor, it seems to me that they are making a very big mystery about something that is very simple to me.

The Court: You make it simple to us.

The Witness: Generally speaking, we made these schedules without any conference with anyone. I can not say we didn't talk with people about the schedules, other people that were interested in the same traffic; we did, naturally. We did about all our business, but we made these schedules in the Rio Grande Valley, so far as I know and can recall, without any conference with anyone. We told them we were going to make them and we made them, and they naturally made the same schedules, using their connections to reach the same points.

Mr. Biggs: Q. You say they made the same schedule you made, the same time schedule?

A. They would meet schedules when we would make them, and we would meet theirs if they made them. Certainly, these railroads all ran on about the same schedules.

Q. If, for example, it was impossible for the Katy to run a train between Houston and St. Louis in less than sixty-five hours, the Missouri Pacific, even if it was possible to run a train in sixty hours, would have a schedule of sixty-five; isn't that true, Mr. Brown?

A. Well, now, that is a hypothetical question. I don't know. I wouldn't know how to answer that.

Q. Did the Missouri Pacific ever institute, to your knowledge a schedule between a competing point with the Katy, that the Katy was unable to meet, from an operating standpoint?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to the question. It doesn't pertain to the direct examination.

The Court: He may answer.

A. Yes.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Tell us about it.
A. We run the Sunshine Special from Houston to St. Louis, a distance of 815 miles, and the M.K. & T. distance is about 1040 miles, and they don't meet it.
Q. What about freight trains?

The Court: What about what?

Mr. Biggs: Freight trains.

A. I think that is equally true of some freight trains. I think there are some schedules that the M.K. & T. can't meet that we make. I can't be sure of that; I don't recall that definitely.
Q. Isn't it a fact that the freight train schedule between Houston and St. Louis, on the Missouri Pacific is the same as the freight train schedule of the M.K. & T. between Houston and St. Louis, and yet the Katy has to go 150 miles further. A. I don't know.
Q. You are not stating that that is not a fact?
A. In further answer to your question, however, I will say that the M.K. & T. had a schedule from Houston to Kansas, freight schedule on perishables that we won't meet and can't meet.
Q. That is because you have no direct line between Houston and—
A. We meet it in effect, but we don't make the same schedule.
Q. You could if you wanted to run over the Kansas City Southern, could you not?
A. I don't know. If the Kansas City Southern would join we possibly could.

Mr. Biggs: I believe that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. You testified with reference to the saving in connection with the icing charge? A. Yes.

Q. The A.R.T. cars. I believe you said that you obtained the information as to the amount of that saving in the regular course of business; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And that information is shown on your exhibit? A. No.

Q. Excuse me. That information is the basis of your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Biggs: That is all, Mr. Brown. Thank you.

Mr. McConaughy: You don't want Mr. Brown any more, Mr. Biggs? He is from Houston and wants to go home.

Mr. Biggs: No.

If the Court please, I would like to have five minutes.

The Court: Announce a five-minute recess.

(Thereupon the Bailiff announced a five-minute recess.)

Mr. McConaughy: Before Mr. Brown goes, he made one misstatement in answer to a question of Mr. Biggs. He would like to have it corrected.

The Court: Open Court.

(Thereupon the Bailiff announced the opening of Court.)

J. A. Brown,

having been heretofore duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Brown, you mentioned in connection with this icing charge saving that the period involved was from 1922 to another date, is that correct; do you recall saying that?

A. The saving of $6,171,876 was over the period 1924 to 1932, inclusive, calendar years.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all, Mr. Brown.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. I didn't know that you had a schedule of that saving. Have you a schedule of that saving? A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to have that in evidence, if Your Honor please.

Mr. McConaughy: Is this the schedule, Mr. Brown?

A. That is a schedule that was secured from our accounting department in Houston.

Mr. Biggs: Who prepared it?

A. Mr. Edrington, Auditor of the Gulf Coast Lines, in Houston.

Mr. McConaughy: Why don't we have this set up on a separate piece of paper?

Mr. Biggs: One more question, Mr. Brown.

Q. In your discussion you mentioned in regard to the division of rates between the Missouri Pacific and the Gulf Coast Lines: Any division of rates between those companies had to be made with the consent of the Missouri Pacific, is not that correct?

A. I don't understand the question.

(Last previous question read to the witness.)

A. An agreed division is naturally made with the consent of both parties, yes.

Q. And since 1925, the Gulf Coast was under the control of the Missouri Pacific?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that. Mr. Brown is not qualified to answer that question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: That is all.

The Court: We will let you go this time.

The Court: Announce a five-minute recess.

(After a brief recess the hearing was resumed.)

C. S. KIRKPATRICK,

having been heretofore duly sworn, upon resuming the witness stand testified further as follows:

Further Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Kirkpatrick, in regard to Group Exhibit 17, you will see that that exhibit stops at the year 1931: Why did you stop at 1931?

A. I haven't got mine numbered, but that is—

Mr. McConaughy: You might show him the exhibit.

Mr. Biggs: Q. You have the exhibit there. This one here (indicating). A. Yes; we stopped at 1931.

Q. Why did you stop at that particular year, Mr. Kirkpatrick?

A. Mr. McConaughy asked us to prepare information up to and including that time.

Q. Did he give you any reason for stopping at 1931?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you got Exhibit No. 18? That is the other exhibit, that is this one (indicating). A. Oh, 18? Yes.

Q. What is the report to the Interstate Commerce Commission called, BV 588?

A. That is Bureau of Valuation 588.

Q. What is contained in that report?

A. Well, I can't tell you everything that is contained in it, but it is a report.

Q. And contains additions and betterments, doesn't it?

A. Yes. It is supposed to keep the value of the property used in keeping the additions and betterments and property values up to date, in case they want to use it for that purpose.

Q. This is a report that is submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which the Commission uses in keeping the value of the Missouri Pacific or whatever company submits the report, up to date?

A. That is my understanding of it.

Q. The Interstate Commerce Commission checks these reports and sometimes deletes items or changes the figure, do they not?

A. Yes, I suppose they are. That could be handled with the accounting department, however.

Q. You set out on the first page of Exhibit 18—on the first page you have set out the expenditures chargeable to road for additions and betterment work during the period under consideration, as shown below, and given by years from 1925 to 1932, with a total of $11,482,420.71; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are those the same figures that are shown in your report known as BV 588?

A. I couldn't say whether there was any difference or not. They were taken from completion report and from basic information in my office and the Auditor's, and came from the same source as the 588, I am sure. I don't know whether they contain identical figures or not.

Q. You do not know, then, whether these figures would coincide with the figures filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission in BV 588, showing additions and betterments over these years?

A. I couldn't say that they check exactly, but they are substantially in accordance with what was spent.

Q. Substantially within the figures filed with BV 588 and approved—

A. I can't say whether the totals check or not.

Q. You are not saying it would substantially check with it? A. I think it would, yes.

Q. Let me understand what you mean by substantially: You mean within a hundred thousand dollars?

A. I would say five per cent. or two per cent., something like that.

Q. Can you secure for me what the BV 588's for those particular years would be?

A. I couldn't answer that question. That would be a tremendous job and would take a long time to do that. That would be for all the years.

Q. It is one annual report that you file each year, isn't that true? A. Well, it is for the Gulf Coast Lines?

Q. That is right.

A. And they file annual reports with the Commission separately for each railroad.

Q. But there is one figure, one total figure in this BV 588 for each one of these years, that would show additions and betterments for that particular year?

A. I couldn't answer that. I don't know whether they set it up as one figure or not.

Q. By one figure I mean there is an addition of a number of figures and one total— A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. Have you ever seen a BV report?

A. Yes, we have them in our office. We prepare part of them.

Q. You prepare them? A. By the Valuation Department.

Q. You don't know whether the additions and betterments are totaled?

A. Yes, they are totaled on the BV form.

Q. On the BV form?

A. Yes, but whether or not they are totaled for the whole railroad, various corporations, and how they are totaled, I am not familiar with that.

Q. Take the N. O. T. & M. as a separate unit: Each year there is a total given the ICC on the BV 588, showing additions and betterments for that particular year; is that not correct? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Can you furnish me with the BV's, or have furnished that information?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that. He has just shown that this is a report filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is quite as accessible to Mr. Biggs as it is to Mr. Kirkpatrick. He has also shown that he had an auditor, Mr. Comstock had an auditor, going over the reports in Washington.

Mr. Biggs: This was just introduced in evidence, Your Honor, and Mr. Delaney was not psychic when he was in Washington three or four months ago.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Biggs: I will reframe the question. Mr. Kirkpatrick, can you furnish me, for the years 1925 through 1932, inclusive, with a list of expenditures chargeable to road for additions and betterments on the Gulf Coast Lines, as shown by reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission on BV 588? A. Yes.

Mr. Biggs: That is all.

Mr. McConaughy: All he did was answer yes, he can do it.

Mr. Biggs: Will you furnish it, please?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to it, Your Honor.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Kirkpatrick, will you tell us what is involved in furnishing that information? First of all, will you tell us what the volume of paper that is involved in the BV 588 for the years mentioned by Mr. Biggs in his question would be?

The Witness: It would be a stack of paper that would fill up one corner of this room here.

The Court: How much of one corner?

The Witness: Oh, about eight by twelve, something like that. I mean, the information that we would have to pull out and work over.

Mr. McConaughy: Is about that size?

The Witness: Yes; there is so many thousands of them.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor will note from his question that he seemed to want each and every addition and betterment, and it was not limited to the years, but to every addition and betterment.

Mr. Biggs: I will limit it to the total of each of those years, the total to correspond with these figures set out in Exhibit 18.

Mr. McConaughy: How many days' work, by how many railroad men would be involved in getting that information? That would be eight years, the total A and B's for eight years.

The Witness: It would mean, roughly, I believe, from my knowledge, from what we have done—it would be for that period of time around three thousand different completion reports that we would have to get out and check over in order to arrive at a total.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't believe you quite get my question, Mr. Kirkpatrick. He is asking you to take these BV 588 reports and get the total by years, for those eight years. How much work, how many days' work, by how many men, would be involved in doing that?

The Witness: Well, I would have to approximate it.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right.

The Witness: I believe it would take three or four men around thirty days to do it.

Mr. McConaughy: I submit, Your Honor, that is an unreasonable request, when Mr. Biggs has this information accessible to him. It is a public document.

Mr. Biggs: May I examine the witness?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: Q. You say it would take three or four men thirty days. How many corporations have you got, fourteen? A. Fourteen, I believe.

Q. And there are fourteen separate BVs for each year, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. It would take three or four men thirty days to look through these reports and take one figure from each of the fourteen reports for these years and add them up and give us a total?

A. I believe it would, yes, because you have to get in the files and dig them out.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to understand what you are really asking for. I will ask Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, what information is shown on one BV 588? A. The information shown—

Mr. McConaughy: Does that cover one completion report or does it cover a whole year.

The Witness: I believe it covers a month.

Mr. McConaughy: One completion report?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: So you have to look through this whole series of completion reports to get the total for a year?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Is there no information located in your office, of Missouri Pacific or its subsidiaries, that shows the total amount of BVs for additions and betterments during the course of any one year?

A. I don't think it is—total additions and betterments are kept, but I don't believe—

Q. The total amount shown by the BV report—

Mr. McConaughy: Now he is going into another subject. The point that Mr. Biggs asked about was the BV 588.

Mr. Biggs: That is right.

Mr. McConaughy: May I ask Mr. Kirkpatrick a question?

The accounting department keeps records of about the same thing, don't they, additions and betterments?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: And that is a fairly simple thing to get?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: And the Auditor could get that up without much trouble, while if you were going to get it up there is involved all this examination of separate completion reports for practically each—

The Witness: That is right. I never have had it in that way.

Mr. McConaughy: Also the accounting department records of A's and B's may vary slightly, but not much from the BV 588?

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. McConaughy: So you would have substantially the same information from the Auditor, which would be simple to obtain without all this work from the BV 588's?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: If the Court please, there is a substantial difference—I think we are entitled to know what additions and betterments were actually allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and approved for rate-making purposes. Additions and betterments may be considered so by some accountants, that are actually expenditures for maintenance and expenditures for repairs and not additions and betterments in any sense of the word. Here we have the Interstate Commerce Commission and here are reports filed in the Interstate Commerce Commission as to what are actually, truly additions and betterments.

Mr. McConaughy: His statement assumes something and I would like to find out whether it is correct or not.

Mr. Biggs: May I ask Mr. Eckert a question?

(Here followed an aside conference.)

If Your Honor please, Mr. Peet advises me that Mr. Bradley, who is the Valuation Engineer, would know the answers to these questions as to whether this information on BV's is obtainable, and I believe I would like to ask for an adjournment. I think he could probably be brought over here in ten minutes.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all right with us, Your Honor. I think it would be a good idea to get this straightened out. I think Mr. Biggs misconceives what he is asking Mr. Kirkpatrick to do.

The Court: Announce a brief adjournment. Notify me when you are ready.

(Adjournment at 11:35 A. M., the said witness appeared at 12:05 P. M., at which time court reconvened, and the following proceedings were had:)

H. T. BRADLEY,

a witness of lawful age, being duly produced, sworn and examined, testified as follows:

Direct Examination,

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Will you state your name, please? A. H. T. Bradley.

Q. And what is your connection with the Missouri Pacific? A. I am Valuation Engineer of the System.

Q. Of the System? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you have under your supervision the file of these BV-588s with the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Yes.

Q. I have discussed this matter with you just before going on the stand, is that true? A. That is right.

Q. And you advised me that it would be impossible to quickly prepare a statement or be able to testify as to what the total BV-588s for the Gulf Coast Lines would be for the years 1925, 1926, and 1927, is that right?

A. That is right. They are lumped for the period, 1919 to 1927.

Q. However, in regard to the years 1928 through 1932, it would be possible for you to communicate with Houston and be able to report as to the amount of the BV-588s pertaining to additions and betterments for those particular years, is that correct?

A. Yes, with one possible exception. I believe the years 1928 and 1929 were combined, or else 1929 and 1930; I am not sure.

Q. All right, if there is a combined report for two years, then that is perfectly satisfactory to give it to me in the combined report. I have no objection to that.

A. I can do that.

Q. If you will, please. This is for the Gulf Coast Lines.

A. Yes. Does that include the I. & G. N.?

Q. No, sir. A. Or just the Gulf Coast Lines?

Q. Just the Gulf Coast.

Cross Examination,
By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Bradley, will you kindly describe what BV-588 reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission are?

A. That is an annual report required by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be filed annually, and it shows the units of property added, and their cost by primary accounts and units of property retired, and their cost for each year. Now, that represents property completed during the year in question, physically completed.

Q. And what does the Interstate Commerce Commission do with those reports?

A. Those reports are used in bringing valuations to date; that is, they are used to supplement the original inventories made between 1914 and 1920.

Q. These reports are filed with the Bureau of Valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, are they not?

A. That is right.

Q. They don't go to the Bureau of Accounts? A. No.

Q. Now, you say they are used for bringing valuations to date. Have they been used in the case of the Gulf Coast Lines or the Missouri Pacific to bring valuation to date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, has there been a valuation of the Gulf Coast Lines by the Interstate Commerce Commission since 1917 that you know of?

A. Not as under the term Gulf Coast Lines.

Q. Isn't this what you mean: That they might be used at some future time as a basis for bringing valuations to date, if they ever did?

A. No, I don't think so. We had the reorganization valuation in 1935, and then—

Q. (Interrupting) Now, as to that, wasn't that merely a report of elements of valuation by the Bureau of Valuation?

A. Yes, but you have to have this information to get the elements.

Q. It was not a valuation, though, was it?

A. Well, it depends on what you call a valuation. It is the elements of value, although no final valuation.

Q. The document was entitled "Elements of Value", wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Bradley, the preparation of these BV-588s is under a set of rules promulgated by the Bureau of Valuation, isn't that right?

A. No, I don't think so. I think it is promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. All right. Now, the Auditor keeps a record of additions and betterments, doesn't he?

A. No, I don't think he does.

Q. Aren't they shown right along in the books—additions and betterments?

A. He records the charges as they occur, yes.

Q. Yes, and that is done pursuant to a set of regulations of the Commission? A. That is right.

Q. And those regulations may be or are in certain respects different from the regulations that govern the making up of the BV-588s, is that correct?

A. There are several differences.

Q. If you took a report for any one year on BV-588s and the Auditor's report to the Commission and compared them, they would not necessarily cover the same additions and betterments, would they?

A. No. You have a difference in time element.

Q. That is right. In other words, the Auditor accrues additions and betterments as the expense for them is incurred, isn't that right? A. That is right, yes.

Q. Whereas for the BV-588s, they are based on completions of the jobs, isn't that right?

A. Yes, upon final completion of the job.

Q. So if you were to take the figures Mr. Biggs has asked you for from the BV-588s, they would not correspond with the Auditor's figures, necessarily?

A. That is right, they would not.

Mr. McConaughy: Now, in view of that testimony, I would like to ask Mr. Biggs why he wishes to have these BV-588 figures.

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor please, as disclosed by Mr. Wyer's testimony and argument of yesterday, one of the main bases of their defense is the question of additions and betterments. Now, here we have some figures on additions and betterments that are filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the Bureau of Valuation. They have got an exhibit here, and we are asking for a comparison of their exhibit with these figures, and I certainly think we are entitled to it. Now, this will extend over a long period of years, and if there is only a slight discrepancy, why, that is one thing, but if there is a major discrepancy in the middle years' period, why, it is a matter of substantial difference. I certainly think we are entitled to it. The witness has indicated he can have them for us. When we see the figures, why then I can be in much better position to judge the competency or incompetency, or the relevancy or irrelevancy of the document.

Mr. McConaughy: It sounds to me as if Mr. Biggs is just curious.

Mr. Biggs: No, I am not curious.

Q. Did I understand you to say, Mr. Bradley, that you could supply information for the period, 1925 through 1932? A. No.

Mr. Biggs: 1928.

The Witness: 1928, he asked me. 1928 through 1932.

Mr. Biggs: You cannot supply the other years. That is the reason I am asking for those.

Q. All right, I just wanted to make that clear. You have got to combine 1928 and 1929 together.

A. Well, I am not entirely clear, but I know that there was one 2-year period in there was combined. Now, whether it was 1928 and 1929, or 1929 and 1930, I don't remember.

Q. How long will it take to get that information?

A. Why, I would think a couple of days, maybe.

Q. How many men would have to work on it?

A. It would not be a very big job. You have the figures for each year, for each road. It would just be a matter of adding the roads together.

Mr. McConaughy: Well, may we have this information obtained in this way, so that it will not delay this proceeding? Let Mr. Bradley prepare the information for the years 1928 through 1932, which Mr. Biggs has requested, in tabular form, and allow it to be filed as an exhibit in these proceedings. Will that be satisfactory, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: If Mr. Bradley is going to—as I understood from him in my conversation with him before he started to testify, he thought he would have it here by tomorrow afternoon. If that is correct, why, we will still be trying this case tomorrow afternoon.

Q. What do you say, Mr. Bradley?

Mr. Biggs: If he cannot—

A. I cannot tell.

Mr. Biggs: I understand there is no commitment—don't misunderstand me, Mr. Bradley, on that statement. We will know more about that after you have had an opportunity to make inquiry.

Mr. McConaughy: All right, if it is obtainable here before the session closes, Mr. Bradley will bring it in; if not, may we file it in the proceedings as a Comstock exhibit?

Mr. Biggs: That is all right.

Mr. McConaughy: And there is no continuance of the hearing for that purpose?

Mr. Biggs: I am not asking for a continuance.

The Witness: May I ask one question? What roads are included?

Mr. Biggs: The Gulf Coast Lines.

The Witness: The same that are in the Plan?

Mr. Biggs: That is right. Thank you, Mr. Bradley. Do you have any questions, Mr. McConaughy?

Mr. McConaughy: Nothing more.

Mr. Biggs: I haven't anything more at this time, Your Honor.

Mr. McConaughy: Have you finished with Mr. Kirkpatrick?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: He may go home now?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: No redirect.

The Court: Shall there be a recess at this time?

Mr. Biggs: Until tomorrow morning, if Your Honor please.

Mr. McConaughy: Do I understand you want to cross examine Mr. Wyer tomorrow morning?

Mr. Biggs: I want to cross examine Mr. Wyer tomorrow. I do not want to make a commitment right at this moment as to whether I will be ready tomorrow morning or not. If I could call Your Honor sometime this afternoon on that. I am working on that, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Biggs: I am trying to work it out.

The Court: You will try to proceed in the morning, if you can.

Mr. Biggs: I will try my very best to proceed in the morning.

Mr. Kitchel: Your Honor, there are quite a number of us here from New York. We would like to go back sometime.

The Court: I understand.

(Here ensued some further colloquy.)

The Court: Announce an indefinite recess.

12:20 P. M., March 21, 1945, indefinite recess.

St. Louis, Missouri,
March 22, 1945,
10:00 o'clock A.M.

Note: No morning session was had.

On March 22, 1945, at two o'clock P.M., the hearing was resumed.

Appearances: Same as heretofore noted.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. McConaughy: May the record note that I just handed to Mr. Biggs the table of figures on the savings for the icing charges, that he requested Mr. Brown to prepare?

Mr. Biggs: I haven't had a chance to see it; it was just handed to me, I mean.

Cross Examination of William Wyer

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Wyer, what are your qualifications as an accountant?

A. I don't know that I have ever attempted to qualify myself as an accountant. I have, however,—

The Court: You gave your educational background in the Massachusetts Institute the other day.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: But there was no reference to any accounting.

The Witness: Well, I can say this on the subject of accounting, that I studied accounting and railroad accounting in M. I. T. and at the Harvard Business School, and I was in the accounting division of the U. S. Railroad Administration, after the first World War. I was an officer of the accounting division, with the title of Assistant to the Comptroller. I had about ninety accountants and engineering accountants under my supervision in that position, dealing with the maintenance accounts of all the railroads of the country and, of course, in my work I have dealt with accounts almost continuously.

Q. Your work has been accounting work, fundamentally?

A. No; I think my work has been engineering work. I consider myself as, first, an engineer.

The Court: Just an engineer?

The Witness: Just an engineer.

The Court: I thought you said some other word there.

The Witness: I didn't. I studied to be a civil engineer.

The Court: I thought you used some other word before that and I didn't get it.

The Witness: I thought, in the first place, that I was going to be a civil engineer and that is what I studied. I think the kind of engineering I do is probably the kind that is done by very few people. It is a very special field, but I think it is primarily engineering.

Q. You are not a certified public accountant? A. No.

Q. Did you ever take an examination? A. No.

Q. Have you ever taken any state examination in accounting?

A. No. I am a licensed engineer in the State of New Jersey.

Q. You are a licensed engineer in the State of New Jersey, but you are not a licensed accountant? A. No.

Q. So, you do not hold yourself out as having a formal accounting education? A. No.

Q. When you became Secretary-Treasurer of the Missouri Pacific you had charge of their accounting, did you not? A. No.

Q. Supervisory charge? A. No.

Q. You had no connection with their accounting?

A. No. Of course, we understand the treasurer has to keep certain books, but those are cash books; they are not part of the accounting in the customary accepted meaning of the word. I did not have jurisdiction of the accounts or the accounting department. I do have jurisdiction of the Accounting Department of the New Jersey Central, of course, in my present position, but I didn't have when I was with the Missouri Pacific.

Q. Did you have nothing to do with the allocation of the items in accounts and things of that character? A. No.

Q. You had nothing to do with the accounting of the Missouri Pacific while you were there, in a supervisory capacity? I am assuming you didn't write in the books.

A. Of course, you understand on a railroad every department head is probably consulted or conferred with by the head of the accounting department from time to time, and I was no exception to that, but I exercised no supervision over the accounting department. Of course, I drew on them constantly for information, but they were not under my jurisdiction.

Q. You had nothing to do with the allocation of money, property, credit, or anything else, of the various accounts?

A. No.

Q. During your period with the Missouri Pacific?

A. That is correct.

Q. Have you ever been criticized for the accounting practices of the Missouri Pacific?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that, Your Honor. It is irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor please, Mr. Wyer—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I don't see any use in Mr. Biggs stating a long tale here. If it comes merely down to a matter of criticism that is nothing he can use in cross examination. He has to show more than criticism.

Mr. Biggs: Mr. Wyer is the expert witness introduced by the Investors Group. He has testified he was employed by the Investors Group as their expert, he has appeared and introduced into evidence a great number of accounts and schedules of various kinds and characters, and has testified at great length, not only as to the actual facts included in those accounting schedules, but conclusions and prophecies, and many other things connected therewith on direct examination. Now, this is cross examination of this witness and one of the elements of cross examination is the question of his credibility.

Mr. McConaughy: You don't do that by showing more criticism.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Have you ever been accused of—

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that, Your Honor. It is immaterial.

The Court: Sustained, and objection to any other question starting out with "Have you been accused" will be sustained.

Mr. Biggs: I wish to now make an offer of proof. I would like to make the following offer of proof.

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute. I object to this making of an offer of proof. Where is the proof that he is offering? The mere statement from counsel is not an offer of proof.

The Court: What are you offering?

Mr. Biggs: I want to make the following offer of proof, that if Mr. Wyer was permitted to answer the question—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute.

The Court: Let him proceed.

Mr. Biggs (continuing): —was permitted to answer the question, that he would state and admit that at a hearing—

Mr. McConaughy: What question do you refer to?

Mr. Biggs: So there won't be any question about it I will reframe the question.

Q. Mr. Wyer, has not your accounting in connection with the Missouri Pacific been criticised by Senator Wheeler, the Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the United States Senate, at a hearing before the Sub-committee of said committee, on December 17 and 18, 1936?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question because—

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. McConaughy (continuing) —Mr. Wyer has just testified that he didn't do any Missouri Pacific accounting. Also on the ground that it is mere criticism, and on the third ground, that Senator Wheeler is not an expert in accounting.

The Court: As to Senator Wheeler—

Mr. McConaughy: I will withdraw the third objection.

Mr. Biggs: Mr. Wyer, if permitted to testify—

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a second.

Mr. Biggs (continuing): —I now offer to prove that he would so testify, that the following statements were made between Mr. Wyer and Senator Wheeler at that hearing:

"Mr. Wyer: Senator,"—

Mr. McConaughy: He says he offers to prove that. Where is his proof?

Mr. Biggs: I will prove that Mr. Wyer would so testify.

Mr. McConaughy: You are making the statement that Mr. Wyer would testify to that, and that is your own statement; is that right?

Mr. Biggs: As an offer of proof.

"Mr. Wyer: Senator, I think that every answer we ever gave to the Interstate Commerce Commission—

"The Chairman (Senator Wheeler): Every answer you gave them was evasive.

"Mr. Wyer (continuing): Was completely responsive to the inquiry.

"The Chairman: Every answer you gave them was an evasive answer, and did not give them all the facts or all the details.

"Mr. Wyer: That is a very broad statement.

"The Chairman: It is not only a broad statement, but I am perfectly willing to stand on it, based upon the record that is before this committee at this time.

"Mr. Wyer: Senator, I do not believe you can show me a single answer we ever made to the Interstate Commerce Commission that was not responsive to the request which they made upon us.

"The Chairman: Every one of them was a slippery answer that was given to them, and every one of them was an attempt to conceal the real facts in the case. Every piece of evidence here shows it. You, yourself, testified, as I called attention to a moment ago, to the fact that it did not make a full disclosure."

I offer to prove that Mr. Wyer would so testify, and that that was an interrogation by Senator Wheeler of Mr. Wyer in his capacity as an officer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Mr. McConaughy: I move to strike out the offer of the testimony, because—

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Wyer, did the Interstate Commerce Commission in its 51st Annual Report, dated November 1, 1937, criticise—

Mr. McConaughy: I think that is enough of a question. He has the word "criticise" in there. I object to the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Wyer, did the Interstate Commerce Commission in its 51st Annual Report of November 1, 1937, make any statement—

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question.

Mr. Biggs: Let me finish the question.

Mr. McConaughy: There is enough of it right there. The mere statement is not enough to use in impeaching a witness.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: I wish to make the following offer of proof: That if permitted by the Court to complete my question I would have asked Mr. Wyer if the Interstate Commerce Commission, in its 51st Annual Report, dated November

1, 1937, on pages 27 and 28 thereof, made the following statement, which pertained to Mr. Wyer's methods in regard to the books of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Mr. McConaughy: Excuse me a minute.

The Court: Read the question.

(Last previous question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Biggs: Mr. Wyer, in reply to said question, would admit that said Interstate Commerce Commission in said report made the following statement, and this is on pages 27 and 28 of said report:

"—Other instances of inaccurate and misleading statements in the reports filed with us by or on behalf of carriers have been fully developed in recent proceedings before the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce under Senate Resolution 71. Some of these misleading statements were furnished in connection with the obtaining of loans of public funds and with other important matters of public concern. The following instances are typical.

"The Alleghany Corporation is a holding company which had stock control of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and through a subsidiary purchased certain terminal-railway properties serving a packing house in Missouri Pacific territory. That railroad company contracted to purchase the properties from the subsidiary subject to our approval, but it made certain payments on the purchase price in advance of such approval and under the contracts it was liable either on the purchase price or as a guarantor against damage in the event of our disapproval for not less than $16,000,000. This liability was not shown in the annual reports filed with us by the railroad company, and in these reports $3,200,000, which had been paid under the contracts was shown in account 711, 'Special deposits', although it had been paid out and was not on deposit by the railroad company at all. In connection with applications of the Missouri Pacific for loans from the Reconstruction

Finance Corporation, balance sheets which failed to disclose the liability under the contracts and included the payments in 'Special deposits' were filed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and with us and were sworn to by the treasurer of the railroad company. Furthermore, in connection with an application by the latter for authority to issue securities we asked for a breakdown of an estimate of needed capital expenditures, and in a statement filed by the same officer a proposed payment under the above mentioned contracts was included in a total for 'Additions and betterments'.

"The device of reporting to us as 'Special deposits' money which had actually been expended under contracts for the purchase of securities was used by other railroad companies under the same control. Thus an amount paid by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company on account of purchase of stock of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway Company was so reported, and also amounts paid to Alleghany Corporation for an option on stock of the Erie and Nickel Plate railroads.

"As stated above, these are merely illustrations of incorrect and misleading reports out of several disclosed at the hearings.

"It would be of material assistance to us in obtaining accurate reports under section 20 and other sections of the statute if paragraphs (1), (2), and (7) were amended as indicated in item 10 of our legislative recommendations."

I also offer to prove that Mr. Wyer would admit that the same officer—

Mr. McConaughy: Admit in response to that question?

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute. I also offer to prove that the same officer—"the same officer" contained in said statement referred to Mr. Wyer, and that he would so admit if permitted to testify.

Mr. McConaughy: I move to strike out the statement, because it is a mere statement; to strike out the offer of proof just made, on the ground that it is a mere comment by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Court: Sustained and offer denied.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Wyer, you have heard the two offers of proof just made, and if the statements made are true and correct, did you so advise the Investors Group when they retained you as their expert in this matter?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question as utterly irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: I offer to prove that if the witness is permitted to answer that question he would testify that counsel for the Investors Group were very familiar with both of said statements and had been advised of the same.

Mr. McConaughy: How can he make that offer of proof? It is a mere statement.

The Court: Are you objecting to it.

Mr. McConaughy: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Are you objecting to it?

Mr. McConaughy: I move to strike the statement out. I move to strike out his offer of proof.

The Court: What is your motion?

Mr. McConaughy: I move that his offer of proof be overruled.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Wyer, have you got your exhibits with you? A. Yes.

Q. In regard to Exhibit No. 25, you filed this exhibit as the basis for your statement in regard to the background and outline of history of the Missouri Pacific from 1917 to 1944?

A. I don't know that that is an exact statement of what I said in connection with it, but this is a part of the financial history of the Missouri Pacific between those dates.

Q. And this was part of that history? A. Yes.

Q. And was the loss of that history?

A. Well, it is a part of it. I don't know what you mean by losing a loss.

Q. It is part of the history. Now, as I understand from your statement, Mr. Baldwin became president in 1923, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. And that you divided the history of the Missouri Pacific from that time to date into three periods, from 1923 to 1931, which I believe you called the Baldwin Improvement Period?

A. No, the first period was 1923 to 1930, inclusive.

Q. To 1930, inclusive, then. That was the Baldwin improvement period? A. Yes, I think I called it that.

Q. And then from 1931 to 1938, inclusive, as the Pre-War Period?

A. No, I don't think so. I think I called it 1931 to 1940, inclusive, 1931 to 1939, inclusive, was my statement.

Q. That is the pre-war period?

A. Yes. I don't know that I called it the pre-war period. I think I just called it the period from the end of Mr. Baldwin's improvement program period to the beginning of the war period.

Q. And then the last period that continued to now is known as the War Period? A. Yes, I think I so called it.

Q. During what years of these periods were you an officer of the Missouri Pacific? A. From 1929 to—

Q. You might as well give me the office you held, at the same time.

A. I am not quite sure when I ceased to be an officer, but I think it was either in 1938 or 1939.

Q. You started as an officer in 1929 and you think you continued until 1938 or 1939? A. Yes.

Q. What was your title?

A. As far as the parent company was concerned, for the first few months Assistant to the Chairman of the Board of Directors, and after that Secretary and Treasurer. I was during some portions of this period a director of the company.

Q. You had no connection with the Missouri Pacific prior to 1929, except through your employment with the Denver & Rio Grande? A. That is correct.

Q. When did you start in 1929? A. In February.

Q. For how long were you treasurer?

A. I was treasurer from October 1st, 1929, up until the time I resigned, at the end of my service with the Missouri Pacific.

Q. As treasurer prior to bankruptcy, were you responsible for the annual reports to the stockholders of the company? A. No.

Q. Who was?

A. They were signed by the president, I think, and possibly by the chairman of the board of directors. I am not sure. I think they were prepared by the Chief Accounting Financial Officer, who was Mr. Johnson during most of the time—I think all the time I was associated with the property. I think most of the time he had the title of Vice-President.

Q. Did you have any responsibility at all in regard to the facts and figures contained in those reports? A. No.

Q. And if there was an error that had nothing to do with your part of the Missouri Pacific?

A. That is correct. I think perhaps I should say that the annual reports were ultimately approved by the Board of Directors, but the preparation of them was as I have stated.

Q. And as treasurer, even though you dealt with the financial condition of the company, you had nothing to do with them, and no responsibility?

A. I certainly had no responsibility in connection with them. There may have been occasions when I saw the text, or part of the text, before they were published, with an opportunity to make suggestions, but they were not my responsibility in any way. If somebody asked my advice about a particular part of them, or asked for suggestions in connection with a particular part, but I don't recall specifically what those were, except that I do know that on occasions I would see the text, or part of the text of some of these reports. It was not a regular matter; it was only when somebody wanted to ask me something.

Q. But there was no responsibility on your shoulders as treasurer for any of the content of the report?

A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Wyer, in setting out these periods you made no reference to the period when Alleghany was in control of the Missouri Pacific, did you?

A. The period when Alleghany was in control was included in these three periods which you mentioned.

Q. But you do not break this up into an Alleghany period? A. No.

Q. You admitted on direct examination, I believe, that in 1930 Alleghany took over control of the Missouri Pacific? A. Yes.

Q. And was in control of the Missouri Pacific from that time until bankruptcy? A. Yes.

Q. And that was public knowledge, was it not?

A. I am sure it was.

Q. Alleghany took over control at what time in 1930?

Mr. McDonald: I am going to object to a continuation along this line, for the reason that the question of taking over control involves a conclusion of the witness. There is no showing as to what he means by "control", and we object to it for that reason.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: If the Court please, he testified on page 1006 of the record that in 1931 Alleghany secured control of the Missouri Pacific.

The Court: I know he did, but there was no objection at the time.

Mr. McDonald: I move to strike that answer given by Mr. Wyer on the page referred to, 1006, and also the prior answers given on this line of questioning with reference to control.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Was there any change in the Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific in 1930, Mr. Wyer, at the annual election in 1930? A. Yes.

Q. Who elected directors to the Board of the Missouri Pacific in 1930?

A. The stockholders of the Missouri Pacific.

Q. Who held the majority of stock at that time?

A. Alleghany Corporation.

Q. Who held the majority of stock in 1931?

A. Alleghany Corporation.

Q. In 1932? A. Alleghany.

Q. In 1933? A. Alleghany.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that last question. It is beyond the period we are interested in here—1933.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. How many directors were elected by Alleghany, holding the majority of stock, in May, 1930?

Mr. McDonald: I object to that question.

The Court: Read the question.

(Last previous question read.)

Mr. McDonald: For the reason that there is no testimony that Alleghany elected any directors, but only the stockholders elected the directors.

Mr. Biggs: The witness testified that Alleghany owned the majority of the stock.

The Court: Overruled. He may answer.

A. All of the stockholders who voted at the meeting elected all of the directors elected. I don't think it is possible to say that Alleghany elected certain directors and other stockholders elected other directors. The votes, I think, were the same, or substantially the same, and for all of the directors alike.

Mr. Biggs: Q. So that holders of a minority of stock of the Missouri Pacific voted in the same manner and for the same directors that a holder of the majority of stock of the Missouri Pacific voted for; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Was the same condition correct and true in 1931?

A. Yes.

Q. In 1932? A. Yes.

Q. And these directors elected at the annual meeting of May, 1930, were in full control of the Missouri Pacific for that particular year; is that not true?

Mr. McDonald: Our objection is the same on that as to the other matters of control; also the objection that this is not responsive to any interrogation on direct examination.

The Court: Overruled. He may answer.

A. Well, they performed all the functions of a board of directors and exercised the control that a board of directors—

Mr. Biggs: Q. In the period between elections of the Board, the Board has full control of the corporation, is that correct? A. Yes, I think that is correct.

Q. Mr. Wyer, during this cross examination I would like to establish four, instead of three periods. We will have the first period beginning with the Baldwin improvement period, from 1923 to May, 1930, and from May, 1930, until bankruptcy, we will call it Alleghany period, and from bankruptcy up until the war years we will call that pre-war period, and from then on the war period, for the purpose of this cross examination.

Now, in regard to this exhibit 25, who assembled the figures which you have on this exhibit?

A. Well, this exhibit was originally set up in the office of William Wyer and Company, in Newark, and then was sent to St. Louis for check by the Missouri Pacific accounting department. While that may not be true as to some of the years where we didn't have information in Newark, but the design of the exhibit was set up in Newark, and I am sure that a good many of the figures were filled in there and ultimately it was completed and checked by the Missouri Pacific accounting department in St. Louis.

Q. Did you personally check these figures?

A. I did not personally check these figures, no. One of my partners in the firm in Newark handled the setting up of this information after consultation with me, and I was in consultation with him from time to time as the work proceeded, and supervised the form and stated what information should be secured and how it should be set up, and my partner handled the details of it and handled the checking in St. Louis.

Q. Are you willing to accept the figures as accurate and correct? A. I am.

Q. Now, in regard to this foot-note No. 3, a total of $346,328,978., is that figure the total of investment in road and equipment as of June, 1917, or is that at the end of the year?

A. I am pretty sure that is as of May 31, 1917.

Q. That is as of May 31, 1917? A. Yes.

Q. So that, if we add to that figure the $3,641,939. which you show as net of 1917, we then have as of December 31, 1917, or January 1, 1918, the then total of investment in road and equipment; is that correct?

A. I am sure that you would. I would have to check that. There is an account, or was an account, in the Missouri Pacific investment in road and equipment which had to do with adjustments arising out of the reorganization which was completed for May 31, 1917, and I am not just sure how that account was functioning with respect to these items. I would have to check it; then I could answer your question.

Q. Can you do that now?

A. No, I can't do it right now.

Q. Is your partner here, who prepared that report?

A. Yes.

Q. Would he know the answer? A. He might.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to ask Mr. Wyer to find out that figure from his partner if he can.

The Court: What is there to find out?

Mr. Biggs: This Exhibit No. 25 shows a total of investment in road and equipment, as of June 1, 1917, of $346,328,978.—

The Court: When do you want that?

Mr. Biggs: I think he could do it right this minute. He stated his partner is here, who prepared this.

Mr. McConaughy: He can't do it here; his partner can't do it in this room, Your Honor.

Mr. Biggs: Q. The answer is that you do not know at this present time? A. No, I do not.

Q. Mr. Wyer, taking the figure of $346,328,978. which, according to your Exhibit No. 25, was the investment in road and equipment as of June 1, 1917, and adding to that figure the sum of $242,263,107., can you show me where that total will tie in with corresponding items in the balance sheet of the Missouri Pacific, in 1944?

A. I don't know whether that would tie in or not. The same factors would affect that that affected your question about 1917. The account that I mentioned was opened and charges and credits were being made to it, I think probably up until the bankruptcy, and it might affect any of those years between 1917 and 1933, inclusive. I would have to check it out and see if the addition of those two figures would give the balance carried as of December 31, 1944.

Q. Have you got a balance sheet of 1944 with you?

A. No.

Q. Have you got a balance sheet of 1943 with you?

A. No.

Q. Have you any balance sheet of the company here?

A. No.

Q. I will show you the Annual Report to the stockholders of the Missouri Pacific Railroad for the year 1943: Will you add up for me those two amounts, $346,328,978, plus $242,263,107., which is the net charges, less $8,659,118., which are the net charges for 1944?

A. I get, by performing those calculations, $579,932,967.

Q. Can you show me where that total would tie in with the 1943 annual statement?

A. No; I don't know that it would tie in.

Q. So, if I understand you correctly, this Exhibit No. 25 is merely excerpts taken from the books and records of the Missouri Pacific?

A. This Exhibit 25 is what it says it is. I note this, that the total investment in road and equipment as of December 31, 1943, as shown on this balance sheet is $582,832,790., which is about $2,900,000. higher than the figure I got by performing the calculation which you indicate. Now, there is undoubtedly a very good explanation for that, which can be obtained by checking through the calculation that went into Exhibit 25, but I don't know what it is offhand.

Q. Have you any criticism of my suggested calculation so as to determine the amount invested in road and equipment as of December 31, 1943? A. Yes, I have.

Q. As coming from your Exhibit 25? A. Yes, I have.

Q. All right. I am not an accountant, Mr. Wyer, under any circumstances. How would you arrive at that from your Exhibit 25?

A. I say I don't think you can arrive at it from Exhibit 25.

Q. You can't arrive at it from that exhibit?

A. No, I don't think you can check Exhibit 25 into the balance sheet. I stated one reason why I didn't think you could do it, because there was an account in the balance sheet with which adjustments in road and equipment made subsequent to June 1, 1917, and applying it to transactions prior to June 1, 1917, were taken up, and they were taken up without increasing, as I recall it, without increasing the investment in road and equipment as the figures stood on the books at the same time those adjustments were made in the account. I am not sure how that particular account, or several accounts, whichever you call it, was handled in preparing Exhibit 25, and that may be the explanation of the difference. Also, I do not know whether Exhibit 25 and the balance sheet both contain the Missouri Pacific Railroad Corporation in Nebraska. Sometimes there were different figures for the Missouri Pacific, depending upon whether the Nebraska Corporation was included or not. That is a very small part of the Missouri Pacific, for which there are sometimes separate figures maintained. I have no doubt that any differences such as this $2,900,000. in a total of $580,000,000., or about one-half of one per cent. are explained by some such thing as those two possibilities that I mentioned. It would be a case of making an analysis to see what causes it.

Q. The annual report shows a larger amount in R. and E. than your exhibit does?

A. Yes, it does, except that I repeat that this exhibit may not necessarily check in, or be expected to check in, with the annual report to the stockholders.

Q. I understood from your statement that sometimes the Missouri Pacific of Nebraska is omitted in making those figures that have come out in the annual statement; is that correct?

A. No, I didn't say that. I say that sometimes Missouri Pacific figures omit the Nebraska corporation. I don't know whether that was done in Exhibit 25, or in some years that went into Exhibit 25, or not. There are a number of things of that sort that would have to be checked to see just what caused the difference, but I know that there are things of that sort in the account of the Missouri Pacific and on their general books, which might account for differences of the kind that you have pointed out. I can't tell you exactly what they are, but I have had plenty of experience in checking figures of this sort where this kind of difference exists, and I know that those are two of the factors that have in the past explained such differences. Now, whether they are the factors here or whether there are other factors, I do not know.

Q. So that I can understand you, Mr. Wyer: I can not take the annual statements of the Missouri Pacific and reconcile them with this Exhibit No. 25; is that correct?

Mr. McConaughy: You mean annual report?

A. I don't think you can by yourself, without help from the Missouri Pacific Accounting Department, but I think it can be done with their assistance.

I might say that Exhibit 25 was supposed to reflect the actual expenditures during these respective periods, and you understand that in accounts you are frequently making adjustments that apply to previous periods, or investments that don't represent actual expenditures. I don't know whether or not those are in here, but there are probably a dozen things that might account for this difference and I am quite sure if you are interested it could be checked by the Missouri Pacific Accounting Department and the cause indicated.

Q. But from a layman standpoint, looking at Exhibit 25, or from a Court standpoint, looking at Exhibit 25, is there not only one possible interpretation of Exhibit 25, that if you added this $242,000,000. to $346,000,000. you have a total investment in road and equipment; is not that true—just looking at Exhibit 25 and leaving out all the expert accounting; is that correct?

A. I don't think so, and I think any layman that tried to delve into the intricacies of railroad balance sheets is taking his life in his hands, to start with.

Q. All I am saying is this: This is an exhibit, I am looking at two totals, one of them which you have already testified was the beginning figure, and I am looking at another total which is the total of the net charges to road and equipment: Now, as a layman, is there but one understanding that I can make by looking at those two figures and adding them together, that you have the total investment in road and equipment, that figure would coincide with the published statement of the company as to what the road and equipment investment is; as a layman, is not that true?

A. No, I don't think that follows at all.

Q. Please explain it to me.

A. I have explained it to you in quite a series of answers, but—

Q. Let me see that I understand your explanation.

A. Let me finish my reply.

Q. All right.

A. I don't think there is any more that can be added to the explanation that I have given. I have explained several reasons why they don't check and might not be expected to check, and a layman in dealing with this sort of thing I don't think is justified in making assumptions of the kind that you apparently want a layman to make.

Q. As I understand you, your explanation is that it would take an expert railroad accountant to understand and interpret your Exhibit 25, and that such an expert railroad accountant would understand the difference between your Exhibit 25 and the annual statement of the company. A. No; I haven't made any such statement.

Q. All right.

The Witness: You are talking about reconciling Exhibit 25 with the annual report to the stockholders.

Q. That is right.

A. I am saying that a layman would not expect to be able to do that. I didn't make any statement about a layman not being able to understand Exhibit 25. I think Exhibit 25 is quite clear on its face. I think anybody with reasonable intelligence could understand it, if he reads what I said in connection with it, but when it comes to reconciling that exhibit with a series of annual reports to the stockholders over a period of twenty-seven years, with all the adjustments and intricacies that go into railroad balance sheet accounts, I don't think a layman can expect to understand that and I don't think he ought to expect to understand it, and I don't think a railroad expert accountant could understand it unless he had a chance to check it through with the men who keep the books.

Q. As a result of that explanation, let me see if I understand you: A layman can understand Exhibit 25, and my layman's understanding of the addition of $242,000,000. and $346,000,000. making $588,000,000., or whatever the exact amount is, is the correct layman's interpretation—

The Court: Not a layman's, it is a correct interpretation—

Mr. Biggs: Q. Is a correct interpretation of Exhibit 25, and that total shows the investment in road and equipment of the Missouri Pacific; is that correct? A. No.

Q. If I add those two figures together, the total that I arrive at is not a correct figure showing the investment in road and equipment as of December 31, 1944, is that right?

A. I think that is right. I don't think it would be expected to be.

Q. Is there anything on this exhibit that would indicate to the Court, or is there anything in your direct examination that would indicate to the Court, that such a computation would not show the total investment in road and equipment?

A. I don't think I discussed such a computation in any way in my direct examination, or on the exhibit. I didn't make it on the exhibit. This exhibit merely shows the actual expenditures during this period. It doesn't purport to show what the investment in road and equipment was at the end of the period, or during any of the intervening years.

Q. As I understand you then, Exhibit 25 does not purport to show what the investment in road and equipment was at any time between June, 1927, and to date?

A. No; it simply shows the expenditures that were chargeable to road and equipment during each of the years between those dates.

Q. What do you say the investment is that you—

The Witness: The investment is a total of expenditures, everything that has gone before, and it may include other things besides actual expenditures. You would have to check through the books in order to reconcile the two bases. They may be very close, that is true, but they would not check out to the last dollar, and I don't think they can be expected to.

Q. I think we can agree on this statement, Mr. Wyer, that Exhibit 25 is merely excerpts from the books and records of the Missouri Pacific and it is not a complete statement which can be tied in and reconciled with the annual reports of the company; is that correct?

A. I think that is true. I think that is frequently true of most exhibits that are presented in connection with railroad accounts or figures of one sort and another. You can't possibly state all the books on one exhibit. Every exhibit has to be excerpts.

Mr. Biggs: I move that all that portion of his answer after the statement "That is true" be stricken.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Biggs: Then may we have a recess?

The Court: Announce a five-minute recess.

(After the recess the hearing was resumed as follows:)

Q. Mr. Wyer, what was the long term debt and the outstanding bills or notes payable representing temporary borrowings on December 31, 1922, just before the beginning of the Baldwin period?

A. I don't know that I know that.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question, because it does not specify any corporation or group of corporations.

Mr. Biggs: Missouri Pacific, I am talking about the Missouri Pacific.

A. I don't carry that figure in my head.

Q. Do you know what the same figures were on December 31, 1929, which was just prior to the beginning of what I am denominating as the Alleghany period?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Have you got the 1929 annual report or annual statement? A. No.

Q. I show you the 1929 annual report and ask you what that figure is. (Handing the document to the witness.)

Mr. McDonald: If the Court please, to shorten this, there is a stipulation in the record that all annual reports may be referred to in briefs. It seems useless to take time to cross examine the witness about that.

Mr. Biggs: I am trying to arrive at some figures.

The Court: You are what?

Mr. Biggs: I am trying to get some figures before the Court.

Mr. McDonald: Can't you state the figures from the report? I mean, there is a stipulation in the record on that.

The Court: Couldn't you shorten the time by following that suggestion? If, by stipulation, you can state the figures from the reports.

Mr. Biggs: Frankly, Your Honor, I have not got them exactly. We have been working this thing out. We have not got them down to the last—I have them roughly, only.

The Witness: What was the question, please?

(The preceding questions, following recess, were repeated by the reporter.)

A. The figures for long term debt, as shown in the annual report to stockholders, for December 31, 1929, were $372,195,520.

Q. 372 million?

A. —195,520 dollars. But I would like to point out that that was not just prior to the beginning of the Allegheny period, because the Allegheny period, as you designated it, did not start until May, 1930.

Q. Well, for the purposes of this cross examination, while you are quite correct in your statement that technically it did not start until May, 1930, I am starting it as of January 1st.

Mr. McDonald: Well, I object to his designating a certain period which he has talked of as the Allegheny period, when in the evidence there is no evidence that Allegheny had any interest except as a stockholder, and the witness has stated that the period selected by Mr. Biggs does not even correspond with the period within which Allegheny may or may not have voted its stock. I object to his selecting a period and using the term, Allegheny being a party to this suit.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I have, by testimony of this witness, shown that Allegheny controlled the Missouri Pacific between those periods. If the witness, for the purpose of his testimony, designated certain periods—

The Court: I think you will get a lot of confusion here, referring to periods, and there have been different periods, you have taken different periods from those that have been suggested by him.

Mr. Biggs: I am not bound by their periods, am I?

The Court: We have two or three different Allegheny periods and Baldwin periods, and you better find some other way. It will only add to the confusion.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, then it is going to be necessary every time to set out from 1921 to 1929 and 1929 to 1933, if you want me to do it that way.

The Court: Do it that way. Not apt to be half so confusing as the other.

Q. Well, that was 372 million and some odd dollars, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. That was the long term debt, plus short term debt, I mean of the Missouri Pacific, as of December 31, 1929?

A. Yes. I do not believe there was any short term debt at that particular date.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I asked the witness the same question in regard to December 31, 1922, and he did not have any balance sheet, and was, therefore, unable to answer the question. I have asked Mr. Peet to secure for me the 1922 annual statement, but in the interim period and subject to change, if the annual statement proves my figure incorrect, let us assume during this examination that Mr. Wyer would have testified that the long term debt and short term loans on December 31, 1922 amounted to approximately 253 million dollars.

Mr. McConaughy: Where do you get the figure, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: From my notes.

Mr. McConaughy: I know, but where did you get it, where was it secured from?

Mr. Biggs: From the annual statement.

Mr. McConaughy: Your notes came from the annual statement?

Mr. Biggs: But I did not have the annual statement recently—they have had some late figures—but the annual statement will be here very shortly.

Mr. McConaughy: I just want to know—you feel pretty sure those figures are right?

Mr. Biggs: I think it is right, Mr. McConaughy, and I expect to be able to verify it in the next ten or fifteen minutes. Now, if the Court wishes to adjourn in the interim—

The Court: Adjourn for how long?

Mr. Biggs: There is no need of it, if Your Honor please, unless there is some question about my using that figure.

Mr. McDonald: We have no objection.

The Court: I hoped you would get through this afternoon. It will be a problem now.

Mr. Biggs: I am afraid not, Your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyer, can you tell me what are the gross additions to the property accounts of the Missouri Pacific during the years, 1923 to 1929, inclusive, as shown by your Exhibit No. 25?

A. That will require quite a little calculation here.

(The witness makes a calculation.)

I make it approximately 176 million dollars. That is to the Missouri Pacific, excluding the Nebraska Corporation. I have ascertained during the recess that this Exhibit No. 25 does not include the Nebraska Corporation.

Q. Your Exhibit No. 25 does not include the Nebraska Corporation? A. That is correct.

Q. 176 million dollars, that is the gross additions and betterments?

A. Yes. That is only to investment in road and equipment. Now, you said physical property. Of course, there is other physical property besides that.

Q. That is the gross investment in road and equipment?

A. Which I don't have a record of here.

Q. Gross investment in road and equipment from December 31, 1922 to December 31, 1929, is that correct?

A. That is the increase in investment—no—I will say it this way: that is the gross expenditures chargeable to investment in road and equipment between those two dates.

Q. Now, will that figure of 176 million tie in with the annual reports? A. No.

Q. It won't? Do you have what the annual reports would show for that period?

A. The annual reports don't show any figures for that period, for that item.

Q. Do I understand you that the annual reports do not show what the gross expenditures for road and equipment are? A. I believe that is correct, they do not show it.

Q. What do they show—the net, only?

A. They show the net only, I believe.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Biggs, when you refer to annual reports, you mean the annual reports of Missouri Pacific?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct.

Mr. McConaughy: Railroad Company to stockholders?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct.

Q. All right. Mr. Wyer, what, according to your Exhibit No. 25, would be the net figure for road and equipment during that period?

A. Approximately 142 million dolars would be the net expenditures chargeable to investment in road and equipment during the period in question, for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company, excluding the Nebraska Corporation.

Q. Excluding the Nebraska Corporation. Now, will that figure tie in with the annual reports?

A. Which annual report?

Q. With the annual reports of the Missouri Pacific Railroad? A. Which one?

Q. The reports between 1922 and 1929, inclusive.

A. Annual reports to whom?

Q. The stockholder. A. No, it will not.

Q. Mr. Wyer, you have stated in the court, in your direct examination, that due to your position, first, as Assistant to the Chairman of the Board, Mr. Williams, whose function was the financing of the road, and you have stated that you have attended meetings of the Board, even though you were not a member, stated that you were therefore qualified to give and testify as to what was in the minds of the Directors of the Missouri Pacific in regard to policy and other matters which are now the subject of this inquiry, have you not?

A. I thought my testimony along that line referred to the Directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico. I think probably I was just as well qualified with respect to the Missouri Pacific as I was to the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, but I don't believe I said so in my direct examination.

Q. Also, Mr. Wyer, is it not true that the annual reports of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company to the stockholders, and which are published, public documents, are the principal source of information upon which the general public form its opinion of the railroad's condition, isn't that true?

A. No; I don't believe so. They are an important source, but I don't believe I would call them the principal source.

Q. And does not the public rely upon these reports for the progress and management of the railroad, and as the best evidence of what the management—and are not also these reports the best evidence of what the management wishes to show to the public as to the condition of the railroad and what is in the minds of the management?

A. Would you read the question, please?

Mr. Biggs: I will withdraw that and reframe it. I think it is a little complex.

Q. Aren't these annual reports the best evidence of what the management wishes the public to know?

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a moment. Which annual reports do you refer to?

A. The annual reports of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

The Court: You mean to the stockholders?

Mr. Briggs: To the stockholders.

A. Well, I expect that is so.

Q. And aren't they also—aren't they, therefore, the best evidence of what was in the minds of the Directors at that particular time when they were published?

A. I don't know that that necessarily follows.

Q. If this is so, Mr. Wyer, why does your Exhibit No. 25 not tie in with these annual reports?

A. I have already given you some of the reasons why it may not tie in, one of which, I explained, was the fact that the Nebraska Corporation is included in the annual reports, and the annual reports to the stockholders so state. Exhibit No. 25 is Missouri Pacific Railroad Company only, so states on the top, and does not include the Nebraska Corporation, so I know that we have that one difference there. I don't know offhand of any others, but until I check it out, I would want to reserve judgment on whether with that exception, it would agree. So far as I know, it would agree, with that exception.

Q. I will show you the 1922 annual report, and if you remember, I stated that it was my understanding that the long and short term debt as of December 31, 1922 amounted to approximately 253 million dollars. Is that correct, according to the 1922 annual report of the Missouri Pacific Railroad to the stockholders?

A. This shows the long term debt at that time $253,044,080.

Q. So I was reasonably close to being correct? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us from that 1922 report what was the net investment in road and equipment?

The Court: This is all here. Can't it all be set out in briefs, not have the witness testify to all these things?

Mr. Biggs: I am afraid, Your Honor. (Pause.)

The Witness: Am I waiting for you, or are you waiting for me?

Mr. Biggs: I am waiting for you.

The Witness: The investment in road and equipment, as of December 31, 1922, for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and—I don't find whether this report includes the Nebraska Corporation or not at that time—was $383,270,573.78.

Q. 383 million? A. 270,573 dollars, 78 cents.

Q. Well, we will omit the lower figures. Now, you have testified, according to this Exhibit No. 25, that the gross additions amounted to 165 million—176 million between that period and December 31, 1929? A. Yes.

Q. And you have also testified that there is no way, from an examination of those annual reports, to determine what the gross investment in road and equipment would be, as shown here in the annual report? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell me what the gross amount is? You stated that you can make such a calculation.

A. I said—I had stated that you could not ascertain it from the annual reports.

Q. Oh, you cannot? Excuse me. I did not understand your answer. By taking these annual reports from 1922—I have them all here—can you give me what the total charges, depreciation plus the—can you give me what the total amount of charge-off in regard to from assets of Missouri Pacific were for that period?

Mr. McConaughy: May I have the last question read? I want to make an objection to it, Your Honor.

The Court: Read the question, please.

(The question was repeated by the reporter.)

Mr. McConaughy: I have no objection to that question.

The Witness: I don't understand the question.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, I think it would expedite the matter if, instead of trying to get this information in this form, if we should adjourn now and I would have it all worked out by tomorrow morning.

The Court: Well, it struck me for some time it would expedite it if you would [took] some other method of trying to get it. I had hoped that there was going to be an end today. How long do you think it is going to take then, Mr. Biggs, have you any idea?

Mr. Biggs: I think I can give you—if we can work this thing up and get it in quickly, I don't think it will take so long.

The Court: I don't think anything can be done quickly around here.

Mr. McDonald: It seems to me the thing was solved, Your Honor. I can give the Court the page record on the stipulation. The stipulation took place at the hearing before the Court on the Plan in 1940. That record was made a part of this record on the first day of the hearings in January, and the stipulation provided that any counsel could, in briefs or in arguments, refer to the annual reports of the Missouri Pacific to its stockholders, and I take it that stipulation is still binding.

Mr. Biggs: But this is cross examination of the witness and after developing these facts, I think it would probably be a lot quicker, if I have them and then introduce them, subject to check, rather than do it this way.

The Court: You are asking me to adjourn at this time? It is thirty-five or forty minutes before the usual time of adjournment. How much time are you going to save, do you think?

Mr. Biggs: It would save probably a couple of hours.

The Court: I have other matters. I would like to have some idea when this present hearing is going to end.

Mr. Biggs: Your Honor, I think up to this time I have been very expeditious, so to speak, at least as far as the hearings are concerned. I am perfectly aware that Your Honor was very nice in allowing me this period of time to go over Mr. Wyer's testimony. During the trial of this case, there has been no delay on my part, and I think that is—

Mr. McConaughy: I am not making any complaint.

The Court: No, the Court is trying to get information. I have other matters, and I always like to know how long.

Mr. Biggs: This is a terribly complicated matter.

The Court: Haven't you any idea how many more witnesses you are going to have, or how long it is going to take?

Mr. Biggs: Outside of a very short examination of Mr. Eckert—

Mr. McConaughy: Can't you examine Mr. Eckert now and suspend with Mr. Wyer?

Mr. Biggs: I have been working completely on Wyer's matter.

Mr. McConaughy: So you have to still prepare for Mr. Eckert?

Mr. Biggs: Yes. I don't think that will take any time.

Mr. McConaughy: You are not prepared to examine him now?

The Court: How long is it going to take to finish with Mr. Wyer? An hour, a day, or a week, or what?

Mr. Biggs: I certainly don't think it will take over a day, and I don't believe it will take that long, but I don't want to make any definite commitment.

The Court: I am just trying to get an idea, is all. I am not trying to commit you to anything. There are other matters I want to take up, and I don't know how to arrange. You think it will save time if an adjournment is taken now?

Mr. Biggs: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: Announce an adjournment until ten o'clock.

Mr. Biggs: Would it be all right to adjourn this hearing until 10:30? You usually have other matters on the docket?

The Court: I don't believe we have.

Mr. Biggs: That is all right.

The Court: Have nothing on the docket in the morning except the Frisco Railroad. I don't think that will take five minutes.

Adjourned at 4:25 P. M, March 22, 1945, until 10:00 A. M., March 23, 1945.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on March 23, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M.

Appearances: Same as heretofore noted.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Biggs: This is off the record.

(Mr. Biggs here made a statement to the Court off the record.)

Cross Examination of William Wyer
Resumed by Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Wyer, when the hearing terminated last night I was endeavoring to elicit from you certain factual matters as disclosed by the annual reports which MOP made to its stockholders. Previous to that I had inquired of you as to whether there was any tie in between Exhibit 25 and these annual reports and you had testified there was none. I will call your attention to the fact that these annual reports contain information covering the matters set out in your Exhibit 25, in almost identical form, and that the figures in the annual reports do tie in with the balance sheet.

Will you tell me why you did not make your Exhibit 25 from these easily accessible figures, so that the difficulties I experienced yesterday might have been avoided?

A. As I explained to you yesterday, the annual reports do not show gross expenditures chargeable to additions and betterments to road and equipment, so that your statements on which your question is based are incorrect.

Q. It was developed in the testimony yesterday that from December 31, 1922, to the end of 1929, there had been an increase in the aggregate of long and short term debt, between those dates, of about 120 million dollars, and during the same period there had been an increase of about 176 million dollars in gross additions and betterments. Does the necessity for borrowing 120 million dollars to make additions and betterments of 176 million dollars indicate that the Missouri Pacific was placing so large a debt on these improvements as to make its position perilous in any period of declining earnings?

A. Well, that is a pretty big question. As it turned out, I think the answer was "Yes," but, of course, that was using hindsight instead of foresight. There were a lot of elements that entered into that picture. One of the most important was that in 1917, when the Missouri Pacific was reorganized, its capital structure was such that no additional preferred stock could be issued without the unanimous consent of all preferred stockholders. So the Missouri Pacific, if it was going to expand, had to expand through the contraction of debt. The Missouri Pacific had no choice as to what it did. Obviously, you couldn't get the unanimous consent of preferred stockholders to issue additional stock. So, if the Missouri Pacific was to carry out its program there was only one way to do it.

The people in charge of the Missouri Pacific during this period didn't think that they were imperiling the position, although they made efforts shortly after the period that we were discussing yesterday to try and revise the capital structure in such a way that stock could be issued. Those efforts were not successful, but they, themselves, realized that it would be very desirable to have the increased capitalization represented by some stock.

There is this, also, to be considered: I think it was probably not until—I will say 1928 and 1929, that market conditions would have permitted the sale of preferred stock at par. Now, the Interstate Commerce Commission would not permit railroads to sell stock at less than par, so that when the market conditions didn't permit the sale of stock at less than par, obviously there was no use in trying to work out an arrangement whereby they could finance with the sale of stock. I think it was not until 1928, or possibly 1929, that the Missouri Pacific would have been in a position, based on the market price of its preferred stock, to finance through the sale of stock. So, really, except for one relatively brief period of perhaps a couple of years—I would have to refer to the record to see just how long it was, but I think probably two years was the approximate length of the period—the Missouri Pacific didn't have any choice, and when they did have a choice as far as market conditions were concerned then it was confronted with the restrictions of this capital setup and attempts were made to change those restrictions, without success.

Of course, this 120 million that you talk about, from 1922 to 1929, this alone was not what put the Missouri Pacific in bankruptcy, as far as the size of its debt was concerned. There were substantial increases after 1929 and it was the accumulated effect of all of them. But I think that gives you about as good a summary of the financial proposition that the management of the Missouri Pacific was up against during those years as can be given.

There is one more factor I should mention and that is that the dividends and preferred stock were cumulative beginning with June 1, 1917, so that as it got up, say 1929, you had about fifty dollars a share accumulated back dividends on preferred stock, and that was an added obstacle, and a very serious one, to resetting the capital structure so that financing could be performed with stock.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Wyer, that prior to 1929 the Missouri Pacific couldn't have sold any additional preferred stock at par, even if there was no restriction against such a sale?

A. I think that that is probably true. I would want to check the markets to see just when it would have become possible to sell preferred stock at par, but I think it is very probable that that point wasn't reached until late 1928, or sometime in 1929.

Q. As I understand it from your statement, there had not been any payment of dividends on the preferred stock outstanding until 1928?

A. I didn't say so, but that is correct.

Q. I thought you said so.

A. Of course, I would like to explain there, to show how these things interlace with each other, the very fact that the Missouri Pacific was not paying any dividends on its preferred stock from 1917 to 1928, or until the end of 1928, permitted these back dividends to accumulate on the preferred and made the job of financing with the preferred when the opportunity came just that much more difficult. They took the money and put it back in the property during that period, but at the same time that fact made their financing job much more difficult by doing that, when the opportunity to finance with stock presented itself, as far as the market was concerned.

Q. During this same period there were charges to retirement of about thirty million dollars: Will you tell me if I am correct in understanding that these retirement charges occurred because inadequate depreciation has not been charged to operations in preceding years?

Mr. McConaughy: That is objected to. It is not proper cross examination. There is nothing on direct examination that bore at all on depreciation. Your Honor will recall that there is a part of the objections here that asserts something about depreciation policies being improper, and in their case they made no point about depreciation policies whatever, and I think it is improper to drag it in here through cross examination. It is too late to raise the point.

Mr. Biggs: One of the points in this case is the dire need of the Missouri Pacific for income and this is part of the preliminaries—

Mr. McConaughy: That was a part of his affirmative case. If he passed up the opportunity to prove it then it is too late to do it now on cross examination.

The Court: Read the question.

(Last previous question read to the Court.)

The Court: He may answer.

A. Are we talking about the period December 31, 1922 to December 31, 1929?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct.

A. What retirements are we talking about?

Q. Thirty million. A. I know, but what property?

Q. As shown by the books of the company during that period.

A. That is too indefinite. I want to know what property you have in mind. I don't know that the books show retirements of thirty million. I haven't anything to identify the kind of property you are talking about.

Q. I will be glad to give you the annual reports during that period, and ask you what the gross retirement of property during that period amounted to.

A. Are you talking about all property retired during that period?

Q. That is correct.

A. Without limiting it to one particular kind of property?

Q. That is right.

A. I don't understand that part of your question which asks if this indicates inadequate depreciation had not been charged. What do you mean by that?

Q. There was a depreciation reserve set up on the books of the company, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And if that depreciation reserve is adequate, when a box car is retired because of a wreck, or for any other reason, obsolescence or any other reason, the value of that box car, on the books of the company, at that particular time is charged against that depreciation reserve, is not that true?

A. No, that has not anything to do with the adequacy of the depreciation charge. The box car may have been destroyed after it had only been in operation two years and the charge to the depreciation reserve might not have been enough to cover the retirement of that car. Obviously, it would not have been, but nobody can say the depreciation reserve was not adequate. It was adequate as far as anybody could foresee, and just the mere fact that when a car is retired the depreciation reserve doesn't have enough in it to cover depends on a lot of things, and it doesn't necessarily indicate that the reserve is not adequate.

Q. Let us take a proposition of a car that is forty years old, the same example for the car that is forty years old.

A. The mere fact that a car is forty years old doesn't even then imply that the reserve is necessarily inadequate.

Q. I understand that you are unable—you do not understand the question; is that correct?

A. I don't understand what you mean by asking whether this indicates that inadequate depreciation has not been charged. It seems to me that the terms are not consistent, they conflict with each other. I don't know how you can fail to charge inadequate depreciation. I don't understand what you mean.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Wyer, that if the charges to retirement are in a very substantial amount, that that would indicate that the depreciation reserve was inadequate?

A. No, not at all.

Q. It wouldn't indicate that fact at all? A. Not at all.

Q. So that that is all I have asked you in this question.

A. That was not your original question. I can answer the last question, but I can't answer the first one.

Q. Now, during this same period there were charges to retirement of about thirty million dollars: Will you tell me if I am correct in understanding that these retirement charges occurred because inadequate depreciation had not been charged to operations in the preceding period?

A. I don't understand the question and I can't answer it until I understand it.

Q. Am I correct in understanding from your statement that there is no relation between charges to retirement and depreciation reserve?

A. No; the only thing you can understand from my statement is that you have asked an unintelligible question.

Q. What is the relation, then, between charges to retirement and depreciation reserve?

A. Well, the relation is this, generally speaking, that one is a substitute for the other. You can have your accounting on such a basis that all of your retirements are covered by depreciation, or you can have it on the basis that your retirements are covered partly by depreciation and partly by retirement charges.

Now, the Interstate Commerce Commission has permitted railroads for many years to operate on a combination of retirement and depreciation charges, to account for their retirement of property, and consequently the railroads have no way, except through retirement charges, of accounting for their retirement of property. It is accepted by the Interstate Commerce Commission and it is so provided in the accounting regulations.

Q. Do I understand, then, from your answer that it was the policy of the Missouri Pacific during that period to take care of retirements partially by setting up depreciation reserve and partially by charges to retirements?

A. That is correct. That was the only way that was possible under the Interstate Commerce Commission regulations. All railroads did that during this period.

Q. You did not try to take care of your retirements solely through depreciation reserve?

A. Of course not; that would have been impossible under Interstate Commerce Commission regulations. We would have been violating the instructions of the Commission if we tried to do that.

Q. And you did not try to set up what you would consider an adequate depreciation reserve to take care of all retirements?

A. I didn't say that. We set up what we thought was entirely adequate depreciation reserve, in so far as we were permitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Interstate Commerce Commission requirements do not permit a railroad, or did not at that time, permit a railroad to cover all of its retirements through depreciation.

Q. So, as I understand you, Mr. Wyer, you were not permitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission to set up an adequate depreciation reserve for retirements?

A. No, I never said that. The Interstate Commerce Commission permitted and required you to set up certain depreciation charges. The rates charged were approved by the Commission, and they were approved as the result of detailed studies submitted by the railroads to the Commission, and the Commission analyzed those studies and either approved the rates recommended or suggested other rates. Both the railroads and the Commission always felt that the rates were adequate. That was the reason for devoting such great attention to the matter, but it was not the intention of the Commission that all of the railroad retirements would be covered by its depreciation reserve. It was the intention that some of the retirements would be covered through the reserve and other retirements would be covered through retirement charges, and we felt the combination was adequate to take care of everything. The depreciation was adequate for the retirements that were to be taken care of in the depreciation and the retirement charges were adequate as to retirements which would be taken care of through retirement charges. The combination of the two was adequate for retirement of all property. So, there is no question of inadequacy involved in that policy.

Q. Am I correct in understanding that the usual justification for taking care of retirements, both out of depreciation reserve and out of charges to retirement is that if the charge, when it become inevitable because the property has actually been retired, were made against earnings in the year of the retirement, earnings for that year would be distorted, and is it not equally true to say that these charges indicate the extent to which earnings have been distorted in the preceding years?

A. I don't believe I understand it. It seems like a pretty confused question to me.

Q. Well, Mr. Wyer, you do not understand the question?

A. I don't think I do.

Q. I will state a simple illustration: Here is X company that sets up a depreciation reserve of ten thousand dollars in 1920, 1921, and 1922, which makes a total for the three years of thirty thousand dollars. In 1922, as the result of [absolescence], it has to charge off equipment of sixty thousand dollars, and let us assume that this particular kind of equipment became [absolescent] as the result of use during that three-year period: Would you not say that the earnings of this X company had been distorted in the year 1920? A. Is X company a common carrier?

Q. I don't care whether it is a common carrier or manufacturing corporation, or whatever it is.

A. Then I can not answer your question, because the companies operate under different accounting systems, and common carriers have their accounting regulated by governmental bodies. I have got to know a good deal more about X company and its past history and its equipment and character of its operation than is covered in your question.

Q. You are not an expert accountant?

A. I never held myself out to be.

Q. You are testifying in this case as an expert accountant? A. I haven't said so.

The Court: He disclaimed that yesterday.

Mr. Briggs: He disclaimed he had any formal knowledge of accounting.

Q. You are unable to answer that question?

A. Not on such an indefinite basis.

Q. On the information submitted to you? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see any estimates during the years 1923 to 1929 of the amount of the concealed obsolescence of the Missouri Pacific, that had not been covered either by depreciation or direct charges to retirement?

The Court: Read the question, please.

(Last previous question read.)

Mr. Biggs: I think that question ought to be reframed.

Mr. McConaughy: I think so.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Did you ever see any estimates, during the 1923-1929 period, of the amount of concealed obsolescence of Missouri Pacific, that had not been covered either by depreciation or direct charges to retirement?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question. There has been no proof of any concealed obsolescence.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: This man is thoroughly familiar with the Missouri Pacific and in a position to know if there was any.

The Court: You did not ask him that.

Read the question.

(Last previous question read.)

Mr. Biggs: Your ruling stands?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Biggs: Q. During the 1923-1929 period was there any concealed obsolescence that had not been covered either by depreciation or direct charges to retirement?

A. I do not believe so.

Q. During the 1930 to 1932 period, the same question?

A. I do not know of any during that period, either.

Q. During the period subsequent to 1932 to date?

A. No, I don't know of any.

Q. You know of none? A. I do not.

Q. There is no way, is there, Mr. Wyer, in which charges to surplus can be made in any one year in excess of earnings of that year, without reducing the surplus? A. Yes.

Q. Will you explain?

A. You also have credits that are made to surplus, that don't come from earnings. In fact, if you had any credits at all which were to be made to the surplus during a given year the charges to surplus in excess of earnings would not reduce the surplus to the extent that they were offset by the credits that did not arise from earnings.

Q. Let us assume there were no credits—

A. If there were no credits except earnings, obviously any charges in excess of earnings would reduce the surplus.

Q. Is it not true that when a management is anxious to show earnings, or to pay dividends, it becomes more reluctant to make these adjustments no matter how necessary they really may be?

A. What adjustments are you talking about?

Q. Charges to surplus.

A. No, I don't think that is a fact at all.

Q. That is not a fact?

A. No; I think it would be just the opposite. If a management had charges to make they would much rather make them to surplus, under those circumstances, than run them through earnings.

Q. Your Exhibit 25 does not contain any information covering the company's income account and you made, so far as I remember, only one allusion to earnings in the course of your testimony described as background, and that was a parenthetical statement to the general effect that money had been ploughed back into the property during the period in which dividends were not being paid. Is it not correct to state that during the 1923-1929 period dividends amounting to $6,559,234. were paid to preferred stockholders? A. What company are you talking about?

Q. Missouri Pacific.

A. And the period is 1923 to 1929, inclusive?

Q. That is right.

A. And the amount about six and a half million?

Q. I am not asking about the cents part of it; six and a half million.

A. Well, that might be a little high, but it would not be far off from that. Dividends paid in 1928 and 1929—I think that came pretty close to that probably, and that may be a high figure.

Q. Your dividend for one year was about $3,750,000?

A. $3,500,000. was the regular dividend for one year. The dividends started in the last quarter of 1928, and there was also an extra dividend of one and a half per cent. paid in 1928. I don't believe the extra was paid in 1929. I am not certain of that.

Q. But I am pretty close to accurate in stating—would you care to check that?

A. No, that is close enough; it is not far off.

Q. I am not trying to tie you down to anything but round figures, Mr. Wyer. A. That is close enough.

Q. I have made a round figure calculation of the net income transferred to surplus during the 1923-1929 period, and it appeared to be approximately 49 million dollars. During the same period there were direct charges to surplus amounting to about $14,500,000. This leaves a balance of about $34,500,000. Taking out the $6,500,000. of dividends there was really just about enough to offset the retirement charges in your schedule for that period?

Mr. McConaughy: Which schedule do you specify?

Mr. Biggs: 25.

A. What is the question?

Mr. Biggs: Q. Is that approximately correct?

A. No. In the first place, the retirement charges that you are talking about didn't require offsetting. They were either made to surplus and included in the 14 million dollars that you mentioned—I am now accepting your figures without checking them—or they were charged to operating expenses and had already been deducted. Before determining the earnings which are credited to surplus there are retirement charges that require offsetting but they have already been offset before arriving at the final figures. In addition, your figures don't say anything of miscellaneous credits to surplus during the period. They would be properly included in the calculation. You mentioned fourteen million miscellaneous charges, but there were also miscellaneous credits on the other side of the surplus account, that you haven't said anything about.

Q. Assuming that these retirement charges are not included in the $14,500,000. which are direct charges to surplus, then, as I understand from your answer, I am in error in an amount equal to the credits to surplus during that period?

A. If you want to assume something that is not so, that is correct, but I told you definitely that these retirements are included either in the fourteen million you mentioned or in operating expenses, and in either case they are offset and don't require offsetting at the time we get to the calculation which you are making.

Q. Do I understand from you that part of this thirty million shown in your Exhibit 25 is contained in direct charges to surplus? A. Yes; I have no doubt of it.

Q. Is there any way for you to tell me how much of that thirty million would be in that?

A. Not offhand. I can determine. During this period—I think during all of this period, although I would want to check that to be absolutely certain, retirements were, under the accounting specifications of the Commission, charged partly to operating expenses and partly to surplus or profit and loss, depending upon the character of the retirement. So, undoubtedly, some of that thirty million was included in the fourteen million of charges to surplus or profit and loss during this period.

Q. During the noon recess would you be able to find out for me how much would be included in this $14,500,000. charges to surplus and how much the credit to surplus amounted to during this 1923-1929 period?

Mr. McConaughy: I think Mr. Biggs ought to explain to the Court what he wants that information for. I am at a loss to understand what this is getting at. It doesn't seem to me to be pertinent or proper cross-examination at all.

The Court: What is the purpose, Mr. Biggs, of this?

Mr. Biggs: The purpose of pursuing this line of investigation is this, Your Honor: It is part of the painting of this picture of the financial need of the Missouri Pacific. In effect, this line of questions shows there was no income—I mean by "No income" practically no income, after taking care of dividends during this period.

Mr. McDonald: Assuming that to be the purpose of the evidence, we submit the schedule he is now asking Mr. Wyer to produce during the noon hour would not tend to indicate that. Mr. Wyer has testified that certain amounts were charged either to current operation or to profit and loss or surplus, that the entire amount, whatever it may have been, was so charged, and I think the testimony shows that after said charges there was a certain surplus left on the books. The proportion which was charged one way or the other would not tend to indicate what Mr. Biggs says he hopes to prove. We therefore object to it.

Mr. Biggs: I have stated what seems to my layman's mind a very simple proposition. We have taken the net income for the period at a starting date. We then determine how much were the charges to surplus. Mr. Wyer is proper in saying that if there were any credits to surplus that they should be deducted from the charges. I was in error in not putting that in this testimony; I am perfectly willing to admit that. But whatever was the net charge to surplus is a deduction from the net income.

Then let us, for the purpose of illustration, assume that my statement about the $14,500,000. is the net charges to surplus after credits. You would then have an income of $34,500,000. to pay a six and a half million dollar dividend.

After that there would be a net income for the company of some twenty-eight million dollars. Now, if the charges to retirement, not included in any charges to surplus—

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I want to interrupt just one second.

(To the witness) How long will it take to get what Mr. Biggs is asking for?

The Witness: The credits could probably be gotten during the noon hour. I don't know whether the amount of retirements charged to surplus could be determined during that period or not.

Mr. Biggs: I am not asking for the last cent; you can leave out everything under a thousand dollars.

The Witness: It doesn't matter what you leave out.

Mr. Biggs: I want to make it a round figure proposition; I am not asking for detailed exactitude.

Mr. McDonald: Our reaction from our standpoint, is that on Mr. Biggs' own statement—he is attacking this, with all due deference, with a layman's mind, but I submit, any accountant would tell the Court that on his own statement he has so confused figures of net income with other figures that I don't see how any accountant could meet his request. We object for that reason.

Mr. Biggs: With all due deference to Your Honor, I assume that you are a layman as far as accounting is concerned, and I am trying to work out a simple picture of this situation, and if I can understand that, I am certain then that Your Honor can.

Mr. McConaughy: May we have Mr. Biggs state again just what he wants, and I would like to ask Mr. Wyer how long it will take to get it.

Please state again what you want, Mr. Biggs.

Mr. Biggs: I want the amount of credits to surplus.

Mr. McConaughy: During what period?

Mr. Biggs: 1923 to 1929.

The Court: You want the amount of what?

Mr. Biggs: Credits to surplus, and if any of these thirty million dollar charges to retirement are contained in the $14,500,000. charges to surplus I would like to know how much.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you understand what he wants?

The Witness: I understand what he wants.

Mr. McConaughy: How long do you think it would take you to get that; is it a simple matter, or have you got to go to a lot of trouble?

The Witness: It is a simple matter to get the first part of it, credits to surplus. I think that could be gotten in fifteen minutes. I don't know whether the retirements can be separated between those charged to surplus and those charged to operating expenses in the noon recess. I couldn't answer that. I might say that as far as I can see it doesn't matter how they are separated between operating expenses and surplus, because in any event they are covered one way or the other in the net figure that Mr. Biggs is arriving at, so I don't see that the separation means anything—the computation of credits and arrangement of credits is a part of the picture that Mr. Biggs is trying to draw and that can be easily gotten.

Mr. Biggs: What I want to show by this interrogation is that approximately the income after these various deductions was the same as the retirement shown by Mr. Wyer's Exhibit 25.

Mr. McConaughy: Can you answer that question in an approximate way?

The Witness: Yes, I can say that he can not possibly show it.

Mr. McConaughy: Why doesn't that dispose of it, Your Honor? All we will get is the detail.

The Witness: I can say further, it doesn't matter whether you retire one million dollars or fourteen and charge it to surplus, it doesn't affect the figure that Mr. Biggs is trying to arrive at one particle.

Mr. McConaughy: I move that Mr. Biggs' request for that information be denied. It will only give the detail of what Mr. Wyer has already answered, and I think it is perfectly plain.

Mr. Biggs: It is not perfectly plain to my layman's mind, Your Honor. I do not see why it is not very pertinent to this case when one of the fundamentals is the financial need of the Missouri Pacific, to show that during a certain period they had a blank amount of retirements, or as shown by Mr. Wyer's exhibit, that they had thirty million and that the income of the company, after all charges to the surplus and after dividends paid, amounted to approximately that figure, because if that is in evidence and that is shown then it does perfectly illustrate that as a result of this period all the Missouri Pacific did was to earn dividends for its preferred stockholders of six and a half million dollars, and earn a sufficient amount to take care of retirement.

Mr. McConaughy: I ask Mr. Wyer if that will be shown.

The Witness: No, that can not be shown by the figures that Mr. Biggs has requested. In fact, it will quite certainly show just the reverse.

I tried to explain this two or three times, Your Honor, that this thirty million retirement that Mr. Biggs has been talking about has all been charged out on the books. Part of it was charged out in operating expenses. So, it was already taken care of when the net income was arrived at. You understand if it was not charged out in operating expenses, it was charged out in this fourteen million surplus which Mr. Biggs says was charged during this period. So, in one way or another it was all charged out and, of course, before the net figure which Mr. Biggs is arriving at. Now, if it had not been charged out and still remained to be taken care of then this net figure which Mr. Biggs is going to arrive at would have been thirty million dollars higher. So, the only part of Mr. Biggs' request that seems to me to have a bearing on the answer that he is trying to get is the credits to surplus that he didn't take into account. Now, that can be gotten easily. The other if you get it doesn't mean anything, because it only tells what credits were taken care of, but they have been taken care of one way or the other and they can't be taken twice.

Mr. McConaughy: After you get that information Mr. Biggs won't be able to use it in the manner he is trying to do now?

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. Biggs: You have stated—this is off the record.

Mr. McConaughy: I would like to have this on the record.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Biggs: Q. You stated that the first is easy to get, about credits to surplus? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please examine, and if it is reasonably easy to determine the other parts I requested, will you please secure them during the noon hour?

I will consider this question again and I may coincide with Mr. McConaughy's opinion, or may not. I don't want to make a statement at this time, and the Court can reserve its ruling until this afternoon.

Is that satisfactory?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to asking Mr. Wyer to go to a great deal of trouble to get that breakdown of these figures when Mr. Wyer has already given the approximate answer.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: That is, the exact dollars and cents amount is immaterial, it seems to me.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: That part of the request that pertains to credits I understand Mr. Wyer can get very easily.

(To the witness) And will you?

The Witness: Yes, and I think that is pertinent to what Mr. Biggs is asking. I will try to get that for him.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Your next four exhibits, 26, 27, 28 and 29, show what you describe as cycles of financing. Only two of these took place in the 1923-1929 period. Is it not true that other pieces of financing occurred during that period?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Wyer, will you tell me more about these operations and explain how the various roads in the Missouri Pacific system so arranged their offering as to supply almost continual additions of public money to the roads comprising the System?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question if Your Honor please, as it presumes a lot of things—

The Court: Read the question.

(Last previous question read.)

Mr. McConaughy: There is no proof in the record as to continual additions of public money.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Do you approve a policy of inter-company lending, regardless of the legal relationship between various companies involved, arising out of the chain of ownership between them?

A. I wouldn't think I would approve an unrestricted policy of that sort, no.

Q. To take a specific example, I note in Exhibit 26 that MOP obtained a loan from I.-G. N. in the amount of $750,000.: Had I.-G. N. done financing before this so that it was in a position financially to help out its corporate grand-father when the grand-father needed money?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question; it doesn't seem to be pertinent. It is going out into some relationship with the I.-G. N., which seems not to bear on the issues here.

Mr. Biggs: The exhibit shows a loan from the I.-G. N. to the Missouri Pacific. I want to find out if the I.-G. N.—

The Court: I want to hear you.

Mr. Biggs: I want to find out if the I.-G. N. was able to make that loan because it had just previously floated a bond issue or made independent financing.

Mr. McConaughy: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: He may answer.

(Last previous question read to the witness.)

A. I don't know whether the I.-G. N. had done any financing immediately before this or not. I don't know about any short term financing which the I.-G. N. had done. I don't know just when they sold their last bonds, but I don't know of any short term financing, and if they sold their last bonds those bonds—in fact, all of the I.-G. N. bond issues sold during this period were to reimburse the treasury for capital improvements or to provide for further capital improvements, so that if they had had any money to loan to the Missouri Pacific it must have been part of their regular working fund, but I don't have the details of the I.-G. N. situation in mind right at this time.

Mr. Biggs: Assume that this loan from the I.-G. N. to the Missouri Pacific was in March, 1928. A. Yes.

Q. Let us assume that the I.-G. N. a short time prior thereto put out a bond issue and had some excess funds on hand as the result thereof—

Mr. McConaughy: Are you laying a foundation for a request for his opinion?

Mr. Biggs: That is right.

A. What is the question?

(Last previous question read to the witness.)

Q. (Continuing) —would you approve the loaning of these funds to the Missouri Pacific, who stood in the relation to the I.-G. N. of grand-father and child?

A. Well, I might have in this particular instance, although I think as a general policy I don't like to see subsidiaries loaning money to parents.

Q. Do you approve the borrowing of money by MOP on its own hospital fund?

A. Of course, that depends upon the circumstances at the moment. As I say, I don't recall exactly what they were on the I.-G. N. It does do this, it gives the subsidiary income on the surplus fund that it may be able to loan for a short period of time, and if the financial position of the parent is perfectly sound at the time and it appears there is no chance of the subsidiary not being promptly repaid, it is an advantage to the subsidiary to get the income from this surplus fund. Certainly I think in 1928 there was no indication that the MOP was not in a position to repay these advances. Now, I say it may be justified in special circumstances, although I can think of other circumstances where I would not approve a subsidiary loaning money to a parent.

Q. I note that in August, 1928, MOP borrowed from N. O. T. & M., and in Exhibit 27 I notice similar borrowings from the Texas and Pacific: Do you make any distinction between the borrowing from N. O. T. & M. and the borrowing from Texas and Pacific?

A. Not basically. They were both controlled subsidiaries. Neither one was one hundred per cent. owned. There was this difference, that the Texas and Pacific had a separate president and was somewhat more independent in its management than the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, in that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico had substantially the same officers as the Missouri Pacific, while the Texas and Pacific had largely different officers; not entirely, but largely so.

Q. Could MOP have borrowed money in the same way from the Pennsylvania and New York Central, for example? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyer, we come to the next three-year period, 1930, 1932, inclusive. The gross additions and betterments to the property in this period appeared to be approximately $39,500,000. and the retirement amount approximately $17,000,000. Now, taking your Exhibit No. 28 we learn that against these gross additions of $39,500,000. Missouri Pacific issued bonds of $43,000,000. in 1930 and 1931, this figure being arrived at by taking the total of bonds sold during the period, to-wit, eighty-six million, and subtracting the sum of forty-three million dollars used to retire underlying bonds. Turning now, Mr. Wyer—wait a minute: Is that a correct statement, Mr. Wyer? A. No.

Q. You understand that I am only using round figures now?

A. Yes, but you made a wholly improper calculation in the course of your statement. Bonds issued during any given period hardly ever apply to additions and betterments made during that period. In fact, they almost invariably apply to additions and betterments made prior to the issue of the bonds. The Interstate Commerce Commission's policy with respect of approving capital issues permit their issue against any capitalizable asset, regardless of the date when made, that is, for example, if Missouri Pacific had capitalizable expenditures, or capitalizable assets on hand. Even back in 1920 you will see that the Missouri Pacific had capitalizable expenditures which were a proper basis for the bond issue in 1932. There was an issue sold early in 1932—no, 1931. So that the bonds issued during that particular period can not be properly matched up against the capital improvements made during that same period, because the Commission's policies don't work that way.

Q. And it is entirely justified from a business standpoint?

A. Yes, I think so. It simply means that if you have put fat on your bones during the period when you have some fat to put there you could draw on that reserve when you need it. Otherwise, you would have had to borrow the money and pay unnecessary interest charges on it in the meantime, in order to be sure you had the money on hand when you needed it. I think it is highly justified.

Q. Turning, Mr. Wyer, to the operating income for the same three years, is it not true that for that period—

Mr. McConaughy: What exhibit do you refer to now, operating income for the same three years?

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Wyer, that the operating income for the same three years resulted in a net loss from operations charged to surplus, amounting to two million dollars, approximately?

A. I haven't checked the figures. There was a pretty good income in 1930 and a small income in 1931, and a deficit in 1932. I don't know what the net result would be.

The Court: Announce a five-minute recess.

(After the recess the hearing was resumed as follows.)

Q. Mr. Wyer, you made particular point in your direct examination that the Interstate Commerce Commission was kept fully informed as to the additions and betterments which you had made, so that when you wished to get a new issue of bonds authorized by the Commission, the facts could be immediately at hand. Is it not true, in connection with the financing of the Series I bonds, that the Commission was so doubtful as to whether you had sufficient assets to cover that portion of the bonds not used to retire the underlying Iron Mountain bonds, that they actually imposed a restriction on the use of a part of the proceeds and would not allow you to use the money until they had looked into the matter further?

A. That was not true as to all of the proceeds outside of that used to acquire the Iron Mountain.

Q. I said a part of the proceeds.

A. No. I think your question said that they were so doubtful as to all of the items outside of the retirement. That restriction only applied to part of the items outside of the retirement. There was one section of the capitalizeable expenditures aggregating some ten million dollars, upon which they asked for further information. I don't think they were doubtful about it. I think the information furnished simply did not meet their formal requirements, and as soon as we furnished the additional information required, they released it. I think it was just a case of meeting their formal requirements, and ordinarily they probably would have waited to release the whole issue until these formal requirements had been met, but in view of the maturity and our need of the money to meet the maturity, it released enough to meet the maturity plus, I think, some eight million dollars more, which they were ready to release, and as to the remaining approximately ten million, waited until we had met their formal requirements. I think it was only a case of a few days involved in the delay to the remaining ten million.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Wyer, in a period such as this 1930 to 1932 period, that so long as it was the policy of management to pay dividends, every cent of either real or apparent income was of a vital importance in supporting a continuance of this policy?

The Witness: Would you read that question, please?

(The question was repeated by the reporter.)

Mr. McDonald: We object to that question, Your Honor, because it is—in short, it is neither fish nor fowl: it is an attempt to frame a hypothetical question in such a misleading way that it will later be made the basis of a contention that Mr. Wyer has made a positive statement about something that happened during a period which is merely used as illustrative. We object to it because it is vague and misleading, is not based on anything in the record, is not in response to any direct examination.

The Court: Read the question.

(The question was again repeated by the reporter.)

The Court: He may answer.

A. Well, I am not sure just what your distinction is between real or apparent income. I have never seen a time in the railroad business when every cent of income that you could get was not important. That is what every railroad strives for, and what every railroad executive strives for is to produce the greatest income out of the property under his control consistent with what he believes to be safe operation and good service to the public, and having in mind the best interest of the property as a whole. I have never seen a time when income was not important.

Q. Do you want my definition of apparent income? Would that help you out?

A. Well, if that is a factor in this question, if you have got some distinction in mind between real and apparent income that I do not understand, why, I would be glad to hear it.

Q. Well, I mean, as an illustration, when we state apparent income, here is a locomotive that is put on a siding somewhere, and on account of its obsolescence cannot be used for hauling a freight train between Texarkana and Little Rock or any other place on the system, and, however, it appears on the books at $150,000. Now, if that locomotive is charged off during the year, there is a decrease in the income of $150,000; if it is left on the books, then the income is increased by $150,000, and that is what I mean by apparent income.

A. Well, in the first place, I don't think much of your example, because an obsolescent locomotive could not possibly be carried on anybody's books at $150,000.

Q. Well, $50,000, I will put it.

A. Assuming that you might have a locomotive that would be carried on the books at whatever was the proper figure, and if it were retired and there would be a retirement chargeable to operating expenses in connection with the retirement, I don't think that would be of sufficient importance to be governed by what the policy might be with respect to dividends at the moment.

Another thing that every Board of Directors takes into account in connection with the continuance or the discontinuance of the dividend policy is the cash position of the company, and the kind of transaction you are talking about would not affect the cash position very much; as a matter of fact, it would probably improve the cash position, because you have realized the salvage from the locomotive, and the retirement would, therefore, perhaps decrease the report of net income but improve the cash position, and those two things offset each other, as far as their repercussion on a dividend policy is concerned. I do not see that that would be a factor.

Q. In this connection, I note that you received copies of certain memorandums attached to Mr. Eckert's exhibits, specifically, Group Exhibits 7, 8, 9, at least that many. There may be more there (handing some documents to the witness), but one of them is enough for the purpose of my question.

A. Do you mean I did receive them at the time the letters were written?

Q. That is correct. A. Back in 1931?

Q. Yes. A. That is what these exhibits show.

Q. They indicate that. And these exhibits indicate that remittances from NOTM to MOP were allocated between interest and principal, do they not? A. Yes.

Q. And I also believe it is a fact that in 1931 was the first time that in any of these remittances, there had been allocations to interest.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to the line of questioning about the advances, because Mr. Wyer was not asked anything about that on direct examination.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Were you interested, Mr. Wyer, in 1931, in knowing that every means was being availed of, to increase the reported earnings of MOP?

A. No. I don't think we were ever interested in the kind of procedure that is suggested by your question.

Q. Is it not true that the handling of the transaction as shown on those exhibits was started by an official of MOP giving instructions to an official of NOTM?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to that again. It is not a part of—

The Court: It will be sustained.

Q. As you have included the figures since 1933 in Exhibit No. 25, I will ask you two questions with respect to the pre-war and war periods. From Exhibit No. 25, it appears that the gross addition to property, 1933 to 1939, amounted to 44 million. During the same period, retirements amounted to approximately 39 million. Does not the extent of the retirements in this period, which averaged annually more than the average annual retirements in the two preceding periods which we have discussed, indicate that there was a much larger amount of concealed obsolescence prior to 1933 than had been reflected in the pre-bankruptcy reports? A. No, I don't see any connection.

Q. Don't see any connection? A. No.

Q. Taking the period, 1940 to 1944, gross additions amounted to 52 million, and gross retirements amounted to 15 million. Does not this show that the condition of the assets at present is sounder, so far as their capacity to produce earnings is concerned, than at any time since 1917?

A. Well, I think that has been true. The Missouri Pacific, right along ever since 1923, it has been a constantly improved property, year by year, so that I think today it is probably, physically at least and insofar as possession of facilities is concerned, is in better condition than at any time in the past twenty-two years. That does not necessarily mean earning capacity, because earning capacity depends upon rates—freight rates and passenger fares, wage rates and taxes, and a good many other things, and you might have the finest physical property in the world, but if it was not able to collect the freight rates necessary to enable it to maintain itself and operate itself and make a profit on the volume of business that was offered to it to handle, the physical condition would not be very important to you.

I am not saying that the Missouri Pacific is not in a good position, because it is, but, of course, recent Missouri Pacific earnings which have been so high are, to a considerable extent, the result of the great volume of business that it is handling.

Now, of course, Missouri Pacific has been able to handle this tremendous business during the war because of the great improvement program that has been put on this property from 1923 to 1930, especially. That undoubtedly was the major factor in permitting the Missouri Pacific to take such an important part in the war and handling this tremendous volume of business, and with the result of the big war time earnings, but whether the Missouri Pacific post-war earning capacity, even considering its present physical plant, is going to be high, or low, or moderate, depends upon factors that I don't think can be foreseen at this time.

Mr. Biggs: That is all at this time, Your Honor.

Mr. McConaughy: Are you through with Mr. Wyer?

Mr. Biggs: Through this morning.

Mr. McConaughy: Oh, this morning.

Mr. Biggs: That is all, Mr. Wyer, at the present time. Thank you.

Mr. Biggs: If Your Honor please, Mr. Bradley is here, and he has prepared the exhibit, and it will only take less than a minute.

The Court: Very well.

H. T. BRADLEY,

a witness of lawful age, having been heretofore duly produced, sworn and examined, upon being recalled to the witness stand, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. You have already been sworn, Mr. Bradley?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you prepare, at my request, an exhibit?
A. Yes, sir.

(The said document was marked by the reporter as Comstock Exhibit No. 136.)

Q. I show you a paper that has been marked "Comstock Exhibit No. 136", and ask you to state what it is.

A. This is estimate of original cost of the Gulf Coast Lines as of December 31, 1927, based on I. C. C. methods, plus subsequent additions and betterments to December 31, 1932, as reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission on BV Form 588.

Q. This was prepared under your supervision and direction? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Biggs: Offer it in evidence.

(The said document, identified as Comstock Exhibit No. 136.) [See Vol. of Exs. p. 233.]

Cross Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Bradley, Item 1 on Comstock Exhibit No. 136 refers to original cost. Original cost is not actual cost, is it? A. It is—

Q. (Interrupting) Just answer yes or no.

A. It is partially estimated, partially actual.

Q. Now, is original cost value for rate making purposes?
A. No, sir.
Q. Is it value for any other purpose that you know of?
A. No, sir.
Q. Has the Commission revealed how it computes value for rate making purposes? A. No, sir.
Q. Now, in your testimony day before yesterday, you referred to a document filed in these proceedings by one of the I. C. C. bureaus, called "Elements of Value". What is that bureau, what is the name of that bureau?
A. Bureau of Valuation.
Q. Bureau of Valuation? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Called "Elements of Value." Has the Commission revealed how it uses elements of value in computing value for any purpose?
A. No. That is secret. They don't disclose that.
Q. Original cost is one of the elements of value to which I have just referred?
A. That is right, it is one of the elements, yes.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all.

Mr. Biggs: That is all, Your Honor.

The Court: Would you like an adjournment at this time?

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I can save a little time. I have something from Mr. Wyer here in the nature of redirect which will save a minute.

The Court: All right.

Mr. McConaughy: And it is right on this point.

The Court: All right.

WILLIAM WYER,

a witness of lawful age, having been heretofore duly produced, sworn and examined, upon being recalled to the witness stand, testified further, on behalf of Institutional Group of Bondholders, as follows:

Redirect Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Wyer, you were here and heard the testimony of Mr. Kirkpatrick and Mr. Bradley, and there was a considerable amount of discussion of reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission on BV-588 Forms, and I would like to have you explain, if you know, the difference between the BV-588 reports and the Auditor's figures relating to additions and betterments.

A. These BV-588s are referred to on this last exhibit that Mr. Bradley has just introduced. There are two sets of figures on a railroad in connection with additions to physical property. They are both kept in accordance with instructions of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In one case, the instructions are initiated by the Bureau of Accounts, and in the other case by the Bureau of Valuation. The Bureau of Accounts issues instructions that govern the books of account. The Bureau of Valuation issues instructions governing the valuation records, and the BV-588 is one of the valuation records. It is a report which the railroads file with the Bureau of Valuation covering additions to and subtractions from their physical property.

The primary purpose of the BV-588 is to report physical units, then it also reports money value or money expenditures or retirement credits in addition; however, the money figures reported on the BV-588 do not agree and never can agree with the figures on the books compiled in accordance with this other set of instructions, for two reasons: first, the books are current, that is, every month the expenditures on additions to property are recorded on the books, but on the BV-588, no report is required until the job is completed, so that if a job starts, for example, at the end of 1926, we will say in December, and is not finished until sometime in 1928, that would not be recorded on the BV-588 until along with the 1928 figures, whereas the books would carry charges to that job in 1926, 1927, and 1928, so that the BV-588s are always behind the books, and sometimes in very substantial amounts.

Now then, even when—even taking the time when the BV-588 catches up with the books, the figures may not necessarily agree, and in many instances do not agree, because the instructions themselves are different as to the way in which the expenditures will be recorded. The same job, even after completion, may show a different expenditure on the books than it does on the BV-588s.

Mr. McConaughy: That is all, Mr. Wyer.

Mr. Biggs: No questions.

The Court: Announce an adjournment until two o'clock.

Adjournment at 12:15 P. M., March 23, 1945, for the noon recess, until 2:00 P. M.

Met pursuant to adjournment, at 2:00 P. M., on March 23, 1945, and the following proceedings were had:

Mr. McConaughy: So that I won't interrupt Mr. Biggs, I would like to correct a mistake which I made this morning. Mr. Biggs asked two questions of Mr. Wyer, relating to the advances, and I stated to the Court that Mr. Wyer had not testified concerning the advances, and that was entirely erroneous. He has done so, and I would like to withdraw my objections to those questions and tender Mr. Wyer now to answer them.

(The witness, WILLIAM WYER, was recalled to the witness stand.)

Mr. McConaughy: The ruling was based on my erroneous statement, and may I ask that the ruling be stricken?

The Court: What ruling was that?

Mr. McConaughy: You sustained my objection to two questions that Mr. Biggs asked of Mr. Wyer, regarding the advances. I have just called the erroneous statement I made to the attention of the Court, and I ask the ruling be withdrawn.

The Court: Very well. It will be withdrawn.

Recross Examination,

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. This morning, Mr. Wyer, I had asked you whether you received copies of certain memorandum in regard to the application between interest and principal payments on certain refunds of certain payments by NOTM back to Missouri Pacific against advances. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And I believe you stated that you had received copies of these memorandums? A. Yes.

Q. At the time they were issued? A. That is correct.

Q. Were you interested, in 1931, in these memoranda referred to, in knowing that every means was being availed of, to increase the reported earnings of MOP?

A. No. I don't think I ever looked at the situation from that point of view.

Q. I see.

A. We were interested, as I said, a railroad always is in getting all the earnings we could consistent with safely and good service, but that is about as far as I could go on that.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Wyer, that these payments against interest, as shown by these memoranda in 1931, were the first time that you credited payments against interest, rather than crediting all payments against principal?

A. I am not sure. They may have been, but if they were, it was only because up to that time the interest had been paid currently when due, and that this was the first time that there was any interest that had not been paid currently when due, and, consequently, the first time when it would have been proper to credit any of the repayments against interest.

Q. May I see Mr. Eckert's exhibits? I did not know we were going back into this field.

(The witness produces some exhibits.)

Q. Do I understand then from your testimony that interest had been paid currently on all these advances up to that time?

A. Well, I have not got the complete record of these payments before me at the moment, but interest was paid currently at the beginning of this period, during the first part of this advances period, that is, the period during which the advances were made, and I am not sure whether the advances covered by those memoranda are the first ones that were a part of the repayment so credited to interest or not, but I know that there was for a time full payment of interest, then I think there was one advance that was credited fully to interest or wholly to interest, which possibly preceded the advance, the repayments that you are asking me about right now, but of course you understand that the Missouri Pacific's income was not affected in the slightest by any distribution or division that was made on these repayments as between principal and interest. The interest on these advances was accrued in the accounts when due, and whether it was paid or not did not affect the purported income of the Missouri Pacific by one penny.

Q. It did affect the actual?

The Court: Affect the what?

Mr. Biggs: Affect the actual income.

A. No, it did not change the actual income at all. It affected the amount of cash on hand, but it did not make one penny's difference in the actual income of the Missouri Pacific.

Q. By merely putting an item on the books, no matter what the chances of its repayment are concerned, that is just as much income as cash coming in?

A. No; that is not what I said. If you put a good item on the books, it does not affect your income one particle whether it is paid now or six months from now, as long as it is a good debt.

Q. It is not true, Mr. Wyer, that the handling of this allocation between principal and interest of these payments back by NOTM to Missouri Pacific was started by an official of Missouri Pacific giving instructions to an official of NOTM?

A. Well, I don't know what you mean by starting the handling. The separation of these repayments between principal and interest would be computed by both the Missouri Pacific Accounting Department and the NOT&M Accounting Department, and the memoranda that you have there that you are referring to were written by Missouri Pacific officials to an NOTM official, that is true, but it was not a case of starting anything. They both made a computation, probably simultaneously, and one checked the other. This was merely an advice of what the Missouri Pacific made it, and if the NOT&M did not agree, why, of course they said so.

Q. Is there any evidence in the record as the basis for that statement?

A. Yes, I think Mr. Eckert testified to that.

Q. He merely testified, if I remember his testimony correctly, that he checked this letter from Mr. Johnson when it came in. A. Well, that is about what I said.

Q. Not my understanding of your statement. So that we are clear about this, these memoranda indicate that Mr. Johnson, an official of the Missouri Pacific, wrote a letter to an official of the NOTM, I believe it was Mr. Eckert, advising him that Missouri Pacific had received a payment on advances, and to credit on the books blank amount to principal and blank amount to interest.

A. Yes, I think that is correct.

Q. And this letter was from an officer of the Missouri Pacific to an officer of NOTM? A. I think that is correct.

Q. All right. Exhibit No. 29 covers the last public financing done by NOTM. As I understand your testimony, you have, in introducing this exhibit, suggested that it is comparable to the typical Missouri Pacific financing described in Exhibits Nos. 26, 27, and 28. As you described the financing of Missouri Pacific, you said that it was customary to make short term loans, and when they had accumulated to an amount large enough to make an acceptable block of bonds for the bankers to offer, a public offering would be made and the proceeds used to retire the temporary loans. Is that not the summary of your testimony? A. I think that is correct.

Q. On page 1050 of the record, you state that NOTM was never able to sell bonds, because of the condition of the financial markets after the sale of Series D bonds. Is this not correct? A. No. That is not what I said.

Mr. McConaughy: Do you want to see it, Mr. Wyer?

(Mr. McConaughy hands the record to the witness, who examines it.)

A. I said that the NOT&M was never able to sell bonds, because of the condition of the financial markets after the Depression started, that that was the reason.

The Court: I did not get that—were not able to sell bonds why?

The Witness: Because of the condition of the financial markets after the Depression started. Now, of course, the Depression did not start for quite a while after the Series D bonds were sold. The point is simply that by the time the next cycle got to the place where the amount involved was sufficient to constitute an attractive block from a financing standpoint, the condition of the markets had gotten to the point where the bonds could not be sold. Of course, while this cycle was developing in 1928 and 1929, undoubtedly bonds could have been sold, but at that time the amount of the advances was not large enough to constitute a marketable block of bonds or to support a marketable block of bonds.

Q. And then in 1930 and 1931, why, there was no market for the bonds on account of the Depression.

A. I think there would have been a market in 1930, but I don't think there would have been in 1931.

Q. There would not have been a market in 1931. Now, as I understand it, you need a block of at least about five million as a minimum?

A. That would be about the lowest amount you ought to have, yes.

Q. To justify carrying out a public offering and selling of the bonds through banks? A. For the NOT&M.

Q. For the NOT&M. A. That is true.

Q. The Missouri Pacific would have to be a bigger block?

A. Yes.

Q. However, Mr. Wyer, isn't it true that when the Series D bonds were sold in 1928, this mortgage was substantially closed?

A. Well, I think that may be true. I don't remember just what that is, but, of course, that would not have prevented putting a different kind of a mortgage on in some form, if the markets had been right. I think there were some restrictions on selling existing First Mortgage Bonds under the existing mortgage. I think there was a ratio between the bonds and the amount of stock outstanding which in effect would restrict the issue of bonds.

Q. Didn't it, in effect, provide you could only sell bonds up to three times what you had stock outstanding?

A. I think that is correct.

Q. And you had somewhere under fifteen million dollars of common stock outstanding? A. Very little.

Q. Very little. A. It was approximately 15 million.

Q. Yes, so that the top limit on bonds that you could issue under this open end mortgage—open end First Mortgage of NOTM, we will say, would be 45 million?

A. That, I think, is substantially correct.

Q. And at that time you were pretty close to that top?

A. Yes, we were.

Q. If NOTM had no way of financing its current borrowings by issuing additional bonds, except in a very limited amount, why did you suggest that the parent company expected to get its money back by this procedure, if it made any advances?

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question because it is based on an assumption which has not been proved here, that there was no other means of financing the NOT&M.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did NOTM have any way of financing its current borrowings, except by issuing additional bonds up to this 45 million dollar top, which was very limited?

A. Well, it could only issue, I think, about two million dollars more First Mortgage Bonds.

Q. Yes.

A. But that would not have prevented the NOT&M from issuing bonds under a new mortgage, if that could be worked out.

Q. That would have been a second mortgage?

A. That would have been a second mortgage, probably would have taken the form of a refunding mortgage, and would have been designed to take up the First Mortgage Bonds in later years as they came due, and ultimately become a first mortgage, but there was nothing that I know of that would have prevented the NOT&M from arranging financing of that kind when it got to the point where first mortgage authorizations were exhausted.

Q. Do you think the credit of NOTM was such in that period that it could have sold second mortgage bonds?

A. Yes, I do, up to a certain point. The credit of NOT&M, I would say, along there in 1927 and 1928 was better than the credit of the Missouri Pacific, because at that time the NOT&M bonds were legal investments for savings banks in the State of New York, and the Missouri Pacific bonds never were. Now, of course, it would have required better credit to sell that kind of a bond. On the other hand, Missouri Pacific in 1929 sold 46 million of unsecured debentures. Now, certainly a second mortgage bond of the NOT&M in 1929 would have sold better than those unsecured debentures. Up to a certain point in the markets, I have no doubt but that the NOT&M could have sold that kind of a bond.

Q. In view of the fact that only a small amount of these First Mortgage Bonds could be issued, how did the Directors of Missouri Pacific expect the advances to NOTM to be repaid?

A. Well, I think they expected them to be repaid through some form of NOT&M financing.

Q. Through second mortgage financing?

A. The bulk of it would have had to be through second mortgage, or perhaps all of it. If you were issuing a series of bonds, second mortgage bonds, to take care of this, it would probably close the first mortgage where it stood and make the whole financing through the new refunding bonds.

Q. Did not Mr. W. H. Williams testify before the Interstate Commerce Commission during 1929, in connection with the proposal to lease NOTM, that the means of public financing, as far as NOTM was concerned, had been exhausted? A. I don't know whether he did or not.

Q. Well, you knew what Mr. Williams' ideas were along these lines. Have you any opinion as to what was in his mind at that particular time?

A. I don't even know that he testified to that. I know what the facts were as to NOT&M financing, which I have tried to give here.

Q. Well, do you know whether or not Mr. Williams believed that in 1929 there was no opportunity for any further public financing in substantial amount by NOTM securities?

A. I would feel pretty sure that he believed that as to the First Mortgage Bonds, but I would also feel pretty sure that he did not believe it as to junior bond issue.

Q. In preparing your exhibits in connection with the transactions between MOP and NOTM, will you kindly state what exhibits you have prepared on a consolidated basis, and which exhibits you have prepared on the basis of separate corporate entities?

A. Well, Exhibit No. 23, which is the map, I think you would probably call separate corporate entities; and Exhibit No. 24, the mileage exhibit, the same. Exhibit No. 29, the cycle of financings, is on a consolidated basis.

Q. 29?

A. Right. Exhibit No. 30, which is the one of the two exhibits of the form of statements which the Board had under consideration was on a consolidated basis. Also Exhibit No. 31, which the Board had before it. Exhibit No. 32 is on a consolidated basis, and also Exhibit Nos. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exhibit No. 37, showing gross additions and betterments, is on a separate corporation basis. Exhibit No. 38, the income account, is on a consolidated basis; also Exhibit No. 39; also Exhibit No. 40; also Exhibit No. 41; 42, I suppose you would call that on a separate corporate basis; 43 has to do with the Brownsville; 44 with the Beaumont; 45 with the Brownsville; 46 with the Brownsville; 47 with the Brownsville.

Q. In order to clarify your exhibits and testimony, will you tell me whether you regard a consolidated statement as being anything more than a statistical memorandum?

A. Yes, I certainly do.

Q. Will you explain?

A. Yes. When the—due to the peculiar corporate set-up of the Gulf Coast Line Companies, whereby the parent company only owned 11 per cent of the mileage and at the same time was the only company that could provide any of the public financing, except for the equipment trusts which the Brownsville had, the earnings and other statistics and accounts for the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, proper, did not mean an awful lot.

Now, that was especially true of earnings, because of the small mileage and the fact that the income from railroad operations was a small part of the income of all of the subsidiaries. So unless you had an arrangement whereby all of the net income of the subsidiaries was declared out in dividends to the parent company, and all of the deficits of the subsidiaries were paid by the parent company and charged to its income account, the parent company's income account would not reflect the operation of all of the subsidiaries.

We never had such an arrangement on the Gulf Coast Lines. Some of the companies used to pay out portions of their income, but it was not a thorough-going arrangement, and those payments were not complete, and the deficits were not charged to the parent company, and the only picture of what the Gulf Coast Lines were doing was to be had only in the consolidated income account. And that is what the Directors always looked to, and the cash that they dealt with was a consolidated figure, and the requirements for advancements from the Missouri Pacific were based upon the needs of the consolidated companies, and from a business standpoint, the consolidated set-up was the one that they were always interested in, and I know that the Directors never had the complete income accounts of all of the subsidiaries. And while I think the income accounts of perhaps some of the important subsidiaries were available to them, they were never—I would say that no interest was taken in them; that the main thing was the consolidated showing, because that was the only way in which you could get the deficits of the losing subsidiaries into the picture. If you dealt with something that was not the consolidated basis, you would be over-optimistic, because the deficits of the subsidiaries would not come to your attention in any other way, and in order to get the whole picture and the true picture, the consolidated basis was the only one.

Q. Do you make any claim that a consolidated statement shows the legal relationship which exists between the separate companies which are included in a consolidated income or balance sheet statement?

A. Do you think I am qualified to answer that question?

Q. You have been testifying as an expert.

The Court: For how many lines?

Mr. Biggs: In very many, Your Honor.

Q. Can you answer the question.

Mr. McConaughy: Your Honor, I object to the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. McConaughy: It calls for a legal conclusion.

Q. In preparing these exhibits, did you ask your counsel here whether these consolidated exhibits showed the legal relationship which existed between the separate companies which are included in the consolidated income or balance sheet statement?

A. No, I did not ask counsel that question.

Q. You did not? A. No.

The Court: Why should he?

Mr. Biggs: Well, just a question.

The Court: How?

Mr. Biggs: Just a minute.

The Court: I am just asking you why should he have asked counsel that.

Mr. Biggs: If it does not show the legal relationship, if Your Honor please, I don't believe it is competent evidence. That is the answer to it.

Q. Were you advised by your counsel that consolidated statements showed the legal relationship between the companies?

A. No, I don't recall that I was, either way.

Q. I see. Is it not true, Mr. Wyer, that when NOTM lent money to Brownsville, that the real reason Brownsville did not issue additional bonds, as you suggested in your testimony they might have done; is because such bonds would have had to be deposited with NOTM First Mortgage trustee? A. No.

Q. Do you mean they would not have had to be deposited? A. No. I mean that is not the real reason.

Q. That is not the real reason. Well, what was the real reason?

A. The real reason was that it would simply have been unnecessary paper work and unnecessary extra expense would have been incurred.

Q. And no benefit either to NOTM or Missouri Pacific?

A. No benefit to anybody. You see, the entire securities of the Brownsville were pledged under the NOT&M mortgage, and if you issued more bonds, that would simply reduce the value of the stock. The value was there in the form of either stock or bonds, and more bonds would not have given the NOT&M any more to use in the way of financing the picture than they already had with the pledge of all the outstanding securities.

Q. So there was no way to secure any kind of collateral as a result of additions and betterments on the Brownsville, which could be used either by NOTM or the Missouri Pacific to secure a loan?

A. I did not say that at all. As these additions and betterments were made, obviously the property of the Brownsville became more valuable, and as the property became more valuable, the securities of the Brownsville pledged with the NOT&M under the First Mortgage became more valuable, and the NOT&M's borrowing power was increased, and so on up the line.

Q. But the First Mortgage of the Brownsville held by NOTM was pledged as collateral under the NOTM First Mortgage, is that not true? A. That is correct.

Q. Is it not true that the annual reports of NOTM in evidence in this hearing for the years 1924 through 1932 show that the investments of NOTM in its subsidiaries were represented by four categories, namely, bonds, stocks, advances, and family line bills?

A. Well, now, what annual reports are you talking about? To whom?

Q. Annual reports to the stockholders.

A. Well, those annual reports to the stockholders for the years that you mentioned are on different bases. They started out on one basis and wound up on another, and I think by the time you got to the year 1932, they were on an entirely consolidated basis, so that the NOT&M's investments in its subsidiaries were not shown in the annual reports at all.

Q. All right, let's forget about the annual reports. What categories were the investments of NOTM in its subsidiaries divided into?

A. Are you talking about the parent company now?

Q. That is right.

A. Well, I think they were divided in those classifications that you mentioned.

Q. So far as NOTM income from these investments was concerned, is it not true that it was reported as derived only from two categories: interest on bonds and dividends on stock? A. I think that is correct.

Q. If NOTM had not received any payments of interest—

A. (Interrupting) Wait—excuse me a minute—I think that was not quite a correct answer that I gave you. I think there was also some interest on advances on the NOT&M income account.

Q. Would it be in any substantial amount?

A. Not as much as the others, but I think the Texas City Terminal, for example, the NOT&M had advances to the Texas City Terminal on its books, and accrued interest on those advances, and there may be one or two other minor instances, but there was some interest on advances in the income account of the parent company. Of course, the Texas City Terminal did not get into the consolidated income account. That was probably the reason for it.

Q. But they were of minor character?

A. That is correct. They were not the larger part of the income on securities.

Q. If NOTM had not received any payment of interest or dividends from their subsidiaries, is it not true that in none of the years between 1924 and 1932, inclusive, that NOTM, the separate corporate entity, would have had sufficient income to pay the interest on its own First Mortgage Bonds?

A. Why, I have not checked it, but I have no doubt that is true.

Q. On the dates prior to January 1, 1925, on which Missouri Pacific acquired New Orleans, Texas and Mexico stock, NOTM showed a book surplus, is that not correct?

A. Well, I don't remember offhand. I assume that those figures are in the record.

Q. Yes. Is it not true that any dividends paid by NOTM thereafter, which reduced the surplus below the amount at which it stood on the date at which the stock was acquired, would, from the standpoint of Missouri Pacific, be a return of capital to the extent to which the surplus was thereby reduced?

A. Why, I don't think so at all. If the answer to that question was yes, that would mean that—there is no reason for picking out the Missouri Pacific as somebody purchasing stock in a company, that would apply to any investor who went out and bought stock in any company in the United States, and if at any time after he bought his stock, his dividend was declared which reduced the surplus below where it stood at the day he bought his stock, under your theory, that would be a return of that investor's capital. You know that is not so.

Q. Just so we understand each other. You buy control of a corporation that has a surplus at the time of purchase of a hundred thousand dollars; thereafter, as a result of dividends, the surplus is reduced to twenty-five thousand dollars: Have you not received a return of capital in the amount your stock holdings bear to the whole amount of stock outstanding, so far as the $25,000 is concerned? A. I don't understand so.

Q. You understand my illustration?

A. I understand your illustration. I don't understand that that constitutes the return of capital.

Q. In your testimony in regard to family line bills, didn't you state that it did not make any difference which voucher for family line bills was paid?

A. I may have made that statement, if I—because I believe that to be true. I don't remember whether I made that statement or not, but I think that is correct.

Q. You have got here a lot of vouchers for family line bills. As I understood your testimony, it did not make any difference which one you picked out of the basket.

A. Well, I may have said it.

Q. I don't think you used those exact words, Mr. Wyer.

A. If I did not, I will say it now.

Q. But in using layman's language, that was my understanding of your testimony.

A. I think that is correct.

Q. On the contrary, is it not a fact that whoever controlled the selection of family line vouchers out of the basket that were paid automatically controlled two bookkeeping results; one, if all vouchers representing interest payments and dividend distributions were paid, NOT&M could report income in excess of fixed charges and could continue to keep a bookkeeping surplus?

A. No, that is not correct.

Q. That is not correct. Two: if, on the other hand, only vouchers covering any other items were paid, NOTM would have no income from its investments in its subsidiaries, and no bookkeeping surplus?

A. No. It does not work that way.

Q. It does not work that way. All payments of interest and dividends by subsidiaries to NOTM were in the form of family line vouchers?

A. I think the family line voucher was prepared in each case covering interest and dividends. I think that is correct.

Q. And when interest or dividends were actually paid, they drew out of this basket of vouchers the particular voucher pertaining to interest or dividends, is that not true?

A. Well, I think that is true, yes, accepting your figure of speech.

Q. Well, we understand each other on it?

A. I think so.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyer, you did testify just a few minutes ago that if NOTM had not received any payments of interest on these bonds or dividends on these stocks during the years 1924 to 1932, that it would not have had sufficient income to pay interest on its own First Mortgage Bonds. Do you remember that question? A. Yes, I do.

Q. So that if the particular vouchers pertaining to interest and dividends were left in the basket, NOTM would not have had sufficient income to pay interest on its First Mortgage Bonds, is that not correct?

A. No, I don't think that is correct.

Q. Why isn't it correct?

A. You have a little confusion here. You have got the same principle involved here as is involved in the case of interest on the NOT&M advances to the Missouri Pacific. Interest and dividends on the NOT&M subsidiaries was accrued on the NOT&M's books. Now, that was good income to the NOT&M, whether those vouchers were pulled out of the basket and paid or whether they were not. The amount of cash that the NOT&M had would not have been changed, no matter which vouchers were pulled out and paid. The NOT&M in effect got all the cash that these subsidiaries had, and their situation would not have changed a particle, no matter what vouchers had been paid or which ones had been left unpaid. Their income affected this interest and dividends. As I say, the method whereby the income of NOT&M reflected interest and dividends of its subsidiaries was not perfect. That was why the NOT&M Directors had to look at the consolidated figures to be sure they were getting the results of the operations of all the subsidiaries into their calculation. The figures of the NOT&M Railway, as a separate corporation, never reflected the picture, just for the very reason that all of the earnings of the earning subsidiaries were not passed on in the form of interest and dividends, and the deficits of the losing subsidiaries were not taken up, so that the earnings of the NOT&M Railway Company never reflected the complete picture, but it did reflect the accrual of the interest and the dividends of the subsidiaries where that was passed on to the parent company, and whether those vouchers reflecting that interest and those dividends were paid never made any difference in the income of the parent company.

Q. Isn't there a rule of the I.C.C. that provides that you cannot consider as an asset any payment of interest or dividends unless it is actually paid or there is the prospect of immediate payment? A. No.

Q. There is not any such rule? A. No.

Q. Is there any rule that is substantially of that character?

A. There is a rule on dividends, which I think has been introduced in the record here, which provides that you can only accrue dividends under certain conditions. I think one of the conditions as to the accrual of dividends is that there must be reasonable expectation of payment. I don't recall that it says anything about immediate payment.

Q. All right. A. Now, the Brownsville, as I point out—

Q. (Interrupting) What is the rule about interest, first? Let's get that out of the way.

A. I don't recall what the rule about interest is, but I don't think there is any rule about interest that is along the lines that you suggest.

Q. There does not have to be any reasonable expectation then that the interest will be paid?

A. Not that I recall. I don't really have any rule on interest in mind. I never heard of such a rule on interest, but I know that many railroads did have accrued interest in their income accounts that ultimately was not paid. I have never heard of any rule that prevented if it was a good debt, and while it might not have been paid in cash, it might ultimately have been paid in securities in reorganization, or in some such way, but if it is a good debt, it is a good accrual.

Now, that rule about dividends that you have in mind is the reason why I introduced my Exhibit No. 46, to show as to Brownsville dividends that it was not the practice to pay them promptly, but they were paid sometimes, well, over two years after they were declared, so that when the Brownsville declared a dividend, a reasonable expectation of payment, as far as the Brownsville was concerned, meant that it might be paid any time within the next year or two, or maybe even longer, and unless there was reason to believe that Brownsville dividend could not be paid within two years or two and a half years, any accrual of a Brownsville dividend was, I believe in accordance with that rule.

Q. Now, let me read you the rule, and then see if your testimony is that way. This is from Comstock's Exhibit No. 42:

> "Dividends declared shall not be credited prior to actual collection, unless their payment is reasonably assured by past experience, guaranty, anticipated provisions, or otherwise."

A. Yes. That is the rule I had in mind.

Q. And you believe that even if you could not anticipate a payment of a dividend for two years by Brownsville, that you came within the provisions of that rule?

A. Yes, I would think you might clearly come within the provisions of that rule, because it contained the words "reasonably assured by past experience", and past experience on the Brownsville meant obviously that it might be a year or two, or even more, before you got your dividend that the Brownsville had always produced in the past.

Q. Is not Exhibit No. 46—and 46 is that which you were just talking about, the exhibit showing the payment of Brownsville dividends,—nothing more than a memorandum showing the dates on which vouchers issued against dividend declarations were listed from the aggregate pool of family line bills, in the manner and for the purposes set forth in my preceding question?

A. I don't know just what the purposes set forth in your preceding question were.

Q. Of course, I will have to interpolate that, because we digressed considerably. Let me withdraw that question. Mr. Wyer, I asked you, was it not a fact that whoever controlled the selection of family line bill vouchers that were to be paid, automatically controlled—took two bookkeeping results: one, if all vouchers representing interest payments and dividend distributions were paid, NOTM would report income in excess of fixed charges and could continue keeping a bookkeeping surplus; and, two, if on the other hand, only vouchers covering any other items were paid, NOTM would have no income from its investments in its subsidiaries and no bookkeeping surplus.

Now I want to ask you this additional question: Is not Exhibit No. 46 nothing more than a memorandum showing the dates on which vouchers issued against dividend declarations were listed from the aggregate pool of family line bills, in the manner and for the purposes set forth in my preceding question?

The Court: Before you answer it, what is the Exhibit No. 46? I do not recall.

The Witness: That is my exhibit showing the dates that Brownsville dividends were declared and paid.

Inasmuch as my answer to your (addressing Mr. Biggs) preceding question was no as to both sections of it, I don't think that the second question makes any sense. The purposes of the preceding question seem to me obscure under those circumstances.

Q. Does not Exhibit No. 46 show the dates that these vouchers for dividends were actually paid? A. Yes.

Q. And it does not purport to show any date which, under the declaration of a dividend, the dividend was supposed to be paid?

A. I don't believe it does. I think that is shown in a different exhibit. I think for the most part these dividends were declared to be due as of a date prior to their declaration. I don't think Exhibit No. 46 shows those dates, but I think, by and large, these dividends were due immediately upon their declaration, because in most cases, the due date was prior to the date of declaration, but that is in another exhibit. We were interested here in showing the lapse of time from a practical standpoint. Obviously the dividends could not have been paid before they were declared, but since in nearly every instance they were due immediately upon declaration, by reason of these prior due dates, we thought the practical lapse of time would be shown by this exhibit, where we figure the lapse between the date of declaration and the date of actual payment.

Q. Is it not true also that the NOTM annual reports filed with the I. C. C. show that irrespective of what kind of vouchers were paid, NOTM continued from December 31, 1924 to December 31, 1932 to have a valuable but increasing aggregate of uncollectable vouchers which when transferred from the deferred asset account amounted, as shown by Comstock's Exhibit No. 37, to $15,659,743?

A. I think that is correct.

Mr. Biggs: That is all, Your Honor. I now move the Court to strike out investors' Group Exhibits Nos. 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38, 39, 40, and 41, because the witness has testified that these were consolidated returns which included figures from the NOTM and also figures from the various subsidiaries of NOTM which have been identified in evidence.

The case before this Court involves two parties—the Missouri Pacific and the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway Company, a single corporate entity. At the present time, on account of bankruptcy, both are represented by a trustee, but they are still single corporate entities, each one of them. The claim of the Missouri Pacific—

Mr. McConaughy: With Mr. Biggs' permission, I have two questions, and I have just one question to ask Mr. Wyer before he leaves the stand. He is trying to get the train tonight, and I would like to let him go.

Mr. Biggs: That is perfectly agreeable. Strike that all out, and I will start over again.

Redirect Examination,

By Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Wyer, I believe you have one correction in the testimony that you gave, have you not, concerning the time you were an officer of the Missouri Pacific?

A. Yes. I stated on my direct that I was not sure just when I resigned as Secretary and Treasurer of the Missouri Pacific, that I thought it was in 1938 or 1939, and I am advised that it was in 1941. I think November, 1941.

Mr. McConaughy: I have no further questions and may Mr. Wyer be excused?

The Witness: I wanted to ask you before—do you want to ask about that stuff you wanted me to get—these monies to be credited to the surplus account?

Mr. Biggs: Forget about it.

The Witness: Do you want that?

Mr. Biggs: No.

The Court: May Mr. Wyer be excused?

Mr. Biggs: He may.

The Court: You may be excused then, Mr. Wyer.

Mr. Biggs: I want to make this motion to strike, and then I am through for the day. I want to make this motion to strike these exhibits. I was interrupted, you remember. I guess that I should start over.

If Your Honor please, I move to strike Investors' Group Exhibits 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38, 39, [41,] and 41. Mr. Wyer has testified that all of these exhibits represent consolidated figures of the NOTM and various subsidiary companies which have been identified in evidence. This claim before the Court for adjudication involves a claim of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company against the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad Company, both separate corporate entities, and this claim has no bearing, or is not against, and there is no legal liability on any of the subsidiary companies—and by subsidiary companies, I mean the companies subsidiary of NOTM or New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad Company. As the evidence of Mr. Wyer indicates that these exhibits in question were a consolidation of certain figures representing values in NOTM and certain figures representing values in these subsidiaries, and as there is no possibility of identifying the figures pertaining to New Orleans, Texas and Mexico and the figures pertaining to the other subsidiaries, these exhibits do not show the exact or legal relationship existing between the separate companies and are not, therefore, admissible in evidence in a trial of issues such as are now before the Court. I therefore move that they be stricken.

Mr. McConaughy: Regarding that, Your Honor, it seems to me the exhibits are clearly pertinent to the issues. There is a charge that the Missouri Pacific over-reached the NOT&M; there is a charge of bad faith here; they seek to draw in the Taylor against Standard Gas and Electric case and the doctrines there enunciated, and in order to clearly understand what the Directors were faced with, this background and the whole picture, the consolidated statements, I think are necessary.

The Court: The motion is overruled.

Mr. Biggs: May we have an adjournment at this time to sometime tomorrow morning? I will finish then.

The Court: Will we get through tomorrow, do you think?

Mr. Biggs: That is correct. In fact, if I am not executed on the basis of this promise, I think we will be through in an hour.

The Court: I never have held a night session as long as I have been on the bench, but I am tempted sometimes to run right on through, to get through with this thing.

Mr. Biggs: The situation is, Your Honor, that I have to go over Mr. Eckert's testimony and work out some questions in regard to him. I have not had a chance to do that.

The Court: Can we adjourn tomorrow at twelve o'clock?

Mr. Biggs: So we will be through by twelve o'clock, you mean? I am practically positive of that, yes.

Mr. Kitchel: We would like to have it made a condition, Your Honor, that if we are adjourning now at a quarter of 4:00, that the condition be that this case be closed by twelve o'clock tomorrow.

The Court: Well, that is the order. We will close, we will finish at 12:00 tomorrow. Announce an adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

Adjourned at 3:45 P. M., March 23, 1945, until 10:00 A. M., March 24, 1945.

Met, pursuant to adjournment as above, on March 24, 1945, at ten o'clock A. M., whereupon the following proceedings were had:

MARTIN ECKERT,

having been heretofore duly sworn, and upon being recalled, testified as follows:

Further Cross Examination

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Mr. Eckert, you have already been a witness here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a copy of your exhibits? A. Yes.

Q. I mean by that the exhibits that were introduced by the Institutional Group. A. No.

Q. I mean, just the ones that you introduced and prepared? A. Yes.

Q. You have those? A. Yes.

Q. Your Exhibit 1, which consists of five pages, sets out certain corrections of figures pertaining to the Comstock Exhibits; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Do any of these corrections alter Comstock Exhibits in any substantial way? A. They do not.

Q. Are not these corrections obviously mechanical errors in unimportant amounts?

A. Mechanical or typographical errors, yes. Some of the corrections that we called attention to were made as the result of exceptions taken by the Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, and so forth.

Q. Take, for example, page 2: The first item on that page is a correction which was made after the original annual report was filed; is not that true?

A. That is correct.

Q. This exhibit referred to was based on the figures in the annual report? A. Yes.

Q. So that, in preparing the exhibit from the annual report, so far as the preparer of that exhibit was concerned, he was entirely correct?

A. He was correct in so far as the records shows the information.

Q. In the annual report? A. Yes.

Q. You have read into the record what you called an omitted part of the record, which you say in your testimony should have been included in Comstock Exhibit 134: Does the word "cash" appear anywhere in the phrase that you have added? A. It does not.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't understand the question.

Mr. Biggs: I think the next question will clear it up.

Q. Does the addition of this omitted phrase in any way alter the fact that the transaction in question was accomplished wholly by journal entries?

A. No. The transaction was accomplished by a journal entry, but I would like to add there that, as I stated bebefore, I thought it was similar to a cash transaction, because the amount involved and the manner in which it was handled indicated that the money could have well been advanced by the Missouri Pacific to the Gulf Coast and then it would be a cash transaction, but the transaction was handled by the means of a journal entry.

Q. Under the actual facts the way it was handled there was no cash transferred between any of the parties?

A. I said it was the same as cash.

Q. But there was no actual cash?

A. No, the cash was not passed.

Q. There was no cash passed.

Mr. McConaughy: When you referred to the omitted phrase you referred to the line which is omitted in the second sheet of Comstock Exhibit 134; is that correct, Mr. Biggs?

Mr. Biggs: No; there are other excerpts, too.

Mr. McConaughy (to the witness): Did you understand what he was talking about?

The Witness: I thought, when he said "phrase" he was referring to the word "cash", which appeared in a previous question.

Mr. McConaughy: What were you referring to as the "omitted phrase"? I would like to have the record show.

Mr. Biggs: He testified on direct examination, if I remember it correctly, that we had not included in that exhibit the entire statement of Mr. Wyer explaining the entry.

Mr. McConaughy: Mr. Eckert testified that, at the foot of sheet 1 of Comstock Exhibit 134 there appeared a paragraph, and only one paragraph, from a memorandum prepared by Mr. F. P. Johnson. You are talking about that paragraph?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Mr. McConaughy (to the witness): Did you understand that, Mr. Eckert?

The Witness: No, sir, I didn't. He was asking about cash.

Mr. Biggs: That is what I am talking about.

The Witness: It was a cash transaction.

Mr. McConaughy: Ask the question again, because I don't think the record is clear on it.

Mr. Biggs: Q. In any of the omitted facts, figures, memorandums, statements, or anything else that you testified to in regard to this transaction, does the word "cash" appear? A. It does not.

Mr. Biggs: Off the record.

(Here ensued colloquy between Mr. Biggs and Mr. McConaughy.)

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Eckert, did the financial condition of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company improve after October 31, 1932, and up to date of bankruptcy? A. Apparently not.

Q. In fact, it deteriorated, didn't it?

A. I would have to verify that from the records, but they had a depression on in 1931 and 1932.

Q. We had a bank holiday in the Spring of 1933, didn't we? A. Yes.

Q. So, there was no improvement in the financial condition; you will go that far?

A. I say apparently not. I would have to look at the records to see.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, on page 880 you testified that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company was unable to pay to the International-Great Northern Railroad Company $1,261,000. that it owed it at that time, did you not? A. Gulf Coast Lines?

Q. Gulf Coast Lines. Did you testify to that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did not Mr. Johnson, the Chief Financial Officer of the Missouri Pacific—Chief Accounting Officer, is that a better title? A. Chief Accounting and Financial Officer.

Q. Chief Accounting and Financial Officer, in the Institutional Investors Exhibit No. 3, make the following statement: "The indebtedness of the various Gulf Coast Lines to the International-Great Northern Railroad represented by bills, interest on unfunded debt, and miscellaneous advances increased from time to time by reason of the inability of the Gulf Coast Lines to pay the amount in cash, until in October, 1932, the amount involved was $1,261,009.84": That statement you are familiar with? A. Yes.

Q. And you agree with that statement?

A. Yes. That was the amount that was agreed upon in settlement between the I.-G. N., Gulf Coast Lines and Missouri Pacific.

Q. You agree with the statement that the Gulf Coast Lines were unable to pay the amount in cash?

A. Yes, he made the statement. I was there at the time and I think the amount was correct which was agreed upon between the Missouri Pacific and Gulf Coast Lines and I.-G. N.

Q. Will you please tell me, Mr. Eckert, in view of these facts, how the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company was able to pay the Missouri Pacific $79,000. on January 3, 1933, and $175,000. on March 29, 1933?

A. The transactions to which you obviously refer took place prior to that time.

Q. That is right.

A. There might have been cash accumulated that they could pay. I don't recall. I don't have any financial exhibit before me to indicate what their financial position was at that time, but they evidently had the money or they couldn't have paid it.

Q. You have testified that the financial condition of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico didn't improve over that period and you have testified that they were unable to pay cash to the International-Great Northern in October, 1932. We know definitely that the banks were closed in the Spring of 1933, which certainly didn't add to the financial condition of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and, yet, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico paid in cash, in January and March, very substantial amounts to the Missouri Pacific: Can you explain that? A. No, I can't.

Q. Now, Mr. Eckert, in regard to your Exhibits 8, 9, 10, 12, 13 and 14, they all pertain, do they not, to remittances by the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico to the Missouri Pacific of various amounts of money? A. Yes.

Q. And they are all directions to you as the Accounting Officer of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico as to how these remittances should be credited against advances by the Missouri Pacific to the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico?

A. That is correct.

Q. I asked you this morning if you could find in your files the letters of transmittal in regard to these remittances, did I not? A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to find them? A. No, sir.

Q. To the best of your recollection, how were these amounts transferred?

A. By telegraph. I am not sure about that, but I think they were probably transmitted by telegraph.

Q. And there were no letters of transmittal?

A. No letters of transmittal.

Q. Do you remember, Mr. Eckert, in regard to any of these items ever directing Mr. Johnson as to how these payments should be credited against advances?

A. I don't recall ever calling attention to or directing how these amounts should be applied. The directions came from the St. Louis office.

Q. The directions came from the St. Louis office?

A. Yes.

Q. And you acted in accord with those directions?

A. Yes; subject to check, of course.

Q. Subject to check as to the mechanical figures?

A. Yes.

Q. But as far as the policy of whether these payments should be credited against principal or interest, that was decided by the Missouri Pacific office?

A. Decided by the St. Louis office, yes.

Q. Decided by the St. Louis office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit No. 7: What is the date of that exhibit? A. August 27, 1931.

Q. Did that exhibit institute a change in policy as far as the crediting of these remittances against the advances of Missouri Pacific?

A. Yes. Prior to that time, except as to the amount shown in the letter dated May 4, 1931, Exhibit 6, they were all applied to principal, and after May 4, 1931, some of the amounts were applied to partial payment of interest.

Q. And the first one, was that the August letter?

A. No, the first one was May 4, 1931.

Q. It was in May, the first direction of change in policy? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Eckert, I will show you Group Exhibit No. 31. This exhibit is a summarized setup of the proposed financial policy of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico for the year 1929, isn't that correct?

A. Well, I have not analyzed this exhibit.

Q. I see. I will strike that question out.

Mr. McConaughy: I don't think Mr. Eckert knows anything about the statement, or had anything to do with it.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Take the statement as it is; it has been identified by Mr. Wyer and testified to by him. From an examination of that statement, Mr. Eckert, will you please tell me what direct benefits the Missouri Pacific received?

A. I would have to take this statement and analyze it.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to that question. It is not proper cross examination. He didn't testify about this exhibit at all. It is one of Mr. Wyer's exhibits.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Biggs: I would like to offer Mr. Eckert as a witness on behalf of Mr. Comstock.

The Court: Very well.

Direct Examination of the Witness,
on Behalf of Comstock:

Mr. Biggs: Q. Mr. Eckert, will you please examine that statement and state what direct benefits the Missouri Pacific received?

A. I don't believe I can answer that question. They received a dividend of $1,038,303. that is, according to this, under the caption "Cash requirements". Down below it says "Advance required from Missouri Pacific during 1929 $1,119,449.", but I say I would have to verify those figures.

Q. I am not asking for figures, but assuming the figures are correct. Let us assume that the figures are entirely correct. The Missouri Pacific received a direct benefit of a little over ninety-three per cent. of the dividends, didn't they? A. Yes, of ninety-three per cent. of the dividends.

Q. And the Missouri Pacific received as a direct benefit an obligation of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico which bore interest at the rate of six per cent., in the amount set out as advanced; is not that true? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. McConaughy: I object to this line of questioning, Your Honor. If you will look at the exhibit you will see it is headed Estimated Requirement, and he is proceeding on the theory that those were actual payments and receipts.

Mr. Biggs: I said assuming it is correct. Mr. Eckert is an expert witness and fully qualified.

Mr. McConaughy: He ought to have some proof before he asks a thing of that kind.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Biggs: Q. Is not that correct?

A. What is the question?

Q. I will reframe it. In regard to the advance item shown on that exhibit, let us assume that that is correct, did not the Missouri Pacific secure a direct benefit, to-wit, an interest paying obligation of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico in that amount? A. In what amount?

Q. In the amount of the advance, assuming it is correct. I am not asking whether the item is correct or incorrect.

A. On the assumption that the statement is correct, yes.

Q. Assuming that all of these figures are correct, did Tom Smith, the owner of a thousand dollar Missouri Pacific Serial 5¼% Bond, secured by ten shares of common stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, secure any direct benefit?

A. I will have to make a further analysis of Tom Smith. I can't see where they would have any direct benefit.

Q. I am using Tom Smith, any owner of Serial 5¼% bonds. Can you see how he would get any direct benefit?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Biggs: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. McConaughy:

Q. Mr. Eckert, do you have Comstock Exhibit 44? I will show you a copy of it as revised, together with a memorandum which you made for me about it.

(To Mr. Biggs) Do you have the original exhibit 44?

Mr. Biggs: Yes (handing Exhibit to Mr. McConaughy).

The Court: Pardon me. I will have to interrupt the proceeding.

(At this point the Court took up another matter, after which the hearing was resumed.)

Mr. McConaughy: Q. Mr. Eckert, I will ask you to look at Comstock Exhibit 44, which was, among other exhibits, corrected by Group Exhibit No. 1. After you have had a chance to examine that, do you say that those corrections were merely mechanical or typographical?

A. There are some that I apparently overlooked. I didn't prepare that exhibit myself, and there are some errors in this that are rather vital.

Q. You say you did not prepare this Comstock Exhibit 44? A. It was prepared under my supervision.

Q. That (indicating exhibit)?

A. That was prepared by Mr. Delaney; I mean the corrections.

Q. What have you to say about the errors corrected there?

A. "New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company" reading "Unadjusted other debits family line bills due from St. LB&M and Beaumont Sour Lake & Western as disclosed by subsidiary reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission."

In the fourth column where they attempt to show the amount of family line vouchers they have also included other accounts, indicated in pencil on the exhibit, that have no bearing on the family lines as indicated by the Interstate Commerce Commission reports.

Q. Is it not true that every single figure in that column is wrong? A. Yes.

Q. By a substantial amount? A. Yes.

Q. It includes other items not puroprted to be covered by the heading? A. Yes.

Q. When we go to Comstock Exhibit 134, you have already noted serious errors in that, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Biggs has just spoken to you about Comstock Exhibit 134 and the fact that the transaction which resulted in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico becoming obligated for $1,261,000., as a mere entry in the journals: You recall that, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, is it not true that the items for which the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and its subsidiaries were obligated to the L.-G. N. represented cash items which the L.-G. N. had furnished to those companies, with the exception of interest charges?

A. With the exception of interest.

Q. With the exception of interest. Mr. Biggs has referred to your statement which he says is at page 880 of the transcript. I have not had a chance to check it, but he said that you stated that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was not in financial condition to pay it, and he also referred to Mr. Johnson's memorandum in that respect. Was not your point there that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico did not happen to have the cash on hand to pay it; you didn't mean to imply that the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was insolvent, did you? A. Oh, no.

Q. Or didn't have assets to pay it? A. No.

Q. It was a mere matter of not having the cash on hand at the time to make that $1,200,000. payment?

A. That is right.

Q. He also referred to Group Exhibits 8 to 15, being certain memoranda or letters written by Mr. Johnson to you, indicating how the Missouri Pacific had treated certain repayments on account of the advances? A. Yes.

Q. You said that when you got those letters you checked them? A. We did, sir.

Q. You didn't mean to imply that you were taking orders from Mr. Johnson, you, the Auditor of the N. O. T. & M., as to how to keep your books, did you?

A. No, sir; I was not taking orders from Mr. Johnson.

Q. When you got that memorandum from Mr. Johnson you, as Auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, looked into that to see whether that should be interest or should be principal; isn't that correct?

A. Except as to the first few payments, which were applied as principal.

Q. That was all right as far as you were concerned, to have it apply to principal?

A. Yes, but the items were checked when we got the letters and if there had been an error we certainly would have called attention to it. As it happened, though, there was never an error.

Q. You were Auditor of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't take orders from Mr. Johnson as to how to run the books of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, did you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Biggs: You did take orders from Mr. Johnson, though?

Mr. McConaughy: Wait a minute.

Mr. Biggs: Excuse me.

Mr. McConaughy: Have you Group Exhibit 31 with you? Mr. Biggs asked you to assume that the figures on that were correct: The fact is that that exhibit is a mere estimate; it speaks prospectively, doesn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it also true that that provides for—anticipates additions and betterments in substantially greater amount than the advances listed on that exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. And that ought to be of some value to a stockholder, should it not? A. Yes.

Mr. McConaughy: I think that is all, Your Honor.

Recross Examination,

By Mr. Biggs:

Q. Did I understand from your testimony that you never took any orders from Mr. Johnson?

A. I never took any orders from Mr. Johnson as to the accounting, because we were governed by regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Johnson was my superior in office. He was Chief Accounting and Financial Officer of the Gulf Coast Lines, of the Texas Lines, and he was also later Vice-President. He was my superior officer.

Q. If Mr. Johnson told you to credit a certain amount to principal and a certain amount to interest, and assuming there was an amount of interest and principal due at that time, would you dispute that matter with him?

A. If it had been incorrect, I certainly would.

Q. If the figures had been incorrect, but would you dispute the policy? A. I wouldn't dispute that policy.

Q. You would carry out his order in regard to that?

A. I would, yes, but if there was any error in the matter of interest or any error had been made, if he said we should have credited a different amount, I certainly would have called attention to it. As it happened, it was all right.

Q. So there is no doubt about what we are going into there, take Exhibit No. 7.

Mr. McConaughy: Group Exhibit 7?

Mr. Biggs: Yes.

Q. I will read that to you. It is addressed to Mr. Eckert, dated August 27th, 1931.

"Cash remittance of $200,000. received today will be applied $192,387.93 in payment of interest to July 31, 1931 and $7,612.07 in part payment of advance made January 31, 1929."

That is correct isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Signed by F. P. Johnson? A. Yes.

Q. Now, if these two figures, $192,387.93 and $7,612.07 had not added up to $200,000. you would have called Mr. Johnson's attention to that, wouldn't you?

A. No, if the amount—

Q. I mean if there had been a mechanical error.

A. No, not only that—

Q. Just a minute. You would have done that, would you not?

A. Yes, if there had been a mechanical error I would call attention to it.

Q. And if the interest to July 31, 1931 had not amounted to $192,387.93, but had amounted to $192,379.93 you would call his attention to that?

A. Yes, I would call his attention to it.

Q. You would have done that. But if, instead of setting out the allocation to interest and principal in this fashion, he had allocated interest up to July 15, 1931 and allocated the balance to principal, you would not have questioned that? A. I would not have questioned that.

Q. That was an order from Mr. Johnson on policy, isn't that correct?

A. Well, probably so, but I want to say this, if the interest accruals which he took up on his books didn't agree with ours—

Q. You would have called his attention to that?
